Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

AN UNEXPECTED HITCH

Causes Disappointment to Those Interested In the Defender.

Cradle Stuck by Swelling of the Ways' Woodwork.

Bow May Have to Be Pontooned to Carry Out the Launching.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 1.—The abrupt termination of what promised to be a successful launch of the Defender Saturday afternoon at the Herreshoffs' yards has caused widespread talk among the thousands of people who had gathered at that time to see the beautiful craft take her first plunge.

All efforts to release the boat have proved futile, and she is still fast in the same position into which she sank during the unsuccessful attempt to launch her.

At intervals during Saturday night and yesterday, when the tide served, both tugs and divers were at work, under the direction of the Herreshoffs, applying every means in their power to release the yacht, but each time as the tide receded the work had to be abandoned.

The fears felt by the builders and others that the yacht may become injured by the strain of her position have not abated, and after a thorough inspection of the boat's position by the divers, the builders were convinced that the bow of the yacht must be lightered by pontoons to relieve the strain as much as possible during the further work of getting her into deep water.

Steel hawsers were attached to the cradle yesterday afternoon, and tugs took them aboard and started to pull at the obstructed mechanism. The strain was too great, and the gearing on one tug broke and the hawser held by the other snapped asunder. From this it is feared that the work of releasing the boat will be much more difficult than was anticipated up to that time.

The mooted question seems to be whether an unlucky beginning presages good luck later in the history of the craft, or whether it is the forerunner of a series of mishaps which may be the lot of America's representative yacht, a status in yachting from which the American cup defenders for years

Have Been Singularly Free.

When the boat stopped everyone thought she had stuck in the mud. Others believed that the end of the cradle had protruded beyond the ways and rested on the bottom, and even the Herreshoffs were of this opinion. The tugs Adquidneck and Bay Point hitched on, and they began pulling steadily and strongly. Their efforts were unavailable, and so Cornelius Vanderbilt's yacht Conqueror sent out a line to the Defender and then all three steam craft in united efforts once again attempted to move the stationary hull.

After the strain had been applied for half a minute there was a loud noise, a snapping of ropes and a creaking of machinery, and then a portion of the conquerors stern was seen to fly into the air and fall into the water. The strain had been too great for the windlass bits of this yacht, and they were completely carried away.

The sub-marine diver, W. J. Duncan, thoroughly inspected the cradle and examined her position. Then he reported that the boat was not in the mud, but that the cradle had stuck fast in the ways. Mr. Duncan's theory was that the piles or joists had swollen after being placed in the water, so that when the cradle came down, the ways were so tight they would not allow it to pass through.

Nat Herreshoff takes the unexpected hitch solely to heart, which is not at all surprising.

Must Wait Longer.

Operations were resumed at the Herreshoff dock by Nat Herreshoff and a gang of workmen at 1:30 this morning. A 17-inch hawser from the tug Right Arm was made fast to the cradle. Smaller cables were run out from the other craft, and the word given for a grand pull. The tugs responded, straining and snapping, but the hull did not move. For nearly an hour this work was continued without effect, and at 2:26 a. m. Captain Herreshoff gave orders to cease operations.

It was decided to try pontoons, and a number of 40-foot lighters have already been ordered. With these placed in position under the hull at low tide it is hoped to lift the Defender out of her cradle so that she may be towed clear of all obstructions as the tide rises this afternoon.

The Defender's Dimensions.

The exact dimensions of the Defender are as follows: Length of mast, 98 feet; diameter of mast at heel, 35 inches; diameter of mast at step, 18 inches; depth between kelson and deck, 12 feet; length of splices on top of mast, 19 feet; length of boom, 100 feet; diameter of jam, 12 inches; length of bowsprit, 42 feet; length of topmast, 64 feet; length of gaff, 64 feet; length of spinnaker pole, 75 feet; length of club topsail yards, 52 feet; length of boat over all, 124 feet; length of water line, 89ft. 6in.; breadth of beam, 24 feet.

TWO FIREMEN KILLED.

Floor of a Burning Building at Worcester Unexpectedly Gave Way.

WORCESTER, July 1.—A fire in the rag shop of the Hubley Manufacturing company in Brackett court yesterday caused the death of two firemen and injured eight others, and caused a financial loss of about $4000. The dead are: W. F. Brigham, a member of hose 4, and Lieutenant J. J. Boyle of the same company.

Hose 4 was one of the first pieces of apparatus to reach the fire, and attacked it on the top story. Without warning the floor collapsed and fell, carrying the two floors underneath it into the cellar. The men went down with it and were buried under the ruins and bales of rags. Boyle's back was broken under the crush of the timbers, and Brigham was smothered under the piles of rags. The rest of the men escaped with their lives, but it took the rescuing party three hours to get to them and remove them from the debris.

Shot His Wife.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 1.—Henry Mallin shot his wife yesterday afternoon at the home of her mother on Pembroke street, and then attempted to end his own life. He went to see his wife, with whom he has not lived for a long time, and while in the house suddenly pulled a 32-calibre revolver. Three shots were fired, the first bullet striking her between the shoulder blades, the second going wide of the mark, and the last aimed at his own heart. A suspender buckle beneath the sweater which he wore turned it aside, and he was not injured. The injured woman was taken to the hospital, and the physicians believe the wound will not prove fatal unless complications set in. Mallin had been drinking.

Neglected Their Duty.

WORCESTER, July 1.—For the past six weeks employes of the secret service of the United States postal department have been in Worcester, and as a result of their investigation seven carriers are to be suspended and one may be discharged. Postmaster Greene has made repeated demands for more carriers, and the authorities sent agents here to see if they were needed. They found some of the carriers loafing on their routes. The summer vacations have been declared off.

A Ten Per Cent Advance.

LEWISTON, July 1.—Another of Lewiston's largest corporations has voluntarily increased the wages of its employes. This time it is the Lewiston bleachery and dye works, and the increase will average 10 per cent. The bleachery is the fourth of the large corporations in Lewiston to announce an increase in wages within two weeks. The increase in these four corporations amounts to over $10,000 a month.

Grasped Live Wire.

SPRINGFIELD, July 1.—Arthur Collins, 16 years old, met with a sudden and terrible death last evening. In company with some other boys he had climbed upon an embankment, and there caught hold of a live electric wire. The shock threw him backward and he fell several feet. He struck on the back of the neck, breaking it and causing death instantly.

Lease Ratified.

CONCORD, N. H., July 1.—On the vote to lease the Concord and Montreal to the Boston and Maine 34,538½ votes were given in the affirmative and 10,047 in the negative, and the lease was declared ratified. On the resolution to increase the capital stock of the road 39,306½ votes were given in favor and 1434½ against, and the resolution was adopted.

Tube Burst.

BOSTON, July 1.—The bursting of a boiler tube on the steamer O. E. Lewis, during a trip to Winthrop, yesterday, was the cause of considerable of a scare among the passengers. The fireman of the steamer, John Cunningham, lies at the Massachusetts general hospital frightfully burned as a result of the explosion.

Suspicion of Poisoning.

PROVIDENCE, July 1.—The medical examiner of Scituate has forwarded the stomach of Job Angell, a Scituate farmer, who died rather mysteriously last week, to Professor Wood of Harvard college, where it will be analyzed. Angell was buried without a funeral or the services of an undertaker.

A Pittsfield Sensation.

PITTSFIELD, July 1.—George Dennison, a local artist, recently received a commission to paint several costly nude pictures. He had no difficulty in securing five good models in this city. Some church women, it is reported, remonstrated with the artist without avail.

Sick Man Killed Himself.

BOSTON, July 1.—Gottlieb Richtler, 51 years old, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself. He had been sick for several weeks.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

AN UNUSUALLY large number of little toads were noticed in our city yesterday. They were tiny little fellows, just big enough to hop an inch or two. Where so many came from so suddenly was a mystery. Some thought they must have come down in a shower.

THE TELEGRAPH and telephone poles of the city are being disfigured to an outrageous extent, with announcements of various kinds, contrary to the ordinances of the city. It gives the city a bad appearance and should be discontinued. In marked contrast are the neat little billboards of H. L. Kincaide recently put up.

THERE IS a rumor going about that the Braintree street railway will sell its plant to the highest bidder. The Times correspondent, in an interview with Superintendent Beatey, was informed that a meeting of the stockholders was to be held, but what the outcome would be he could not say.—Brockton Times.

It would be a good thing for the citizens of Braintree and Quincy, if the Boston and Quincy road would purchase it. There would be better service, less changing of cars, and as cheap if not cheaper fares.

AN EFFORT is being made to get out a full vote on the sewer act. Many prominent citizens, including nearly every physician of the city, have signed an appeal to the voters to vote yes. Public health and the progress of the city demand that a sewerage system be established, and it will not be a burden upon anybody if the system covers the whole city and the method of payment is equitable. The objection to the act of 1891 was the expense, but the new act authorizes the issue of bonds to an equal amount, and it is acknowledged already that the sum is not sufficient to put in twenty-five miles of collecting sewers. The estimate for the intercepting sewers and the disposal system alone is $319,067.80, and collecting sewers will cost from $6,000 to $10,000 per mile. It is easy to compute how few miles can be constructed within the $400,000. If abutters on ten or fifteen miles of street are to be assessed one-half the cost they may find the assessment burdensome. The system should provide for as many miles of sewer pipe as the city has water mains. With sixty miles of sewer mains and the rental system, there would be no assessments and the payment would be easy.

The Saturday Shoot.

SQUANTUM RACE.

Ten Yachts Entered in The Four Classes Saturday.

CLOSE CONTEST IN SPECIAL.

Legs Won by Agilis, Myrtle, Arctures and 1492.

The Squantum Yacht club sailed its first championship race of the season Saturday afternoon. There was a good sailing breeze from the east at the start, which however died down at the finish.

There were two boats in the first class the Agilis and Naid Queen. Great things were expected of the latter boat and it had been openly boasted that the Agilis would not be in it even a little bit, and an interesting race was therefore expected. Through a misunderstanding the Naid Queen took the wrong course and the Agilis finished alone.

In the first class cat boats Commodore Burkhard's Myrtle was an easy winner. She crossed the line with a 30 second lead over the Payomet and Thrasher and increased her lead so that on corrected time she beat the Thrasher nearly a minute and a half and the Payomet ten minutes.

In the second class cats the Locia was the first to cross the line with the Arctures and White Wing well bunched. The Arctures, however, soon overhauled her and led the way throughout the race beating Baker's little White Wing nearly three minutes corrected time.

The courses of these three classes were such that their progress could not be watched from the judges' boat and was therefore not as interesting to the watchers as it might have been.

In the special class the 1492 and Gertrude were pitted against each other. The Gertrude had a slight lead at the start which she held during the first time round, but in coming about to cross the line the second time the 1492 took the lead and for the balance of the race showed her heels to the Gertrude.

The judges were Frank E. Badger and J. E. Drew.

Charles Francis Adams, LL. D.

The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon our honored townsman, Charles Francis Adams, on Wednesday last. Although Dr. Adams no longer resides with us, we cannot give him up. He is closely allied to our past and our present. We have only lately received another gift of park land from him, and his generosity and kindness are shown in unwritten ways continually.

This gift in the world of letters is second to none, and his "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History" might fitly be used as a valuable text book, at least in New England advanced classes.

All readers are charmed with his valuable "Life of R. H. Dana," revealing the author, no less than Mr. Dana, in enviable colors. It is with a certain pride as well as pleasure, that we share in these latest honors to our gifted townsman.

His felicitous speech at Harvard can be read in Thursday evening's Transcript; and he himself is one of the "lamps the last half of the nineteenth century has lit, whereby the steps of the twentieth century shall be guided." A. E. F.

Sunday School Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Sunday School connected with the Congregational church was held Saturday at Merry Mount park and a jolly time it proved to be. The number attending was quite large and the afternoon was spent in an enjoyable manner with games of various kinds including base ball.

Ice cream, lactart and a pint bag of peanuts was given to each and every one. It took quite a quantity to go around, but there was enough.

During the game of ball F. T. Appleton met with quite an accident. He was catching behind the bat when a foul tip struck him between the eyes. The force rendered him senseless for a time, but he revived and no serious results will follow.

Mr. Daniel B. Lincoln has returned from a flying visit to his son Richard, who is located in Georgia.

Notwithstanding the unpleasant weather Sunday the street railway carried a large number of passengers.

Many bicycle riders who started out Sunday morning for a day's outing got wet before they arrived home.

Entries for the 12 mile handicap bicycle race on the Fourth of July should be made to H. C. Seymour, Wollaston.

Miss Foster of Wollaston and a party of friends sailed today for Pictou, N. S., where they will spend a few weeks.

The Boston police raided the barge Clifford on its trip to Lovell's grove Sunday and seized a large quantity of liquors.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Merrifield, of Helena, Arkansas are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Washington I. Godfrey of Wollaston.

Col. Benjamin S. Lovell of Weymouth will be a candidate for the Republican councillor nomination in this district next fall.

One will have to hustle on the morning of the Fourth to get down to Atlantic at 6 A. M., but everybody should make the effort.

The third of the arguments on the resolve,—that the new education is superior to the old—appears in the LEDGER today.

Car number 11 of the street railway will run on the Braintree line and has been painted red to distinguish it from the others.

Miss Mary A. Gardner left today for West Windham, N. H., where she will spend her vacation with Miss M. E. Fish, formerly of Quincy.

Miss Elizabeth Paullin, who has been spending the winter in Wollaston for the purpose of pursuing her musical studies, leaves for home on Tuesday.

The annual moonlight sail of the Squantum Yacht club occurs on the evening of July 6th. This club was never in a more prosperous condition than now, and the members are thoroughly enthused with the spirit of yachting.

Henry H. Faxon has issued the record of the members of the Massachusetts Legislature of 1895 on temperance questions. The yea and nay vote of the House is given on fourteen measures, and that of the Senate on two.

Miss Minnie M. Jameson, the instructor of music, intends to spend a few weeks of her vacation in Quincy. Later in July she and Miss Dearborn will drive in New Hampshire and in August she will teach as usual in the American Institute for Normal methods in Chicago.

W. G. French, who won the time prize at Mattapan Saturday and at Orient Heights the Saturday previous, is entered for the Quincy and East Boston races on the Fourth. He made the 10 miles, 2 laps, in 27 minutes and 48 seconds. The Quincy course is 12 miles.

Forty boats were entered in the eight classes of the Dorchester race on Saturday and the first boats were the Albatross, Harbinger, Satonic, Swirl, Chocico, La Chica, Alpine and Tantrum. The Beatrice was a rival of the Harbinger, but was over three minutes behind on correct time. Other Quincy boats were entered.

Entries Close Tuesday.

Owing to the lateness of getting out the entry blanks for the road race on the morning of the Fourth, the list will not close until Tuesday evening at 6 P. M. Quite a number of prizes have been received in addition to the list already published. The committee has been doing some hustling and everything looks favorable for one of the best races ever seen in this section.

The tandem bicycle offered as first prize is on exhibition in the show window of the Quincy Cycle Co., and was built by them expressly for this race, and contains some new and original ideas, especially the mode of holding the handlebars, doing away with the clamp altogether.

At the meeting held last Friday evening President G. W. Brown, Vice President D. A. Thompson, Joseph Lawler, James Thomas, Fred Kappler and Allen Hirtle were appointed a committee to make arrangements for celebrating the anniversary, date not yet decided on.

TODAYS COURT.

Thomas Leary and Joseph Faircloth were fined $5 each for drunkenness.

Patrick Doggans, John J. O'Connor, Daniel Toohey and James H. Rogers were fined $5 each for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

John Mullen of Milton was arraigned for cruelty to a horse. Case continued one week.

NEW AND THE OLD.

Able Arguments in Debate at High School Graduation.

VERY INTERESTING FEATURE.

Resolved, That the New Education is Superior to the Old.

The debate at the graduation of the class of '95 of the Quincy High school was considered the best feature. Friday the LEDGER printed the opening argument of Miss Daisy Claire Bemis, and Saturday gave the first negative by Miss Ellen M. Greany. Today appears the second affirmative by Miss Alice Farnum Sampson, to be followed by the other argument:

What need is there of saying more to show that the present education is superior to the old after what my colleague has already said? But to continue the proof, let us turn to the methods of work employed.

Who thinks of learning dry text books by heart in these modern times? But there were days when the stern and severe teachers made parrots of their scholars by compelling them to learn the lessons word for word, thus destroying all the pleasure of study and all the enthusiasm of the pupil.

Yes, dry Latin grammars were learned in the same way, and probably before the class had reached the pleasant period of translation, half had dropped out in pure disgust. But today grammar and translation are studied together, and what is the result? Larger classes in the various languages and great enthusiasm in the perusal of the story in whatever language it may be. I have only to refer to my classmates, and am sure of a hearty endorsement of this statement.

There is literature,—was there ever a more delightful study in the way it is taken today? A gentleman once remarked that in the model family the parents should help the children in difficult lessons, mentioning the study of Milton's "Paradise Lost." I should like to see the parents help them. Our class has but a short time ago studied "Paradise Lost," and if memory does not fail me, I am quite sure I studied it by myself. Ah, friends, that must have been uttered in a dream, for how could we be helped when the methods are changed, and for the better?

It is the same in botany and astronomy. Experimental work is done. Classes find out for themselves the secrets of the plants, and use their own eyes to study the heavenly bodies, and very pleasant sport it is on a delightful evening. No text books are then in sight. Those are used merely for reference.

But let us turn to the training of the character. What sympathy existed between teacher and pupil of the former ages? Little more on the part of the teacher than to see that the lessons were committed word for word, as has been said already. But there was one bond of sympathy existing between them and that was the birch rod. Those rural schoolmasters prided themselves on their ability to wield the rod, shame to say! Did ever a flogging produce penitent and sorrowful thoughts in the culprit? No. It only aroused all his animal nature and that against his teacher. Today it is a teacher's joy to say he does not practise corporal punishment. At last, the rod and accompanying rosin are going out of style. By gentler method is the scholar taught regularity, punctuality, orderly action and loyalty to his school. During school life his character is forming. Many teachers of today are assuming with excellent wisdom their responsibility in this respect.

The results of this practical training, both the mental and the moral, have made the scholar independent. He thinks for himself, observes and utters his views with freedom. His head is full of practical knowledge and his character strong to battle against the stern realities of life. The scholar has become not only educated but useful to his friends and country. And all these grand results are due to the progress of education.—Alice F. Sampson.

THE QUINCY PULPITS.

Notes From the Sunday Services in All Parts of the City.

Because of the generous contributions of Dea. Federhen and others of the Quincy Point parish, the financial committee were able to report to the Sunday morning congregation that $50 had been deducted from the church debt during the past week. If these spontaneous gifts continue we shall hope soon to wipe out an unpopular debt.

The morning service, on Sunday, at the Wollaston Baptist church, was a very patriotic one. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Gurney, speaking on "Love of Country." His text being taken from Psalm 66, verse 5. The choir selections were beautifully rendered by the regular quartette, among which were "May God protect Columbia," by Thomas, and "Union and Liberty," words by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Sunday evening Messrs. Morris and Cook, delegates from the Worlds' Convention of Good Templars now in session in Boston, spoke at the West Quincy M. E. church upon the temperance work in our large cities. Mr. Morris is the Worthy Grand Templar of Newfoundland.

The Rev. Joseph Osgood preached at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Bryant occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday at both morning and evening service. Rev. Mr. Hardy is expected to arrive in town early this week and will commence his pastorate next Sunday.

The problem to be solved by the Sunday School of Washington street church is where is the best place for a picnic.

The Sunday School, of the West Quincy M. E. church voted to join the Atlantic Sunday School in a picnic to Lovell's grove on the tenth of July which will be next week Wednesday.

Mrs. Pollard of Bangor, Me., sister-in-law of Principal Pollard of the Washington school, addressed the young people of the Sunday evening congregation at the Washington street church. She is a gifted speaker, and her earnest words on, "Lovest thou me," were listened to most intently and with benefit to her audience.

At the West Quincy Methodist church the pastor spoke upon Jeremiah 12:5—"If thou hast run with the footmen and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with the horses, and if in the land of peace, wherein thou trustedst they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?"

Through the efforts of Miss Gannett, a new organ has been placed in the Primary room of the Wollaston Baptist Sunday school.

The Committee of the Y. P. S. C. E. on Junior Endeavor work reported the organization completed, with Master Carl Sherburne as President; Bessie Brown, Vice President; Master Harold Newcomb, Secretary; and Gracie Lapham, Treasurer. Mrs. Youtz, Mrs. Eaton and Miss Eva Philips are superintendent and assistants.

THE SEWERAGE SYSTEM.

The Report of Engineer Noyes Made to the City Council.

The acceptance of the sewer act is the important business now before the voters of the city, and the investigation and report of Engineer Noyes on the subject will be of value. The LEDGER presents it in full below:

BOSTON, June 18, 1895.

To F. B. Rice, H. W. Phillips, John M. O'Brien, Michael B. Geary, Jonas Shackley, W. S. Pinkham, Theodore Parker, Committee on Sewers and Drains for the City of Quincy, Mass.

GENTLEMEN:—In accordance with your request for me to make an examination of the various plans which have been proposed for the disposal of the sewage and for providing for the drainage from the City of Quincy, and to report my conclusions thereupon, I have made, so far as the time at my disposal would permit, an examination of the topography and a superficial examination of the geological formation of the various drainage areas within the limits of Quincy, and my conclusions as to the character of the material and of the difficulties to be encountered in the construction of the sewers are based upon the information thus obtained, and upon a somewhat limited amount of information obtained from persons who have made excavation or have knowledge of the character of the materials excavated within the areas referred to, and I herewith respectfully submit a report, giving the results of these examinations and the conclusions reached.

I have received through the courtesy of Messrs. H. T. Whitman and E. W. Branch, your local engineers copies of the town reports of Quincy for the years 1884-5, 1885-6, 1886-7, a copy of the city documents of Quincy for the year 1889, and a copy of a report and plan made to you by Messrs. Whitman and Branch, under date of March 4th, 1895. These reports and plans contain, so far as known, all the literature and information available upon the question of providing for the disposal of the sewage and for the drainage of Quincy.

The first document referred to, contains a report of a special committee on sewerage for the Town of Quincy, and the plan considered was to provide drainage for a small portion of the town; but for the portions having the largest population. It was proposed by this plan to collect and discharge the sewage at two points, namely, into deep water near the shipyard at Quincy Point and into the canal which is tributary to the Town river, just below the tide mill dam.

The second document contained a report of the selectmen of the town, and was accompanied by a report and plan made by Eliot C. Clarke, C. E., upon a proposed system of sewerage. It provided for taking the drainage from the portions of the town containing the largest population, and it was proposed to discharge the sewage into deep water at three points, namely, into the Weymouth Fore river at Quincy Point, into Town river below the tide mill dam and into the Neponset river.

The third report contained in the city document for the year 1889, made by Percy M. Blake, C. E., also provided for taking the drainage from the portion of Quincy having the greatest population. By this plan it was proposed to collect and carry by gravity the sewage from a part of the city having the largest population at two points, and by the use of pumps to carry the sewage in pipes and discharge the same into deep water, off either Gull Point or Nut Island.

The report and plan submitted, made by Messrs. Whitman and Branch, under date of March 4th, 1895, provides drainage for all portions of Quincy, except that portion known as Houghs Neck and Squantum. This plan provides for sewers which will collect and carry the sewage by gravity to a point near Merry Mount park, from which point the sewage will be raised by the use of pumps, carried in pipes and discharged into either the conduits of the Boston main drainage works at Squantum, and finally disposed of into deep water off Moon Island, or discharged into deep water off Nut Island.

Topographically considered, Quincy is divided into five principal drainage areas, namely, that of Billings creek, receiving the drainage from portions of the villages of Atlantic and Montclair, and discharging into the Neponset river; Sachem brook, receiving the drainage from the villages of Wollaston and Norfolk Downs, and discharging into Quincy bay; Furnace brook, receiving the drainage from a principal portion of Quincy Centre and from the village of West Quincy, and discharging into Black creek, which is tributary to Quincy bay; that of Town brook, receiving the drainage from a portion of Quincy Centre and from the village of South Quincy, and discharging into Town river bay, tributary of Weymouth Fore river, and that of the brook taking the drainage from a portion of Quincy Point, and tributary to Bent's creek.

There are a large number of other minor watersheds, the drainage from which discharges directly into the tidal estuaries bounding Quincy on three sides. A considerable portion of these watersheds is elevated only a few feet above high tide level, but the land is suitable for building purposes, and has been to some extent already improved.

Since the first three plans, namely, that of a committee of the town in 1884-5, that of Eliot C. Clarke in 1886-7 and that of Percy M. Blake in 1889 were made, large tracts of land have been improved, streets laid out and constructed, and there has been a large increase in the population of the city, and any plan to be now considered feasible should provide for taking the drainage from all portions of the city.

In order to collect and discharge the sewage from all portions of Quincy, it will be necessary to have a number of points of discharge, or to collect it at one or more central points and pump the sewage to an elevation which will permit of its discharge into deep water where the tidal current will be sufficient to carry the sewage discharged away from the shores of Quincy, as well as from any other place where it would be likely to cause a nuisance.

Examinations made and conclusions reached by the State Board of Health, as set forth in their letter of advice to a committee on sewerage for the Town of Quincy, under date of July 6th, 1888, indicates that there would be, from a sanitary standpoint, serious objections to discharging any considerable amount of sewage into the waters of the Neponset river or the Town River bay, and it may also be safely assumed that it will not be permissible to discharge sewage at the numerous points it would be necessary to do, if the collection and discharge were effected by gravity.

The plan proposed by Messrs. Whitman and Branch provides for a more nearly perfect system for taking the drainage from a larger portion of the territory than either of the other plans, and in view of the changed conditions of development and population, it is, in my opinion, a more feasible plan than any other yet proposed.

The report referred to describes at some length the details of the plan proposed. I have, through Messrs Whitman and Branch, made estimates of the area of the territory contributing to the different intercepting sewers, and of the probable future population to be provided for in each section. I have also estimated the probable cost of constructing the system, as far as can be determined from the examination which have been made.

The site proposed for the pumping station and to which it is proposed to collect the sewage, appears to have been well selected.

I have advised increasing slightly the size of the intercepting sewers to provide for a population somewhat larger than that originally estimated for, and to provide for the infiltration of a certain amount of ground water. Most of the intercepting sewers will be below tide level and below normal level of the water in the ground, and even with the best of care being used in constructing the sewers, there will be more or less leakage of ground water which should be provided for.

The grades or inclinations for the sewers, as proposed by the plan, will in general give a velocity of flow sufficient to make the sewers nearly, if not quite, self-cleaning, and the sewers will have as great a slope as will be permissible, and at the same time be laid low enough to take the drainage from the extreme outer portions of the city.

Our further examinations have indicated that the drainage from Quincy Point can be best provided for by a sewer to be laid from the main intercepting sewer at Glencoe Place through the valley of the brook tributary to Bent's creek This sewer will extend to Washington street at Wharf street, and will provide for taking the drainage from substantially all of the territory at Quincy Point.

MILTON TOWN MEETING.

Important Matters Considered by the Voters on Saturday.

At the special town meeting held in Milton, Saturday, it was voted to accept the unused space within Willard street from the Quincy line to Adams street for the use of street railways.

That a committee of five be appointed to consider the question of the town's purchase of the property of the Milton Water Co., also to consider the question of entering the Metropolitan Water Supply system and report in print before December, 1895.

The sum of $16,000 was appropriated for the purchase of land at East Milton for a public playground and putting the same in proper shape; also $15,000 for purchase of land for the same purpose on Buck street.

It was also voted to accept the act entitled, "An act to authorize the Town of Milton to construct one or more systems of sewerage."

The matter of employing a civil engineer and fixing his salary was referred to the next annual meeting.

The following sewer commissioners were elected: Elliot P. Whitneg 3 years, Theodore P. Whitneg 2 years, and J. Albert Simpson 1 year.

A GAIN IN RECEIPTS.

Interesting Figures Gleaned From the Public Debt Statement.

Decrease In the Number of National Banks.

Outline of Operations of Some of the More Important Bureaus.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The treasury deficit for the fiscal year just closed is found by today's debt statement to be approximately $43,250,000. This added to last year's deficit of nearly $70,000,000 makes the excess of expenditures over receipts of the government this fiscal year, exclusive of postal revenues, amount to nearly $113,000,000, and the expenditures $356,250,000, of which pensions took $141,391,623. Last year the aggregated receipts, exclusive of postal revenues, were $397,722,019, and the expenditures $397,525,279.

The receipts this year, therefore were $15,278,000 greater than last, and the expenditures about $11,275,000 less. The postal service deficit, is about $11,000,000, which is considerably in excess of that of any recent year.

The internal revenue department of the government has contributed this year to the receipts nearly $143,000,000, as against a little more than $147,000,000 last year. The customs this year makes a better showing than last by about $21,000,000. Last year the receipts from this source amounted to nearly $132,000,000, and this year they approximate $153,000,000.

Today's debt statement shows an available cash balance of about $195,000,000, of which about $107,500,000 is gold reserve. This reserve includes payment in full for the last bond issue, but the statement shows a counterdebt charge of only $31,157,700 in bonds, or one-half of the whole amount issued.

In explanation of this seeming error, it is said that the formal transfer of the London half of the bonds has not yet been made.

The expenditures for July will be exceptionably heavy. Pensions and interest alone are expected to Amount to $20,000,000.

During the fiscal year the number of national banks in existence has decreased from 3775 to 3722. Forty-one national banks have been organized during the year, 60 have gone into voluntary liquidation and 36 have been placed in the hands of receivers. The national bank circulation has increased $4,837,791, from $207,353,244 on July 1, 1894, to $211,691,035 July 1, 1895. From July 18, 1894, to May 7, 1895, the nearest dates to the year obtainable, the loans and discounts of national banks have increased from $1,933,589,352 to $1,976,604,445, or about $43,000,000. During the same time individual deposits have increased from $1,677,801,200 to $1,690,961,299, or about $13,000,000. The lawful money reserve held by banks shows a heavy increase from $364,105,757 to $438,931,970, or nearly $75,000,000.

The operations of some of the more important bureaus of the treasury department during the last fiscal year are briefly outlined as follows:

There were employed under the lighthouse board in the construction and maintenance of aids to navigation, 32 steam tenders, 6 steam launches and 2 sailing tenders. In supplying lighthouses and vessels and caring for buoys these tenders steamed 205,580 miles. There are 3422 persons employed in the lighthouse establishment, at a cost of about $100,000,000. Ten new fog signal stations and 47 new lights were established during the year.

Work of the Revenue Service.

The year has been one of unusual interest and importance to the United States revenue cutter service. It has performed special services of a conspicuous nature. Among these are noted the search for the Ivanhoe, supposed to have foundered on Sept. 28 last off Cape Flattery, on the Pacific, in which three of the vessels, viz., Grant, Rush and Corwin, joined. In its winter cruising operations, during the unusually severe weather of the last season, it rendered services to distressed shipping of more than ordinary value and importance. The Dallas alone assisted during the month of February 20 vessels imperilled by ice, and during the month of March 23. Six vessels have been manned and fully equipped and dispatched to the Behring sea to protect the seal herds and the government interest in Alaska and the seal islands.

The reports of the operations of the life-saving service show that during the last year the total number of disasters to vessels at sea and on the great lakes was about 550, of these 478 were on the Atlantic and gulf coast, 170 on the great lakes and 12 on the Pacific coast. The value of the property involved is given approximately at $7,645,000. The property lost is estimated at $1,254,000. Of the 4618 persons on board vessels in distress only 25 were lost, as against 68 last year. The value of the property lost decreased during the year nearly one-half. The total number of vessels lost was 55, as against 91 last year.

The records of the immigration bureau show the number of immigrants who arrived in this country during the year to be approximately 255,327, a decrease for the year of 30,304. Of the whole number of arrivals about 2500 were debarred from landing and deported to the port whence they came.

The total number of government buildings now under construction by the supervising architect of the treasury is 44, contemplating a total expenditure under existing limit of cost of $18,700,013. The number legislated for but not commenced is 32, involving an expenditure of $13,381,182. The total number of completed buildings now under the control of the treasury department is 296.

During the last 12 months the officers of the secret service have made more arrests of counterfeiters than during any other in the history of the service.

Jury Disagreed.

DETROIT, July 1.—The jury in the trial of Dr. Dennis J. Seaman, charged with the responsibility of Emily Hall's death on account of a criminal operation, came into court yesterday afternoon and announced a disagreement. The jury was discharged and another trial of the case will be begun.

Italians In a Bad Fight.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 1.—A fight among drunken Italians at Pecksville last night caused the death of one man and the fatal wounding of two others. All parties had been drinking, and the origin of the row is not known. Knives and pistols were freely used.

PEIXOTO DEAD.

Ex-President of Brazil Succumbs to Combination of Diseases.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 1.—The report of the death of ex-President Peixoto of Brazil has reached here. It is impossible to get details, owing to the distance from Rio de Janeiro to Piexoto's home.

EX-PRESIDENT PEIXOTO.

The ex-president expected to leave his home for Rio de Janeiro Saturday afternoon, when he was attacked with the fatal disease, a combination of beri beri fever and abscess of the liver. He was comatose until 9:30 o'clock p. m., when he died. Physicians were at once summoned from Rio de Janeiro to embalm the body.

Doty's Scandalous Doings.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—The Chronicle says that by the next vessel that sails for Tahiti the state department will forward a stern reprimand to J. L. Doty, consul at Tahiti. The marriage of Consul Doty to a native Tahiti girl was according to natives' rites. The only legal marriages recognized by the French government, which has dominion of Tahiti, is that performed according to French laws. The news of this mock marriage, together with reports of Doty's inattention to business, have reached Washington, and the reprimand is the result.

In Insurgent's Behalf.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Rev. J. A. B. Wilson spoke yesterday on "The Liberation of Cuba and the Duty of American Patriotism." He declared that Cuba was appealing to America for help. The example of our liberty had a widespread effect, and he declared our flag secured no more respect by the Spaniards in Cuba than a dishrag. He declared it was a duty of ours to liberate Cuba. He closed by appealing for a Moses from Washington to lead the Cubans out of bondage.

Wolsley's Chances Are Slim.

LONDON, July 1.—The Chronicle gives prominence to a rumor circulated that General Lord Roberts will be the new commander-in-chief of the army. The Chronicle says that undoubtedly the Liberal cabinet had intended to appoint General Wolsley, who has strong claims to this position as an administrator and a reformer. It is believed, however, that Lord Salisbury has never forgotten a certain speech of General Wolsley on army reform.

Killed Wife and Another.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—Harry Mason is in jail here for the murder of his wife and Isaac Adrain. Mason had accused his wife of unfaithfulness, and said he would kill her at the earliest opportunity. Mason attacked his wife in a boat, but the others pulled him off, and in the fight the oars were lost. Then Mason deliberately upset the boat, drowning his wife and Adrain.

Prospect of Another War.

TACOMA, July 1.—Norwegian steamer Oscar II, 18 days from Vladivostock, Siberia, brings news that the indications are good for another Oriental war. Captain Sanderson says, unknown to the outside world, Russia has massed 80,000 men at Vladivostock, and it is believed in Siberia that the preparations are being made for an advance upon Japan.

Side Doors Closed.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Since the inauguration of Mayor Strong it has been almost impossible, in many sections of the city, to procure liquor on Sunday. The climax of "Dry" Sundays was reached yesterday, however. Those who were daring enough to attempt to offend the excise laws by selling liquors were generally arrested without delay.

Lightning Struck a Church.

CORDOVA, Md., July 1. — Lightning struck the rear end of the Baptist church, which was well filled, inflicting considerable damage and severely shocking the congregation. In a horseshed, adjoining the church, Arvel Randell and two horses were instantly killed.

Marti Again.

KEY WEST, July 1.—The British schooner Attica, Captain Arteaga, 44 tons, 10 days from Nassau, has arrived here. A Cuban authority said that one of the five passengers of the Attica may be Jose Marti, notwithstanding all the news of his death.

Corbett and Sullivan Partners.

CHICAGO, July 1.—John L. Sullivan and James J. Corbett will probably be in the same theatrical company next year. While no contract has been made with Sullivan as yet, a verbal agreement exists that is binding on both sides.

A Whiteway Victory.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 1.—The Whiteway members have finally compelled the ministry to accede to their demands. They will receive full sessional pay. It is not likely that the retrenchment measures ever will be heard of again.

Acting In Harmony.

MANAGUA, July 1.—President Zelaya returned yesterday from a harmonious conference between the presidents of Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador at Amapala, regarding plans for the Central American union.

Queen Transfers Seals.

WINDSOR, July 1.—The retiring cabinet ministers delivered their seals of office to the queen at Windsor castle yesterday afternoon, and later her majesty presented the seals to the incoming ministers.

Specie Movements.

NEW YORK, July 1. — The exports of specie from the port of New York for the past week amounted to $12,200 in gold and $747,991 in silver. The imports were: Gold, $1,201,336; silver, $19,379.

A Denial.

LONDON, July 1.—The Times denies that Sir Graham Bower has been appointed governor of Newfoundland.

FATE OF BUCHANAN.

Wife Murderer Still Hopes to Escape the Electric Chair.

The Execution Not Likely to Occur Today.

Warden Sage Wants Further Advice From Attorney General.

SING SING, July 1.—Warden Sage appears determined not to execute Dr. Buchanan until he is certain that no complications will result, and the case is still enveloped in a tangled web of legal technicalities.

"I do not propose to execute Dr. Buchanan until the attorney general gives me a written opinion as to the effect of the papers of appeal now in their hands at Albany."

Warden Sage was the speaker, and he was so angry that his voice trembled as he spoke to the group of reporters. At the door leading from the drawing room into the office the face of a woman, anxious and troubled, appeared, and as the warden made his emphatic statement she smiled and withdrew quickly. It was Mrs. Buchanan, and she had just left her husband. Warden Sage made the statement accredited to him after meeting his messenger, whom he had sent to Albany, at the train.

Frank D. Burroughs, the messenger, who has been in Albany for two days with copies of the paper served on the warden and presented to the United States courts, returned last night with word that the attorney general's department at Albany declined to give an opinion in the matter, other than the verbal one that it would be all right to proceed. Mr. Burroughs had not seen the attorney general, but had talked with Deputy Attorney Hasbrouck, who had declined positively to write any opinion.

As soon as the messenger returned to Sing Sing and made known this fact, further stating that the attorney general was out of the city, Warden Sage sent him right back to Albany to await a written decision. Then he dictated a telegram to Attorney General Hancock at Syracuse, informing him that he would not execute Buchanan until he received an opinion of the effect of the legal papers served upon him by counsel for Dr. Buchanan.

Sage's Statement.

When this had been dispatched, the warden made this statement: "I have been served with papers that are said to act as a stay. When similar papers were served some time ago, Deputy Attorney General Hasbrouck wrote an opinion, in which the attorney general concurred, saying that the papers [illegible] act as a stay. When these papers were served, I sent them at once [illegible] to the attorney general with a request for an opinion. So far he has given none. He is the legal adviser of the state, and I do not propose to act in his stead."

"Will you execute Buchanan if the attorney general does not give an opinion?" was asked.

"I don't see why I should assume a legal responsibility that the law officer of the state shrinks from."

The warden does not expect any opinion or answer from his telegram until late today, and it is therefore reasonable to believe that there will not be an execution till tomorrow at the earliest.

Dr. Buchanan grew restless Saturday night, and it was 3 o'clock when he dozed off into fitful slumber. At 8 o'clock he was awake, and a few minutes latter he was visited by Mrs. Buchanan. She took a seat just outside the wire screen, and talked to him in a low tone of voice. He could not keep still and he paced the floor constantly.

He talked of his trial and his still surviving hope of escape from the death chair.

Hancock's Reply.

SYRACUSE, July 1.—Attorney General T. F. Hancock was asked last evening regarding his movements in the case of Dr. Buchanan. He said that he had been asked a number of times by Warden Sage to express an opinion. He said: "I have given my opinion, and if he does not want to go on and execute this man he can keep it."

The attorney general last evening received the following message from Warden Sage:

SING SING, June 30.

T. F. Hancock, Attorney General, Sing Sing:

I decline to act without direction from you, either written or telegraph. O. V. SAGE.

He sent the following message in reply:

SYRACUSE, June 30.

Warden O. V. Sage, Sing Sing Prison, Sing Sing:

I do not think the last proceedings operate as a stay. Have no further advice to give.

Century Records Lowered.

CHICAGO, July 1.—F. H. Standwood yesterday won the fifth annual century race of the Illinois Cycling club, making the run in six hours and thirty-four minutes, lowering the record by three minutes. Mrs. George M. Bunker of the Unique Cycling club lowered the woman's world's century record. She made the 100 miles in seven hours and thirty-eight minutes.

The Valkyrie's Debut.

LONDON, July 1.—The Times says that Valkyrie III opened her race in a very remarkable way, and in all probability she is a wonderfully fast vessel. Considering her wonderful pile of canvas, she showed more stability than was generally expected, and her bow wave gave ample evidence of the high speed she could attain when hard driven.

An Exhaustive Treatise.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—The Chronicle yesterday printed a 10-page article on the silver question, written by John P. Young, managing editor of the paper. The essay is an argument in favor of a bimetallic standard. The article is entitled "Bimetallism or Monometallism."

Bomb For Police Chief.

BERLIN, July 1.—An infernal machine, addressed to Chief of Police Krause, was discovered in the postoffice here. An explosion was prevented by the vigilance of the officials.

British Sealer Seized.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 1.—Steamer Chehalis, from Cook's inlet, brings news of the seizure of the English sealing schooner Salva by the United States revenue cutter Rush.

Show is Over.

KIEL, July 1.—The U. S. S. New York, Columbia and Marblehead sailed from here yesterday. The San Francisco remains.

Tingley's Good Luck.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—L. J. Tingley has fallen heir to a fortune of over $1,000,000. He is 32 years of age, and his grandmother was Mary Ball of Philadelphia, who left an estate, consisting of $150,000 from French claims, and congress has passed an act that it be paid at once. The balance consists of 100 acres of land in Philadelphia, 400 lots in the city of Washington and 50,000 acres of land in Virginia. Tingley will receive one-seventh of this property.

Three Hungarians Killed.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., July 1.—The mangled remains of three Hungarians, employed at the Alpha cement works at Whittaker, were picked up yesterday on the Lehigh Valley railroad at Green's Bridge. It is supposed that they were run down by a shifting engine while on their way home to Whittaker.

Brooded Over Misfortune.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Mrs. Charles Wollcott, formerly a professional aeronaut, committed suicide by taking laudanum yesterday. Her professional name was Nellie Lamont. About a year ago she met with a fall which made her a cripple for life. This affliction caused despondency.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

IN ABOUT SIX WEEKS

The Defender Will Be Ready to Make Her Trial Trip.

Launching Is Accomplished Without Injury to Boat.

Steam Tug Performs the Work Without the Aid of Pontoons.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 2.—At 2.40 o'clock yesterday afternoon the tug Right Arm, which had been near the Defender since morning, steamed up alongside and, with three hawsers, carefully pulled on the yacht. The big hawsers tightened, but the Defender did not seem to move an inch. For some time the smoke puffed from the Right Arm's stack, and at 2.55 o'clock the Defender suddenly slid off the ways and into the water, amidst the tooting of whistles from yachts and vessels in the harbor. It was not expected by the public that an attempt would be made to pull the Defender off without the aid of pontoons, but Captain Herreshoff decided to make another attempt without their aid. The Defender now rides gracefully in deep water.

THE DEFENDER.

As the result of an examination after the Defender reached deep water, Messrs. Herreshoff and Iselin were informed that the vessel was not in any way injured by her 50 hours' stay at the end of the ways.

The cradle separated from the keel and floated alongside. It was badly scratched and splintered, showing that had not the builders placed it under the craft, she would have been seriously damaged in the attempt to launch her.

Bolts Protruded.

The cause of the trouble as given out was protruding bolts used in the construction of the ways. The bolts extended beyond the frames, so that when the cradle came down upon them, they penetrated the wood to the depth of from an inch to an inch and a half, holding it fast.

Immediately after the launching the Defender was towed to the dock, where preparations were made for stepping the mainmast, which was soon towed down from Walker's Cove, where it had been resting for several days. The mast was then successfully and easily stepped.

Before this time the yacht floated with her indicated water line 20 inches above the surface at her bow and eight inches at her stern. The weight of the mast brought her down about three inches at the bow, but unaltered her position at the stern, so she floats 17 inches above her water line at that part. But the main boom and several tons of rigging are to go into her yet, so it is figured that the weight of her mast is of right displacement.

The opinion was given on good authority that it will be six weeks before the Defender will be ready for a trial trip.

Important Legislation.

HARTFORD, July 2.—The house yesterday passed the bill which prohibits the marriage of any persons who are deaf and dumb, imbecile or epileptic, until after the woman has become 45 years of age. The senate passed the bill which limits the issue of bonds of all private corporations, electric street railways, etc., to 50 per cent of the actual cash value of their property, exclusive of franchise. The, senate also, by a unanimous vote (one senator absent), rejected the bill conferring municipal suffrage upon women. The bill passed the house last week. The senate then, by a vote of 6 to 17, refused to repeal the existing law conferring upon women the right to vote in school matters.

Groom-to-Be Disappeared.

LYNN, July 2.—William Dove, 35 years old, has mysteriously disappeared. He was to have been married last night to Miss Barbara Duke, but he has not been seen since Saturday morning, when he was at work in a shoe factory. At that time he had considerable money on his person, besides two bankbooks. He owned and had a house furnished in which they were to live after marriage. He was a man of steady habits.

A Tramp For $5000.

BOSTON, July 2.—To win a wager of $5000, offered by the Chicago Dispatch, Harry Chester, the "boy pedestrian," arrived in this city yesterday. He is on his way around the world. His allotted time is 50 months, and he is now five days ahead of schedule time. Chester, since he left Chicago, has walked over 1200 miles.

PROVIDENCE, July 2.—Moy Ling, a laundryman, reports to the police that his wife has left him, taking with her $200 in cash, a diamond ring and other jewelry. Moy's wife was a Boston girl, 22 years old. They were married two months ago. Moy says he has discovered that she had another husband in Boston.

Crime Was Not Forgotten.

WALPOLE, N. H., July 2.—Sheriff Perry left here today for Middlebury, N. Y., armed with the necessary papers for the return to New Hampshire of Mark Shinburn, the alleged robber of the Walpole Savings bank on Nov. 4, 1864. Shinburn was sentenced to serve a term in prison, but escaped.

Templars' Doings.

BOSTON, July 2.—Yesterday's session of the international supreme lodge of Good Templars here was devoted to receiving reports of the various committees. Several addresses were made on the good of the order. Business of minor importance filled up the remainder of the session.

Deadlock Over Police Reorganization.

HAVERHILL, July 2.—The aldermen attempted to reorganize the police force last night under the police bill passed by the legislature of 1894, but accomplished nothing, as the mayor and aldermen fell into a deadlock over the first appointment, and the force remained at the close of the meeting the same as when the meeting opened. With the exception of the appointments of City Marshal Rand and Officer Shannon, all of the reappointments made by the mayor were confirmed and the new appointments were all rejected.

An Important Capture.

PORTSMOUTH DEPOT, N. H., July 2.—Edward Woods of Lowell was arrested here last night charged with stealing a horse and wagon in Rochester. It is said that a complete counterfeiting outfit and a quantity of fake Louisiana lottery tickets were found on his person.

Clinton Strikers' Attitude.

CLINTON, July 2.—A public meeting in the interest of the Lancaster mills' strikers was held in the town hall last night. The only result was to awaken considerable feeling against the mills' management, and the strikers are now more determined than ever to stay out.

Press Blamed For Conviction.

PROVIDENCE, July 2.—E. C. Pierce, counsel for Lawrence C. Keegan, is to file a petition for a new trial. Pierce says that Keegan was convicted by public sentiment, aroused by the newspapers. He says he has obtained considerable new evidence.

Live Stock Suffered.

PHILLIPS, Me., July 2.—Jesse S. Burbank, aged 50, a wealthy New Portland farmer, was found dead at his home. He had been dead for several days. His cattle were in an almost famishing condition. The cause of death was heart trouble.

Joe Manley's Popularity.

AUGUSTA, July 2.—Joseph H. Manley was tendered a reception at his home here last night by the citizens of Augusta. General W. S. Choate delivered the address, to which Mr. Manley responded. Over 2000 people were in attendance.

Accused by Their Minister.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., July 2.—Rev. P. F. Jermegan read in the Baptist church resolutions charging certain members with infidelity and gross immorality, and asking for a trial of the same. The church is much excited.

Tax Rate Going Up.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 2.—The city government last night appropriated $88,000 for the year's expenses. There is a cut-down in almost every department to keep the expected increase in the tax rate at the lowest figure.

Probably Drowned.

LYNN, July 2.—Three men who went out sailing Saturday are missing. They are Henry Thompson, George Kennedy and William Welch. They intended to go to Nantasket for clams, but have not been heard from.

Malin In Court.

BRIDGEPORT, July 2.—Henry Malin, who tried to kill his wife and himself, was arraigned yesterday and held in $1500. His wife will recover.

After Fish.

BUZZARD'S BAY, July 2.—The president took his usual sail down the bay yesterday, and had a few hours' fishing, after a fog had lifted.

W. L. Waters, a member of this year's graduating class at Colby, was chosen school superintendent of Waterville, Me.

Archie Paquin of Manchester, N. H., aged 19, drank "split," made from wood alcohol, and died after suffering terrible agony.

It is thought the decennial census of the state, just taken, will give Hudson, Mass., about 5100 inhabitants. In 1890 the United States census gave the town 4600.

The Sportsman's Opinion.

LONDON, July 2.—The Sportsman says: Judging from Saturday's race, we estimate, making a liberal discount for flukes in ordinary summer weather, that Valkyrie III would beat Britannia over a 50-mile course by 30 minutes.

Honor Declined.

ROME, July 2.—The pope invited Cardinal Gibbons to surrender his diocese (Baltimore) and to reside in Rome and take part in the politics of the Vatican. Cardinal Gibbons refused the offer of the pope.

"Band" of Ten Routed.

HAVANA, July 2.—Lieutenant Sanchez and 25 cavalry surprised a band of 10 insurgents in Camaguay. The insurgents lost one dead and five prisoners.

IN THE DEATH CHAIR

Dr. Buchanan Paid the Penalty For Murdering His Wife.

Mrs. Buchanan Piteously Appeals to the Dead.

A Brief History of the Famous Legal Battle to Evade Execution.

SING SING, July 2.—Dr. Robert Buchanan was put to death by electricity at 11:29 o'clock yesterday forenoon for poisoning his wife.

The condemned man had his eyes closed when he entered the execution room, and did not again open them. After he had taken his seat in the chair, he sat motionless, and appeared almost unconscious of what was going on about him. The straps were adjusted by the guards, and Electrician Davis took a final survey of the arrangements.

Two contacts were made, but all the physicians and electricians claim that the second contact was merely precautionary and that the victim died instantly. There were no burns and no unpleasant features and every physician present declared the execution a success. The body has been claimed by friends, and the case will go down into history as a cause celebre.

Buchanan's Fight For Life.

Some three years ago a young physician named Buchanan poisoned his wife, a disreputable but well-to-do woman, in order to possess himself of her property and to take a new spouse. A year later he was convicted on the charge, after a remarkably long and sharply contested trial, full of the legal, medical and chemical intricacies. His lawyers took an appeal to the highest court in the state, and it, after months of delay, affirmed the verdict.

The murderer was duly sentenced, and for a time he seemed to submit to his fate; but as the day of execution approached, a lawyer, who is said to be seeking notoriety, undertook to save him from death. As every recourse to the state courts was exhausted, he applied to the federal tribunals in a fashion familiar in such procedure, but without success. As Buchanan was by birth a Nova Scotian, the lawyer then invoked the aid of the British embassy. When Sir Julian Pauncefote refused him, he turned forthwith to the Masons, of which fraternity the murderer was a member.

Balked in this quarter, he sought to secure statements from medical men casting doubts upon the expert testimony that had contributed much to Buchanan's conviction. Failing in this venture yet again, when the day of execution was close at hand he finally pretended that he had renounced all hope of the salvation of his client, and, aided by the murderer's family, besought the governor to grant Buchanan a week's respite, during which he might prepare himself for death.

As any humane magistrate would do, Mr. Morton complied, and the execution was accordingly deferred until May 1. No sooner, however, was the reprieve granted than Buchanan and his lawyer set about the devising of new pretexts for application to the federal courts, and they so far succeeded that yet another postponement of the execution become necessary until the supreme court could give fresh decision upon a request for its intervention. This failed also, and Dr. Buchanan was resentenced, and finally explated his crime in the electrical chair.

The question of Buchanan's guilt entered little into these devious proceedings. The obstacles raised have been mere legal subterfuges designed to prolong the existence of a condemned man, in the hope that by hook or by crook his sentence might be commuted to imprisonment for life.

A Pitiful Scene.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The body of Dr. Robert W. Buchanan was brought to this city by Undertaker Huhus. Mr. Huhus placed the body in a casket covered with black cloth and silver handles. A large crowd were on hand, and the undertaker allowed everybody who so desired to pass through his establishment and view the remains.

At 10 o'clock Mrs. Buchanan arrived. She slipped through the crowd unobserved and passed into the room. When she reached the side of the casket she leaned forward, and in a most pitiful manner said: "Oh, Rob; dear Rob; speak to me. Rob, Rob, open your eyes; look at me, Rob!"

Leaning forward, the poor woman kissed the face of her dead husband again and again, repeatedly calling upon him to speak to her. Every moment she grew wilder and more hysterical, until at last, unable to control herself, she almost shrieked in anguish: "Oh, Rob; I love you so; speak to me, dear Rob!"

After some difficulty, her friends succeeded in getting the unfortunate woman out of the room. She was taken to another room, where every effort was made by her friends to soothe and quiet her.

Arrangements have not yet been made for the funeral, but the burial will probably be in Greenwood.

What Radicals Want.

LONDON, July 2.—The Radical members of parliament have issued a manifesto asserting that the "Will of the people is overridden by the insolent opposition of irresponsible hereditary legislators," and demanding the relieving of the candidates of the costs of election, the payment of members and the abolition of the legislative power of the house of lords.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

TO THE boy who is looking forward to the Fourth, these are indeed the longest days of the year.

DID COUNCILMAN RICE favor the Randlett & Howe plans, because R. & H. stands also for Rice & Hutchins?

SHOULD NOT the report on street orders have been divided upon request, without a motion, in accordance with Rule 17 of the Council?

THE DECLARATION of Independence was signed in 1776; one hundred and nineteen years have brought forth no firmer, plainer or more cultured signature than that of John Hancock, who was born in Quincy, near where the Adams Academy stands.

THE SPELL is broken in the City Council now it is know that the Mayor is as likely to approve an order for brick schoolhouses as of wood. Two-thirds of the entire Council are now on record in favor of the brick and stone plans of Mr. Kingston. It is not a party measure for a majority of the Republicans, as well as a majority of the Democrats favor it; in fact two-thirds of each party voted for the order. The vote on the West Quincy order was: 12 Republicans in favor and 4 opposed; 4 Democrats in favor, and 2 opposed.

IT IS perhaps overdoing it to petition the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. for three new depots at once, but it would be difficult to decide which of the three needs a new station the most. That at Atlantic is not as attractive as those on either side,—Neponset or Norfolk Downs—or the equal of that at Wollaston, but it would be difficult to find in a city an uglier one than that at Quincy Adams: small, dark and musty. But the principal station of the city is a back number. A stranger would receive from it the impression that Quincy was nor as large as Braintree, yet the city is four times as large.

The Quincy depot is the only station used by Quincy Centre, by Houghs Neck and Germantown, and also Quincy Point. Street railway routes to all parts of the city and the neighboring towns centre at the Quincy depot and the immense business of the station deserves something better; a modern depot in which the citizens will take a pride.

King's Daughters' Lawn Party.

A very enjoyable lawn party was held Monday evening upon the spacious grounds of John E. Drake on Washington street under the auspices of the King's Daughters. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns, which coupled with the bright light made by the burning of colored fire presented a very pretty appearance.

About the grounds were numerous tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles, ice cream, lemonade, etc., all of which met with a ready sale.

A pleasing entertainment was also given consisting of selection by the Quincy mandolin and guitar trio; solos by Mrs. Edward Dewson, and John S. Kilby, chorus singing by the King's Daughters and by a quartette.

Reception at Atlantic.

On Friday evening Miss Freda Habberman gave a reception at her home on Hancock street to Miss Susie Hall. The company present were members of Memorial church choir and other personal friends. It was a genuine surprise to Miss Hall, and the surprise was increased when Rev. Mr. Yeoman, in behalf of the company assembled, presented her with a handsome banquet lamp. The evening passed happily with games, and Mrs. Gibson served a collation at ten o'clock.

Route of Parade.

The route of the antique and horrible parade at Atlantic on the Fourth will be as follows: Starting on Atlantic street near Squantum street and thence through Atlantic, Hancock, Myrtle, Walnut, and Hancock streets, Billings road, Faxon avenue, Squantum, Botolph, Madison, Prospect, Billings, and Squantum streets to starting point and there be disbanded.

"I fully appreciate the benefit which I have derived from the use of Hood's Pills, and take great pleasure in recommending them to every one." MISS MARY E. ALDEN, Box 458, Randolph, Mass.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSES

Good Majority of City Council Now Favorable to

THE BRICK AND STONE PLANS.

Opinion of City Solicitor Asked on the Water Resolve.

All the members of the City Council were present at the meeting on Monday evening, in fact it is the exception nowadays for even one of the twenty-three to be absent. The important business was the schoolhouse orders and more unanimity was shown than on any previous occasion. The orders contemplate the erection of buildings of stone and brick at Norfolk Downs and West Quincy and received not only a majority vote, but two-thirds.

Auditor Hall notified the Council that John E. Drake had presented a bill of $50, chargeable to election expenses of 1894, but that said appropriation was exhausted. Referred.

Applications to sell fireworks were received from several, and referred.

The executive committee of the Fourth of July celebration at Atlantic, asked permission to hold road races, also a license to sell refreshments. Both were granted.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorable on the applications for licenses to sell fireworks, also on various other licenses.

Tax-Levy Order.

The order making the tax levy $178,000 for current city expenses, was given a second reading.

Councilman Adams moved that the amount be reduced to $175,000, saying that the income had been increased $5,000 recently, by the payment of that sum by the bondsmen of E. H. & I. H. Cushing.

The amendment was adopted, and upon suspension of rules the order was passed unanimously on roll call.

Accepted With Thanks.

The special committee, to whom was referred the gift of Charles Francis Adams for park purposes, reported an order accepting the deed with thanks. Adopted.

Fire Alarm Striker.

The Committee on Fire Department reported an order appropriating $300 for a striker for bell on Hose 3 house at West Quincy. Read and referred.

Miller Stile.

The Committee on Streets reported an order closing Miller stile between Canal and Elm streets. Ordered to second reading.

Street Railway Hearings.

The Committee on Streets on the petitions for relocations on Copeland, Sea and Franklin streets, reported order for a public hearing August 5. Adopted.

Cross Street.

The Committee on Streets on the regrading of Cross street, reported reference to the executive department. Accepted.

Referred to Mayor.

The Committee on Streets on the petition for an incandescent light at corner of Franklin and High streets, reported reference to executive department. Accepted.

An order was reported granting the Electric Light company a location on Whitwell street, which was ordered to a second reading.

Unfavorable Reports.

Leave to withdraw was the report on the petitions for the acceptance of Miller Stile road, and the extension of Reardon street and Whitwell street.

Councilman Bigelow opposed the report relative to Whitwell street, and moved a division of the question. It was a petition of representative citizens in good faith, and they ought to be given a hearing. The road would be a short cut from Wards Three and Four to the hospital. Understood land owners would give the land. Road could be built for moderate cost.

Councilman Bryant of the committee opposed a division. The acceptance of Miller Stile road was as important as any, and the principle was the same.

Councilman Johnson was in favor of giving petitioners a hearing.

A motion of Councilman Bryant to recommit was defeated, also the motion of Councilman Bigelow for a division.

The report was then accepted.

The committee reported unfavorable on the order for a retaining wall on Independance avenue, and their recommendation to refer to executive was accepted.

The Committee on State Aid recommended $6 per month to William Symonds. Accepted.

New Schoolhouses.

The joint committee on Finance and Public Building reported that the order for $28,000 for a brick and stone schoolhouse at Norfolk Downs ought to pass.

Councilman Shackley dissented. The plans with one exception were the least desirable of those presented. The rooms were smaller than the Randlett & Howe plan, yet the latter could be built for $24,000. We were too extravagant in educational matters. He contended that every dollar extravagantly spent comes out of the laboring classes. It was the rich that wanted costly buildings. It was not always safe to act upon the advice of the school committee.

Councilman Adams said the committee favored the present plans because of economy. There was a difference of but $175 in the annual cost. This was offset by the saving in repairs alone, again in risk, again in the item of painting, also in running expenses. It would be a better building and would last longer. It would be safer for the children. Men were judged by their clothes, so a city was judged by its public buildings. If we would invite new residents we should be progressive. Progressive men want brick buildings. We were not acting on the advice of the School Committee, but for ourselves. It was hardly fair to say that the rich men wanted costly buildings. They did not send their children to the public schools. There was some question if we need new schoolhouses; if so, one or two. It was difficult to say which one was the more necessary, and in view of the fact that two could be built cheaper at one time, the committee recommended the two.

Councilman Shackley didn't know of one who had come to Quincy because of brick schoolhouses, but because of brick schoolhouses, our debt was $100,000 larger than it need be, and an advocate of brick had moved from town taking with him a large personal estate.

Councilman Phillips asked some very pertinent questions. He wanted to know what assurance there was that buildings could be erected for $28,000. Would proposed plan provide as much space.

Councilman Adams replied that we had the estimate of practical builders. The floor space was not quite as large, but as large for all practical purposes.

Councilman Nickerson said Mr. Kingston stood ready to give bond to build at estimate.

Councilman Rice favored the Randlett & Howe plan in wood, believing wooden buildings good enough.

Councilman Shackley said two school houses could be erected of wood on Randlett & Howe plan for $48,000.

The order for $28,000 for brick and stone building at Norfolk Downs was ordered to second reading on roll call by a vote of 15 to 7, viz:

YEAS,—Adams, Barker, Bigelow, Bryant, Geary, Grindell, Hayden, Lamb, Nickerson, O'Brien, Parker, Pinkham, Rinn, Russell, Sprague—15.

NAYS,—Dixon, Johnson, Phillips, Rice, Shackley, Sidelinger, Spear—7.

A similar order for West Quincy was ordered to second reading by a vote of 16 to 6 as follows:

YEAS,—Adams, Barker, Bigelow, Bryant, Geary, Grindell, Hayden, Lamb, Nickerson, O'Brien, Parker, Phillips, Pinkham, Rinn, Russell, Sprague.—16.

NAYS,—Dixon, Johnson, Rice, Shackley, Sidelinger, Spear.—6.

The order for transfer of $25 to pay a bill of 1894 was passed.

Legality of Water Order.

Councilman Bryant offered an order requesting the City Solicitor to give in writing at the next meeting of the Council an opinion if the resolution passed June 10, 1895, by the Council was in due and legal form and if the Mayor can legally fulfil the requirements of the resolution under the City Charter and Rule 25 of the Council.

In support of his order Councilman Bryant said he was of the opinion that the Council could not pass a resolve of that kind in one meeting. It is not known whether the resolve involved any expenditure of money, although it was stated that it would cost a million dollars to enter Metropolitan system. The order was adopted.

Election Returns.

Councilman Bigelow offered an order instructing the Committee on Elections to meet at the City Clerk's office on the evening of July 9, at 8 P. M. Adopted.

New Depots.

Councilman Parker offered a resolution that there was need of a better railroad station at Atlantic and that the Mayor be requested to appear before the proper officials and inform them of the act of the Council in passing this resolve and urge upon them the importance of immediate action and report to the Council the result of his interview.

Councilman Adams moved to amend by adding Quincy, and Councilman Bigelow also moved to amend by adding Quincy Adams, both of which were accepted.

Councilman Parker then opposed the order, but it was passed, and at 9.05 the Council adjourned.

The Quincy Club.

Quite a large number of members of this prosperous club were present last evening, and three new applicants for membership was received. After a fine literary entertainment a nice collation was served.

A LOSS OF 1977.

Fall River Folks Have Little Faith in the Municipal Census.

FALL RIVER, July 2.—The city is up in arms against the result of the municipal census. The totals found by the assistant assessors, instead of showing the ordinary natural increase of 2000 and putting the population up to 91,500, astounded the public when they showed a net loss of 1977, bringing the figures down from 89,576 to 87,599. The figures are repudiated, a recount is asked for by one of the local papers, and a verification by the police is suggested.

Ward 4 falls off 1670; ward 3, 1301; ward 2, 162, and ward 9, 520. The assistant assessors found in seven wards 696 empty tenements, mostly in old houses, but figures from the office of Superintendent Ryley show an increase in new tenements of 800 during last year, and permits to build 259 more up to May, this year.

The school census showed a gain of more than 800 last year over 1893, and this year a gain of 486.

The assessors, like everybody else in the city, expected between 91,000 and 92,000. The public is indignant and much disappointed. The claim is made that the assistant assessors were lax in their work, and didn't count all heads, being too much in a hurry. Three wards show an increase.

Bayers Is Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—E. M. Bayers, about the possession of whose person there has been so much litigation in many cities during the past two or three years, died of paresis at the Pennsylvania hospital for the insane. Bayers was the subject of a strange fight between his brother, A. M. Bayers, a wealthy manufacturer of Pittsburg, and his own wife, who still lives in that city. Legal processes were resorted to by both the brother and wife in order to keep the unfortunate man under an order of court prescribed by him or her. It is said to have been the desire of each to control the fortune of Bayers, who is stated to have been worth millions.

For Free Coinage.

DENVER, July 2.—The Democratic state convention here today is simply a mass meeting, no delegates being regularly elected and no credentials required. The attendance from outside Denver is light. Not much interest is taken in the convention, the purpose of which is to take action on the silver question. The convention will declare in favor of the double standard, the unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1, independent of all other nations.

Asiatic War Clouds.

SOFIA, July 2.—The Bulgarian government has addressed a note to the government at Constantinople, asking an explanation of the porte's orders that the commander of the Turkish army corps at Adrianople shall act upon his own initiative in conducting movements upon the Macedonian frontier. The note adds that Bulgaria herself will be compelled to take strong military measures if they should be required in the circumstances.

Buford Monument Dedicated.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 2.—The formal dedication of the Buford monument took place yesterday in the presence of a large gathering of civic and military organizations. The ceremonies opened with an oration by General J. H. Wilson. After the oration, the spiking of guns occurred. The statue was then decorated with laurel wreaths, amid the firing of minute guns.

Big Financial Deal.

DETROIT, July 2.—The Citizens' Street Railroad company yesterday filed a $7,000,000 blanket mortgage conveying its property to the New York Security and Investment company. It is made to cover all the company's indebtedness, and for the continuance of its work of equipping the lines with electricity.

Wife Murder at New York.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Herman Reick shot and killed his wife, Amelia, last night. The woman had been living apart from her husband during the last two years, under her maiden name of Worth. Last night Reick called on her. A quarrel commenced, and he shot her, almost without warning.

Mrs. Wright Acquitted.

LOWVILLE, N. Y., July 2.—Mary Wright of Watson was discharged from custody yesterday. She had been held for the murder, five years ago, of her first husband, James Hughes. She was discharged on the ground of insufficient evidence.

A Formal Notification.

ST. LOUIS, July 2.—Archbishop Kain has officially notified Archbishop Kenrick that he is to be succeeded by the former and that he had been transferred to another diocese. The news caused Archbishop Kenrick no surprise.

With $35,000,000 Capital.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., July 2.—The secretary of state yesterday granted a license for the incorporation of the old Whisky trust, under the name of the American Spirits Manufacturing company. Capital stock, $35,000,000.

To Serve In America.

PARIS, July 2.—Mr. Randall was elected vice president for America at yesterday's session of the International Penitentiary congress. General Brinkerhoff of Ohio is among the vice presidents of sections.

Consigned to the Grave.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The funeral of General Green Clay Smith took place yesterday afternoon, the remains being interred at Arlington after simple services at the Metropolitan Baptist church.

Pearsons Great Generosity.

CHICAGO, July 2.—D. K. Pearsons is to give $50,000 to the Whitman college, Walla Walla, Wash. Mr. Pearsons has, with this, given away $500,000 to various institutions.

Hale Won Easily.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 2.—Herbert Hale won the wrestling match last night from M. E. Smith of New Orleans, taking the first two falls in short order.

Stock Brokers Fail.

BROOKLYN, July 2.—The stock brokerage firm of Staples & Co. made a general assignment yesterday. The firm was reputed to be wealthy.

New Under Secretary of War.

LONDON, July 2.—The Times announces that William St. John Freemantle Brodrick has been appointed under secretary of war.

Profitable Season Promised.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 2.—The first fishery news from Labrador is most encouraging. There is plenty of fish and no ice.

QUINCY BREVITIES

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Will the City Council take a vacation this year?

The Italian band will give an open air concert in City Square tonight.

The telephone company are erecting new poles on Washington street this week.

A list of entries to the 12-mile road race on the morning of July 4, together with their handicap will be published tomorrow in the LEDGER.

Some means should be devised to keep dogs from using the trough of the old town pump for a bath tub.

The Sunday School of the Church of the Sacred Heart hold a festival at Music hall on the afternoon and evening of July 8.

The steamer Forest City of the Boston & Portland line has been hauled to Nut Island where she will be broken up.

Faxon Billings, who has recently completed his five years enlistment in Co. K, 5th Regt., has enlisted in Troop D, 1st battalion of cavalry.

Councilman Theodore Parker is taking his vacation. He will remain at home except for short trips and to attend the C. E. convention in Boston.

Catherina W. Billings of Atlantic, a teacher in the public schools of Medford has gone to Plymouth for two weeks and upon her return will make a trip to California.

The wedding of Miss Jessie Newell Prince and Dr. Frederick Winslow Rice will occur at Brighton this evening, and will be fully reported in the LEDGER tomorrow.

Eggs demand good prices the year round, and there is a fine place at Quincy Neck to let, where 300 hens can be kept with profit. The rent is low, and full particulars will be given by Caterer Nash.

The revolver prize at the pipe shoot at the Duck's Nest, Wollaston, was captured by Mr. A. T. Leavitt, who broke 9 out of a possible 10. Steward Williams will have his new tree-pin game going on the 4th. It is exciting and interesting.

The Atlantic boys are in daily practice for the three mile handicap road race on the morning of July 4th. The route is three times over the following course. Start from Atlantic street, Newbury avenue to Squantum street, Squantum street to Atlantic street and Atlantic street to starting point.

Many of the prizes to be raced for in the 12-mile handicap road race of the Wollaston Cycle club on the morning of July 4, are on exhibition in the show windows of the Quincy Cycle Co. The last prize in the list is for members of the Cycle Club and is an order for a hair cut and shave. Who will get it is a question, although many doubtless need it.

The Merry Mount Tennis club of Wollaston, will hold an open tournament Thursday, July 4th, at 8.30 A M, on the Safford street grounds. A silver bowl has been offered by the club to be competed for, the winner to defend it at three subsequent consecutive tournaments. Entrance fee $1. Entries will be received until Wednesday evening by H. W. Battison, secretary.

The directors and friends of the Dorchester Mutual fire insurance company passed through this city about one o'clock in two tally-hos and four barouches. They were celebrating the 40th anniversary of of the company with a drive. At four o'clock they will dine at the Old Dorchester club house. Ex-Mayor Porter and other Quincy gentlemen were prominent in the party.

There was a pleasant occasion recently at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Watson at 65 Quincy street. They entertained about thirty couples, and the evening was passed with singing, dancing, and a social good time. A sumptuous supper was served. The host and hostess were the recipients of a handsome silver tea service, the presentation speech being made by Mr. Leavitt, to which Mr. Watson responded.

Our young townsman, Charles H. Porter, Jr., preached in First church, Sunday morning. While it may seem odd for some of us advanced in life, to think of being taught or preached to, by one who seemed almost a child to us, the verdict is "he preaches like an old man not like a young one." In fact, young Mr. Porter is gifted with a happy combination of rare mental qualities and a genial character that comes from a good and happy heart. The altar was exquisite in white illies and all seemed in unison at the church.

NEW AND THE OLD.

Able Arguments in Debate at High School Graduation.

VERY INTERESTING FEATURE.

Resolved, That the New Education is Superior to the Old.

The debate at the High school graduation is continued today, the second negative by Miss Cashman being given. The affirmative and negative replies will follow:

In these days some dress their minds, as they do their bodies, in the prevailing fashion. A person being educated should always have a purpose in view and make all his efforts in that direction. By the present system it is very often the case that one takes up a study which he knows will not benefit him much in after life, merely because the study comes in the course. If the studies were elective, he could make his choice, and thus he could improve his time better.

Some people take up studies for ornament, and thus do not gain sufficient practical knowledge. In former days, the system of the three "R's," including 'rithmetic, reading and 'riting was in great favor. There was nothing very ornamental about these to be sure, but yet they formed the corner-stone of the best education. As a method is very often judged by its results, surely then the old system must meet with approval, for how many heroes and men of the brightest minds have been educated by it? Heroes! I say, for I consider Patriotism a prominent feature of education.

To be sure, we now have better schoolbuildings and equipments than formerly, but the best education does not depend upon these things. We now have a great variety of studies, but it would seem that if we had fewer, and should take each one more fully, it would be more to our advantage. The lessons now are made attractive by pictures and models, but these leave only a fleeting impression. They do not train the mind to hard study, but rather distract the attention.

The teachers often do most of the work, and thereby the pupils lose the benefit of hard study. It is a wise saying that "A child's mind is not a receptacle into which the teacher can throw knowledge. It grows from within rather than from without, and this growth must be effected by the scholar himself."

One of the aids to a good education is the library. Now we are provided with many and well equipped libraries. They contain books of science, books of explanation, classical works, translations and lighter reading. But which of these is the scholar likely to choose? Generally the lighter reading which is positively injurious. He has not the concentration to apply himself to heavier reading. Is not the present system at fault in this respect? By its attractiveness it makes the lessons easier, but does not train the reasoning powers.

Another characteristic of the modern education that is generally considered as an advantage is the freedom from expense, but it is questionable whether such freedom is for the best good or not. In one sense it ought to make no difference, but yet it seems that a person derives more benefit from a book for which he has to pay, than from one he receives without trouble. If he buys his books, he will always have them to refer to. He thinks of them as friends and they are a comfort to him.

A good teacher is one of the chief aids in getting a good education. One of the first requirements in obtaining a position as teacher is graduation from a Normal school or college. Neither Normal school nor college can make a teacher out of one not adapted to the profession, for teachers are "born and not made." Some who have not had the opportunity of attending Normal school make better teachers than others who have had that advantage.

Whatever good methods are used in the new system have been already used before, particularly in Germany, which received them from the ancient philosophers of Greece. In all these instances the old system was superior to the new.—Mary A. Cashman.

THE SEWERAGE SYSTEM.

The Report of Engineer Noyes Made to the City Council.

It has seemed advisable that the proposed sewers leading from the pumping station to the various villages be considered as main or intercepting sewers and be included in the estimate for the same. We have therefore estimated that the sewer from the proposed pumping station through Merry Mount avenue, Webster street, Atlantic avenue to Woodbine street, be considered a main intercepting sewer to provide drainage from Norfolk Downs, Atlantic, Wollaston and Montclair; that the sewer through Woodbine street, Willet street, Faxon street to Squantum street be considered as intercepting sewer to provide drainage for Norfolk Downs and Atlantic; the sewer through Woodbine street and Farrington street to Central street be considered as an intercepting sewer for Wollaston and Montclair; the sewer to extend from the proposed pumping station to Coddington street and through Newcomb and Canal streets, Washington street and Elm street to Glencoe Place be considered the intercepting sewer to take the drainage from Quincy Centre, South Quincy and Quincy Point; that the sewer from Glencoe Place to Quincy street at Water street and through Water street be considered as the intercepting sewer to take the drainage from South Quincy; that the intercepting sewer from Glencoe Place and in the valley of the brook discharging into Bent's creek to South street, and in South street, from the brook to Washington street at Wharf street be considered an intercepting sewer for Quincy Point; that the sewer from the main sewer near the pumping station through the valley of Furnace brook to Crescent street be considered an intercepting sewer for West Quincy. The other sewers may be considered as lateral or collecting sewers.

The following is a memorandum of our estimate of the cost of these intercepting sewers:

Intercepting sewer to provide for Norfolk Downs, Atlantic, Wollaston and Montclair,	$37,740 00
Intercepting sewers to provide drainage for Norfolk Downs and Atlantic,	24,371 10
Intercepting sewers to provide drainage for Wollaston and Montclair,	10,220 50
Intercepting sewers to provide drainage for Quincy Centre, South Quincy and Quincy Point,	70,918 00
Intercepting sewers to provide drainage for South Quincy,	17,405 20
Intercepting sewers to provide drainage for Quincy Point,	18,540 00
Furnace brook intercepting sewers to provide drainage for West Quincy,	20,573 00
Total estimated cost of the intercepting sewers, not including land damages,	$199,767 80

A careful numeration of the streets in the territory requiring sewers in the immediate future indicate a total length of between twenty-three and twenty-four miles.

The estimate made by Messrs. Whitman and Branch, namely, a cost of about $6,000 a mile, exclusive of cost of ledge excavation and land damages, is in my opinion a safe one.

The estimate of the cost of the pumping station, which includes pump, wells, screens and pumping machinery complete, is based on the estimate made by Mr. Percy M. Blake in the report heretofore referred to, and provides for a duplicate pumping plant, capable of delivering sewage at the rate of 2,000 gallons per minute, or a little less than 3,000,000 gallons per day of twenty-four hours.

In view of the large territory which has been improved, and for which drainage will be required, I am of the opinion that a pumping plant, having a pumping capacity of about 5,000,000 gallons per day should be provided. The estimate made for a pumping station will provide for a substantial brick building, but in view of the location selected, namely, Merry Mount park, and the general desire to make all public buildings attractive in appearance, I am of the opinion that such buildings as it would be finally thought best to erect would exceed somewhat the estimated cost.

A pumping plant of the capacity here proposed, has recently been installed and a pumping station constructed for the sewage disposal works of the City of Brockton.

The pumping station cost about	$17,000
The pumping plant about	24,000
Making a total of about	$41,000

The estimate of the cost of the force main and connection with the Boston main drainage works at Squantum, and for the ultimate discharge of the sewage into deep water off Moon Island, appears to be liberal.

The following is a summary of the revised estimates of the plant proposed by Messrs. Whitman and Branch, providing for connection with the conduit of the Boston main drainage works at Squantum:

Force main and out-fall,	$51,000 00
Pumping station and pumping plant capable of pumping 5,000,000 gallons per day,	41,000 00
Intercepting sewers,	199,767 80
Land damages,	27,300 00
Making a total estimated cost of the intercepting and disposal system, providing for a discharge into conduit of the Boston main drainage works at Squantum,	$319,067 80

From a study of the direction and velocity of the currents in the harbor, it appears probable that the sewage from Quincy may be discharged into deep water off Nut Island for a long number of years, without creating a nuisance; but the estimates made indicate that if equitable arrangements can be made with the authorities of the City of Boston for receiving the sewage of Quincy at Moon Island, the cost of disposing of the sewage at Nut Island, (which cost should include the cost of the force-main from the pumping station, the cost of the outfall sewer and of the storage reservoirs at such time as they may be required, and the extra cost for maintenance), will be largely in excess of the cost of discharging the sewage at Moon Island through the conduit of the Boston main drainage works, and the plan for disposing of the sewage at Moon Island, is without doubt, the most feasible.

In making the investigations, I have been impressed with the apparent rapid development and opening-up for building purposes of what has been unimproved territory, and before this development has been carried too far and buildings have been erected so as to interfere with the proper drainage of these territories and before buildings are constructed in such location or at such elevation as to greatly increase the ultimate cost of obtaining drainage, a comprehensive plan for collecting and disposing of the sewage and for the drainage of the city should be adopted.

I am also impressed with the importance of having the grades for the streets determined, and a basement or cellar grade established for all sections of the city, below which grade basements or cellars shall not be constructed.

In cities where the level of the ground water is contro led by the level of the water in the tidal estuaries, the basement or cellar grade is ordinarily fixed as being a certain number of feet above tide level, but in a city where the surface of the ground has a great variation in level, as is the case with Quincy, this reference to tide level could only be applicable to the territory in the immediate vicinity of the shores of the tidal estuaries, but with the elevation of the sewers and drains in the various streets fully established, the basement or cellar grade can be made to bear a certain relation to the sewers or drains which are to receive the drainage from them.

By having the system of sewers determined upon, the future development of the city in the laying out and construction of new streets can be effected in locations which will permit of the construction of sewers or drains at the least possible cost. Even if the sewers and drains are not actually constructed for a long time in the future, the knowledge of where the location of the sewers or drains can be constructed to the best advantage will, in many cases, influence the direction with which the streets will be laid out, so that the cost for land damage, in many cases, will be greatly reduced if not entirely obviated.

Respectfully submitted,
ALBERT F. NOYES.

FOURTH IN AUSTRALIA.

How Independence Day Is Observed In the Antipodes.

There are two days in the year, outside the regular holidays, which Australians recognize as anniversaries to be honored These are St. Patrick's day and the American Declaration of Independence, and every Englishman or Scot, who would have to look in an almanac to find out on what day St. George's or St. Andrew's day falls, knows at once what the 17th of March and the Fourth of July mean to some of their fellow colonists.

On the Fourth of July the stars and stripes wave side by side with the Australian flag from the town halls of Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane, Auckland and other Australian cities, while every one who can anyhow manage to raise an American flag for the occasion will hoist it. The tram cars running from Sydney to Botany, and from other cities to wherever the celebration is to be held, will be decorated much as they are in New York, and speeches will be made in honor of Washington, Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson and other Americans who did so much to secure for British colonists all over the world the freedom they now enjoy.

The omnibus horses will carry the stars and stripes and the union jack on their heads, and the people will crowd to Botany and other places of resort, some to hear the speeches and others to enjoy themselves in other and perhaps more congenial ways, for it is not every one who cares to listen to a long speech, however interesting it may be. The bands will play the "Star Spangled Banner," "Hail, Columbia," "Home, Sweet Home," "Away Down Upon the Swanee River," "Marching Through Georgia" and "Yankee Doodle," so that an American might, for the time, almost fancy himself in his own land.—New York Post.

THE NOISY CANNON CRACKER.

American Article Makes More Sound Than Its Chinese Prototype.

Were you ever in a fireworks factory? Well, let me tell you how the noisy cannon cracker is made. First, brown pasteboard is cut up in pieces about 5 by 12 inches. These are covered with paste and deftly rolled around a stick by a boy and then slipped off, and we have the cases—i. e., cylinders some five inches long and a little more than half an inch in diameter. Strands of cotton are covered with powder, which is thoroughly rubbed in, and cut in lengths of about three inches. These are the quick matches. Around one end of each match is rolled a covering of paper. This end is placed in a hole in a short solid metal cylinder on a workman's bench. Over the black end of the match as it stands upright he puts one of the cases, into which he pours a small quantity of dry New Jersey clay and pounds it down with a long wooden rammer, thus making a plug in one end of the pasteboard case, in the center of which is the match, with its covered end protruding. Now the case goes to another workman, who pours in a charge of powder, and thence to a boy, who puts some glue around the inside of the open end of the case and inserts a little wooden plug, thus loosely confining the powder in the middle of the pasteboard tube. All that remains to be done is to paste a colored printed cover on the case and the cannon cracker is completed and ready to be boxed up.—Boston Herald.

Let the Eagle Scream!

This is the season of the year when the American eagle, glorious bird of freedom, alighting on the topmost summit of the Rocky mountains, spreads its wings until one dips in the Atlantic ocean and the other is laved in the waters of the Golden Gate. Then the eagle—may he live forever!—lets out a scream that echoes from Portland, Me., to New Orleans and back again to Portland, Or. This is the season of the year when a nation burns incense and gunpowder to the memories of its forefathers and orators spring up at every crossroad to extol the virtues of Washington, Adams, Jefferson and their bewigged associates who dulled the horn of the British unicorn and blunted the teeth of the lion. Now the small boy, in excess of patriotic frenzy, gives his fingers as free will offerings on the altar of independence, and the usually sober and thrifty citizen spends his last cent on firecrackers and fireworks, which he touches off to honor the shades of the founders of this country, land of the free, home of the brave.—New York World.

Our National Holiday.

As the decades and the centuries of our national life roll along Fourth of July should become more and more significant as our national holiday. Each year freights it with the history of the past and the prospects of the future. The history mingles the happy and the sad lessons of experience. The prospects cheer and warn us. Each year the day should be made a national communion at which should assemble all dwellers within our borders, no matter what their creed or race, provided only they love this land of freedom and recognize this government of citizenship. Let the children serve the communion. Thus shall be assured the continuance of the festival. Thus shall they who serve grow up to honor and understand the communion.—New York Independent.

The Fourth In Other Lands.

While American citizens throughout the United States are celebrating the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence in the usual time honored manner it may be interesting to note that the rejoicings are not confined to this country, but are going on wherever Americans are to be found, all over the world, and that in many places the people of other countries join heartily in commemorating the "glorious Fourth." This is especially the case in Australia, where the Fourth of July has almost attained to the dignity of a public holiday.—New York Evening Post.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Big Boom In Vegetation In All New England States.

Indications Now Point to Successful Harvests.

Fruit, Vegetables and Grain All Benefited by Heavy Rains.

BOSTON, July 2.—The New England weather service, in co-operation with the United States agricultural bureau, issues the following bulletin for the week ending July 1:

The month of July opens with very favorable prospects for all farmers in New England. The abundant rains and damp, cloudy weather, although delaying farm work and causing a little local damage to cherries and garden crops just coming up, have given a boom to all vegetation and have caused remarkable growth in field and garden crops. From ¼ to ½ inch of rain came in the extreme north, from ½ to 1½ inches in central and from 2 to 3 or more inches in the southern sections. At Groton, Mass., 2.74 inches of rain fell on the 28th. At Block Island, R. I., there was recorded the unusual amount of 3.86 inches from 8 p. m. of the 30th to 8 a. m. of July 1. Later reports of the hailstorms on the 23d give considerable damage in Bethlehem, N. H., where hailstones 5½ inches in circumference were found. In Warren, Mass., some corn and potato fields were ruined, and grass and grain laid flat. One farmer had 175 panes of glass broken. Some of the hail was as large as hens' eggs. Considerable local damage was done in western counties by hail on the 25th.

Two Days of Soaking Rain.

Pasturage is excellent in Maine, and in some counties there is a prospect of nearly or quite an average hay crop. Cloudy and foggy weather prevailed generally until the 27th; then a steady, soaking rain fell most of the time for two days. The top of the ground is thoroughly soaked, and all crops are growing very fast. Haying and hoeing have been delayed, and some hay was caught out and considerably injured. Potatoes and corn are growing fast. Potato bugs are reported by several to be much more numerous than usual. The weather bureau observer at Eastport reports that notwithstanding the long continued drought which prevailed up to the beginning of this week, early vegetables from up country were in the markets there fully a week earlier than usual.

Corn Breaks the Record.

Farmers in some parts of New Hampshire are remarking that they never saw corn grow so fast before as it has in the past week, and also that it is larger than they ever remember for the first of July. The heaviest rain came in the southern counties, and there the greatest good has been done to all crops. The hay crop has been increased, according to some estimates, from 25 to 50 per cent, and pastures are exceptionally good. The strawberry season was short, and correspondents do not report favorably for a large blueberry or raspberry crop. The prospect for apples in valleys is still less encouraging. Grass has rusted some in Coos county, and one correspondent there reports small grasshoppers thicker than ever before known.

Crops Pushed Ahead.

Probably less rain has fallen in Vermont than in those states farther south during the week, but enough cloudy, rainy weather has prevailed to delay haying and to keep all crops growing very fast. Corn has made such rapid growth that it is tender, and fears are expressed that a high wind will break down much of it. One correspondent from Addison county states that potatoes are two weeks in advance of the past 15 years. The potato buds have increased very fast during the dull weather. Some say that oats never looked better at this time of year; they are heading out; while in places winter rye is ripe enough to cut. Grass has thickened up much.

Young Plants Damaged.

Considerable hay has lain out since the first of the week in all sections of Massachusetts and has been greatly damaged; the heavy rain, too, has slightly damaged plants that were just coming up, like cucumbers and squashes, and has injured tomatoes and heavy grass and grain in places. It has done great good, however, and has caused a boom in the growth of all vegetation and a material increase in the hay crop. New seeded pieces and low lands have been especially benefited, and upland fields that have not been cut must undoubtedly thicken up to some extent. Apples and pears are looking well, and the fruit is hanging on well on the trees. Currents and cherries are coming on, and are reported plenty and very fine. Strawberries are still in good supply on late land. Cranberries have not done well this week. On the Cape, where the sandy soil is dependent on frequent showers, most crops were backward, but are now growing fast.

A Promising Outlook.

The heavy rain on the 28th destroyed the last pickings of strawberries in some places in Rhode Island, but it was of great benefit to other crops and was gladly welcomed. Not much hay has been cut in this state yet, but mowing will begin as soon as the weather is favorable. All field crops appear to be very promising.

Potatoes Barely Saved.

A good deal of the grass on old fields has been cut in Connecticut, and that remaining has been greatly benefited by the rains. It has already begun to thicken up, and pastures have been greatly revived. Considerable hay that was cut near the first of the week has lain out during the continued wet weather and is greatly damaged. Haying will probably be general during this week. The top of the ground has been well soaked and all field crops have been greatly benefited. Some report that it came just in time to save potatoes, as they are right in blossom. Berries were drying up, but will probably mature now with fair size. Raspberries have been damaged by rain and cherries have decayed badly; so much so in places as to make the crop almost a failure. A large crop of currants, peaches and pears is promised. Correspondents in Fairfield county report that apples have passed the first dropping stage with enough left for a good crop. Turnips and cabbages are being set out. Winter grains are nearly ready for harvest. Oats are pushing ahead fast and are pronounced better than usual. Tobacco has been greatly benefited. Mr. C. P. Augur of Westville reports that a maggot has attacked the corn on turf ground and seems likely to prove a serious pest; one or two fields have been entirely ruined.

Sleeping Car Aches

This is a hurry up world, and health often suffers to aid business. The only sleep the majority of traveling men get is in a "sleeper." Closed eyes and unconsciousness with the body moving at every curve in the road, at every jolt of the car, isn't restful sleep. The morning Backache means tired Kidneys.

Buker's Kidney Pills

will clear a pair of clogged, tired out kidneys—they are simply tired kidneys—tired from working both day and night. These pills prevent disease and act as tonic on the vital organs. A box will fit your vest pocket. They cost 50 cents at the druggists. Book about Kidney ache, free.

THIRTEEN INNINGS.

Bostons Finally Overcome by Heavy Hitting of the Quakers.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—The Bostons were beaten in a 13-inning game, marked by brilliant fielding on the part of Nash's men and hard and timely hitting by the Phillies. The Quakers pulled themselves together in the ninth inning and scored the two runs which tied the score by good ball playing and one base on balls. Carsey pitched with rare judgment and great skill. Nichols also did well, only one run being made off his delivery in the first eight innings. The fielding of Tucker at first base was the finest seen here this season.

Johnson Carried Off the Honors.

TORONTO, July 2.—The triangular match race yesterday afternoon between John S. Johnson, Walter Sanger and Harry Tyler was for a purse of $1500, best two in three heats. The riders finished a few inches apart in the first heat in 1:59½. Johnson was first by less than six inches over Sanger, with Tyler a half wheel length in the rear. The second heat resulted the same way, but the time was 2:01¾. These are the two fastest races ever ridden in competition.

Governor Brown Draws Out.

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 2.—Governor Brown communicated to members of the press last night his personal card withdrawing in the contest for United States senator from Kentucky. He says his reasons are purely personal. Those nearest to him know that he suffered terribly from the loss, by death, of a daughter last year. The tragic death of his son two months ago added to his afflictions, so that he desires the rest and quiet of private life.

HOW TO CLEAN WHITE SHOES Ask a druggist for a dime's worth of pipeclay; put a little in a dish, dry, and with an old tooth or nail brush which is stiff, brush the shoes hard, but always the same way as the grain of the leather or canvas, or it will make them rough. Another way is to rub with deodorized benzine first and then put on a coat of pipeclay and let it remain on over night. It can also be used dampened for very bad spots.

"KNOCK-OUT DROPS."

Latest Device Employed by Crooks to Fleece the Unwary.

Dose of Chloral In Beer Does the Business.

Victims Recover Consciousness and Find That They Have Been Robbed.

BOSTON, July 3.—When the police arrested two men Monday night on the charge of administering what is commonly known as "knock-out drops" to Pliny H. West, they did not know that anybody else had taken the same sort of drops and been robbed in Boston in years. Now it appears that somebody has been putting "knock-out drops" in beer and other liquor which Boston men have afterward taken and lapsed into a state of unconsciousness while the thieves relieved them of their valuables.

The men arrested on the charge of robbing Mr. West gave the names of Linsey C. Boyd and John J. Martin. Yesterday a well-known Boston business man read the account of the arrest, and then went to police headquarters and told a story to Inspector Watts that made the capture of the men seem more important than it had up to that time. The man was asked to look at the alleged robbers, and he at once identified them as the ones who robbed him on June 13.

How the Trick Is Done.

He said that he met the men on Court street. They seemed respectable, and when one of them suggested that the entire party take a drink, the business man agreed, and they stepped into a saloon. The business man took beer. It had no sooner reached his stomach than he began to feel as if he wanted to go to sleep, and pretty soon he became unconscious. The next thing he knew he found himself in the Quincy House, with his money and watch gone.

When the police came to look up the record of Boyd, they found that he is wanted on the charge of robbing William H. Walker of Canada at Hotel Thorndike last August. Walker met Boyd on the Public Garden, and the two went over to the Thorndike to take a drink. They became very well acquainted in a little while, and then Walker lost consciousness. When he came to, his watch and $233 in cash were missing.

The police have a lot of pawn tickets which were found in the possession of the men when they were arrested, and with these they hope to recover a large quantity of property which it is thought was stolen from persons in this city by the use of "knock-out drops."

About the Knock-Out Drops.

The drug used by these men was chloral, and in all cases so far developed it has worked very successfully for the lawbreakers. It was only a month or two ago that eminent chemists in New York came forward and said that no such thing as "knock-out drops"—that is, a preparation that would deprive an intended victim temporarily of consciousness and action without resulting in any serious injury—was in existence.

They told the New York police, who were discussing the matter, that a preparation that would accomplish what was intended, would also cause the victim's death. The police responded by bringing a patrolman who had taken a dose of something described as "knock out drops," and after losing consciousness and power of action, had remained in that state for about two days, at the end of which time he became himself again, with no troublesome results.

During the late discussion, moreover, a New York police officer offered to give $100 to any man who would take a dose of "knock-out drops" that the officer had in his office. No one was willing to try it, and when it was tried on animals it made them unconscious temporarily, but left them at length unharmed.

TRAINS CRASHED.

Engineer's Error Causes a Serious Railroad Accident Near Boston.

BOSTON, July 3.—There was a collision on one of the Dorchester branches of the New York and New Haven railroad last night that only by chance escaped being a serious calamity. Two local trains, loaded with passengers, who were on their way home from work, crashed together at Shawmut Junction, a small station between Cedar Grove station and Dorchester Lower Mills.

The smoking car and passenger car of the outward bound train were wrecked and the engine was badly damaged. Five persons were injured, one of whom, Michael Garvey, may die.

An inward train was returning from Mattapan to Boston and was being sidetracked on the Neponset branch to allow a train from Boston to pass. The latter train was a quarter of a minute ahead of time, but that quarter minute should have been spent at Cedar Grove station. Engineer Russell had never taken the train out before, and did not know that he should have stopped. He rounded the curve just as the Mattapan train was on the points. His engine struck the second passenger car near the front end at an angle of 45 degrees, tearing off the steps and corner. The next car was a combination baggage and smoker. The engine struck it with tremendous force, tearing away the platform, forward trucks and several feet of the side.

The forward part of the engine was demolished, the smokestack being torn off. Engineer Russell bravely clung to his post and escaped with only slight bruises. The two cars left the track and the rails were torn up.

No one on the outward train was injured, beyond a shaking up. The passengers on the inward train were severely shaken up, and those in the one struck by the engine suffered most. Engineer Russel was put on the engine to take the place of the regular engineer, William Palmer, who was injured in an accident at South Boston yesterday.

Robbery Frustrated.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., July 3.—Three burglars attempted to rob the postoffice here early yesterday morning. The night watchman discovered them. Several shots were exchanged. After emptying their revolvers, the burglars fled. They got nothing.

Mystery Solved.

BOSTON, July 3.—Miss Gertrude Whitney, a young lady who was employed at the Boston postoffice, mysteriously disappeared July 14, 1888, leaving parents and friends in ignorance of her whereabouts. Her parents have just received a letter from their missing daughter, accompanied by a photograph of a handsome boy. The letter stated that she married the man she ran away with from Boston in 1888. They had been engaged before the elopement, and are at present living in St. Louis. The young woman's parents have grieved over their lost daughter for years. She was 19 years old when she left home.

Run Down by a Horse.

LYNN, July 3.—Miss Clara Leach, 13 years old, living with her mother at 26 Suffolk street, this city, stood on the outskirts of a crowd which attended a band concert here last night, when a horse, minus carriage or harness, broke into the throng, knocking the people right and left. Miss Leach sustained possibly fatal injuries from being trampled on by the animal.

Pushing the Work.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 3.—The riggers began work on the Defender yesterday, and carpenters were at work all day finishing the interior of the yacht and putting in the wooden bulkheads. With the weight of the rigging placed upon the Defender yesterday added to that of the five-ton mainmast the craft is brought down near her indicated waterline.

Gift to Vermont Odd Fellows.

LUDLOW, Vt., July 3.—The committee on location of the State Odd Fellows' home yesterday accepted the gift of J. S. Gill of this city, who presented the grand lodge of Vermont with the new hotel property recently erected by him, valued at $15,000. The home is to bear Gill's name in recognition of his generosity.

Alleged Belt-Cutters Held.

FALL RIVER, July 3.—James F. Deegan and Jerome Coe, Jr., were held in $1500 each for the grand jury on a charge of malicious destruction of property in cutting the main belt of the Pocasset Manufacturing company's plant on June 12 to insure a suspension of work while a circus was in town.

STICKS OF DYNAMITE

Successfully Used by Western Bandits to Hold Up a Train.

Three Men Had Everything Their Own Way.

Took Things Easy and Scooped In the Booty at Their Leisure.

PORTLAND, Or., July 3.—A Southern Pacific passenger train was held up and robbed at a point known as Riddles, in the Cow Creek canyon, between Ashland and Grant's Pass. The robbers took jewelry, money and other valuables from the passengers and rifled the mail pouches.

Taking the firemen, two of the highwaymen proceeded to go through the train, and every car was searched. The Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Victoria (B. C.) registered sacks were rifled.

The train was held up at the north end of a canyon just south of Riddles Station. When the dynamite explosion brought the train to a standstill, Conductor T. J. Kearney, who was in charge of the train, ran out, but was met by one of the bandits, who fired at him with a pistol, the bullet grazing the conductor's head. The bandit then ordered the conductor to get inside and stay there, an order which he was not slow in obeying, hiding himself in a Pullman closet, from which he saw one man patrolling the bank which overlooked the train.

Express Messenger Donohue had taken out his way-treasure at the first alarm and locked his box. This he reopened at the order of the robbers. Postal Clerk Herman gave up all the registered pouches, which the robbers ordered cut open. The robbers passed all of the passengers who had the appearance of working men, but made the others hold up their hands while they Went Through Their Pockets.

The sheriff of Klamath county was on board with a prisoner. The robbers appropriated the sheriff's pistol. None of the ladies in the car were molested. During the time the train was held, the robbers outside kept firing sticks of dynamite to intimidate the passengers.

After the chief robber had seized his booty, he ordered the engineer to proceed north. He then shot out the headlight and disappeared in the darkness. One man who was on the train had over $50 in his pocket, but he talked the robbers out of searching him. He described the robber who went through the car as a slender man, about six feet tall. He wore a white silk handkerchief as a mask, blue overalls and a jumper. He had a large bag slung over his shoulder, and carried a common gripsack in his hand. The engine was so badly disabled that it took three hours to reach Riddles, four miles distant.

R. F. Smith, agent of the Phœnix Insurance company of Hartford, with two friends, were in the Pullman smoking room when they heard the first bomb. They looked out the window, and were told by the robbers to pull their heads inside, whereupon they piled over each other in the middle of the room to get away from shots.

The robbers laughed and talked with the passengers while taking their valuables.

Turkey's Explanation.

SOFIA, July 3.—In reply to the request of Bulgaria that the porte should explain the orders issued to the commander of the troops at Adrianople, to act on his own initiative on the Bulgarian frontier, the grand vizier has declared that the alleged orders have not been given and that the report is without foundation. He adds that Turkey is animated by the best sentiments toward Bulgaria.

Perry Says He Is Glad.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., July 3.—Oliver Perry, the train robber, was transferred from the Mattewan insane asylum for insane criminals to the Auburn state prison last night, Superintendent Allison, at the asylum, having adjudged Perry recovered from his insanity, and ordered his return to the state prison to finish his sentence of 59 years. Perry said that he was glad of the change.

Borthwick's Rash Deed.

NORFOLK, July 3.—Chief Engineer J. L. Borthwick of the U. S. S. Amphitrite, now lying at Old Point Comfort, attempted suicide last night by cutting his throat. The attempt was made in his room at the Hygeia hotel. The wound, while a long one, is not very deep, and consequently not necessary fatal. Borthwick has been in the navy for 34 years.

Young Garfield Honored.

WARREN, O., July 3.—James R. Garfield, son of the late President Garfield, was nominated for state senator yesterday by acclamation in the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-sixth joint district convention.

Trains Delayed.

MCCOOK, Neb., July 3.—There was a cloudburst or waterspout in the neighborhood of Heigler and Ives, causing five washouts on the Burlington railway. No trains are arriving from the west.

Higher Wages For Five Hundred.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 3.—The Stamford Manufacturing company, employing 500 hands, yesterday announced that the wages of all its employes would be increased at once 10 per cent.

Killed by an Ice Cart.

PROVIDENCE, July 3.—Frank Pierce, a boy, was run over by an ice cart yesterday and instantly killed. The wheels of the cart passed over the boy's head, crushing it to a jelly.

Brooklyn Folks Get a Bargain.

NEW LONDON, July 2.—Steamer Olinda, which went ashore some time ago on Fisher island, was sold at auction yesterday to Brooklyn people for $2650. The vessel was valued at $150,000.

WE CELEBRATE.

The DAILY LEDGER office will be closed Thursday, and the Glorious Fourth observed as a holiday. No paper will be issued. Friday's LEDGER will have a full report of the Atlantic celebration and other holiday news.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE PROTEST of the physicians of Dorchester has had weight with the police commissioners of Boston. They set forth that the celebration of the Fourth had become a terror, citing the number of accidents treated, the many fire alarms, bonfires, the noise and ruffianism which drove people from the city and made it uncomfortable for the sick, the aged and the infants. Among the orders issued by Supt. Eldridge to the captains are these:

You will use every effort to have the night of July 3 kept as quiet as possible.

If it is necessary to make arrests to accomplish this, do so.

In this connection your attention is especially called to the discharge of "fire-arms," which must not be allowed under any circumstances.

You will also arrest persons found making "bonfires."

The Fourth of July will be much more enjoyable if lawlessness "the night before" is checked. Let the celebration be confined to the holiday.

SELDOM HAS a public measure a stronger support than that given the sewer act, soon to be submitted to the voters. Ex-Councilman George F. Pinkham has circulated the last few days a petition urging voters to vote "Yes," and it is published with signatures in another column. Representative citizens and large tax payers have signed it unreservedly. Each and every member of the City Council, the Mayor and department officials, all the ex-Mayors and many of the ex-Councilmen, the physicians of the city and many others have given it their endorsement. A majority vote is all that is needed to accept the act. Sewer commissioners will be appointed by the Mayor, but they cannot expend money until the City Council has made an appropriation.

THE POINT raised by the LEDGER, that the water resolve was illegally adopted, seems to be shared by members of the City Council, who have asked for a legal opinion from the City Solicitor. When the Metropolitan water system was under consideration it was stated that it would involve over one million dollars. As Quincy will be reinstated upon the asking, without any further action by the City Council or voters, it seems very plain that the resolve requesting the Mayor to have the city reinstated involves an expenditure of over $300, and that the City Solicitor must decide the resolve not to have been passed in due and legal form.

THE COMMON COUNCIL of Malden has appropriated $5,000 for land and $32,000 for a three-story 12-room school building, out eight to be finished. Quincy does not believe in three-story schoolhouses, but appears to be getting the proposed nine-room buildings at about the right figure.

Death of Mrs. Donovan.

Mrs. Ita Welsh Donovan, widow of Dr. Samuel M. Donovan, died Tuesday after a brief illness of quick consumption. The news that Mrs. Donovan had passed away came like a shock, as few knew that she was seriously ill.

Mrs. Donovan was born in Philadelphia, April 1, 1858, and was the daughter of John Rice Welsh and Elizabeth Welsh, one of the oldest families in Pennsylvania.

She was educated there in a convent school and under a private tutor, also a special master of music. She came to Boston at the age of 17 years and was married to Dr. Samuel M. Donovan in January 1880, when she came to Quincy and has since resided here.

She was a member of the Cecilia singing society, the Handel and Haydn musical society, and for a number of years belonged to the quartette of the church of the Immaculate Conception, Boston, and several kindred organizations.

Mrs. Donovan had a rich contralto voice and her singing has often been listened to with pleasure by many Quincy audiences.

She leaves five children, a daughter and four sons, also a mother and two sisters: Mrs. Netta McMumm, a celebrated singer of Boston, and Mrs. A. A. Sterling of Philadelphia.

Funeral services will be held from St. John's church Thursday morning.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Atlantic to Do the Celebrating for the City.

HORRIBLES, SPORTS FIREWORKS

Quincy to Have a 12-Mile Bicycle Race For $500 in Prizes.

The celebration of the Glorious Fourth in Quincy will be confined principally to Ward Six. Atlantic's progressive citizens have responded nobly with subscriptions, and a very creditable programme has been prepared. Every moment will be busy; events following each other in rapid succession, and many overlapping.

The parade at 6 A. M. will be the leading feature, for which eight cash prizes are offered. For the most elegant feature, $10 and $4, and for the best local hit, the most humorous, and the most original $5 and $2 each.

In brief the programme will be:

6 A. M. A parade of Antique, Horrible, Comical and other features. Will form at Atlantic street, near Squantum street, and at 6 A. M., will move through Atlantic, Hancock, Myrtle, Walnut, and Hancock streets, Billings road, Faxon avenue, Squantum, Botolph, Madison, Prospect, Billings, and Squantum streets to starting point and there be disbanded.

8.00 A. M. Parade of Decorated Bicycles. Will form at Atlantic street, near Squantum street. Route announced at time of starting.

8.30 A. M. Bicycle Road Race for boys of Atlantic, 15 years and under. Will be started from Atlantic street, near Squantum street. Course, twice through Atlantic street, Newbury avenue, Botolph and Squantum streets.

Bicycle Road Race, open to all residents of Ward Six, will be started from Atlantic street, near Newbury avenue, immediately after the finish of Boys' Road Race. Course, three times through Newbury avenue, Squantum and Atlantic streets.

9.00 A. M. Aquatic Events. Boats of the Squantum Yacht Club will assemble at Chase's Wharf, foot of Appleton street, and will take off sailing parties for short pleasure trips during high water. Tub and Dory races will be in progress at the shore from 9.00 to 12 00.

11.00 A. M. Children's Entertainment at Music Hall.

11.00 A. M. Base ball at Play Ground for Juniors.

2 00 P. M. Foot Races, open to all residents of Atlantic, at Play Ground.

2.30 P. M. Children's Entertainment at Music Hall.

2 30 P. M. Base Ball. Atlantics — Married vs. Single Men, at Play Ground.

7.30 P. M. Band Concert, at Band Stand, foot of Atlantic street.

8 P. M. Fireworks at foot of Atlantic street.

In the boys' bicycle race a cyclometer and sweater are offered as prizes; in the open race an order for a bicycle suit and bicycle shoes.

A prize of $2 will be given the winner of the tub race, $3 to the winner of dory race, and $5 to winner of rowing race.

In the running race, prizes to the value of $3 and $2 are offered. The winners of the junior ball game will receive $5 and the winners of the afternoon game a box of cigars.

At least twenty boats will be on hand at 9 A. M. to take out sailing parties, offering short free excursions to all.

Ex-Councilman Stephen O. Moxon is chief marshal and he is assisted by twelve energetic committees. Prominent citizens will also act as judges.

'Rah for Atlantic. May pleasant weather prevail and no accidents mar the celebration.

QUINCY BICYCLE RACE.

The Rice-Prince Wedding.

There was a brilliant gathering at the Congregational church at Brighton, Tuesday evening, at the wedding of Miss Jessie Newell Prince and Dr. Frederick Winslow Rice. The bride is the daughter of the late James H. Prince of Dedham, and for ten years has been instructor of drawing in the public schools of Quincy. Many of the teachers of this city were in the audience, also Supt. and Mrs. H. W. Lull, and friends from Dedham, Medford, Lynn, Arlington, Milton, Jamaica Plains, Brighton and elsewhere.

The church decorations were beautiful, including palms and other potted plants, white June lilies and a bell made of white pinks.

Rev. A. A. Berle, the pastor, officiated. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Sydney O. Nichols, her brother-in-law, was gowned in ivory satin trimmed with Duchess lace, silk tulle veil with orange blossoms, bouquet of bride's roses. The maid of honor, Miss Emily Kate Herron of Dedham, wore pale green silk trimmed with brocaded pink and green silk; ribbons to match costume.

There were two bridemaids, Miss Frieda Bethman of Ashmont, and Miss Charlotte A. Kendall of Framingham, whose dresses were of white dotted French muslin, trimmed with lace and green ribbons.

Dr. Frank W. Sawyer of Everett was best man and there were six ushers.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride on Rockland street, from 8.30 to 10 o'clock. The decorations were of roses, pinks and potted plants.

The future residence of Dr. and Mrs. Rice will be on Rockland street, Brighton, and they will be at home after October 1.

Downer Landing.

Among the enjoyable rides about Quincy at this season is that to Downer Landing, and the attractions at Melville Gardens make it a delightful outing, be it for a few hours, a whole day or an evening. Mr. J. D. Scudder, the proprietor, has found out what picnic parties want and has provided music, halls for dancing, bowling alleys, boats, etc., etc. The clambake alone is an attraction, and there is also a first class restaurant. The harbor trip from Boston to Downer adds to the day's outing, or one may take the cars to Hingham where barges connect.

--Europe will reap a harvest this year from American tourists. They are simply going in flocks.

Sleeping Car Aches

This is a hurry-up world, and health often suffers to aid business. The only sleep the majority of traveling men get is in a "sleeper." Closed eyes and unconsciousness with the body moving at every curve in the road, at every jolt of the car, isn't restful sleep. The morning Backache means tired Kidneys.

Buker's Kidney Pills

will clear a pair of clogged, tired-out kidneys—they are simply tired kidneys—tired from working both day and night. These pills prevent disease and act as tonic on the vital organs. A box will fit your vest pocket. They cost 50 cents at the druggists. Book about Kidney ache, free.

Wedding at City Hall.

A little event out of the usual run took place in the spacious office of City Clerk Kieth at City Hall this morning, when Mecagni Eurico and Rosi Marcolini were made one. Rosi looked as blushing as any bride while Mecagni was as brave as the average groom.

City Solicitor Blackmur preformed the ceremony and as his musical voice echoed through the room a death like silence prevailed.

The few necessary words were soon said and Rosi Marcolini became Mrs. Eurico.

The city solicitor was a little rusty from the fact that he failed to perform the usual function of kissing the bride, and the young ladies who officiated as witnesses were therefore debared from doing the same to the waiting groom, and the city clerk did not have the opportunity to osculate the fair Rosi.

Otherwise than this everything passed off smoothly and after the happy pair had had departed the officiating clergyman (?) celebrated by spending his fee in cigars.

Redman—Parker.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the residence of Councilman Theodore Parker, Atlantic street, Tuesday afternoon. The bride, Miss Grace D. Parker, is a sister of Mr. Parker, and a daughter of the late Chase Parker. She has lived with her mother most of the time, and for two or three years was a teacher in the Quincy and the Wollaston schools. The groom is Mr. Ralph W. Redman of Dedham, and son of Capt. B. R. Redman of Atlantic. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Herbert Yeoman, in the presence of the families of the pair, after which an elaborate supper was served. A unique feature of the supper was twelve little children at table together, all grandchildren of Mrs. Chase Parker. Mr. and Mrs. Redman will reside in Dedham, where he is president of Dedham Ice company.

NEW AND THE OLD.

Able Arguments in Debate at High School Graduation.

VERY INTERESTING FEATURE.

Resolved, That the New Education is Superior to the Old.

The reply of Miss Daisy C. Bemis printed today closes the affirmative debate at the High school graduation on the resolve—"That the New Education is Superior to the Old." The negative reply will appear Friday.

It has just been frankly acknowledged by one opponent that the American people of today are very different from those of a hundred years ago. What has made them so? Education. Not long ago our fathers were taught, that the world is flat. Would it be of any use if works containing such statements were kept as reference books in the present era? I have a dictionary just one hundred years old. It was considered unquestionable as to veracity once, but it hardly agrees with Webster, Worcester, or the Century, in fact it is quite difficult to decipher the lettering even. The geographies our grandmothers studied are wonderful in their inaccuracies. I am sure they are curiosities, but our school will hardly recommend them for reference to its pupils today. Those books might be "better" for our grandparents, but we shall treasure them, only, as specimens of antiquity.

Washington may have grown under the system of the "three R's," but if he lived and prospered under such a meagre diet, what would he have been with the advantages which our Quincy High school affords. The condition of the times often creates heroes, martyrs, great men and women. The Revolutionary war and the Civil war brought out qualities in men, which in our present time of peace, remain dormant. Men were thought to be very wise, in days of ignorance, among the masses who possessed but very little actual learning. Diogenes was considered a very wise man for his time, but it has been said, by many, if this same Diogenes had lived in our generation he would have been placed in the mad house as a first class lunatic.

Never before in the history of men has there been a time when all the powers of the mind have been so systematically trained as they are now, and this grand result is not accomplished by memorizing a few old fashioned, out-of-date text books, either. Our library certainly does contain books for earnest students, also the lighter material for amusement, but which does the scholar choose? You can easily determine by spending an afternoon at the library or consulting our librarians but—remember not to associate the scholar with the dime novel reader. A scholar finds such reading very objectionable.

Let others choose the past, but as for me, I choose to enjoy the matchless advantages of the nineteenth century.—Daisy C. Bemis, '95.

Hospital Aid Association.

The June meeting of the Hospital Aid Association was held as usual upon the last Thursday of the month. The treasurer, Mrs. Kershaw, reported about six hundred dollars at interest until September with a sum, available at any time, sufficient to meet expenses for the summer.

The chairman of the cutting committee, Mrs. Geo. Keyes, reported the necessary sewing done for the present. The autumn will bring a demand for new supplies, and work will be ready for the next meeting to be held the last Thursday in September.

The secretary, Miss Raycroft presented a letter written by a regular contributor to the Association whose name had been repeatedly omitted from the annual list of members. This led to the discovery that this was only one of a number omitted, through a very excusable mistake of the copyist. Great regret was expressed that these valuable members of the Association had been overlooked. A committee was appointed to attend to the details of apology and acknowledgment.

One of the numerous difficulties met with in carrying on a large organization like the Hospital Aid, is keeping the ever changing list of members correct or reporting it absolutely without error at the end of the year. Not once in the five years' existence of the Association has this been accomplished. A special effort was made in 1894 by a committee appointed for that purpose, and the mistake made was a greater disappointment to them than it could possibly be to the persons whose names were omitted. There is certainly great gratification in having our good deeds acknowledged and few of us are willing to wait until "the evening comes and our work is done." But it is somewhere written "let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth, that thine alms may be in secret." In the same book we are also told that even when we have "done all things to say "We are unprofitable servants!" In the face of all that needs to be done in the world, who of us dares to record a personal effort? F. C. B.

SEWERAGE ELECTION,

Vote "Yes" on Acceptance of the Act on July 9.

To the Voters of the City of Quincy:

FELLOW-CITIZENS:—On Tuesday, July 9th, 1895, we are called upon to decide by our votes whether our city shall establish a general system of sewerage or not. No question of greater importance has ever been brought before the City of Quincy.

We are well aware that it will cost a large sum of money and that it must to some extent increase our taxes. The payments, however, can and will be spread over a long term of years so that the burden will be very light.

In our judgment the matter cannot be safely put off any longer, and we earnestly advise and urge every voter in the city to be at the polls and vote Yes on the pending question.

The health of our beloved city imperatively demands it.

Most sincerely yours,

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WAITED IN VAIN.

Priest, Best Man and Bridesmaid Were All Ready For Wedding Ceremony.

CHICOPEE, July 3.—Malachi Kelly, aged 64, was to have been married yesterday afternoon to Miss Catherine Walsh, a maiden of over 50 years, but they disagreed and the ceremony was abandoned.

Kelly lost his wife 15 months ago and wanted someone to get his meals. Catherine wanted a home, and so they agreed to join fortunes.

But Kelly refused to pay for moving Catherine's goods to his home. She construed this as indicating coolness on his part, and he insisted that it was the precedent that the bride should "prepare the nest."

The bridesmaid, best man and priest were ready, but the bride and groom settled in their respective homes and the ceremony was declared off.

Additions to Rosebery's Cabinet.

LONDON, July 3.—The following additional ministerial appointments have been announced: A. A. Douglas, first commissioner of works, and W. H. Long, president of the board of agriculture, both with seats in the cabinet; Duke of Norfolk, postmaster general; G. W. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland; J. E. Gorst, vice president of the council; W. H. Walrond, patronage secretary to the treasury; W. E. G. Macartney, secretary to the admiralty; J. A. Chamberlain, civil lord of the admiralty; Jesse Collings, under secretary for the home department; T. W. Russell, parliamentary secretary for the local government board; J. P. Williams, financial secretary of the war office. The cabinet now has 19 members, the largest number it ever contained.

Balm For Routed Officials.

LONDON, July 3.—Lord Rosebery, in addressing the Eighty club last evening, said that the Liberals were defeated, but were not discomforted and not disgraced. He did not pretend to lament their position, for to him there was no comparison between the position of a party united and facing the constituencies from which alone it could draw its power and the position of a party engaged in the arduous, if not impossible, task of forcing through a reluctant house of commons, with a narrow majority, measures which it would try to force across the impassable rampart that faced all great measures. He had never tasted the sweets of place with power, but his experience of place without power was a purgatory, if not a hell.

Up to the Standard.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—The American liner New York has been examined for fighting qualities by the government to see whether she comes up to the requirements of the law as an auxiliary cruiser in time of war. Naval Constructor Fernald made the inspection, and is represented as saying that he found the vessel able to carry 10 six-inch cannon and a corresponding secondary battery. Her speed has been sufficiently tested by her transatlantic voyage.

Victim of Some Fiend.

DUBLIN, July 3.—A laborer walking through Boyne street yesterday picked up a canister which was lying in the roadway. He attempted to remove the cover, when the canister exploded, instantly killing the man, who was riddled with iron pellets with which the vessel was filled. The top and bottom of the vessel were connected on the inside by a wire. The nature of the explosive contained in the can is not known.

Slashing Rates.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Ticket agreements to the annual meeting of the Christian Endeavors at Boston are going to smash in all directions, and it is hard to see where the demoralization is going to stop. The result has been to provoke all sorts of hard feeling among all the lines concerned, and a regular scramble for the business has begun without regard to agreements or anything else.

Probably From Scuttled Vessel.

ERIE, Pa., July 3.—Fire far out in the lake was seen last night and an alarm was sounded. The lifesaving crew went out six miles and a tug nearly 12 miles, only to see the fire die down in the direction of Long Point. It is impossible to obtain information from here as to what burned. The lifesaving crew is of the opinion that the blaze was from a scuttled vessel close to Long Point.

Disgusted With Politics.

VIENNA, July 3.—Ernst von Plener, minister of finance for Austria in the late cabinet, announces that owing to his failure to form a coalition of the moderate parties, he has decided to retire from active political life.

Howgate Sentenced.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Henry W. Howgate, former disbursing officer of the signal service, was yesterday sentenced to eight years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Injury Proved Fatal.

LOWELL, July 3.—Vetherin Baril, aged 50 years, fell from a load of hay yesterday and received injuries from which he died soon after.

Victim of Horse's Heels.

LOWELL, July 3.—A boy named Lanoin, at Collinsville, was kicked in the head by a horse yesterday, receiving probably fatal injuries.

MERITED REWARD.

SALES OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Unequalled in the History of Medicine. Honesty, Excellence, Faithfulness Fitly Rewarded.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkhams Vegetable Compound and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkhams wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today. From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence, come the glad tidings of woman's suffering relieved by it; and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women, saying that it WILL and does positively cure those painful

Ailments of Women.

It will cure the worst forms of female complaints, all ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the change of life.

Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of leucorrhœa by removing the cause, than any remedy the world has ever known; it is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick-headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is frequently found of great value for local application. Correspondence is freely solicited by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., and the strictest confidence assured. All druggists sell the Pinkham's remedies. The Vegetable Compound in three forms, — Liquid, Pills, and Lozenges.

NORFOLK, ss. SUPERIOR COURT.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, holden at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

RESPECTFULLY Libels and represents Donald Stewart of Quincy, in said County, that he wrs lawfully married to Olive Stewart, whose present place of residence is to your libellant unknown, at Milo in the State of Maine, on the 11th day of September, A. D. 1890; and thereafter wards your libellant and the said Olive Stewart lived together at Milo and Bord Lake in the State of Maine, and in this Commonwealth, to wit: at Quincy, and that your libellant and the said Olive Stewart last lived together as man and wife in Quincy, in this Commonwealth: that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Olive Stewart, being wholly regardless of the same, at said Quincy, in the month of November, A. D. 1890, utterly deserted him and has continued such desertion from that time to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

WHEREFORE, your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Olive Stewart, and that such orders and decrees may be made in the premises as to your Honors may seem meet and proper.

Dated the fifteenth day of June, A.D. 1895.

DONALD STEWART.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

NORFOLK, ss. SUPERIOR COURT.

ON the foregoing Libel it is ORDERED that the Libellant give notice to the said Olive Stewart, the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the First Monday of August next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week for three successive weeks in the QUINCY LEDGER, a newspaper printed at Quincy in said County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of August next; and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Olive Stewart, an attested copy of said Libel and of this order thereon, that the said Olive Stewart may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court.

ERASTUS WORTHINGTON,
June 18, 1895. Clerk.

A true copy of said Libel, and of the order thereon.

Attest: R. B. WORTHINGTON,

IN SECOND PLACE.

Bostons Drop and Orioles Go Up In the League Race.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—It took 10 innings for the Phillies to beat the Bostons. The defeat knocks Boston out of first place and gives it to Baltimore. For four innings it was a pitchers' battle, and during the remainder of the contest hard batting was the order. Taylor and Dolan both started off well, but the latter was knocked out of the box in the seventh inning. Sexton took his place, but he could not hold down the heavy hitters.

For Absolute Prohibition.

BOSTON, July 3.—Minor details of legislation for juvenile bodies were considered by the juvenile institute of the supreme lodge of Good Templars yesterday. It was voted to hold a special session next year at Montreal. At the evening session the committee on political action reaffirmed its platform of absolute prohibition against the liquor traffic. Hope of Faith Temple, Scotland, was awarded a banner for being the largest juvenile temple in the world. The newly elected officers were installed. Committees were announced, votes of thanks to the city of Boston and others for courtesies shown were passed, and the session adjourned.

A. P. A. Had a Hand In the Row.

OMAHA, July 3.—Details of a plot were made public yesterday by which Martin J. White, the new chief of police, who was employed in Chicago last week to reorganize Omaha's police force, was to be arrested for impersonating an officer, and Mayor Bemis and Police Commissioners Brown and Beaver for violating the anti-Pinkerton ordinance in employing White. The developments have intensified the feeling between the A. P. A. faction and the municipal reform element, the latter representing the business men of Omaha.

Murderer Lynched.

DENTON, Md., July 3. — Marshall E. Price, who waylaid, assaulted and murdered little Sallie Dean while on her way to school, and who yesterday received a respite pending an appeal for a new trial, was taken from jail last night and hanged to a tree. The jail guards were obliged by overpowering numbers to give up their prisoner. The leaders wore masks.

The Roumelian Row.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, July 3.—The authorities have caused to be torn down hundreds of placards which have been posted about the city, asking the Bulgarians to come and assist in the revolution, and appealing to Prince Ferdinand to send an army into Roumelia.

Country Under Water.

DENISON, Tex., July 3.—The country is literally under water. It has rained almost constantly for the past month, with no prospect of an abatement. The oat crop is much injured, cotton is in the weeds and the farmers are despondent.

Slashed His Own Throat.

SPRINGFIELD, July 3. — James Gault, aged 59, committed suicide last evening by cutting his throat. He was despondent on account of the death of his wife.

"I fully appreciate the benefit which I have derived from the use of Hood's Pills, and take great pleasure in recommending them to every one." MISS MARY E. ALDEN, Box 458, Randolph, Mass.

Hood's Pills cure billiousness.

—Judge M. C. Saufley of Lancaster proposes to try a novel suit before a novel jury. It is an action for breach of promise brought by W. C. Stivers, a Lancaster widower, against Miss Katherine West, a young school teacher; and Judge Saufley says that the jury before which it shall go must be composed of women. Under the new legislation they are eligible for jury duty.

—The next congress will probably enact a law forbidding the use of the United States flag for advertising purposes. At the same time it would be well to enact another law prohibiting the use of the names or pictures of the presidents for similiar purposes. It is disgraceful that the name of one president should be associated with a cigar, and the name and a wretched picture of another with a patent "tea."

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

Objections to the "Little Red Schoolhouse" In a Parade.

Sticks, Stones and Revolvers Freely Used.

One Man Killed Outright and a Number Seriously Hurt.

BOSTON, July 5.—The "little red schoolhouse" parade in East Boston yesterday afternoon was the leading feature of the celebration of the nation's birthday in this vicinity.

On account of the bad blood stirred up by the parade, one man lost his life, another lies at the city hospital unconscious and several others were painfully though not seriously injured.

The name of the man who lost his life is John W. Wills, and he lived on Webster avenue, East Boston.

John Ross and Harold G. Brown are held as prisoners, charged with firing the shots that killed Wills.

The killing of Wills did not happen till after the parade was finished and the participants had been dismissed.

Michael Doyle had his head split open by a club and now lies at the city hospital; a young man named Stewart had his nose cut off with a saber in the hands of one of the paraders; Patrick Kelly sustained a severe scalp wound, whether from a club or a bullet is not known, and Officer A. S. Bates was hit in the mouth by a brick thrown by an unknown person and lost several teeth, besides suffering from severe lacerations.

It is claimed that the trouble resulted from the persistence of those who managed the parade in introducing as a feature a float representing "The Little Red School House," which, from its association as the emblem of the American Protective association, has become obnoxious to those who do not sympathize with the A. P. A. movement. The Fourth of July committee refused to permit this feature to appear in the parade, and those desiring to present it tried to have an order passed by the board of aldermen, but failed.

Thirty Thousand Lookers-On.

So great was the interest excited by this controversy and the expressed determination of the paraders to display the schoolhouse that fully 30,000 visitors gathered at East Boston. The police officials, in anticipation of any hostile demonstration, had a special squad of 350 men, under the direction of Deputy Superintendent Pierce and Captain Irish, in addition to the East Boston force, on duty, but they marched at the head of the procession.

At several points the feeling of the crowd was given vent in hisses at the 1500 paraders and the schoolhouse, but no further demonstration was made until the rear of the parade had reached Putnam street, when the crowd tried to overturn the last carriage. Word was sent to the front for police assistance, and a squad of 20 officers was sent back. A skirmish followed between the crowd and the officers, and Michael Doyle received a fractured skull. He was taken to the city hospital. A man named Stewart had his nose cut off by a saber in the hands of Albert E. Andrews, a private in the Roxbury Horse Guards, who was in full uniform and who went to the assistance of the occupants in the carriage.

Killing of Wills.

The feeling of the crowd was intensified by this incident, and when the parade broke up and those who had participated were proceeding in companies to the ferry in order to reach the city, a group of between 60 and 70 persons were surrounded on Border street by a crowd, who commenced hooting and throwing stones.

It is said that a number of the paraders became frightened and a dozen revolvers were drawn, and in response to the fusilade of stones eight or nine shots were fired. The firing of the revolvers brought a large body of police to the spot, and the mob was soon dispersed. The officers found John Wills dead in the street with a bullet hole in his right side and Patrick A. Kelly lying seriously wounded about the head. It was learned later that several other persons had been slightly injured, all of whom were taken away by their friends.

The police arrested Harold Brown and John Ross as the principals who, it is alleged, did the shooting. It is claimed by six witnesses who were taken to the station house that Brown did the shooting which killed Wells and wounded Kelly. Ross is said to have injured several others, who were taken away by their friends.

Willis, the murdered man, was a laborer by occupation, and leaves a widow and six children. Kelly is a single man. There is much deep feeling over the affair throughout the city.

Deputy Superintendent of Police Pierce, who had charge of the police escort at the parade, said: "The trouble on Border street happened half a mile from the parade. It had nothing to do with it at all. The procession itself was well protected, and nothing occurred inside the police line. It was an entirely different affair down there."

Lively Celebrations.

BOSTON, July 5.—Independence day in the various large cities and towns of New England was celebrated generally with enthusiastic patriotism, although in not a few cases stormy weather prevented the completion of the program, comprising a wide range of attractions. In many instances, however, the festivities were carried out on an elaborate scale. Early morning demonstrations of the usual boisterous nature were the rule, and the "antique and horrible" was out in all his glory. Trade displays, too, were frequent, and so were parades of bicyclists.

Patrolmen Roughly Treated.

BOSTON, July 5.—Patrolman Scholl attempted to arrest a man on Kneeland street for brutally assaulting a woman, but before he could call the patrol wagon a large crowd of hoodlums set upon him. He was cut and bruised in many parts of the body and was severely injured about the head. Patrolman Corey rushed to his assistance when he heard the rumpus, and he, too, was assaulted by the mob. He was severely injured. The man escaped. Both patrolmen will be unable to be on duty for some time. No arrests have been made as yet.

Death of Inventor Stearns.

CAMDEN, Me., July 5. — Hon. J. B. Stearns, known the world over as the inventor of the duplex system of telegraph, whereby two messages may be sent simultaneously over one wire, is dead. Mr. Stearns was 64 years of age. He began his career as a farm laborer, but afterward entered the telegraph office at Newburyport, and was employed later at Portland, where a conception of his invention dawned upon him, through a chance experiment. He was a victim of softening of the brain in his declining years.

Double Drowning.

NEWTOWN, Conn., July 5.—A double drowning accident occurred at Taunton lake, the victims being Louise Galpin, 10 years old, and a nurse named Ella Johnson, a Swede, aged 16 years old. The two were in bathing, and the child being seized with cramps in deep water the nurse swam to her assistance. She was too late to save the little one, however, and, overcome by exhaustion, was unable to reach the shore herself and drowned before help arrived.

Jealousy the Alleged Cause.

GARDNER, Me., July 5.—Thomas Dodwell was shot in the thigh yesterday by Walter H. Merrill. The latter is badly cut in the neck, and he claims that Dodwell hit him with a bottle. There was a lively fracas between the men, and it is claimed that jealousy was the cause. Merrill boarded at the same house where Mrs. Dodwell, the injured man's divorced wife, lived. Dodwell's condition is serious.

Six Rounds Knocked Off.

BOSTON, July 5.—Jack Breslin of Boston met Jere Sullivan of Worcester for a 15-round fight at catchweight last night. The men fought fast and hard for eight rounds, and in the ninth, when Breslin took the full time limit after a knockdown by Sullivan before getting up, the police interfered and stopped the fight. The contest was declared a draw. Sullivan made the better showing.

Lively Domestic Fracas.

NEWTON, July 5.—Bartholomew Mulkerns is suffering from serious wounds inflicted, it is alleged, by his wife. Mulkerns and his wife became involved in a quarrel, in which the woman had decidedly the better of it. He claims that she stabbed him with a fork, which penetrated through the fleshy part of the left arm and inflicted an ugly wound. His head was also badly battered.

An Undutiful Son.

PITTSFIELD, July 5.—Stephen Connelly was arrested yesterday, charged with stealing his mother's bank book on the Lee Savings book, good for $400. He had forged his mother's name to two orders, but failed to get the money, and the orders and book were found in his possession. A few weeks ago Connelly stole $800 from his mother, but the matter was hushed up at her request.

Red Schoolhouse at Lynn.

LYNN, July 5.—One of the most successful Fourth of July celebrations in the history of the city was held yesterday. The principal feature was the parade, which included military and civic societies, the high school battalions and a large number of school children. The "Little Red Schoolhouse" was in the procession, also about 200 members of the local A. O. H. societies.

Lynn's Big Fire.

LYNN, July 5.—Lynn was the scene of a disastrous and fatal fire Wednesday, in which James H. Winslow, 68 years of age, and Harley F. Hicks, 57 years of age, were burned to death. A lighted firecracker thrown into a stand of fireworks outside the Hotel Sagamore caused the burning of that building. The property loss is $159,300.

Neighbors Suspected of Crime.

BRIDGEPORT, July 5.—Kate Sweeney, a single woman, was found dead in her room on East Washington street yesterday, and as the police learned that loud words, as if during a wrangle, were heard by other tenants Wednesday night, Thomas Leary and wife, overhead neighbors, are held pending an investigation.

President Greene.

NEWPORT, July 5.—The annual meeting of the Rhode Island state society of the Order of Cincinnati was held here yesterday. Nathaniel Greene, M.D., LL.D., a grandson of General N. Greene of revolutionary fame, was elected president. There was a public meeting in the afternoon and a banquet in the evening.

Mysterious Drowning Case.

BOSTON, July 5.—Yesterday the police found the body of a man in the Brookline riverway, and nearby on the bank a woman's waist and skirt. The man was about 35 years of age and weighed about 180 pounds. The police believe that a woman has also been drowned and are now looking for the body.

A Donation of $25,000.

WORCESTER, July 5.—The corner-stone of the new Leicester public library was laid yesterday. The exercises were brief and simple. Lory S. Watson, whose donation of $25,000 has assured the building of the library, has spent the most of his 81 years in Leicester. He is a native of Spencer.

Yacht Capsized.

BRAINTREE, Mass., July 5.—Yacht Elsie of Quincy capsized in Hull gut yesterday with a party of eight on board. Miss Hattie Sheldon was nearly drowned.

Jacob Flint lost his bank book Wednesday.

The Wollaston Christian Endeavor societies are to decorate that railroad station.

W. R. Sparrow of Wollaston sold 90 gallons of his "matchless" ice cream on the 4th.

Capt. Doane's hand was badly injured on the Fourth by the explosion of a cannon cracker in his hand.

Owing to the severe storm the Merry Mount Tennis Club's tournament at Wollaston was unfinished.

Mr. W. E. Simmons and family of Wollaston are at their summer residence at Long Pond, Plymouth.

The Wollaston Cycle club held quite an enjoyable party at Mr. Frank Merrill's, Woodbine street, Wollaston.

The depot platform is being patched with some new planks. An entire new platform would be more acceptable.

George H. Brown & Co. have sold for J. B. Regan the lot of land corner of River road and Bird street, to Mr. William S. Williams.

The Brewer's corner gang have found a man who they can neither rattle or play with, in the person of special Officer Geo. A. Cameron.

Many called upon Miss Mary Hinkley Wednesday evening to see her night blooming cereus which was in blossom for the first time in 17 years.

There was a Swedish picnic at Merry Mount park, Thursday, which the rain dampened somewhat, for many of the picnickers got a drenching.

Miss Beckett of Montana is the guest of Mrs. C. L Coe. Miss Marshall who has been Mrs. Coe's guest has returned to her home at Pawtucket, R. I.

There is a great deal of riding on the street cars today parties from Weymouth, Randolph, Braintree and other places passing through the city on their way to Boston.

There was lively work on board of the yachts, yesterday afternoon, that were caught down the bay when the easterly storm set in. Some had a rough time before picking up their moorings.

The residents of Bigelow street had arranged for a grand celebration on the evening of the Fourth on the "Ward One playground," but the rain caused a postponement, and the fireworks will be given this evening.

Quincy was fortunate on the Fourth in not having any serious fires. Chief Williams had arrangments all completed to cope with any blaze and as an extra precaution orders were given for every engineer to remain in his own ward.

One of the happiest little girls in Wollaston Heights, is Mary E. Lavelle, of Woodbine street, who received a lovely gold medal from her Sunday school teacher, Miss O'Hara, of St. John's church, Quincy, for good attendance and perfect lessons.

Mrs. William Westland entertained a few of her friends at her home on Garfield street Thursday. A very pleasant day was passed playing croquet, cards and other amusements. The clam bake served by Mrs. John Westland was very much enjoyed.

George H. Wilson kept open house the night before the Fourth at Wilson's hall, where refreshments were served and an orchestra from Boston furnished music. The only Galen was there and sang the Star Spangled Banner with his old-time vigor. Charles Bowker delivered the oration.

A practical illustration of different kinds of illumination on Chestnut street is attracting considerable attention. Miss Bliss store is illuminated with incandescent electric lights, Wales ice cream rooms with incandescent gas and F. F. Crane's with ordinary gas and of the three stores Wales is by far the most brilliant.

John Herman Loud, of Weymouth arrived home Saturday night from a two year's tour of study in Europe. Mr. Loud has spent some time in France, Germany and England studying music. He was accompanied by Rev. Mr. Huckel of East Braintree.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

Showers and Finally a Storm Mar the Festivities.

THE ATLANTIC CELEBRATION.

Great Interest taken in Handicap Bicycle Race at Quincy.

The good citizens of Atlantic got together a few weeks ago and said we will paint this ward red on the Fourth. That settled it, and from that time on everyone has been on the alert to make the affair a success, and it certainly was.

There was but little sleep for the quiet citizen Wednesday night as young America was about determined to celebrate the day and they did it.

All Atlantic was up with the sun in the morning, ready for the first feature, which was the antique and horrible parade.

This formed on Atlantic street and moved shortly after 6 o'clock. The parade was a good one and in it were many unique features as well as some pointed local hits, which were fully appreciated by those who reside within the limits of the ward.

The make up of the parade was as follows:

SQUAD OF POLICE,
Lieut. Holloran, Officers Dawson, Hunt, Golden and McKay.

Most elegant feature, Liberty Bell, first $10. Squantum yacht club, second, $4.

Bicycle Parade and Races.

By the time the morning parade had been dismissed it began to rain a little, and it was with difficulty that enough could be found to enter the bicycle parade. As there were but a few the route was cut short.

Next was the boys' bicycle race, the distance being a little over a mile. There were four starters in this race, Frank Curtin, F. Brown, S. Kingston and E. Wahlan. Brown took the lead at the start and held it, finishing first with F. Curtin a good second. Time, 7.04.

The three-mile handicap race was next in order, the entries being W. F. Furnald, scratch, and H. Stephenson, M. Canty, Frank Coe, George Briggs, H. Von Emden and C. O'Connell, 1.30.

Stephenson took the lead at the start and set the pace for Coe who spurted on the last lap and crossed the tape first with Stephenson second. Time, 10 minutes.

The one mile foot race which was to have been held at two o'clock, was now called and as there were but two entries Harry Parker and Amelio Paul, but one prize was given, which was won by Parker. Time, 4.40.

The Aquatic Events.

An adjournment was then made to the shore where the members of the Squantum yacht club were found with their yachts ready and willing to take out any and all who desired to sail. Many availed themselves of the opportunity.

There was also a dory and tender race. In the former there were but two entries, 1492 and Gertrude. The Gertrude finished first but as neither had been measured the winner is in doubt.

In the tender race the entries were J. Stewart, C. B. Gardner, A. L. Barstow, Mr. Todd and Mr. Freeman. This race was won by J. Stewart.

The only accident known to have taken place was the bath Mr. J. E. Drew took by walking off of the float, which the crowd caused to sink.

The Ball Games.

The young man who kept the score of the base ball games disappeared with the scores after the game and only the result therefor is given. The boys' game was won by Cunniff's nine by a score of 16 to 12, and the game between the married and single men was won by the single men, by a score of 8 to 7.

At Music hall there were pleasing en-

12 MILES IN THIRTY MINUTES.

Eighty-Two Entries in the Quincy Bicycle Race on Fourth.

At 10 o'clock, the hour advertised for the 12-mile bicycle race to start, there was a crowd of several hundred in City Square to witness it. The little rain that had fallen in the morning had laid what dust there was and the roads were in an excellent condition.

It was nearly 11 o'clock before the 4.30 men were sent off and the others followed at intervals, the highest number being eighty-two.

The only scratch man was W. G. French, and he started up Hancock street at a swinging pace that looked as though he meant to secure that diamond time prize.

The first time round he had closed up the gap somewhat, and the other numbers were so mixed up one could not tell much about them, several had also dropped out.

The second time round it was seen that French was not gaining as much as he should to win. The winner was in doubt until he crossed the line at the finish.

The race finished at about 11.30 and for a while the crowd waited about anxious to know the result, but it was 1.30 before the judges had completed their work, and a larger part of the crowd had gone.

As a result of the race the time prize was captured by W. D. Barker, who did the 12 miles in 30 minutes, 32 seconds, while E. Urch gets second time prize with a record of 32 minutes, 44 seconds.

The other prize winners and their corrected time is as follows, with the exception of second prize which is not known as yet, as there was some mistake in checking his number:

The Night Before.

The night before the Fourth is the one night during the year when the hoodlum element takes for granted they can celebrate and they usually do it in spite of the efforts made by the large number of special police who were on duty that night. This year was no exception to the rule although no serious damage was done.

During the early evening the boys confined themselves to exploding firecrackers, etc., and later in the night numerous bon-fires were lighted which illuminated the sky and put sleep out of the question for those who lived in the vicinity.

An attempt was made to ring the bell on the Congregational church but the boys were only successful in striking two blows when one of them on the ladder fell into the arms of a special officer.

Some one discharged a revolver in City Square, the bullet of which went through the show window of Rogers Bros.' store.

The only fire alarm was at 12.45. Box 35 was pulled for the burning of the tennis house on the Bigelow street grounds, which was doubtless incendiary. A hydrant stream soon extinguished it, and it is now an eyesore to the neighborhood. The firemen at the Central station also responded to one still alarm, for a hen house on Quincy avenue.

In marked contrast with last year's ruffianism, the night before the Fourth at Wollaston was without any act of vandalism. There was the usual firing of crackers and tooting of horns, but aside from these harmless amusements the Fourth passed off quietly. A large number of residences were decorated.

Wollaston was well policed, Officer Beahn being assisted by Officers Sparrow, Seelye, Barry, Stevens and Clifford. The Park and Downs were covered by Officer Maxwell.

At Hose 2's house the full company was on duty from the evening of July 3 to the evening of July 4.

New Officers.

Nahanton tribe, I. O. R. M., elected these officers at a meeting last Friday evening:

Prophet.—James E. Sheridan.
Sachem,—A. L. Litchfield.
Senior Sagamore,—E. E. Jackson.
Junior Sagamore,—F. J. Mansfield.

There will be an installation of officers July 12; Wollaston tribe will be present, and D. D. G. S. Samuel Penney will officiate.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

At Braintree and Weymouth.

The Glorious Fourth of 1895 was welcomed in Braintree by the energetic ringing of the church bells, the banging of burnt powder and the whoop of the small boy.

By six o'clock the racket had sufficiently diminished to allow the good citizens to set out for Weymouth to see what that famous parade was like.

The Weymouth square was crowded with people when the procession started at half past six.

Cars ran from Braintree every fifteen minutes and brought crowds of people.

About seven o'clock the following procession passed through Washington street toward Columbia square, led by Nelson Orcutt, Chief Marshal:

Hingham Brass Band.
Ancient Order of Hibernians.
Patriotic float, with girls representing every state in the Union. Uncle Sam presiding.
Kennedy's Biscuit Company.
Maverick Oil Company.
Weymouth G. A. R. Post and twelve pound gun, representing Sherman's march to the sea.
Boys in horrible attire.
Aids.
Trilby on horseback.
New women on bicycles.
Braintree $10 Fire Department.
Winter electrics—old tip cart.
Decorated wagon.
Negro colony.
Uncle Sam and Columbia with Friends.
A. S. Jordan, display.
D. H. Pray team.
S. B. Totman, six teams.
Phillips & Bacon team.
E. W. Hunt, groceries.
A. M. Bachelder, druggist.
J. B. Rhines & Co.
F. L. King, team.
A. W. Blanchard, real estate display.
M. C. Nash & Co. team.
C. O. Miller, carpenter.
G. H. Bicknell, leather display.
The Belle of the Ball, woman with sleeves.
C. W. Guy of Quincy, three teams.
E. H. Pray & Son.
Be Game Pleasure club in carriages.
J. F. Sheppard & Sons.
Horribles in old wagons.

The best features of the parade were the float representing the States, Uncle Sam and Columbia receiving friends, and the various new women and Trilbys.

The float containing Uncle Sam and Columbia was perhaps the prettiest part of the parade.

A woman with enormous striped sleeves also attracted considerable attention.

The trade displays were all good. A. M. Batchelder, druggist, had a particularly well gotten up vehicle.

C. W. Guy of Quincy had some of his handsome calico horses in the line and his three teams got a lot of praise.

After the line had disbanded there was a grand band concert in the square and the races began.

In the running races for boys Peter Sullivan captured first prize in the 200 yard, Henry Cushing took first in the 150.

Willie Curran took the sack race.

In the 100 yard dash there were unmerous entries and Edward Carroll won first place with Robert Croker second and Charles Whalen third.

As soon as the races were done the crowd adjourned to the Institute grounds where the jumping was held.

The hop step and jump was the first event and Charles Whalen easily captured that with a record of 42 feet and 11 inches.

Joseph Ryan was second with 42 feet 2 1 2 inches and Curran third at 40 feet 5 inches.

The broad jump was won easily by Will Curran 19 feet 2 inches.

On the three broad jumps J. Ryan did 35 feet 6 inches and took first prize. McLane was second with 35 feet 2 inches and Charles Whalen third 33 feet 5 inches.

The standing and running high jumps were omitted.

The ball game between the Institutes and North Weymouth team in the morning was won easily by the Institutes, score 10 to 3.

The afternoon game was stopped by the rain but the Institutes succeeded in piling up 10 runs the first inning.

The fireworks to be displayed in the evening were prohibited by the rain and will probably be fired tonight.

MILTON.

Band concerts are given at East Milton every Friday evening.

The selectmen have forbidden any more bicycle racing through the streets of the town.

The gates which were destroyed by the accident last week have been repaired.

Funeral of Mrs. Donovan.

The funeral of Mrs. Ita Welsh Donovan was held Wednesday morning from St. John's church and was largely attended. Solemn high mass was celebrated with Rev. F. A. Frigiglietti as celebrant, Rev. Fr. Patietius, O. S. F., as deacon, and Rev. John Garrity as sub-deacon. Inside of the rail were also Rev. D. C. Reardon, Rev. Fr. Doonan, S. J., and Rev. F. A. Cunningham.

Gregonian's mass was sung by the choir, which was assisted by Mr. Lon F. Brine and Miss Westeweldt.

After the services at the church the remains were taken to West Quincy for interment, the bearers being James Elcock, John H. Dinegan, Conrad Mischler and John Lyons.

—The eleven graduates of Milton academy had a banquet Saturday at Young's hotel.

tertainments both during the forenoon and afternoon for the children, consisting of ventriloquism, ledgerdemain and instrumental music.

It was intended to wind up the day with a band concert and fireworks in the evening, but the storm interferred with this part of the programme. The concert however was given in Music hall, and the fireworks will be exploded tonight.

At the gathering in Music hall the prizes were distributed and the announcement of the award of the judges on the parade made, which are given elsewhere.

Squibs and Pin Wheels.

S. O. Moxon, the chief marshal of the day, was omnipresence, displaying good executive ability.

Ex-Councilman W. B. Glover kept open house, entertaining many friends durlng the day.

The decorations at Atlantic were general on all streets, and the ward was in gala attire. The pretty residence of Mr. J. Arthur Gray on Botolph street was one of the best decorated. At Councilman Parkers there was a Christian Endeavor arch. Flags, large and small were displayed everywhere.

The mustang of Chairman Clare of the street parade made it lively for the police, who disliked to be attacked in the rear.

The executive committee in full dress in the parade added to the dignity of the procession.

The take off on the "Hurry-up wagon" was a good one, the diminutive prisoner looking lost between the two big red-headed policemen.

Councilman Baker as Ferdinand and his fair companion as Isabella, was well gotten up, especially Isabella, who deceived many. She came in for many a sly glance from the young men.

The Combination engine company made a fine appearance, the men looking like fire fighters, every one of them.

The take off on the Atlantic band may furnish a solution to the question asked, Where is our local band?

Dr. Mary Walker in pants on horseback was well impersonated by a young miss who did not disclose her name.

Coxey's army was a feature in itself, and the good people of Atlantic must have been surprised at the visitation it received from this famous organization.

The float Liberty Bell, containing as it did beautiful statuary, was indeed very handsome and certainly deserved the award of first prize, which it was given.

The two young men who consented to serve as victims for the rival Barbers must have had courage to seat themselves in the chairs and undergo the operation they did.

Messrs. Timberlake & Small should be credited with making a fine trade display, their clean looking teams and handsome drivers being characteristic of the class of goods they carry. Dan looked like a major but Archie was the only man who captured a young lady to ride with him.

J. P. Landers the plumber also made a good exhibit.

"What's the matter with ——?" was the popular cheer of the boat club, and many along the route were saluted.

The barber shop feature met with a mishap, one of the rear wheels of the hay rack collapsing.

Ringling's circus was quite a menagerie and it is in doubt who were the most admired, the clowns or the stuffed cat.

"You can't play in my yard" was a good impersonation of that popular and pretty song.

The hay farmers and hugh walking firecracker were well impersonated.

The Matinee Whist club was very amusing to the male portion of the spectators as it portrayed their idea of a woman's whist club.

There were many other features as well as those mentioned above that were worthy of note, and in fact there were few poor ones.

Assault With Knife.

Manuel Wilenius and Alex. Wardelar, two Fiuns had some trouble last Christmas which they never fully settled. Wednesday night about midnight they met and Wilenius being desirous of squaring accounts drew a knife from his pocket and made a lunge at Wardelar who raised his left arm to ward off the blow and as a result received a serious cut on the forearm. He was taken to Dr. Gilbert when it was found necessary to take eight stitches.

Officer Bradley meanwhile had located Wilenius in a friend's house but was denied admittance. Judge Pratt was aroused and a warrant received, and armed with this, Officer Bradley soon had his prisoner under lock and key where he spent the Fourth. He appeared in court this morning charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon.

Hingham Polo Club.

The Hingham Polo club will open their polo grounds on July 13 and will play polo every Wednesday and Saturday on and after that date until the end of the season. The week of August 26 to the 31 will be reserved for the association match games and they will probably be an open horse show some week early in September. The public is admitted free to these games with the exception of the match week and horse show week, when a small admission will be charged.

NUMEROUS CASUALTIES

Resulting From the Careless Handling of Various Kinds of Fireworks.

BRIDGEPORT, July 5.—The record of serious accidents resulting from the Fourth of July celebration is the largest on record here. Fred S. Banks had his right hand blown off by a premature explosion of a giant cracker. The interior of Church's drug store, where the explosion took place, was wrecked.

PROVIDENCE, July 5.—Charles Taylor had his hand shattered and was obliged to have it amputated. Several accidents occurred. Michael Flanigan and William Snyder lost a hand each by the explosion of cannon crackers. Patrick Mulhern had his feet badly lacerated from the same cause.

CHELSEA, July 5.—William J. Henry, aged 26, last night attempted to fire off a cannon cracker. It exploded in his right hand. It tore the thumb from the hand and burned the two middle fingers so that the ligaments were exposed. It also lacerated both legs.

SALEM, July 5.—Daniel B. Lord, a veteran engineer and fireman, known all over New England in connection with the hand fire engine White Angel, and familiarly called Uncle Daniel, was seriously injured by being blown up by a cannon cracker.

BROCKTON, July 5.—Arthur Tucker, 16 years old, and H. McCarthy, 30 years old, while handling cannon crackers yesterday, had their hands shattered. A number of windows in the city were smashed by the careless use of combustibles.

FITCHBURG, July 5. — Ralph Cragin, aged 14, was instantly killed yesterday by the bursting of a cannon cracker which he had made of wagon wheel hubs. His skull was fractured.

Two Philadelphia Tragedies.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—Common Councilman Kinsler was fatally shot in the head during a flag raising at a clubhouse yesterday. James Lennon has been arrested charged with doing the shooting, which he claims was accidental. At about the same time, in another section of the city, Joseph Godfrey, a pugilist, and Boyd Wylie, an ex-policeman, both of whom had been drinking, were celebrating the Fourth with a revolver, which exploded while in the hands of Godfrey, the bullet entering Wylie's abdomen and producing a mortal wound.

Gold Contract Fulfilled.

LONDON, July 4.—The Times says that the Rothschild-Morgan syndicate has completed its gold contract with the American government, but there is still an understanding between the parties that all possible assistance shall be rendered by the syndicate to maintain the treasury's gold reserve. This understanding will probably involve the occasional sales of bills on London by the syndicate, but the latter is in no way committed to attempt to prevent gold shipments from New York.

In Memory of "Sunset" Cox.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The gray-coated letter carriers of the city of New York celebrated the Fourth of July by formally presenting to the city of New York the statue in bronze of their late friend, Samuel Sullivan Cox, which was erected by the New York Letter Carriers' association on the triangle in front of Clinton hall some years ago. Postmaster Dayton made the speech of presentation.

Old-Time Editor Dead.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 5.—William J. Moses, owner and editor of The Bulletin, and one of the most widely known citizens of this city, died suddenly yesterday of apoplexy. He was 73 years old. He was postmaster under Cleveland in 1884, and held a high place in the councils of the Democratic party, both state and national.

Strife In Formosa.

HONG KONG, July 5.—The foreign residents of Taiwan, island of Formosa, have fled to Takao, abandoning their property. It is rumored that the Japanese troops have landed 40 miles north of Taiwan, intending to surround the enemy and prevent them from retreating to the mountains.

Fate of a Dastard.

QUINCY, Ills., July 5.—Henry Doomis tried to entice Mary Smith, aged 16, to the bluffs, for the purpose of assaulting her. When she struggled he drew a knife and stabbed her in the throat and side. The girl's cries brought an officer, and he shot Doomis dead. The girl will die.

Two Fatally Hurt.

DECATUR, Ills., July 5. — A Wabash train met with an accident at Niantic, by which two trainmen were fatally injured and a number of passengers had narrow escapes from death. A light engine following crashed into the rear sleeper, jamming it into the chair car.

New Chief of Weather Bureau.

WASHINGTON, July 5. — Official announcement was made at the White House of the appointment of Willis L. Moore of Illinois to be chief of the weather bureau. Mr. Moore's commission arrived yesterday from Gray Gables.

Broke His Neck.

PORTSMOUTH, July 5. — Thornton A. Norton, aged 8 years, was run over and instantly killed at Greenland last night. He was riding in a carriage and fell under the wheels, breaking his neck.

Bad Weather on the Cape.

BUZZARD'S BAY, July 5.—Owing to the severe storm which raged here all day, President Cleveland spent a quiet Fourth with his family and postponed his display of fireworks until tonight.

Double Murder and Suicide.

MEADVILLE, Mo., July 5.—S. A. Fields, until recently editor of The Post at Polo, cut the throats of his wife and baby with a razor yesterday and then ended his own life in the same manner.

Figuring on Funds.

MADRID, July 5.—The minister for the colonies has arranged with the Bank of Spain to advance the funds with which to prosecute the campaign against the insurgents in Cuba.

A Split In Vesuvius.

NAPLES, July 5.—A fissure has appeared in the northwest side of Mt. Vesuvius, and a dense stream of lava is floating down the mountain side.

Borthwick Will Recover.

NORFOLK, July 5. — Chief Engineer Borthwick, who cut his throat in an attempt at suicide, is now out of danger.

Cabinet Wanted.

BELGRADE, July 5.—King Alexander has charged M. Sumics to form a coalition cabinet.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 7 Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The Ten Commandments in our lives.—Mark xii, 28-33.

In answer to the scribe's question Jesus declares love to God to be the first and greatest commandment, and the second like unto it—love to man. Thus He takes two commandments, separated widely in the Scriptures, and so unites them as to make them the essence and sum not only of the Ten Commandments, but of all commandments. If we love God with all our heart, soul, mind and strength and our neighbor as ourselves, all commands referring in detail to our duty to God and man are made unnecessary. It is upon this principle of love that we should put the Ten Commandments into effect in our daily lives.

1. Love to God. "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength. This is the first commandment." This commandment is found in Deut. vi, 5. It is the sum of the first four of the Ten Commandments which relate to our duty to God. To love God in the way here described means to love Him supremely, with the entire being. God is deserving of such love. He Himself is love, and He loved us before we could love Him. We should love Him above every person and everything for these and other reasons, and if we love God in this way our love will express itself in our lives. We will be grateful to Him. We will admire Him and desire to be like Him. We will desire to have His name known and honored the world over. But specially will it be manifested in keeping the commandments referring to Him. With such love in our hearts we cannot have any other God before us. We can worship nothing but Him. We would not think of taking His name in vain, and the keeping of His day would be our joy and delight.

2. Love to our neighbor. The second commandment is like unto the first in that love is the basis of it. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." It is second to the first, and to keep it we must obey the first, for we cannot truly love man unless we first love God. This commandment is found in Lev. xix, 18, and is the sum of the last six of the Ten Commandments. We are to love our fellow men as we love ourselves. A practical exemplification of this love is expressed in the Golden Rule. If we love our neighbors as ourselves, we must keep the commandments on the second table of stone. Love should thus be the ruling principle of our lives. It will make us true to God, true to our fellow men and true to ourselves. Have we such love to God and to man?

Magnitude of the Boston Convention.

Boston, 1895, is to be a convention of enlargements. It will go as far as any convention in the past has gone, and then it will take one step further.

In magnitude it will be by all means the greatest religious gathering ever held in the history of the world. No less than 50,000 delegates are expected. This is 10,000 more than were at Cleveland last year.

At that convention there were two principal auditoriums—a hall and a tent. Boston will have three auditoriums—Mechanics' hall and two immense tents. These tents will be made especially for the occasion and will become the property of the United Society for use at later conventions.

Invite the Church Members.

Endeavorers make a great mistake when they do not invite the older church members to attend their special annual meetings. One minor result of such attendance is that the collections taken at such meetings will be largely increased, as the older people, seeing what good work the society is doing, will be moved to make liberal contributions to their undertakings.—Golden Rule.

Puts the Principle to the Test.

Perhaps the most difficult and trying duties to which the Endeavorer stands pledged are those of reading the Scriptures and prayer. It is not difficult to discharge this obligation once or twice, but to do it regularly and faithfully, to be conscientious in suffering no day to pass without it, puts the Christian principle of the youthful believer to the test. —Selected.

Christian Endeavor Briefs.

A junior society of Christian Endeavor, numbering 15 members, has been organized among the younger boys of the Kansas City Young Men's Christian association.

At a recent prayer meeting of the Presbyterian society at Napa City, Cal., when the subject, "Winning Others," was discussed, 15 of the Christian Endeavorers pledged themselves to try to bring at least one soul to Christ during the coming six months.

A remarkable floating society exists in the Bethel, at Vineyard Haven, most of its members belonging to the ships that pass through Vineyard sound. There is seldom a large attendance except when the ships are storm staid so that the men may be ashore.

There seems to be no end to the unlikely places where Christian Endeavor societies spring up. The latest is in connection with the insane asylum at Asawatomie, Kan. Its membership comprises five of the officials of the institution and a number of the attendants.

Endeavorers must take care not to assume what does not belong to them and must learn to be true and loyal to the church in every relation that they sustain to it.

TODAYS COURT.

Jeremiah Donovan was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Martin Dwyer of Holbrook was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Thomas Shea was fined $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

Manuel Wilenius was arraigned for assault with a dangerous weapon on Alex. Mateson and was held in $300 for the grand jury.

John McKay was arraigned for assault on Thomas Collins. Case continued until next Thursday.

Holiday Bowling.

Steward Williams of the Duck's Nest alleys, Wollaston, put up four silver prizes to be contested for with the regulation and candle pins.

On the regulation pins Mr. H. W. Battison won the silver loving cup, knocking over 510 pins; the second prize, a silver tobacco box, was won by Mr. George F. Briggs, score 507. With the candle pins the first prize, a silver goblet, was won by Mr. George F. Briggs, score 283; the second prize, a silver match safe, was won by Hon. H. O. Fairbanks, score 266.

City of Boston Regatta.

The annual Fourth of July yacht race was as usual a grand success, over eighty boats participating. Owing to numerous protests the winners of the prizes were not announced. By the summary the first boats were the Mabel F. Swift, Grace G., Harbinger, Caribou, Rex, Topsy, Zoe, Phantom, Gleaner, Nike, Imp, Alpine and Unknown. The Beatrice, Swirl and Sunbeam are probably winners of prizes.

Fourth of July Shoot.

At the Wollaston Trap club's shoot on Thursday afternoon, 17 gunners took part. The heavy storm, which set in soon after the shooting began, necessarily made the scores small. Geo. Elcock was high man with 20 birds. The score out of 25:

H. T. Whitman, 15; H. W. Marsden 9; A. G. Olney, 5; A. A. Lincoln, 13; C. W. Tucker, 13; D. B. Lincoln, 19; F. N. Bates, 12; G. H. Brainard, 15; George Thompson, 14; C. V. Starrett, 9; N. N. Atwood, 6; George Elcock, 20; C. H. Merrick, 16; E. H. Murray, 5; Polucci, 11; M. F. Burns, 8; G. H. Merrick, 19.

The next shoot will be held on this Saturday afternoon at the usual time.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WHITE FLYER'S FEAT.

Johnson Makes a Mile, Standing Start, In Less Than Two Minutes.

The Pace Was Too Hot For Sanger and Tyler.

Contest at Waltham For Preference For Women Cyclers' Costume.

WALTHAM, July 5.—Three and two fifths seconds were chopped off the world's mile competitive cycle record at the Waltham bicycle track yesterday afternoon. The doughty little fellow who traveled the fastest mile ever witnessed in competition was John S. Johnson, who, since his advent in the professional ranks, has gained the name of the "White Flyer." Johnson fairly rode Tyler off his feet, and even the great Sanger did not finish the heat, but that is accounted for by his getting out of the rut and being unable to close the space left by the withdrawal of Tyler. The race was for $1000.

In the professional race Johnson broke the world's competition record for a mile, standing start, making the mile in 1m. 58 2-5s. This race was run in two heats. Johnson won the first in 2m. 5 2-5s., finishing three lengths ahead of Sanger, who, in turn, crossed the tape about six lengths ahead of Tyler.

In the second and final heat Tyler fluked at the half and threw out Sanger. Neither finished, but Johnson kept on, crossing the tape in 1m. 58 2-5s.

There was also a contest between several women for a prize to be given to the one having the most approved the latter event being the first of its kind ever held.

Bicycle Costume For Females,

The contest for the bicycle costumes was intensely interesting, in that the verdict of the judges has been expected to, in a way, decide the question of preference between bloomers and knickerbockers and skirts, long or short. In the awarding of the prizes, bloomers, the close knickerbockers and short skirts won. The long skirts found no approbation.

The winners in order were Kitty Knox, M. G. Costello of Boston and L. Hamilton. Miss Knox wore bloomers, sack coat and ordinary bicycle cap and garters; Miss Costello, a short skirt, leggins, short coat and a straw tourist hat, and Miss Kimball knickerbockers, Eaton jacket, no garters, Tam o'Shanter hat and a sash. Some of the women in the grand stand showed their disapproval of the bloomer and knickerbocker costumes by roundly hissing their wearers.

The National Game.

BROOKLYN, July 5.—Brooklyn won the game by solving Kid Nichols' delivery in the fifth inning for six runs on as many clean hits, errors by Long and Duffy and a wild pitch. Previous to that the battle was an exciting one, both pitchers putting up a magnificent article of ball, while the fielding was superb. Nash's men could do nothing with Kennedy's shoots, however, and he had them at his mercy.

Anniversary of an Old Town.

GLOUCESTER, July 5.—Manchester-by-the-Sea will begin the celebration of its 250th anniversary on Sunday, July 14, by the preaching of an historical address by Rev. Dr. Chamberlain. Governor Greenhalge and staff will be present.

Suicide by Asphyxiation.

BOSTON, July 5.—Mrs. Sarah J. Wesley, a physician, 66 Waltham street, committed suicide in her room about midnight, having inhaled a large quantity of illuminating gas. It is not known what led her to commit suicide.

Adds Beauty to the Town.

SAUGUS, Mass., July 5.—An occasion of unusual display of patriotism was the dedication of the Soldiers' monument, a handsome granite obelisk, built at an expense of $10,000 and presented to the town by George Hone.

Decapitated by a Train.

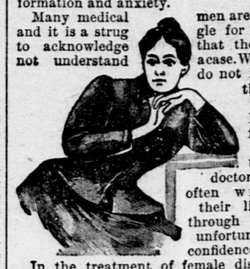

BOSTON, July 5.—Margaret Stewart, 65 years old, was struck by a train at Dorchester yesterday and was instantly killed. Her head was severed from her body, and her body was otherwise dismembered.

MANY WOMEN SUFFER FROM LACK OF INFORMATION.

Doctors Are Too Reserved. A Woman Should Be Dealt With Openly.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Women are often allowed by their physicians to suffer much from lack of information and anxiety.

Many medical men are vain, and it is a struggle for them to acknowledge that they do not understand acase. Women do not investigate; they have faith in their doctor, and often wreck their lives through this unfortunate confidence.

In the treatment of female diseases men work from theory; and it is not to be expected that they can treat as intelligently those complaints from which they have never suffered, as a woman can who has made the organism and diseases of her sex a life study.

Women afflicted with female diseases are wise in communicating promptly with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Their distressed condition is due to womb trouble, and their symptoms tell the story.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one remedy that removes the cause, and restores health, courage, and happiness. The druggists sell more of it than all other female medicines. Why?

The following short letter speaks for itself. Mrs. Parker is a very young wife; only twenty-one years old. She was suffering untold misery when she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. See the result.

Can evidence be stronger than this?

"I deem it my duty to announce the fact to all my fellow-sufferers of all female complaints that your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me of all the pains and suffering I was enduring when I wrote you last May. I followed your advice to the letter, and the result is wonderful."—MRS. CHAS. PARKER, Little Falls, Minn. Any druggist has it.

SWAMPED WITH VISITORS.

Lewiston's Centennial Celebration Successfully Carried Out in Every Detail.

LEWISTON, July 5.—The celebration of Lewiston's centennial has eclipsed any public event in the history of the city. Special trains over every railroad that enters the city were crowded, visitors coming from the most distant parts of the state. At an early hour the city was fairly swamped, and even into the suburbs the dense throngs extended.

The program started with some athletic sports in the morning. The Dirigo Hose company of Brewer won the hose race. The teams ran 900 feet, laid 100 feet of hose and got water. Dirigo's time was 50 1-5s.

The parade was what thoroughly pleased the greatest number of people. It was headed with a provisional regiment, consisting of 12 companies, and was accompanied by the Second regiment ambulance corps and the Signal corps (independent) of Portland. The civic division included cantons from many places. The fire companies followed, and then came the national floats, representing the early days when Paul Hildreth and others fought Indians here; the old and new ways of making cloth, Father Time and Youth, Grand Army float and others of interest. The educational division consisted of vehicles of various kinds handsomely decorated and having aboard pupils of the Lewiston schools. There was a grand display of fireworks in the evening.

The park exercises were as follows: Prayer, Rev. George M. Howe; address of welcome, Mayor Noble; historical address, ex-Governor Garcelon; oration, Senator Frye; prophecy, Congressman Dingley.

Tammany Celebrated.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Tammany Hall celebrated the Fourth of July in the wigwam with enthusiasm. A distinguished array of speakers had been invited for the occasion from all parts of the country. Among them were James E. Campbell of Ohio and Thomas M. Waller of Connecticut, who delivered long talks. Grand Sachem Smyth delivered the address of welcome, after which James L. Gordon read the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Smyth received many letters of regret from prominent men who were unable to attend the celebration. They were from President Cleveland, Senator Hill, Secretary Herbert, Senator Lindsay and many others.

A Hundred Dumped Into a River.

BRISTOL, Ind., July 5.—At 6 o'clock last evening, while about 200 of the population of Bristol were gathered on a bridge spanning the St. Joseph river watching a tub race, 100 feet of the sidewalk of the bridge went down, carrying with it 100 persons. The fall was about 30 feet and the iron fell on many. In a short time the victims of the accident were all removed from the water, and all the physicians throughout the surrounding country were summoned to attend the injured. These were cared for as well as circumstances would permit. One man was probably fatally hurt.

Tasker Again Advertised.

LONDON, July 5. — The wife of Joseph Tasker, the young spendthrift who came prominently before the public some time ago in connection with the suit which he brought against a jewelry firm, alleging that he had been overcharged in his purchase of the Agra diamond at $75,000, as well as in the purchase of other valuable jewelry, is suing him for divorce on the grounds of infidelity.

Strikers Are Desperate.

RICHMOND, July 5.—The West Virginia strikers near Pocahontas have grown desperate, and reports from the scene of the trouble indicate that a riot may take place at any time. Governor O'Ferrell has ordered one company in Petersburg and two companies in Roanoke to hold themselves in readiness to move to the scene at a moment's notice.

Bullets Flew.

CHICAGO, July 5.—A desperate fight occurred yesterday in a picnic train of the Santa Fe road between the trainmen and a gang of toughs. Conductor Taber was shot in the leg and received a painful flesh wound and Brakeman Reed was badly beaten and bruised. Two members of the gang were seriously, if not fatally, hurt.

Smaller Ball to Be Used.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—As the result of exhaustive experiments in actual firing, the ordnance bureau of the navy has determined to reduce the weight and length of the ball for the new naval rifle from 135 grains to 112 grains.

A Wicked Negro.

TROY, N. Y., July 5.—James Jackson, an 18-year-old negro, was arrested at Johnsonville for criminally assaulting a 6-year-old girl named Maud Stearns at her home in Saratoga Springs. He confessed the crime.

Imbued With Patriotism.

HAVANA, July 5.—General de Campos yesterday reviewed the Bourbon battalion, and it then left for the province of Santa Clara. The troops going to the front are animated by a strong feeling of patriotism.

Not the Fastest.

BERLIN, July 5.—A military balloon exploded yesterday in the shed of one of the barracks. Three soldiers were injured and one of them has since died.

Yellow Jack In Florida.

TAMPA, Fla., July 5.—Yellow fever has reached Tampa and many of the inhabitants are leaving the city.

—It is only a question of time when people will be able to see as well as hear by wire. In fact a man at Ridgewood, Ill., claims to have invented an electric camera, which can be attached to a telephone or other electric circuit, its object being to reproduce images of the persons speaking to each other. By this invention it is made possible for people to see each other, even though a continent may intervene. All actions, and even changes in facial expression, are said to be faithfully shown.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

CHURCH UNDER CANVAS

Carpenters Are Fixing Up Interior of Christian Endeavor Tents.

Delegates Will All Be Amply Provided For.

A Brief Outline of What Will Be Done at the Hub Next Week.

BOSTON, July 6.—Work on the two mammoth tents for the use of the Christian Endeavor convention on Boston Common began at daylight yesterday, and at noon today the work was completed and the carpenters started to work.

The interior of these tents will be laid out something similar to a church, each containing a large stage or platform and 1500 pews, capable of seating 9000 persons. Here will be conducted all the big meetings of the convention, and situated between the tents will be a polling booth, loaned by the city, at which the Endeavorers will register.

Friday evening Mechanics' hall will be given up to psalm singing. A chorus of 500 voices will be stationed in the auditorium, while 5000 of the regular Christian Endeavor choir will be in attendance and will assist.

A rehearsal of this psalm singing choir will take place at 5 o'clock the same day, and 10,000 copies of the psalm selections will be distributed to the delegates to be kept as souvenirs.

Thursday afternoon the grand rally of the Reform church will take place in the First Presbyterian church.

On the Road.

Reports received at the Christian Endeavor headquarters state that the delegation from North Carolina will come to the convention 40 or 50 strong, and the report from Birmingham, Ala., says 15 delegates have left for this city

A. C. Wright, the representative of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor of Mexico, is expected to arrive here in a day or two. The movement is still young in Mexico, and was founded at San Luis Potosi.

The announcement is given out officially that the Wednesday night meetings will be made public, everyone desirous of attending being welcomed.

At least 10 junior societies of New York city will be represented and participate in the junior rally.

The chorus rehearsal will be repeated in Mechanics' hall tonight, 3000 voices participating.

Presbyterians Look After Floaters.

The Presbyterian church has been made the convention home of that important part of the Christian Endeavor movement, the floating society. Three times during the convention week will the floating workers be heard from the platform of this church. On Wednesday evening the superintendent, Miss Jones, will make her annual report, and on Friday there will be a conference of floating societies in the vestry of the church, and on Saturday night there will be a rally of floating Christian Endeavorers.

In addition to the floating society conferences on Friday, the Sunday school committees of the land will be represented in the conferences to be held in the body of the church. Besides all these, there will be special Christian Endeavor services on Sunday.

Room For All.

In the Roxbury Presbyterian church the delegates from Georgia will make their home during the convention week. Here also will be special Christian Endeavor services on Sunday.

The East Boston Presbyterian church will likewise have part in the convention. The church will be open each morning for a sunrise prayer meeting of the Maine delegates.

The Scotch Presbyterian church will entertain the denominational rally of the Moravian Endeavorers, and will in addition hold special Christian Endeavor services on Sunday.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian church has been assigned the Canadian Presbyterians to care for during the denominational rally on Thursday. This church also has arranged for a special Christian Endeavor service on Sunday.

Ontario delegates will make their home at the Fourth Presbyterian church, South Boston. In this church will be held a series of early morning prayer meetings.

General Secretary Baer will be heard at the rally on Thursday afternoon in Mechanics' hall. The program is in charge of Rev. George B. Stewart, D.D., who has secured a long array of notable speakers to participate. The foreign mission board will speak, and then will come a clerical open parliament. The program speaks thus concerning this parliament: "No one but pastors are to speak. No pastor is to speak more than 20 seconds. No speaker is to make more than one point, and those who do not come within these conditions are to listen to those who do."

Lynching Talked Of.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., July 6.—It is said here that an organized mob is being formed at Morgantown to lynch Sam Spencer and Alfred Belcher for the murder of Major Hamilton. Not a juryman has been impanelled, notwithstanding over 250 have been examined. The excitement is at a high pitch, and it needs a leader only to lynch Belcher and Spencer.

Total Loss of $100,000.

SILVER CITY, N. M., July 6.—The Santa Rita copper and iron mill, 18 miles from Silver City, was burned yesterday. The machinery in the building was the finest in New Mexico and the mill one of the best equipped in the southwest. It is supposed the fire was caused by a toy balloon. The property was worth $100,000, and is a total loss. There is no insurance.

MONEY IS NOT NEEDED.

Contributions to Ireland's Fighting Factions Simply Thrown Away.

Cause of Home Rule Is Steadily Receding.

Erin's Exiled Sons in Massachusetts Sound a Note of Warning.

BOSTON, July 6.—Irish Nationalists of this city held a conference here with 200 men, representing all sections of the state, for the purpose of taking action on the present crisis in Ireland. The conference motto adopted was "No money to help the factions fight each other." The following address to Irishmen of Massachusetts was drawn up:

"To the Irishmen of Massachusetts: In the present deplorable condition of the home rule movement in Ireland it behooves the Irishmen of the United States to make no false step. Their action may either add to the present strife and turmoil or restore union and vitality in the old land.

"The Irish members of parliament are split into two contending parties. In the war of faction and personal strife of leaders the interests of Ireland are forgotten and the old flag is trailed in the dust.

"Rival appeals have been sent to the Irish people in America for funds to aid the factions to fight each other at the polls. Every dollar contributed for such purpose might as well be flung into a sewer or sent to the English secret service fund. No man of common sense can imagine that he is serving Ireland by helping to keep Irishmen divided.

Home Rule Ignored.

"The home rule cause has gone back steadily for the past three years through blind trust in English promises. The Liberal government has not fulfilled a single one of the pledges it made at the opening of the session. It has shelved home rule, closed the doors on the political prisoners, left the evicted tenants in the lurch and allowed the coercion act to remain on the statute book, ready to the hand of the Tories when they came into power after the election. Worse than all, it insulted Ireland by proposing to commemorate the wholesale plunder and extermination of the Irish people and the cold-blooded butcheries of Drogheda and Wexford by erecting a statue out of the public funds to Oliver Cromwell. Then it turned over the reigns of government to the Tories without a word of warning to its Irish supporters, to whose votes it owed its very existence for the past three years.

"Why should you give your money to continue a policy that has brought only humiliation and disaster? Ireland needs no money to settle the question of policy and of union. If she emerges from the electoral struggle united in favor of the old policy of Parnell, then she will need all the financial aid her exiled sons can give her, and she will get it without stint. Money sent before election can do nothing but harm. If factious strife is to be prolonged, let the Irishmen of Massachusetts have no responsibility for it."

Colored Church Troubles.

BOSTON, July 6.—The regular Friday evening meeting service at the colored church on Smith street brought forth a bolt last evening that has been developing ever since Rev. Mr. Walker was engaged as substitute preacher, vice the regular pastor, who is sick. Rev. Mr. Watkins was engaged in his stead recently, and last evening both ministers tried to hold services. The affair ended with Mr. Watkins withdrawing with his followers, and Mr. Walker and about 30 others held the regular services.

Mystery at Amesbury.

AMESBURY, July 6.—Police found the unconscious form of a young girl floating on the Powow river late last night. She was identified as Miss Alice Kelleher, 16 years old, of Amesbury. It was evident that she had been dragged and thrown from a boat into the river and left to perish. The police are endeavoring to locate two men whom they suspect of attempting to murder the girl. Miss Kelleher was resuscitated with great difficulty and is still in a critical condition.

Whipple Was Rejected.

BOSTON, July 6.—At a meeting of the governor's executive council Henry H. Sprague and Wilmot R. Evans were confirmed as members of the metropolitan water supply commission and Mayor J. J. Whipple of Brockton was rejected as the third member by a vote of 5 to 3, and John R. Freeman of Winchester, a civil engineer, was confirmed. The trio will have the control of the disposition of about $28,000,000 to be spent upon the new water supply.

Served Him Right.

LYNN, July 6.—William Parks, 30 years old, was set upon last night by a large crowd and severely beaten for attempting to assault Nellie Murphy, 5 years old. The little girl's cries attracted her mother, and the latter seized Parks and held him, screaming for help. A large crowd soon collected and subjected Parks to rough treatment. He was arrested. Parks was cut and bruised in many places.

End of New England Association.

BOSTON, July 6.—The New England Baseball association, originally composed of clubs in the cities of Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Salem, Nashua and Fitchburg, expired last night, the fragments of it having just succeeded in weathering the money making day of the season—the Fourth. Baseball has been an oft-tried experiment in the cities named, with repeated failures.

Savage Convict Shot.

CONCORD, Mass., July 6.—Considerable excitement was caused at the reformatory yesterday by the attempt of a convict named Lynch to brain Officer Joyce with a chair rocker. When Lynch attacked him, Joyce fired his pistol in self-defense, wounding Lynch. This is the second time an attack has been made upon the officer by Lynch.

—A Leominster cemetery has been used as a bicycle training ground, but its occupants, says the Milford Journal, are not finding any fault.

Beautiful showers.

Plenty of rain lately.

Do not forget to vote Tuesday.

There was quite a display of fireworks at Wollaston on Friday evening.

Auctioneer Johnson will sell the household goods of John Gray, next Friday.

The Squantum Yacht club moonlight sail takes place tonight if not too stormy.

The farmers can not complain that they have not had rain enough for the past week.

The fire alarm heard in Quincy, Friday night, was in Weymouth and was a false alarm.

More drunks were arraigned in court this morning than the morning after the Fourth.

The employes of Graham's shoe manufactory are holding their annual outing today at Nantasket.

Large parties were carried on all trips of the City of Quincy Friday, which shows that the little steamer is growing in favor.

The closing argument in the High school debate which should have appeared Friday, is again crowded out but will be published Monday.

The W. H. Paine estate on Belleview Heights was sold at public auction by Auctioneer Johnson, Friday, to Horatio N. Holbrook. Bidding was lively.

The steamer City of Quincy will make extra trips on Sunday to Nantasket, including an evening trip. On and after July 10 the boat will make a trip every evening.

Horace O. Souther, D. D. G. M., of this city will install the officers of Rising Star lodge, I. O. O. F., of Randolph Monday evening, July 15. Thomas B. Jones is the Noble Grand elect.

Rev. E. N. Hardy has entered upon his pastorate of the Centre Congregational church, conducting the prayer meeting for the first time last evening. He will preach tomorrow morning and evening.

There has been almost a general shut down in the granite business this week for the holiday Thursday and half holiday Saturday rather breaks up the week and then some of the men have not got over the Fourth yet.

Notwithstanding the stormy weather on the Fourth, there was a large attendance at Lovell's grove. Music was furnished by the John Boyle O'Reilly Cadet band. The fireworks were postponed to Saturday evening. Music is announced for Saturday and Sunday afternoon and evening.

MR. JAMES M. BECKFORD, who has resided in Quincy for over sixty years leaves today for New Market, New Hampshire, his native place. For an old gentleman over four score, he is quite smart. For many years, when the editor of the PATRIOT was a lad he carried on the tailoring business in the PATRIOT block. When Green & Osborne started the PATRIOT in 1837, he procured the first sheet printed, all damp and wet as it came from the old hand press. In those days the publishers of newspapers always wet the paper to make it take the ink better; but that labor has long since been discontinued.

Mysterious Explosion.

Nearly everybody in the city was startled at 2 o'clock this morning by a terrific explosion that sounded as though some building had been shattered, and houses in the centre rocked like cradles. What the explosion was, no one seems to know. Nearly everybody heard it, and this morning the question asked but not answered is, "what was the explosion?"

The Fourth was a good day here as there were lots of peop'e down. They came early in the morning intending to make a day of it. The rain, however, came and drove them into the casino and other places where they could enjoy dancing, waiting for it to clear off. It did not clear and many was the one who got a ducking before they reached home. It was a happy-go-lucky crowd, however, out for a good time, and they had it.

Bigelow Street Fireworks.

The residents of Bigelow streets are among the most patriotic of the city. All day on the Fourth their houses were profusely decorated with flags and lanterns. It was the intention to have had a $50 display of fireworks and a band concert in the evening, but rain caused a postponement to last evening, when the display was given without the music, the band having a previous engagement. All the residences were brilliantly illuminated with lanterns, that of Mr. George H. Wilson being particularly grand. Messrs. Randall, Sears, Bean and Prescott, the leading spirits in the celebration touched off the fireworks, and the thousand or more people assembled enjoyed the flights of bombs and rockets, the Roman candles of variegated colors, the large pin wheels, and the colored lights.

Baby Seriously Burned.

The little two-year old son of Arthur Stoddard of Union street was seriously if not fatally burned Friday evening. At about 6 o'clock Mrs. Stoddard left the infant for a few moments and during her absence the child in some way set himself on fire, probably by matches. His cries startled the neighborhood. When the flames were extinguished it was found that the child had been severely burned about the limbs and face. Dr. Davis was summoned and ministered to the relief of the little one.

Atlantic Fireworks.

The people of Atlantic wound up their Fourth of July celebration Friday night with a grand display of fireworks. Not only was nearly everybody in Atlantic present, but hundreds from other places, and all were amply repaid for their visit, for the exhibition was a good one. There were several set pieces as well as the usual number of rockets, bombs, colored firer, etc.

The wind-up was a fitting one to the celebration of the glorious Fourth.

☞ The landlord, the butcher, and the grocer each present his bill the first of the month, but the mosquito presents his at any and all times. He calls when his victim is ill or asleep, it makes no difference—and persists in pushing his claim until satisfied; but citizens of Quincy can avoid this tormentor by going to Guy's Coliseum where the bill for a set of screen doors and windows will be so small as to be gladly accepted. plo

White Church Services.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I beg leave to correct a few blunders on the part of your East Milton reporter in last week's issue. No attempt was made to hold Episcopal services at the White church, neither did the minister and choir get mixed, nor was there any farce. On the contrary at the regular service of the Orthodox church, Sunday night, a vesper service was given, introducing a special programme of chants and responses for which I have spent months in training a young chorus choir.

Many who were present have said how well the whole service passed off and as we shall continue to hold these services on Sunday evenings during July, and in all probability permanently, I hope you will come some evening and judge for yourself. It is simply a step towards the enrichment of the service which is so marked a feature in many of the larger Evangelical churches of today. Because many of the responses were taken from the book of common Prayer does not in any way take it out of the category of a regular Congregational service, especially as we have in our own book, The Psalms of David, The Te deum, Laudamus, The Venite, The Deus Misereatur, Gloria in Excelsis, The Lord's Prayer (which we regularly chant), The Apostle's Creed and The Ten Commandments.

Prayer is regularly offered for the state and all in authority, and for all sorts and conditions of men. We believe in Congregational worship, minister and people. No Priestcraft, or Popery, but a service as beautiful, solemn and musical, as possible, so long as it is in accordance with the Bible, and the teaching of Christ. There is but one church which is Christ's church. Away with sectarianism, God is a Spirit and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth. The Congregational church presided over by the Rev. Newman Hall, (one of the largest and most influential in London), has a regular service far richer in the responsive feature than was the East Milton Congregational church "Vesper Service."

Yours truly,
GEORGE ELLIS, Organist.

TODAY'S COURT.

Two Strange Specimens from Randolph who Abuse Clergymen.

Officer Knights of Randolph had two queer individuals in Court this morning in the person of Joseph Goddard and James J. McDonnough. According to Officer Knights the two young men came into Randolph and were calling upon the several clergymen of the town, representing themselves as reporters of the Brockton Times.

Once admitted to the house, they would begin to abuse the clergyman, saying they were infidels and frauds, and producing a bottle would take a drink.

This morning, in telling their story to Judge Humphrey, McDonnough said he was writing a book on Hell and his friend was also writing a book, and the bottle they drank from contained moxie, and the reason they used the method they did was to draw out the clergymen. They were not very successful with the clergymen, but Judge Humphrey drew from each $5.

Peter Newall of Braintree was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Ellen Doran of Braintree was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Patrick Misset was arraigned for drunkenness, and case continued one week.

John Cronin of Weymouth was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Edward Connell of Weymouth was fined $50 for illegal keeping of liquor and $5 for assault on Martin Hennessey.

Zerinino Ricardo was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

THE SEWERAGE ACT.

A Careful Perusal of the Bill Suggested.

ESTIMATE OF ASSESSMENTS.

The Complete System will Comprise About 75 Miles.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In conversation with many of the citizens of the city, the writer has found that, while most people are agreed that our city needs sewers, they know very little of the legislative act that is to be submitted to the voters for their acceptance next Tuesday and of the sewerage system that is proposed, and most if not all the criticism that has been heard is directed rather against what is thought to be proposed than against the act itself.

The whole matter resolves itself into two questions. Do we want a sewerage system? If so, how is it to be provided?

All are agreed that at some time Quincy, as well as all other cities and large towns, must be provided with sewers. But Quincy has so recently become burdened with the water debt, that some think we may well wait a few years more before making a beginning. Others feel that there is need for immediate action. The writer has in mind places in different parts of the city where he has seen the flow from sink drains running directly into the public streets. In more places the drainage is into low vacant lots near dwellings. Such places in thickly settled localities are manifestly a menace to health. Again, where cesspools have been in use for any considerable time, the soil, especially if of clay formation, has become saturated with sewage and the cesspools require frequent emptying, an operation offensive at best, and entailing considerable expense. The general thought on all sides is that there is a pressing need of a sewerage system. The physicians declare that the public health demands it. The owner of a house and lot is tired of the expense of emptying his cesspool; the owner of a lot who contemplates building, wants the sewer so that he will not need to build a cesspool. The owners of large tracts of land believe their land will be enhanced in value by an efficient sewerage system, and the real estate agents on every hand tell us that their greatest difficulty in selling real estate to out of town parties, is the lack of sewers. Hence it appears that the best interests of the city of Quincy demand that the work be begun at once.

What then is it proposed to do? Under the general law the City Council already has the authority to adopt a system of sewerage for the whole or part of the city, to construct the whole or part of such a system, to decide what part of the cost is to be borne by the city, provided it be not less than one-fourth nor more than two-thirds, and to assess the remaining cost upon the owners of estates which can be drained into such sewers, or to fix an annual rental which those using the sewers shall pay therefor.

The special act of 1895 is published in full in the PATRIOT this week in the warrant for election and it will be seen that, aside from the authority to borrow money, the city will have very much the same authority that it already has under the general statutes. One of the most important provisions of the act is its submission to the voters for their acceptance. By securing the passage of the act through the Legislature and in now submitting it to the voters, the City Council is, in effect, saying, We believe that the City of Quincy needs a system of sewerage, and that it should be begun immediately. We are ready to begin the work, but before starting on an undertaking of such magnitude, we desire the direct assurance of the taxpayers, that they are ready for us to begin.

That the people may know what is proposed, plans of a sewerage system covering, practically, the whole city, have been prepared, and estimates have been made, and the plans and estimates have been verified by an expert or consulting engineer. The report of the consulting engineer was given in full in the PATRIOT of June 29, and also in the DAILY LEDGER of July 1 and 2.

It may not be amiss to review briefly the system as there outlined. It is proposed to collect the sewage at a central point and thence to pump it to deep tide water. Two points of discharge are proposed in the plan, one into the Boston sewer at Squantum, the other into deep water off Nut Island. The one into the Boston sewer is preferred in the report, but it will remain for the Council, after completing arrangements with the City of Boston, to determine which is the more expedient. With the pumping station located where shown on the plan and with the mains arranged as proposed, it will be possible to drain nearly the whole city, and discharge the sewage where it will be least likely to give offence. The only portions of the city not provided for are Houghs Neck, Germantown and a portion of Squantum, and your reporter is informed that by modern methods these sections can be included and the sewage brought to the same outfall at comparatively small extra expense.

The writer finds that the people whom he has interviewed care but little for the details of the system, so long as the work of drainage is accomplished, but all are interested in the cost. According to the estimate as printed in the PATRIOT of June 29, the total cost of the main sewers, with pumping station, outfall, etc., will be about $319,000, and the average cost of the necessary lateral sewers, exclusive of ledge, is estimated at $6,000 per mile. According to the engineers' estimate there is at present urgent need for about 23 or 24 miles of lateral or tributary sewers. It will be noted that this is not estimated as the amount in the completed system and the writer, having made inquiries, believes that the system when completed, or say in ten years from the date of beginning, will comprise about 75 miles. If we assume the total length of the sewers in the system to be 75 miles, the cost of the laterals will be $450,000, which, added to the cost of minor intercepting sewers, pumping station, outfall, etc., $319,000, with an allowance for ledge in some sections of the city, $31,000, will make in round numbers, $800,000, as the total cost of the system.

The largest sum which the city can pay under the provisions of the act, on this basis, then is $400,000. Now as it is plain that it will take a number of years, say ten, to put in the complete system, and as from the start the city will be paying its part of the cost of the system either by the establishment of sinking fund or otherwise, it is apparent that the net indebtedness of the city on account of the sewers, can never exceed $400,000, authorized by law. What then will be the cost to the individual?

An estimate of the probable assessment on the average house lot on the basis above named, i. e. a system of 75 miles, at a cost of $800,000, finds that for a lot of 50 feet frontage, the charge will be from $33 to $38. This divided into ten equal parts as it may be under the provisions of the act means an annual assessment of from $3.30 to $3.80 for a period of 10 years when the total payment will have been made. If the city should pay one-third instead of one-half the cost of the system, the annual assessment will be from $4.40 to $5.00 for 10 years, the most it can possibly be under the estimates given and the provision of the act. The reader may decide for himself which is the more desirable, this method of payment or a perpetual annual rental of from $4 to $8 as has been proposed.

Some persons have been heard to say that they were in favor of a sewerage system for the city, but did not feel the need for their own street and that they did not wish to pay an assessment until they needed a sewer. It is probable that in Quincy, as in other places when the main sewers are completed, the laterals will be put in on petition of the owners, so that no sewer will be built in a street until the majority of the owners desire, or public necessity demands it. PROGRESS.

Good News.

We learn that arrangements are being made today between the Quincy and Boston street railroad company and Braintree and Holbrook Co., whereby the Quincy street cars will run over the Braintree road as far as Dr. Storrs' church, and the fare will be only five cents. This will be good news to the citizens of Quincy and Braintree, as five-cent fare is all that the public would countenance between these two places.

Transfer tickets will be sold by the Quincy road to South Braintree for eight cents. Also to Weymouth for the same price. Now a pleasure ride can be taken on the street cars for a small amount.

—Lemonade cannot be made well on the hap-hazard plan adopted by most people. This is the proper way to prepare it: Pare the yellow peel from three lemons. Slice and squeeze the lemons upon six tablespoons of sugar. Add a little water and then let it stand for fifteen minutes. Add a quart of water at the end of that time. Ice well, stir and pour out.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BRAINTREE.

Company K goes to Framingham July 21st.

The picnic of the First church Sunday school will probably be held next week.

Millard Drinkwater entered his two horses, Ethelena and Verdi in the 40 and 50 classes, respectively, at the Middleboro races yesterday.

Rev. D. W. Waldron of Boston, will preach at the South Congregational church on Sunday. Mr. Waldron was formerly pastor of this church.

Ex-selectman N. H. Hunt fell from his mowing machine, Tuesday forenoon, and broke his collar bone. Mr. Hunt is quite an old man but the break is doing well.

Sunday afternoon the funeral of little Jessie Tripp was held from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Woodsum. The little girl died Friday after a long illness of meningitis. The body was placed in the South cemetery.

Lyman Penniman of South Braintree had one of his eyes severely injured the night of the 3d. He was a special officer for the night and was near the Congregational church when some one threw a cannon cracker which exploded near his head.

About fifteen of the Braintree young people went on a "straw ride" Wednesday night. The party went up through Randolph and Holbrook and returned by way of South Weymouth. A most successful affair.

Braintree was represented in the Weymouth parade by a company of firemen on the old hose reel formerly at the north engine house. The machine was suitably decorated and bore the inscription, "Braintree $10 Fire Department."

ONE MILLION WORKERS

Have Received Advances In Wages Averaging Ten Per Cent.

A General Decrease In All Classes of Failures.

Heavy Shipments of Boots and Shoes and Growing Demand For Woolens.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Bradstreet's today says: Notwithstanding the week is broken by a holiday, favorable trade conditions heretofore reported continue to exercise a pronounced influence, prominently general advances in prices of staples and in wages of industrial employes.

The latest advices are that in all more than 1,000,000 industrial workers have received an advance averaging about 10 per cent.

R. G. Dun & Co.

In their weekly review of trade, say: The midsummer reports from all commercial centers indicate distinctly better crop prospects and a marked increase in retail distribution of products. In every part of the country the outlook for fall trade is considered bright.

The advance in iron continues. Comparison of prices for various iron products shows an advance in all kinds, averaging 22 per cent.

The shipments of boots and shoes continue the largest ever known for the season in a number of cases, but retail sales have been somewhat checked by the advance in prices, which has averaged 29.44 per cent since Jan. 1. But leather has advanced 51.1 per cent and hides 79.8 per cent during the same time.

Wool and Cotton.

Wool is stronger, both here and abroad, the London sales opening July 2 at higher prices, and the average for 104 qualities of domestic wool quoted by Coates Bros. has risen nearly ¼ cent since June 15. Sales have been enormous, though largely speculative, but exceeding those of May and June in any previous year, being 26,897,613 domestic and 27,487,100 foreign, against 24,232,400 domestic and 19,675,150 foreign in 1892. There is a growing reorder demand for heavy weight woolens, and many new kinds of light weights have been opened with notable irregularity in prices, some lower and other higher than last year. But the manufacture is better sustained thus far than any expected, and the feeling is very hopeful, especially as labor troubles have substantially ended. Prices of cotton goods also continue to advance, and the mills are generally well employed.

A Gratifying Sign.

There were 6657 commercial failures in the first half of 1895, against 7039 in the first half of 1894. They involved liabilities of $88,839,944, against $101,730,306. Manufacturing failures for the half year were 1254, against 1501 last year, and liabilities $40,301,949, against $41,376,102 in the first of 1894. Trading failures for the half year were 5335, against 5402 last year, and liabilities $45,669,830, against $52,345,978. Banking failures, not included in above statements, were 63, with liabilities of $16,653,276, against 63 last year, with liabilities of $13,184,461.

The details show a decrease in every class of failures in the second, compared with the first quarter of 1895, both in number and magnitude, and defaulting liabilities averaging $34 against $40 in every firm in business, and $3.04 against $4.03 for every $1000 solvent payment.

Pettit For Governor.

LOUISVILLE, July 6.—The woman's rights plank was overwhelmingly rejected by the Populists. A motion to indorse union made goods was adopted. The following ticket was then nominated: For governor, Thomas S. Pettit; lieutenant governor, John S. Blair; treasurer, M. R. Gardiner; auditor, C. H. Dean; register of land office, J. E. Quicksall; attorney general, S. M. Pyton; secretary of state, Don Singletary.

Sixteen Known to Be Dead.

PANAMA, July 6.—A boiler in the electric light plant at Carthagena exploded. A number of prisoners who were confined in the jail near the works were killed. The shock threw down two buildings in the neighborhood. So far it is known that 16 persons were killed. Many others are supposed to be entombed in the ruins of the plant, which was totally wrecked.

An Indiana Riot.

ENGLISH, Ind., July 6.—A serious riot occurred at a picnic in Sabara, in which more than 1000 men and women participated. Three persons are dead and 50 wounded. Sabara is 15 miles from a railroad, in the wildest part of Perry county. It was a German-Catholic picnic, and was interrupted by anti-Catholics.

Still In a Tangle.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Judge Showalter yesterday entered a formal order affirming the decree of sale of the 18 plants of the Whisky trust. The sale is not assured, however, as the Greenhut and Morris interests gave notice of an appeal, and the case will be heard by the United States court of appeals.

A Lumber Trust.

SAVANNAH, July 6.—Articles of incorporation for the Southern Pine company of Georgia were applied for here yesterday. The capital stock already paid in in full is $1,250,000, with privilege of increasing to $5,000,000. The new company will endeaver, it is said, to control the yellow pine market.

Left to American Prelates.

ROME, July 6.—A committee of the archbishops of Baltimore, Boston, New York and Philadelphia have been requested by the pope to propose three candidates for the vacant post of rector of the North American college at Rome.

The New Havana.

HAVANA, July 6.—Campos has reorganized the city government, appointing on the council 11 Conservatives, 8 Reformists and 4 Autonomists. The mayoralty, it is said, was tendered a prominent Cuban, but he refused.

Back to the Stage.

Argentine Buying Warships.

BUENOS AYRES, July 6.—The Argentine government has purchased the Italian cruiser Garibaldi, and is negotiating for another.

Murderer Set at Liberty.

BOSTON, July 6.—Governor Greenhalge yesterday pardoned Albert S. Joy, now serving a sentence at the state prison for murdering Charles H. Gilman on April 11, 1887, at Rockport.

Case Continued a Week.

BOSTON, July 6.—Harold G. Brown and John Ross, who were arrested as principals in the shooting in the riot at the close of the "Little Red Schoolhouse" parade, were arraigned in court yesterday, charged with the murder of John W. Wills. The case was continued to July 12. Six witnesses were bound over to appear at the hearing. Eye witnesses of Thursday's fighting, residents all along Saratoga street, all agree in the statement that the police, if they had been present at the inception of the trouble, which began at the corner of Meridian and Saratoga streets, could have quickly stopped it, and the serious row farther down the street would have been avoided. Conservative citizens all agree in condemning the trouble-makers.

Millionaire Drowned.

HARWICH, Mass., July 6.—John W Carter, the ink manufacturer, was drowned while bathing at the beach here yesterday afternoon. Mr. Carter was 51 years old, and was a member of the firm of Carter, Dinsmore & Co., ink and mucilage manufacturers, Boston. He was a millionaire.

Passengers Got a Shakeup.

BOSTON, July 6.—An electric car on the Lynn and Boston railway jumped the track on Warren bridge last evening and crashed into a post. Considerable woodwork was splintered. Mrs. Carrie West of Chelsea was badly injured, and the other passengers received a severe shaking up.

Too Conscientious to Live.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 6.—The body of Albert Roux was found in Woodland cemetery. He had shot himself, and died on his mother's grave. He left a letter in which he said he was afraid that he would be a burden to his relatives, as he was growing deaf and eccentric.

His Family Saw Him Killed.

WELLESLEY FARMS, Mass., July 6.—Robert McLashin was instantly killed by a train at this station last night. He accidentally fell under the trucks of the rear car, and his head was severed from his body. His wife, sister and little girl were witnesses of the accident.

Old Superintendent Retained.

LEWISTON, July 6.—The school board last evening re-elected G. A. Stuart as superintendent of schools for the ensuing year. John R. Dunton, at present superintendent of schools at Rockland, was elected principal of the high school, to succeed George B. Files.

Under $4000 Bail.

BOSTON, July 6.—The manslaughter case of Mary A. Kerrigan, continued from Wednesday, was resumed in court yesterday. The defense offered no evidence The defendant was ordered to furnish bail of $4000 for her appearance before the grand jury.

Half a Dozen Got Walking Papers.

NEW BEDFORD, July 6.—Six police officers, appointed by Mayor Brownell during his term of office, and whose probationary period terminated yesterday, were dismissed by Mayor Parker and the board of aldermen last night, and 11 men were appointed.

Costly Violation of Law.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., July 6.—Judge Start yesterday sentenced B. G. Howe, a prominent citizen, convicted for violation of the prohibitory law, to serve 60 days in jail and to pay a fine of $600. The fine was paid and Howe was taken to Rutland jail.

Won't Give In.

AMESBURY, July 6. — Hamilton mill strikers yesterday voted not to return to work Monday. A notice was posted at the Hamilton mills yesterday formally announcing that they would be open Monday to receive all who wish to return.

EVANGELINE'S LAND
THE IDEAL PLACE FOR
YOUR VACATION.
Longfellow didn't begin to tell the beauties of Evangeline's land—he couldn't. In its climate, scenery, and romantic history—in its boating, bathing, fishing and cycling—in its healthfulness and restfulness it is—well, it's perfect. And then the hotel rates—just half our New England prices. And the sail from Boston,
17 HOURS AT SEA.
What a delightful taste of salt that gives you! You leave Boston at 12 o'clock, noon, on the staunch steel Steamer "Boston" or "Yarmouth," the finest and fastest steamers that leave Boston—and you reach Yarmouth early next morning in time for all Railroad connections. These boats sail Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. The round trip is but $9.00—but to be sure of staterooms book ahead.

The Paris Did Well.

NEW YORK, July 6.—There was a sharp brush in mid-ocean Tuesday between the Cunarder Lucania and the American liner Paris, which tested both boats in a light sea. The Lucania has double the Paris' horse power, but in heavy weather the weaker liner has always managed to forge ahead. It was early in the day when the two boats came in sight. When the Paris discovered the Lucania astern, pillars of smoke piled from her stacks. For a time the broad patch of deep sea between the two did not lessen. When the two finally came abreast at 2 p. m. it was nip and tuck for several knots. But the British boat drew ahead. Late last night the lights of the Paris were lost astern. Even the officers of the Lucania expressed surprise at the speed made by the Paris.

Cum Grano Salis.

HALIFAX, July 6.—Captain McNeil, of the packet Susan, reports meeting with a peculiar sea monster about 12 miles off Bird island, C. B. The object was perfectly white in color, and Captain McNeil estimates was 80 feet in length. The head was about three feet long, and was shaped somewhat like an alligator's. It was swimming on the top of the water. Captain McNeil watched it for 20 minutes or more until it disappeared from view. Several fishermen of the district state that this peculiar monster has been seen on several occasions lately.

Breach of Promise.

PHILADELPHIA July 6.—Dr. G. J. Palen was arrested on a sheriff's capias on a writ charging him with breach of promise of marriage. The plaintiff is Miss May Thompson. Dr. Palen is a nephew of the late Jay Gould. He is well known in society circles here and in New York. On June 11 he was married to Mary E. Adamson. The wedding was an unusual swell affair.

After Postoffice Thieves With a Sharp Stick.

WASHINGTON, July 6. — Postmaster General Wilson has written a caustic letter to the United States district attorney for southern New York on the subject of the escape of Killoran, Allen and Russell, the three alleged postoffice robbers, from the Ludlow street jail. The postmaster general has offered a reward of $1000 each for the capture of the escaped thieves.

Hazy View of Pike's Peak.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The Tribune prints the following as published in the London Cycle: A favorite ride of New York wheelmen is climbing Pike's Peak, a small mountain on the outskirts of the city. Riding is possible almost to the summit, the road being fairly steep and of a zigzag nature. In some parts the path is awful, being barely discernible.

Victim of Awful Superstition.

DUBLIN, July 6. — Michael Cleary of Ballyvadlea was convicted of manslaughter yesterday in causing the death of his wife, Bridget Cleary, at Ballyvadlea, on March 14 last, by burning and otherwise illtreating her, on the ground that she was bewitched.

Fatally Beaten by Robbers.

MERIDIAN, Miss., July 6.—Two negroes entered the storehouse of L. H. Farmer near here, beat Mr. Farmer and his wife into insensibility with clubs and robbed the place. Mr. and Mrs. Farmer are both dying.

San Francisco Hotel Destroyed.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—The Arrowhead hotel was burned to the ground. There were about 50 guests in the hotel, and very few of their effects were saved. The loss is about $50,000.

Dockmen Strike.

ASHLAND, Wis., July 6. — The upper dockmen on the Wisconsin Central ore docks struck yesterday. A strike of Chicago and Northwest upper dockmen is likely to follow.

Six Persons Drowned.

VIENNA, July 6.—Severe storms of wind and rain have caused considerable damage in various parts of the country, and at Marbach, on the Danube, six persons lost their lives.

Sleeping Car Aches

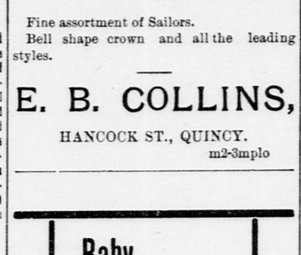

This is a hurry up world, and health often suffers to aid business. The only sleep the majority of traveling men get is in a "sleeper." Closed eyes and unconsciousness with the body moving at every curve in the road, at every jolt of the car, isn't restful sleep. The morning Backache means tired Kidneys.

OUT ON BAIL.

Perry Yarrington Out of the Clutches of the Law For the Present.

PROVIDENCE, July 6.—Perry Yarrington, the Boston gas machine promoter, was liberated from Cranston jail yesterday, where he has been for about two weeks past. Bail was furnished by a Grand Army veteran, an old comrade of Yarrington. Yarrington at once went to Massachusetts, and all the efforts of the New York police, with warrants and requisition papers, to get him to that state thus prove futile.

PERRY YARRINGTON.

Yarrington was held here as a fugitive from New York. The prisoner said all his latest troubles arose from his refusal to give up $300 blackmail to a man who claimed to have the power of settling indictments in New York. The charge against Yarrington there is for alleged fraud.

Body Found In a River.

OMAHA, July 6.—A trunk murder mystery which has disturbed Omaha since Tuesday was cleared up last night, when the frightfully mutilated body of the victim, John E. Seljan, was found in the river, and Mato Mikan and wife, Anton Beckovith, John Urban and John Drubnitz were formally charged with murder. The prisoners still refuse to talk, but the police expect confession. The throat of the body was cut from ear to ear, the head was mashed as with an ax, and other parts of the body were frightfully lacerated. It is believed the man was surrounded by the murderers, and, resisting, was slowly hacked to pieces.

Received Cordial Reception.

LONDON, July 6.—Although the state ball at Buckingham palace last night attracted the leaders of society, a representative social audience attended the concert of the Cornell Glee club at St. James hall. The club was much disappointed at the non-appearance of the members of the American embassy, who had promised their patronage. The audience accorded a most enthusiastic reception to the American collegians, and double and triple encores were demanded all evening.

Severe Battles In Cuba.

HAVANA, July 6.—Two important battles in Palma Saltas, near Manzanillo, July 1, were very severe. Captain Boeza, at the head of a force composed of only 80 volunteers, fought against 400 mounted insurgents, led by Amador Guerra. Seventeen men were killed and 19 wounded of Captain Boeza's force. The insurgents lost their leader, Guerra, and Lieutenants Barrero, Lamayo and Terrero. Beside these, 60 of the insurgents were killed.

The Work of a Madman.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Frederick Hellman, a well-to-do mason and contractor, murdered his wife and four children Thursday night and then killed himself. It was at first supposed that Hellman and his wife and children met death by accident, but it developed at the coroner's inquest yesterday afternoon that the wholesale murder was calmly planned, and that the man intended to kill himself and end the existence of the members of his family.

Reached the Crater.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 6.—Thomas I. Homer of Boston made the most daring ascent of Popocatepetl on record. The season is not propitious, as the snow is soft and the labor of ascent immensely increased. Homer was caught in a tremendous storm of wind and rain, and his guide abandoned him, but, securing the services of another guide, he pressed on till he reached the crater. Descent was effected without incident.

Plans Knocked Awry.

NEW YORK, July 6.—It was Jim Corbett's intention to start working on July 4 instead of celebrating the day as other Americans. But the rain sadly interfered with his plans. When he awoke Corbett was again confronted with an obstacle in the way of rain. But he determined to begin training in spite of it. From this time till Sept. 1 he will work perhaps an hour a day.

Paul Butler's Ill-Luck.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The second of the three races for the New York Canoe club international challenge cup was sailed at Gravesend Bay. Paul Butler of Lowell capsized to windward in the Wasp while leading on the last lap of the second round and withdrew. Charles Archibald of Montreal finished the race first, 1h. 22m. 43s. after the starting gun.

The Rate War.

CHICAGO, July 6.—The Boston terminal lines yesterday took a hand in the fight over the arrangements for the Christian Endeavor convention, and decided that the time limits for the Christian Endeavor and Christian Union tickets will be strictly enforced, regardless of any printed or promised conditions made by the connecting lines to the contrary.

Crops Generally Good.

ODESSA, July 6.—The harvest prospect in the south of Russia is highly encouraging for all cereals except rice, the yield of which, it is expected, will be 40 per cent below the average.

A Mile in 2:09.

PEORIA, Ills., July 6.—Strath Berry, owned by Dr. Scott of Centreville, Ia., paced a mile here yesterday in 2.09, breaking the world's record for half-mile tracks.

Elevated to Peerage.

LONDON July 6.—Henry Matthews, who was home secretary in Lord Salisbury's cabinet in 1886 to 1892, has been raised to a peerage.

Twenty-Four Hours on the Wheel.

LOUISVILLE, July 6.—B. W. Twyman finished his 24 hours' ride at Fountain Ferry park at 6:40 o'clock last night. Twyman succeeded in reeling off 406 miles 84 yards, breaking his former record of 381 miles 1648 yards for that time.

The Bible In the Schools.

DENVER, July 6.—The 95th meeting of the National Educational association began with two sessions of the national council. The question of the Bible in the public school was taken up, and the general opinion was against its use.

—If everything has worked as the statisticians think it has, this old world is peopled by 1,000,000 more human beings than it was in July 1894. The death rate is 67 per minute the world over and the birth rate 70. Light as this percentage of gain appears it is sufficient to give a net increase in the population each year of almost 1,200,000 souls.

A HUNDRED COMPANIES

Will Hold Noonday Meetings In Boston Stores and Shops.

The City Has Begun to Don Holiday Attire.

No Pains Spared to Give Christian Endeavorers a Rousing Welcome.

BOSTON, July 8.—Rev. Charles Roads of Philadelphia and Rev. Charles A. Oliver of York, Pa., who, with Rev. James L. Hill of Salem, are to have charge of the noonday meetings during the Christian Endeavor convention, are busily engaged in making final arrangements for the series of meetings to be held in Boston each day during the convention.

Under their direction 100 companies of young people from the different states have been already organized for this special branch of the work, and possibly 25 more may be organized.

This work had its origin in a series of daily meetings, six in number, held in connection with the Pennsylvania state convention two years ago. So marked was the interest that at last year's convention at York, Pa., 26 daily meetings were held in the shops and manufactories and business places.

In both cities employers entered heartily into the work, and the after results were most satisfactory. Christian Endeavor stood better among the working people after the meetings, and the young people felt encouraged to attempt still greater things.

The Pennsylvania State union is the largest in the country, having nearly 4000 socities, and its conventions in some respects resemble the international conventions, as from 8000 to 10,000 delegates gather for conference and consultation.

The committee has received letters commending the work and promising assistance from President Noell of the Tennessee State union, President Leffingwell of the Wisconsin State union, President Moulton of the Quebec union, President Strong of the Michigan union, Rev. M. H. Appleby of Indianapolis, Secretary Sleman of the Washington union, B. R. Hobbler of Bay City, Mich., and others. Letters of this nature have been received from every state union but one or two.

There will be two or three unique features about these meetings. One is the Sunday Breakfast association of Philadelphia, which, through its Christian Endeavor society, often gives two meals on Sundays to more than 1000 homeless men. It is said to be the largest missionary enterprise of the kind in the world.

There also will be at least two colored bands from Pennsylvania, noted for their singing.

These meetings, with few exceptions, will be typical Christian Endeavor meetings, and great care will be taken to avoid interference with the working hours in the places visited. The meetings will begin at 12:30 o'clock, and end promptly at 1 o'clock.

All Is Ready.

The general committee having in charge the extensive arrangements for the great convention has now practically completed its work and is ready to receive the delegates as they arrive. These arrangements have been most thorough, combining all the lessons taught by previous conventions, and neither time nor pains have been spared in perfecting them, and the committee announces that 65,000 persons can be provided for without confusion or discomfort.

A few delegates have arrived. The streets are beginning to assume a holiday appearance, with appropriately decorated stores displaying mottoes of welcome and Christian Endeavor emblems. Some of the decorations are on an elaborate scale, especially upon the church buildings which are to be headquarters during the convention.

The two tents, with a seating capacity of 8000 each, on Boston Common, will be ready for occupancy by tonight. These tents, together with the Mechanics' building, will be the principal meeting places during the week, although services will be held daily in many churches in the city.

One of the most difficult problems confronting the committee has been how to feed such a multitude as is expected to be present during the session in the short time between the forenoon, afternoon and evening meetings. This has been solved by turning Machinery hall in Mechanics' building into a mammoth restaurant, with a seating capacity of 2000, where everything from a dairy lunch to a table d'hote dinner can be obtained.

Special attention has been given to the vocal exercises of the convention, and for the past three months a chorus of 3000 voices has been rehearsing the songs to be sung. This chorus will be divided into three parts, so that the music in each of the large tents and Mechanics' hall will be led by 1000 trained singers.

Once at least during the week the three choirs will be amalgamated and a huge outdoor meeting will be held on the Common, and all the meetings will be adjourned to take part. A meeting will also be held in Faneuil hall.

During the convention days parties will visit the historic places in this vicinity, including Concord, Lexington, Cambridge, Salem, Plymouth and Bunker Hill.

IT'S A GIRL!

A Little Stranger Puts In an Appearance at Gray Gables.

BUZZARD'S BAY, July 8.—"Mrs. Cleveland and the little girl are doing well," said Dr. Bryant, standing in the front door at Gray Gables last evening, with an expression of great satisfaction on his face. "A fine baby; born at 4:30 precisely."

Mr. Cleveland did not go fishing Saturday, and grown people at Buzzard's Bay told their children that it would be well to look sharp, as the long-awaited visit of the stork to Gray Gables was close at hand.

All the neighbors of the Clevelands were in a state of suppressed excitement, and many of them strolled by Gray Gables in the hope of hearing something. A few saw Mr. Cleveland and asserted that he looked anxious, but hopeful. Everybody knew why he looked anxious and everybody also knew why he looked hopeful. There were two little girls already. From the first both Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland have wished for a son, but it transpires now that Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland have three daughters, each separated from the other almost exactly two years.

When Mr. Cleveland first heard the news he must have been somewhat disappointed, but he is fond of little girls, so he had no difficulty in putting on a look of genuine welcome on his face as he bent over his third daughter to seek those fleeting resemblances which only a parent's eyes are able to discover. And when he saw the newspaper men he was beaming, but would not talk.

Riot's Victim Buried.

BOSTON, July 8.—The funeral of John W. Wills, the victim of Thursday's riot in East Boston, was held yesterday afternoon from his home, Rev. Father McCarthy officiating. The presence of a squad of police was necessary to control the 10,000 people estimated to have been in the vicinity. The body was interred at Malden. Nearly 2000 men, members of the various organizations of which Mr. Wills was a member, were present. Mrs. Wills is left practically penniless by the death of her husband, with seven children to care for. A popular subscription has been started for her benefit.

Talked on Boston Riot.

BOSTON, July 8.—Many ministers in this city spoke yesterday upon the riot that occurred in East Boston on July 4. At the People's Temple the spacious building was found to be inadequate to hold the throng of people and an overflow meeting was held in the Presbyterian church opposite. Rev. E. S. Wheeler and ex-Priest Slattery were the speakers. Both denounced in most severe terms the spirit of religious intolerance which, they claimed, was at the bottom of the whole matter.

Advance In Wages In August.

PROVIDENCE, July 8.—The Manufacturers' club members have decided to increase the wages of the operatives about Aug. 1. This action is taken in view of the fact that about that time the mills will begin the manufacture of lightweight goods, which will command a higher price the coming season. The increase for weavers will, it is expected, average 7½ per cent. The other departments will receive an increase in proportion to the present rate of wages.

Not Very Brotherly.

MALDEN, July 8.—An Armenian meeting which was held here yesterday for the purpose of requesting the city government to provide a night school for Armenians broke up in a row, in which chairs and fragments of other furniture were freely used. When the Armenians got through clubbing each other, the police appeared and ordered the hall cleared, and the Armenians fled to avoid arrest.

Good News.

NORTH ADAMS, July 8.—Gallup & Houghton are to build an immense addition to the Beaver mills, and an addition of vast dimensions will be made at the Eclipse mills by the Arnold print works. The total capacity of the new mills will be 48,000 spindles and 1200 looms, and will furnish employment for over 600 people. Both mills will manufacture fine cottons.

Got In Target's Range.

LIMINGTON, Me., July 8.—William Weston of this place was accidentally shot yesterday by Joseph A. Gay, who was shooting at a target with a rifle. Weston was passing along a path in the woods, which was completely hidden by foliage, when the bullet struck him, taking effect near the heart. Weston was directly in range of the target.

Conference Ended.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., July 8.—The World's Student conference closed here last night. A number of the students will immediately proceed to the camp near here and occupy the time till the opening of the second convention.

Nantucket's Celebration.

NANTUCKET, July 8.—The celebration of the 100th birthday of Nantucket, that is to say, the 100th year since Nantucket was called Sherburne, has begun. The town is en fete, and there are hundreds of visitors here already.

Father McGurk Resigns.

WORCESTER, July 8.—Rev. Edward A. McGurk, S.J., president of Holy Cross college, has resigned on account of sickness. Rev. John F. Lehy, S.J., vice president of the college, succeeds him as president.

Suicide In His Yard.

NEWPORT, July 8.—Daniel Shea committed suicide yesterday by shooting. His body was found in the yard by his little child. Temporary insanity is thought to have caused the act.

McAdoo to Visit Boston.

NEWPORT, July 8.—The dispatch boat Dolphin, with William McAdoo on board, sailed for Boston yesterday. McAdoo will inspect the Massachusetts naval battalion while in Boston.

New England Briefs.

Mrs. Myron B. Goddard attempted suicide at Providence.

Albertus James, 21 years old, was drowned at Providence, while bathing.

Deerfield's (Mass.) alleged defaulting tax collector was held for the grand jury.

Attleboro officers searched the premises of several persons and seized a large quantity of liquor.

Ann Leonard of Lowell, aged 50, took rat poison, thinking it was medicine, and died shortly afterward.

Danbury (Conn.) hat manufacturers operating union shops declared a lockout against the finishers' association.

Pullman Raises Wages.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The Pullman Palace Car company has advanced the wages of its employes at its shops 10 per cent, the advance affecting about 4000 people. No formal announcement has been made by the company of its action, as the advance has been gradually taking effect in various departments at different times during the last two weeks.

DEFENDER'S FINE WORK

Practice Spins Indicate That She Is Surely a Flyer.

Easily Defeated Training Yacht Colonia.

Performances Which Brought Joy to the Hearts of the Syndicate.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 8.—The second trial trip of the Defender was made yesterday, and it proved satisfactory in every respect, and Captain Herreshoff and the members of the syndicate who were on board, after the return declared themselves delighted both with the speed and with the behavior of the yacht.

The training yacht Colonia was the Defender's running mate, and in the cruising done yesterday the syndicate boat fairly sailed around the Colonia. The Defender also encountered several other crack sailers, who, anxious for a brush, set sail after her, but they were quickly left behind.

The Colonia sailed out of the harbor at 11 o'clock, accompanied by the Defender in tow of her tender, the Hattie Palmer. Outside the Defender and Colonia both spread main and topsails, forestaysail and jib. Captain Herreshoff handled the wheel of the Defender, and on board were the members of the syndicate and Captain Haff.

The Defender took the wind and started away on the starboard tack back of Hog island. The Colonia caught the breeze half a minute later and they were off. The Defender continued on this tack as far as Gould island, six miles away, and, although the wind was light and unsteady, blowing from the southwest, the Colonia steadily dropped behind, and after a few minutes she was out of hailing distance. The yachts came about off Gould island.

Near this point a large fleet of yachts, which had put out from Newport in anticipation of the trial, was encountered. From Gould island the course was laid for Sand Point, along which the Defender not only showed the Colonia her heels, but in several minor brushes she Was Soon Far Ahead.

From Sand Point to the lightship, and thence to Prudence island, the Defender carried her canvas well, and could have stood a much stronger breeze without shortening sail. The only trouble of consequence was caused by the misfit of the topsail, which was too large and bagged considerably. Some little time was spent in cutting this down. The hundreds who watched the Defender expressed great surprise to see how her sails held the wind when the breeze died away. She was equally surprising in laying up to the wind.

Another pleasing point which the syndicate learned was the remarkable speed with which she can be brought out. By actural time this feat was performed in just 15 seconds, or 10 seconds quicker than the best time the Vigilant ever made in coming about. From yesterday's trials it was figured that the Defender outsailed the Colonia by about 10 minutes in 10 miles.

The boats started out a second time yesterday afternoon, and although the wind died away to almost a dead calm, the Defender held the breeze and easily passed everything in the harbor. After the second cruise both yachts returned to Bristol and dropped anchor.

Saturday's Spin.

The Defender was given her first trial under sail Saturday afternoon, and acquitted herself to the entire satisfaction of every one concerned. Briefly stated, she showed apparent ability to carry sail, a speed under lower sails which was decidedly surprising under the circumstances, and an easy movement through the water, which is proof of fine lines and an easily-driven body. She promises very well, and only words of commendation for her can be heard.

Started by Children.

CORNWALL, Ont., July 8.—A number of children were playing in a shed yesterday afternoon in the suburban village of Lorneville, building arches of the fir decorations used on St. Jean Baptiste day. A match applied to this inflammable matter started a fire which spread with great rapidity. Twenty buildings were burned, rendering 50 families homeless and entailing a loss of $50,000.

Troops May Be Needed.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 8.—Governor McCorkle states that he will try to induce the operators in the Elkhorn and Bluefields regions to make an honest effort to resume work at once, and if they say they cannot he will at once order troops out to protect all men who want to work.

Gets No Divorce.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Judge Troutt has denied the application of Marie Burroughs, the actress, for a divorce from her husband, Louis Massen. Miss Burroughs asked for a decree on statutory grounds, but the judge decided that she had not produced sufficient evidence.

Wires Are Down.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., July 8.—A terrific cyclone swept over this city and vicinity last night. All wires north and south are down and news of the damage, which must have been considerable, cannot be ascertained at this hour.

Ten Persons Drowned.

SPRINGFIELD, Miss., July 8.—Thirty houses were washed away and 10 people killed by a flood at Winona. Many washouts occurred along the railroad. Winona has 700 inhabitants.

Boat Capsized.

CITY ISLAND, N. Y., July 8.—A small boat, containing Arthur Korff and Miss Julia Andrea, capsized in the Sound. Mr. Korff was drowned. Miss Andrea was rescued.

Sunday Scrap For $500.

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—A big crowd went down the river yesterday on a barge to see the fight between Casey and Needham for a purse of $500. Needham won in four rounds.

HOOD'S PILLS cure Liver Ills, Biliousness, Indigestion, Headache. A pleasant laxative. All Druggists.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Special election on the sewer act tomorrow.

Mrs. Mason, Mrs. McIntosh and Mrs. Craig are on a visit to Scotland.

Nearly every store in the Centre is displaying Christian Endeavor flags.

The watering carts had a day off Sunday which was appreciated by the drivers.

Miss Helen F. Tibbetts, of Portland, Me., is visiting Mrs. M. Hatch of Irving place.

C. W. Guy and family are at the Sunapee House, Sunapee Harbor, N. H., for the summer.

Mrs. Thomas Bisson and daughter were recent passengers on the S S. St. Louis for Southhampton.

Over $200 was taken in for the sale of tickets in two hours at the Quincy depot this morning.

Mrs. James Park of South Quincy wishes to deny the rumor that she has received $20 by subscription.

There was increased traffic on the Braintree line of electrics Sunday, because of the reduction in fares.

Mrs. James Flowers and her daughter Mrs. William Wilson have gone to Concord, N. H., for a month's visit.

The laying of the water mains to Houghs Neck has been completed and the water will probably be turned on Tuesday.

The $2000 M'Glenen monument will be sacrophagus of polished Quincy granite, but the contract has not been awarded.

People found a sail to Nantasket Sunday in the City of Quincy delightful and the capacity of the boat was fully tested.

The DAILY LEDGER will bulletin the result of the sewer election promptly tomorrow night, probably before five o'clock.

Sunday was a very hot day and the riding on the street railway was enormous. Today is another hot day and the riding is heavy.

Charles Costa, engineer of the steamer, leaves for a weeks' vacation today, and Michael Barry will handle the valve in his absence.

The quarry railroad has the contract to furnish about 35,000 tons of rough stock for the abolishing of the grade crossings in Brockton.

The street railway is varnishing all of its box cars and also putting on new signs over the bonnet in blue letters reading East Milton.

The permanent men of the police department commence their vacations this week, Michael J. Canavan of West Quincy being the first to take a rest.

The alarm from box 172 at 12.36 Sunday morning, was a false alarm. It may be fun to ring a false alarm, but if the person gets caught it will be anything but fun.

No public arrangements are being made in Quincy to entertain delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention, but doubtless many Quincy people will entertain friends from a distance.

The explosion heard Friday morning is said to have been caused by boys exploding powder on what is known as Sheep rock, the powder having previously been stolen from some of the quarries.

Oscar Minot had a narrow escape from a serious injury Sunday at Norfolk Downs. He was riding on the running board of an electric car when his head came in contact with a pole. He was thrown off but fortunately escaped serious injury.

The Quincy Yacht Club is on top of the heap this year. At the Hull Yacht Club race on Saturday out of the twelve boats which sailed eight belonged to the Quincy Club. The third and fifth classes were composed wholly of Quincy boats.

Vice-Commodore Hamilton Flood of the Squantum Yacht Club and a party of friends,—Messrs. William C. Polson, Clarence D. Sargent and Thomas H. Bain, sailed on Saturday night for a cruise to Portland, Me., and intermediate ports, in the Cape cat Payomet.

SCOTCH PICNIC.

The Annual Gala Day—Sports, Dinner, Dancing, Etc.

The sons and daughters of Scotia held their annual day's outing at Adams beach on Saturday. It should have been held July 4th, had the weather been propitious. Although the early morning showed threatning signs it did not dampen the ardor of the average Scot. The committee in charge were up by time and hied themselves off to the place of rendezvous. Tents were pitched, camp fires were kindled and clams dug, everything being in readiness when the picnickers got there, and everybody with a bit of Scotch in them and worthy of the name made it a point to be there, as it is looked upon as the gala time of the year. Every known means of locomotion was called into question to bring the parties thither. The following is a list of the games and prize-winners. In some instances the sports were hotly contested :

Tossing caber,—Norman Ross, first; John Wedderburn, second; R. Smith, third.

Running long jump,—N. Ross, first; J. Wedderburn, second.

High jump,—N. Ross, first; William Marshall, second; R. Smith, third.

1 mile run,—John Wood, first; N. Ross, second; William Marshall, third.

Single men's race,—R. Smith, first; Alex Robertson, second; George Imlay, third.

One-half mile run,—D. T. Drummond, first; J. Wedderburn, second.

Standing high jump,—N. Ross, first; R. Smith, second; William Marshall, third.

Married women's race,—Mrs. John Wood, first; Mrs. D. T. Drummond, second; Mrs. William Pratt, third.

Young ladies' race,—Mary F. Donald, first; Mary M. Cramond, second; Nellie Drummond, third.

Boys' race,—Charles H. Chalmers, first; Charles M. Donald, second.

Girls' race,—Nellie M. Drummond, first; Frances Murray, second.

After the games, adjournment was made to tents and tables where a sumptuous repast was awaiting. The following ladies had charged of and waited on the various tables: Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Cramond, Mrs. A. Chalmers, Mrs. Chalmers, Mrs. Donald, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Ross and Miss Jessie Wood.

Dinner being over, cigars were lighted, and Mr. Wm. Pratt was called upon to deliver the oration. The speaker took for his text the heroes of the revolution. He paid a noble tribute to that little band of men who followed Washington through the varying stages of that memorial and stirring time; the hardship and vicissitudes that beset them; the unselfish and deep love of country that prompted them to undergo what they did. It was a glowing tribute to the "Father of Our Country," which sent a thrill through the hearts of his hearers. Mr. Pratt spoke a little less than an hour, and was listened to with much interest and pleasure.

Smith's orchestra supplied music for the dancing which was kept up until sunset.

The following gentlemen acted as committee to whom thanks of all were due: George Chalmers, field marshal; David T. Drummond, ways and means; George Mulligan, transportation; John Wood, supplies; Wm. Marshall, ring master; W. B. Donald, reception.

After the termination of the day's sports the committee and friends to the number of forty adjourned to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall's beautiful and spacicus parlors on Liberty street, where ice cream and refreshments were served and a few hours of singing and dancing were indulged in.

Suicide at Weymouth.

Mrs. William Burrell of South Weymouth made two attempts at suicide Sunday, the second of which was successful. Mrs. Burrell's husband died some months ago, since which time she has been despondent. She lived alone in the house but had a man who came mornings to do the work. When he arrived Mrs. Burrell usually came to the door to give him orders. Sunday morning she did not appear and after waiting some time he became alarmed and aroused the neighbors, who notified Selectman Willis, who forced open the door and found Mrs. Burrell lying on the bed insensible. A physician was summoned who found she had taken an overdose of poison, and after some work she was brought back to life.

Fearing that she would make another attempt a woman was left with her. About 7 o'clock in the evening Mrs. Burrell asked for a drink of water and while her attendant was absent she made the second attempt which was successful.

Her method of ending her life was horrible. She took a pair of scissors and cut a hole in each side of her neck, then passing one of the blades through the two holes she tore the same into one. Death ensued almost immediately.

Mrs. Burrell was about 55 years of age and has no near relatives living.

Yachting Fixtures.

The Monatiquot club will sail a championship race on Wednesday.

The next championship race of the Squantum club will be sailed on Saturday.

The liberal prizes offered by the Savin Hill club ensures a big open race on Saturday. The course of the first class will be 10 miles; that of the second, third and fourth, 7 miles; the fifth, 4 1-2 miles; and the knockabouts, 9 miles.

DIED.

McDONALD—In Quincy, July 6, Mr. Patrick McDonald, aged 37 years, 1 month and 26 days.

SCOTT—In Milton, July 6, Mrs. Eliza J., wife of Mr. Robert Scott, aged 63 years.

THE SPECIAL ELECTION.

Vote on the Sewer Act to be Taken Tomorrow.

For the second time the voters of Quincy will be called upon tomorrow to cast their vote for or against the acceptance of a sewer act. In 1891 an act passed that year was submitted to the voters Sept. 28, and was overwhelmingly defeated, the vote being 247 yes to 439 no, in a total vote of 696.

This was hardly a representative vote, yet it is not expected that a full vote can be obtained at a special election. As in 1891 there is considerable apathy on the result tomorrow and probably the total vote will not exceed 1000. The vote of 1891 by wards is given below:

	Total Vote.	Yes.	No.	Defective.
Ward 1,	113	50	62	1
Ward 2,	97	15	80	2
Ward 3,	112	39	73	0
Ward 4,	203	42	159	2
Ward 5,	141	89	47	5
Ward 6,	30	12	18	0
	696	247	439	10

Everyone should vote tomorrow, be it yes or no. Property holders in particular should be heard, as it is a matter that affect them the most. Let each man decide for himself.

Jones—Bonner Nuptials.

A quiet and pretty wedding took place on the evening of the 4th, as a part of Quincy's celebration. It was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Farquhar, 8 Arthur street, the contracting parties being Mr. Edwin W. Jones and Miss Eliza J. Bonner. Miss Mary McDonald stood as bridesmaid and Mr. Robert Morris as best man. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. Parker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church. Directly after the happy couple became one, the marriage party repaired to the dining room and sat down to a richly spread banquet. The remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse, and no one seemed less happy because of the dampness and darkness without. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will reside on Liberty street.

Wisdom In Furniture Buying.

It isn't everyone that knows the value of Furniture, know when they buy it right, know the difference between the substantial and worthy sort and the kind that is made to sell and not to use. But here is a store with a conscience, selling the very best goods that Yankee wisdom can manufacture, and what is best of all, is selling it at a price that wins your favor, and fills the purse of all who choose this store to trade in with money well earned and saved by shrewd and careful buying.

TRAGEDY IN MEDWAY.

John Hodges Killed a Man Who Had Entered His Cider Mill.

MILFORD, Mass., July 8.—Richard Hawley, a shoemaker, of this town, was killed Saturday night, about 11 o'clock, by John Hodges of Medway Village, while at tempting to enter Hodges' cider mill. Hodges says that he was about to retire when he heard a noise in the cider mill. Investigating, he found three men, who had entered the mill by the main door, and when he put in an appearance they started to escape. Hawley got out and started to run, when Hodges fired, killing him instantly. Hawley's companions were locked in the mill, but escaped during the excitement. Hodges has been a prominent business man in the town for years. At the autopsy Hodges did not deny that he fired the shot that killed Hawley. Hodges has not been arrested.

Hodges has not been arrested, and was sitting contentedly on his piazza last evening with his family and looked the picture of contentedness, seemingly not disturbed by thoughts as to what the result of the killing of Hawley will be. He was reticent, and claimed what he said before Medical Examiner Bell was not said under oath.

The examiner refused to give up the remains to Hawley's relatives until word could be received from the district attorney.

Noted Prelates Present.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 8.—The fourth annual session of the Catholic summer school of America was formally opened at St. John's church yesterday. Thousands, unable to gain admittance, were standing in the streets when the procession of bishops and priests entered the church. Pontifical high mass was celebrated by Mgr. Satolli, assisted by Mgr. Farley of Memphis, Very Rev. Fred Wagerick of Brooklyn and several other noted prelates. The sermon was preached by Archbishop Corrigan of New York on "The Nature and Necessity of Religion." Rev. Dr. Conaty of Worcester preached an eloquent sermon last evening on "Primitive and Mosaic Revelation."

Mississippi For Silver.

JACKSON, Miss., July 8.—Several counties held primary elections or mass meetings Saturday to select delegates to the Democratic state convention, which meets here Aug. 7. All of them, so far as heard from, have declared Senator McLaurin their choice for governor. The unanimity with which several counties have endorsed Senator McLaurin for governor show that the silver craze still rages. The sound money candidates for governor and United States senator, H. C. McAbee of Vicksburg and Governor Stone, have not secured a delegate so far, and the indications are that they will not.

Great Expectations.

LONDON, July 8.—In an estimate of Valkyrie III The Times says: In her three light weather trials Valkyrie III has proved herself phenomenally fast. She will leave the country with a hopeful prospect of winning the cup. She has certainly not yet been seen at her best. Since she sailed last Wednesday she has received more dead weight, and was sailing on Saturday on her designed water line.

The Dissenting Elks.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 8.—The leaders of the two factions of the Order of Elks—Edwin B. Hay, who will preside over the convention, and Meade D. Detwiller of Harrisburg, who was elected head by the Buffalo faction, which was recently declared in a United States circuit court to have no legal standing—have arrived in this city for the purpose of effecting a union of all the lodges, if possible.

Ex-Governor Commits Suicide.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., July 8.—Ex-Governor Stevenson of Idaho committed suicide yesterday at Paraiso Springs. Stevenson was afflicted with sciatica, and was in a helpless condition. His health had improved somewhat and he was able to walk a little. In desperation he took a dose of laudanum.

Queen Lil's New Hope.

TACOMA, July 8.—Private advices from Honolulu say that Queen Lil and her following are plotting to form an alliance with Japan, by her marriage to a Japanese count. The Japanese have 30,000 residents on the island, and, with this new alliance, it is claimed, the Hawaiian republic could be overthrown.

O. K. For Corbett and Fitz.

DALLAS, July 8.—Judge Clark of Waco has submitted an opinion as to the legality of the proposed Corbett-Fitzsimmons glove contest. The opinion is very exhaustive and lengthy, and declares that there is now no law upon the statute books of Texas preventing pugilistic encounters.

Servia's New Ministry.

BELGRADE, July 8.—The new ministry is composed of M. Novakovics, premier and minister of foreign affairs; M. Marinkovics, minister of the interior, and M. Poponics, minister of finance. Ex-Premier Cristitich has been appointed president of the council of state.

Freight Struck Electric.

NILES, O., July 8.—An electric car, loaded with people, was struck by a freight train here last evening and wrecked. Frank Wilson was killed instantly and Mrs. G. W. Holder was fatally injured. Several other persons were seriously, though not fatally, hurt.

Suspicion of Murder.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 8.—Theodore Wagonheiser, aged 70 years, was found dead in his house yesterday, near Merchantville, with a portion of his head blown off. An old musket was lying at his feet. The police authorities are inclined to believe the old man was murdered.

Big Contract Given Out.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—McHale & O'Connor of this city have received the contract for the stone work on the New York, New Haven and Hartford road, made necessary by the abolishing of 30 grade crossings on the line of the road as it enters Boston.

The Cuban Situation.

HAVANA, July 8.—Aramburo, an insurgent leader, is dead. He was pursued by troops and lost eight killed. Great fighting is expected within a few days between Generals Gasco's and Navarro's troops and Maceo, who is said to be surrounded by them.

In Honor of Two Statesmen.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The names to be given to the revenue cutters, for the construction of which contracts were recently entered into, will be the Walter Q. Gresham and the Daniel Manning.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

A Large Congregation Greets Rev. E. N. Hardy.

Rev. W. R. Breed conducted services Sunday at Houghs Neck, being assisted by the choir of his church.

There was a very large congregation at the Centre Cougregational church Sunday morning to hear the new pastor, the Rev. E. N. Hardy. His text was from Ezra 8: 21, 22, and 23.

The Methodist Sunday school of West Quincy will unite with that of Atlantic in a picnic at Lovell's grove on Wednesday this week. Two cars will leave for the grove at nine o'clock and return at six. The committee having tickets are Messrs. Shackley, Joss and Nutting. A pleasant time is expected.

It was communion Sunday at the Wollaston Baptist church, and the pastor, Rev. Preston Gurney, preached from Psalm 55:19.

A brief sermon at the Washington street church was followed by the reception of one member, Miss Bessie Carter, into the church, and then by the communion service.

The Y. P. S. C. E. will during the months of July and August unite with the Wollaston Baptist church members in one Sunday evening service.

Mrs. M. M. Manning gave a very interesting talk in Wollaston Baptist Sunday school on the work the Junior Endeavor society was doing.

Members and friends of the Calvary Baptist church are busily engaged after work hours in digging a cellar for their new church which they hope to begin building very soon, on their beautiful and central lot on Franklin street.

Mr. Alex. McCabe, who has been in Washington, D. C., for the past year as superintendent for O. W. Norcross on the Corcoran Art Gallery building spent the Fourth with his family at his home, 16 Penn street.

At the West Quincy Methodist church, Sunday morning, Rev. H. Hanson of Boston presented and explained the work among the Scandinavians in Boston and vicinity, and took a collection for the completion of their church edifice on Ferdinand street, Boston. It was while Rev. Mr. Hanson was in Quincy that the Swedish Methodist church off Granite street was built.

Sunday evening the pastor of the West Quincy M. E. church spoke upon Independence day and its lessons.

Secretary Colton addressed the young people of Quincy Point Sunday evening on "Why it pays to be a Christian." It was a practical talk based on Prov. 3.

At the Calvary Baptist church the pastor preached to a good sized congregation from Col. 1:27, "Christ in you the Hope of glory." Christian hope he said rests down upon Jesus Christ a foundation. Religious consciousness, testimony of prophets and Biblical writers, and personal experience all declare Him to be the source of the soul's hope of immortality. Christ within the heart, this gives hope, but this possession of Jesus Christ must amount to more than a profession. In the first place He must be within a regenerating power; creating a new heart, then He must be to the believer, a sustaining power giving daily spiritual sustainance. Lastly He must be a controlling guiding power. Christianity means a life under the discipline of Christ, a person thus living and he alone, has within himself the hope of glory.

THE OTHER SIDE.

Opponents of the Sewer Act Doing a Little Thinking.

DOUBT AS TO ASSESSMENTS.

$400,000 Will Hardly Begin a System for the City.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It is evident that if 75 miles of sewers were built and 150 miles of abutters were to be assessed for the cost of the system, that the individual cost would be less than if only 25 miles of sewers were put in. But the act upon which Quincy votes tomorrow authorizes an expenditure of but $400,000, and "Progress" admits that 75 miles would cost $800,000. Bonds must be issued for the whole cost, whether or not the abutters are to repay one half, and bonds once cancelled cannot be reissued.

It appears from the report of the engineer that the estimate of the cost of the intercepting sewers, the pumping station, outfall, etc., is $319,000. Allowing that this is not exceeded, there is a balance of but $81,000 to construct the collecting sewers, which will cost upwards of $6,000 per mile.

In plain words the $400,000 authorized in the act will not put 15 miles of sewers into our streets, as many of the intercepting sewers are not laid in the streets. It will be quite another question if 30 miles of abutters are to pay half the cost of the original plant. "Progress" estimates the assessment will be from 66 to 76 cents per front foot for the 75 mile system. What will it be for the 15 mile system which will cost half as much?

Again, if the city receives no rentals, the expense must be met by taxation. Is it not better to pay a rental of $4 to $8 than a larger amount in taxes, and a large assessment too?

Would it not be more economical for Quincy to enter the Metropolitan sewer district? We may be forced in after we get an independent system. X. Y. Z.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

A Report for June Compared with Five Preceding Months.

The concluding monthly report of the school year is given below, showing a total enrollment of 3,672 in our public schools, and an average daily attendance of 3,503. The increase in daily attendance over June, 1894, is 144. In 1894, the average daily attendance of September exceeded that of June, 122, and it is expected that in September the average attendance will be 3,700.

Q. Y. C. Ladies' Day.

Ladies' day is the gala day with the Quincy Yacht club, not as exciting as the day of the open race, but unequalled for a social good time. This year the date a ssigned is next Monday, July 15, and the programme includes a promenade concert by Baldwin's Cadet band from 2 to 5; sail and review from 3 to 5.30; lunch by T. D. Cook & Co. Dancing in the evening from 8 to 11. An extra badge is issued to each member, which is necessary to secure admission to clubhouse and floats. An opportunity will be given all who desire to take the sail.

The Dandy Fifth.

Co. K of Braintree goes into camp a week from next Monday with the Fifth regiment, M. V. M., at South Framingham. They will take the 8.30 P. M. train from Boston. Each company is instructed to carry to camp 500 rounds of ball cartridges. When formed in battalions Co. K will head the second battalion. A meeting of the council of officers will be held this week Wednesday at 8 P. M.

BOYHOOD'S DAY.

Yes, ring the bells and raise the flag we love.
Let rockets curve and freedom's eagle lord it.
The patriot's pride, pure as the blue above,
Gleams far too bright for humblest heart to hoard it,
And may all things conspire
To feed such altar fire.

I had in mind a story for the day,
A tale where truth was victor over treason,
But to the tempter spoke I bravely: "Nay,
They're plentiful as blackberries in season—
These legends men affix
To helpless seventy-six."

And though we'd fain no fair intention balk
Should unto narrative desire impel one,
'Tis sweeter task to listen than to talk,
To hear a wartime story than to tell one,
If he builds word on word
Who saw the thing, not heard.

But this is boyhood's day. No "grownups" tall
Must relegate to their vain use its glory,
For youth has eagerly imbibed it all—
Our nation's Revolutionary story—
And feels, perhaps of right,
Part of each march and fight.

Now may our past within our present live,
To deeds of heroes dead be this the sequel,
While heaven shall seedtime and harvest give
That all men shall, in fact, be free and equal.
Then shame shall dim no eyes
Turned where our banner flies.
—Chicago Inter Ocean.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

Georgetown was going to celebrate the Fourth of July, and among other attractions was to have a grand balloon ascension. When I, George Bates, heard of this, I made up my mind that I would go up in that balloon.

I will say right here that I never cared for the society of young ladies; consequently I was called a confirmed old bachelor at the age of 28 years. I had no relatives to dissuade me from making such a fool of myself as to wish to go up in a balloon, and no one to care whether I came down again or not. I say I did not care for the society of young ladies, but there was one—Judge Wells' daughter Sallie—who, I thought, was the best looking and altogether the nicest girl I had ever known. I was not acquainted with her, however, and never expected to be, but I liked her all the same.

I saw the owner of the balloon, Professor Sears, and he agreed to carry me up for $100. As I was in good circumstances financially I did not consider this price too high, and at once agreed to go.

The longed for Fourth of July arrived, and about 3 o'clock I stepped into the balloon with Professor Sears.

At just five minutes past 3 the signal gun was fired, and Professor Sears leaned out and cut the cable that held us. As he did so the grapnel slipped out of the car. He tried to catch it, but lost his balance and fell to the ground, leaving me, as I supposed, alone in the balloon. I was terribly frightened, for I had not the slightest knowledge of the workings of the huge gas bag, as I had never seen one closely before.

I looked over the car to see where I was going, when I noticed that there was a girl hanging by her clothes to the grapnel, the line of which was attached to the car, while the balloon was sailing rapidly toward the clouds.

What was I to do? I made up my mind in a second. I must draw the child up into the car. I reached out and caught hold of the rope. I could not move it. The speed with which the balloon was going made it impossible to raise it an inch. There were some double tackle blocks in the car, and I at once thought of a way to get the girl up. Hastily rigging the blocks, I tied the rope to the one holding the girl and found that I could hoist her up. I had to fasten the rope as low down as I could reach and then hoist till the blocks came together. They were hitched to the ropes that held the car to the balloon on top, and of course it was slow work. I think it took 15 minutes to get her into the car, when judge of my surprise to find that what I had supposed to be a little girl was Judge Wells' daughter, 24 years old, and the belle of Georgetown.

A few moments after I got her into the car she regained her senses, and her first words were, "Where am I?"

"I don't exactly know," I replied, "but you are somewhere between heaven and earth in a balloon."

"How came I here—oh, I remember now! I felt myself suddenly pulled up into the air, and then I guess I fainted."

"I should have thought you would," I replied, and then I told her how Professor Sears had tried to catch the grapnel as it fell and had fallen out in trying to do so, and how I got her into the car.

"Then you have saved my life."

"No; only prolonged it."

"How is that?"

"We are going rapidly upward, and I don't know anything about the management of the balloon. We shall both be killed."

"I don't think that. You surely can find a way to stop it. Have you tried?"

"No, I have been so busy getting you into the balloon that I have not thought of it. I will try now." I examined the different parts, and finally found the rope that opened the valve. The balloon began to descend very rapidly — too much so, I thought, and I found another rope which would close the valve. With these ropes I regulated the descent very nicely. After getting the thing under control, I looked down toward the earth. It was the first look since I had pulled Miss Wells into the balloon. We were a long way up, but we were over the water. I told Miss Wells so, and she looked out.

"In that case I think we had better go down till we strike a different current of wind, don't you?"

I told her yes, and very soon we struck a different current and supposed we were being carried in the direction from which we came. Then I closed the valve, but the balloon continued to descend. I threw out the bags of sand that were in the car, but still we were going down.

"I'm afraid we are going to land in the water," I said as I gazed out of the car.

"Then we must be drowned," she said.

"No, not necessarily." I said. "If I the distance, but it did not come near enough for us to hail it before night shut in, and in the morning nothing was seen of it. I don't know how we did get through the night. Miss Wells was so afraid that I would let go the car and be drowned that she held me by the hand all night. I was so exhausted before morning that I should undoubtedly have been drowned but for her. Soon after sunrise we saw smoke curling up in the distance, and I felt sure that a steamer was coming and called Sadie's attention to it. Somehow we had dropped the formal Mr. and Miss during the night, and she was Sadie and I was George. When we did it, or who called first names first, neither of us could tell when we spoke of it afterward.

Sadie stood up in the car and waved her handkerchief as soon as we thought the people on the steamer could see us. We soon caught their attention, and in less than an hour from the time we saw the smoke a boat from the outward bound European steamer Atlantic picked us up. When our story was known, it seemed as if the passengers could not do enough for us.

Staterooms were provided for us and dry clothes and food, and by the doctor's orders we were both sent to bed. I slept for eight hours, and when I awoke I felt as well as ever, and I went on deck. Miss Wells slept two hours longer, but at 7 o'clock we both sat down to a jubilee dinner which had been prepared in honor of our wonderful rescue. We passed a very pleasant evening, and just as the company seemed about to break up Captain Windsor, a genuine Yankee gentleman, spoke up and said:

"Mr. Bates, of course you will not feel hurt if I give you this roll of bills. We have talked the matter over among us and concluded that you would need a little ready money, as you started in such a hurry that you certainly could not have provided for a European trip. We don't approve of a young man running away with a girl in this manner, but yours is a very peculiar case, and we have decided to help you out. I am an old man, and I want to give you a little advice. Get married before we get to Europe, for should you delay your efforts will be in vain, for Judge Wells will no doubt cable to London to have you arrested on your arrival. We have a clergyman on board, and there are several witnesses here, besides plenty of best men and bridesmaids. Everything is ready, and I should be delighted to have a wedding on my steamer, and when a couple are thrown at me as you seem to have been I think it is flying in the face of Providence not to take advantage of it."

As he finished speaking he thrust a roll of bills into my hand, and amid a storm of applause the crowd began to separate for their staterooms.

What was I to do? I was so taken aback by the captain's words that I knew not what to say, and so I said nothing. I knew he was in fun, but the money was a reality.

I looked over to where Sadie was standing and caught her eye. There was a peculiar expression on her face, but she was laughing, so I thanked the captain as best I could, but told him that when I got my thoughts collected I would try to get even with him. The next day every one was joking us. We could not get angry, for they had been too good to us.

Toward night Sadie and I were walking about on deck, apart from the rest of the passengers, when I said:

"Sadie, what shall we do when we get to Europe?"

"Cable to our folks that we are alive."

"Yes, I will do that the first thing. Then what?" I asked.

"It seems almost too bad to get over here and then not see something of the old world, doesn't it?"

"It does indeed, and I wish we might stay awhile. Do you think your father would let you if you asked him?"

"How could I do that?"

"I will cable him the whole story and tell him you will stay a few weeks with friends."

"That will cost too much money. I don't think papa will feel that he can afford to let me stay."

"But I can afford it. I am alone in the world and have no one to care for me, and I have more money than I need, aside from what our generous friends have given us."

"Wait a moment. You say you have no friends or any one to care for you Where do I come in?"

I turned and looked her in the face. Something told me to say what was in my mind, and I said:

can't cut the balloon free from the car, it may float you till help comes."

"But what will you do?"

"It don't make so much difference with me. I am alone in the world, and no one will care if I do not return."

"I think the car will hold us both."

"We shall have a chance to find out in a very few minutes. When the car strikes the water, you hold on with all your might to this rope. Don't let go if you can help it, unless the car turns over. In that case drop the rope, and I will look out for you."

I had no chance to say more, for the balloon dropped with a bump that threw Miss Wells out into the water. She held to the basket, however, and I soon had it freed from the balloon by cutting the cords. The car or basket would hold one of us nicely, so I got Miss Wells into it and swam alongside myself.

"If I only knew which way land was lying, I would swim that way," I said, "but I have no idea where we are."

"We are in salt water."

"Oh, yes; we are at sea, and our only chance is that some vessel will pick us up."

"I shan't give up till I am obliged to. You know who I am, of course?"

"Yes; you are Judge Wells' daughter."

"Sadie, yes, and you are Mr. Bates."

"George Bates at your service. Rather a queer place and way to be introduced."

"Unfortunately, yes, but it will help to keep each other in mind if we ever get back to land."

Just before dark a ship was seen in

"Sadie, I have admired you for a long time, more than two years, when I did not even know you to speak to you. Now I know you, and I love you, tell me, can I ever hope that you will give me some love in return? Don't think I am taking advantage of our situation, for I am not. I can wait. Don't answer me till you have time to think it over. Excuse me for saying this now, but I could not help it."

At first I thought she was angry, and we walked on for some moments in silence, when she looked up into my face and said:

"Yes, George, I can love you, and I do love you. I have known you for a long time—that is, by reputation—and have always wished to be a friend of yours, but never dared to hope that you would ask me to be your wife!"

I shall not tell what conversation followed, for Sadie is reading this story as I write it and says she won't have any "gush" in it, so I will only say that we were married on the steamer, and a great wedding it was too. We cabled the whole story to Sadie's father, at an expense of over $50, and received his blessing by return cable, for he was so glad that his daughter was alive he could forgive anything. We made London our headquarters for a couple of weeks, and before we left there we received wedding presents from almost every one on the steamer. They all said they were sorry they had to delay sending them till after the wedding, but "circumstances, over which they had no control, made the delay absolutely necessary."

After a couple of months spent in sightseeing we returned to Georgetown, where I built a house, and where you will find us any time you want to see us, and I will answer any questions you may want to ask, provided Sadie will let me.—Henry D. Tyler in Homestead.

Twenty-Three Straight.

At the Wollaston Trap Club's shoot Federhen came down and carried off the honors, breaking 24 birds, 23 of them being straight. Prescott was not far behind, as he smashed 23. The club entertained several members of the Hingham club. The score:

—A Presbyterian minister, Rev. Roland D. Dawson, declares that the bicycle is a means of grace. He lately preached a sermon on this topic, taking for his text the passage from Isaiah, "And their wheels were like a whirlwind." He suggested, moreover, that cobblestone streets could be made into good bicycle routes at small expense by covering them with a coat of asphalt. He said wheelmen would be welcome to come to his church on their machines, and the bicycles would be cared for during service. As a means of giving women strength and independence and "freeing them from the slavery of the skirt" there was nothing like it.

That Baby of Yours.

The reason we are selling a $25.00 Baby Carriage for $18.00, a $20.00 Baby Carriage for $15.00, a $15.00 Baby Carriage for $10.00, is because the manufacturers built more than they can sell and have placed a large number with us to sell at prices that are lower than ever heard of before. HOPES NOT REALIZED.

Aid Which Was Looked For by Armenians Is Not Forthcoming.

Protests of Great Nations Fell on Deaf Ears.

Persecutions Growing Worse With No Prospect of Relief For the Oppressed.

VAN, Armenia, June 5.—The news from Constantinople and London that the Armenian reforms are to be carried out by the Turks has caused the most intense despair and consternation among the Armenians of Eastern Turkey. The wretched people expected a mountain of help from Great Britain, and they have received nothing at all.

The situation is most desperate. All classes of Armenians—bankers, merchants, schoolteachers, farmers and revolutionary leaders—believe that unless the reforms are carried out under the control of the Christian powers, the Armenians will have to choose between emigration and revolution. The people are worse off now than they have been at any time in their history, and the persecutions go on steadily from day to day. The poorer people have nothing to eat, and 65 persons in the Sassoun region have literally starved to death.

The people have got to the last point of human endurance, and still the persecutions are growing worse. The government is now collecting the whole year's taxes in advance, which is a most unheard of and cruel proceeding. Heretofore the people have paid their taxes in installments during the year, but now, when they have no money at all and no way of earning anything, the demand is for the full year's taxes in advance. The demand is accentuated by beatings and bayonet thrusts.

The soldiers have taken everything that they can lay their hands upon, and, in very many cases, the people have been stripped of everything, even to the clothes upon their backs and the dishes in which they cook their scanty food. Thousands of poor villagers are living on roots and greens, and on the Moosh plains the wretched Sassouns are literally starving to death.

The protests of Great Britain and America have fallen on contemptuously deaf ears. That Turkey has no intention of carrying out any sort of reforms is shown by the daily increase of pressure now being put upon the helpless Armenians. The breaking point is near. Unless radical reform is carried out at once, the despairing, starving people will rise in revolt for the sake of ending their wretched lives.

Eastern Turkey is surprisingly full of revolutionary agents, who are moving from place to place. One left for Persia last night, and another will go tomorrow night. This is undeniably the critical time in the Armenian situation.

Revolutionists Betrayed.

The Armenian revolutionist prisoners who were betrayed to the Turkish government at Tshiboukla on May 19 were taken from the prison at Van very early on the morning of June 2 and started on their way to Constantinople. This was done under the orders of the sultan.

No one knew that the prisoners were to be transferred until they actually had left Van, the order having come from Constantinople late Saturday. Instead of being dragged along on foot, the men were mounted on caravan horses. They all go to Trebizond by way of Erzroom, under guard of a detachment of cavalry. At Trebizond they will be put on board of a steamer and sent to Constantinople under guard of a squad of infantry.

It was reported that several of the Yezidees who betrayed them would accompany them to Constantinople to be rewarded and honored by the sultan. But the Yezidees, instead, returned to their village to make out a list of all their able-bodied countrymen available for enrollment in the Hamidieh cavalry. Hahto, the head man, will, it is reported by the government officials, subsequently go to Constantinople to be honored by the sultan and to receive his commission as leader of the Hamidieh forces raised among his followers.

A second revolutionary band is in existence across the Persian border, but what its immediate plans are have not as yet been learned here. The leaders of this band were among those met by your correspondent in a Persian city early in May. The band is divided—one part going forward under Harry Williams, and the other remaining in Persia to forward arms and secure recruits.

Within the past few days the governor of Van, Bahri Pasha, has asserted that Harry Williams, in making his alleged confession of the revolutionary movement, said that his party had 3000 rifles in Trieste, Austria, awaiting shipment to Armenia, and that he, himself, was not an Englishman at all, but a Georgian from the same district in which Bahri Pasha was born. Bahri declared that he had talked with Williams in Georgia. This is not believed.

The news from Constantinople and London that the Armenian reforms are to be carried out by the Turks has caused the most intense despair and consternation among the Armenians of Eastern Turkey. The wretched people expected a mountain of help from Great Britain, and they have received nothing at all.

Objects of Attraction.

LONDON, July 8.—The Standard this morning says that it is no injustice to the other foreign crews to say that the doings of the Cornell crew attract the most attention. Their success or failure will not itself prove anything as to the respective styles, but should they beat the Leander crew and win the final, it is very probable that faith in the English style of rowing will be somewhat shaken.

Old Soldier Dead.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The war department announces the sudden death of Lieutenant Colonel James Hinton at Ringgold barracks, Texas. Colonel Hinton rose from the ranks, having enlisted from Connecticut as a private in 1858.

Chicago's Disastrous Storm.

CHICAGO, July 8.—One of the most furious wind and rain storms known in this vicinity for years passed over the city last evening. The day had been intensely hot, and there were many people out in the lake in sailboats, and as the storm came very suddenly it is feared that several lives were lost. The different lifesaving crews have brought in the occupants of three capsized boats, all in a very exhausted condition.

That Siberian Riot.

HUNTSBURG, Ind., July 8.—The reported riot at Siberia turns out to be merely a free-for-all fight, the result of jealousy between two cousins who were paying attention to the same young lady, and was not brought about by religious dissension as reported. No deaths will occur from injuries received.

Villages Threatened With Destruction.

NAPLES, July 8.—The crater of Mount Etna is again pouring forth fire, smoke and lava. Mount Vesuvius is also in a state of eruption, and is reported to be in worse condition than Etna. The town of Resina is threatened. Villages in the vicinity of both volcanoes are believed to be in danger.

SCOUTS ARE ON DUTY.

No Christian Endeavor Delegations Likely to Get Lost.

Society's Flag Having a Big Boom In Boston.

Visitors Already Pouring Into the City In Large Numbers.

BOSTON, July 9.—In Mechanics' building, at 7:30 last evening, was held an important meeting of the "scouts" of the reception and accommodation committees of the great Christian Endeavor convention.

These scouts are sent out from the different stations to outlying points, where they meet their respective delegations and stay with them till they are safely housed in Boston hotels and in private homes.

The meeting was held for the purpose of instructing these scouts in their duties, and this was done by the gentlemen who have charge at the different railroad stations.

Each of these gentlemen addressed the meeting in a few earnest words, and the result was as fine and compact a table of rules as ever adorned a Wentworth's Algebra. They may be briefly summed up as follows:

First—The scouts must obey orders. Where each is sent, each must go, and no one should return without his delegation, even if, as Mr. Dimmock put it, he waits three days.

Second—The scout must get all possible information from the local agent. He must learn when his train will arrive and must prepare to meet it when it comes.

Third—When the train arrives, the scout should cordially introduce himself to the leader of the delegation, ascertain the number of delegates he has in charge and telegraph this information to the booth manager at the Boston station.

Fourth—He must hold the delegates together, and on their arrival at Boston start them to singing Endeavor hymns as they go through the streets to the places of registration, where his duties will terminate.

Those who will lodge at hotels will go directly there, but the others will be taken first to the places of registration and afterward provided for.

Flags by the Thousand.

The chief business of the local societies and officers has been in arranging the final details for the reception and care of visitors and in decorating. Many individuals and local societies have left their decorations until now, and the calls for convention flags at headquarters have been very numerous. Every third or fourth visitor to the rooms went away with a bundle of the flags under his arm; and a large number were also called for by peddlers on the streets.

Men paraded the sidewalks of the business districts, waving half a dozen flags in one hand and carrying a large bundle of them in the other. They disposed of their stock without much difficulty, for storekeepers who wished to show the flags in their windows were numerous. It is estimated that the largely augmented force of clerks in the salesroom at headquarters disposed of about 50,000 flags up to yesterday.

An Encouraging Report.

The delegates coming now are individuals and small parties. Perhaps the most distinguished arrival at headquarters yesterday was Rev. W. K. Chapman, honorary secretary of the Christian Endeavor movement in Great Britain and Ireland. The other British representatives who came over with Mr. Chapman are Rev. John Pollock of Glasgow, Rev. James Mussell of Derby, Rev. J. D. Lamont and Rev. H. Montgomery of Belfast.

Mr. Chapman says the Christian Endeavor societies have shown a rapid increase in number in his section of the world during the last two years. During the first five years, up to the beginning of 1893, there were only 425 societies. At the end of 1893 there were 1004, at the end of 1894 there were 2012, and now there are 2700. They are increasing at the rate of about 35 a week.

The Baptists lead with 800 societies, then come the Congregationalists with 750, then the combined Methodists with 500, then the Presbyterians with 300. The other societies are divided among the Moravians, Society of Friends and other bodies. Mr. Chapman says the Epworth league, well known among the Methodists in this country, is unknown there.

These Are Yet to Come.

The first large delegations arrived today at noon, when 600 arrived at the Albany station from Michigan, and nearly 2000 came in from Pennsylvania. The list of delegations expected tomorrow is given below:

Alabama	50	Missouri	700
Arkansas	100	New Jersey	1000
California	200	New Mexico	10
Colorado	50	New York	2850
Connecticut	1000	North Carolina	30
Delaware	100	North Dakota	20
Dist. of Columbia	500	Ohio	600
Florida	100	Oklahoma	10
Illinois	800	Philadelphia	800
Indiana	300	Tennessee	200
Iowa	900	Texas	100
Kansas	400	Vermont	500
Kentucky	200	Virginia	200
Maine	1200	Wisconsin	1000
Minnesota	350	Montreal	300
Mississippi	30	Ontario	700

On Thursday morning boatloads may be expected from Maine, also some of Indiana's Endeavorers, who come via St. Lawrence river. Delegates from New York city, Jersey City and Brooklyn expect to arrive, and also Maryland's delegation.

One of the topics that comes in for a good deal of discussion between whiles is the statement printed in a Chicago dispatch yesterday to the effect that the headquarters of the national society were to be transferred from Boston to Chicago. President Clarke said there was no truth in the report. He said there was no reason why such a change should be made.

At Gray Gables.

BUZZARD'S BAY, July 9.—In company with Joseph Jefferson and Charles B. Jefferson, Mr. Cleveland spent nearly all day yesterday trout fishing at East Sandwich. The party left early in the day and did not return until nearly six o'clock. Telegrams of congratulation continued to arrive all day, and the president devoted the evening to a persual of them. To an inquiry as to the condition of Mrs. Cleveland and the baby, Dr. Bryant said: "Mother and baby are both doing well."

Sixth Annual Convention.

BOSTON, July 9.—While the mighty Y. P. S. C. E., with its 50,000 members, is turning Boston into an enormous church, a lesser organization, which does wonderful work, the Young People's Christian union, will send 2000 delegates to Boston to hold their sixth annual convention. The Y. P. C. U. convention will open on Wednesday. A meeting was held at the Columbus Avenue Universalist church last evening to complete the arrangements for the reception of the visitors.

David Daboll Dead.

NEW LONDON, July 9.—David A. Daboll, a civil engineer, publisher of Daboll's Almanac, died at his home in Centre Groton last evening, aged 82 years. The publication of the almanac began with Nathan Daboll in 1773, and has been continued by his descendants ever since. Mr. Daboll served three years in the Connecticut house of representatives and one term in the senate. The publication of the almanac will be continued in the family by one of his sons.

A Crazy Man's Strength.

NEW LONDON, July 9.—Henry O'Donnell was released from the insane asylum in Middletown yesterday, and while en route to Boston, went violently insane here. It required the united efforts of five men to hold him. He was taken to Boston. O'Donnell attempted to wreck a train at North Haven a year ago, and was released from the insane asylum on condition that his family remove him from the United States.

Warship For Practice.

BOSTON, July 9.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy McAdoo inspected the Massachusetts naval brigade last night at drill. He expressed himself as being well pleased with the proficiency of the brigade, stating, however, that the marines needed ship drill, and that for this purpose a ship would be sent to Boston. State officials tendered Mr. McAdoo and the officers of the Dolphin an informal banquet last night.

Insane Father's Acts.

MALDEN, July 9.—Joseph J. Crocker attempted to murder his wife and child by cutting their throats. Neighbors went to their assistance and thus saved their lives. Crocker then left the house and attempted to throw himself in front of a train, but some railroad men interfered. Later he was placed under arrest. Physicians examined him and pronounced him insane.

Two Girls Drowned.

HAVERHILL, July 9.—Sadie Harris, aged 13, and a girl about the same age, named Guptill, were drowned in the Merrimac river last evening. The girls were amusing themselves by wading around in the water. The steamer Merrimac came down stream, causing a large wash. The waves carried the girls off their feet, and they were unable to gain their footing.

Maverick May Have Sunk.

NEW BEDFORD, July 9.—A bottle was fished up in the bay in which was a note dated Feb. 15, 1895, purporting to be from the ship Maverick, Captain Cole, bound from Callao to St. John, N. B. The note said that the Maverick was in the gulf stream waterlogged, with a heavy northwest wind blowing, and that the crew expected to lose their lives.

Sanford Will Sustained.

NEWPORT, July 9.—The jury in the Sanford will case, in which Kate Field and George Riddle were contestants, returned a verdict sustaining the will. The will distributes a large property, the chief beneficiary being the young woman who attended Mrs. Sanford during the last years of her life.

American or Canadian?

BOSTON, July 9.—A hearing to determine whether or not a cargo of frozen herring from Newfoundland and landed in Boston by the schooner W. E. Simonds, last February, is the product of American fisheries began at the custom house today. The case involves many interesting points.

The Clinton Strike.

CLINTON, July 9.—The Lancaster mills' strikers held a largely attended meeting yesterday afternoon. Agent Weeks' statements about wages were criticised, and the strikers were congratulated on the firm stand they have taken. Strikers are still leaving daily for work elsewhere.

Not Able to Run.

AMESBURY, July 9.—The Hamilton mills were opened yesterday morning, but only 13 of 800 dissatisfied employes went in, and the machinery was not started. The operatives gathered in large numbers around the gates, but there was no disturbance.

An Old Hand at It.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 9.—Frank E. Bowden, 23, an army deserter from Kennebec Arsenal, Augusta, gave himself up to Sheriff Dumfrey here yesterday. Major McGuiness at Augusta has sent a detail for him. Bowden has deserted eight times.

Skipped the Town.

PALMER, Mass., July 9.—Dr. George P. Bell, a popular young physician, mysteriously disappeared last Saturday, leaving no trace of his destination. He has a number of creditors in the town.

Good Work Goes On.

WOONSOCKET, July 9.—The Union mills at Burrillville have posted a notice giving the weavers an increase of 10 per cent; spinners, 8 per cent, and the other departments from 8 to 10 per cent.

McCusker Is Willing.

BOSTON, July 9.—James McCusker, the American champion swimmer, will accept the challenge of Blondell to swim 5 or 10 miles for $500 a side and the American championship.

The Raise at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, July 9.—The mills in the Manufacturers' club will increase the wages of loomfixers from $2 to $2.25 a day and the dresser tenders from $1.90 to $2.

HOIST BY OWN PETARD

Insurgents' Plot Against Spaniards Failed to Materialize.

They Expected to Annihilate the Troops.

Found to Their Sorrow That Their Plans Had Been Anticipated.

HAVANA, July 9.—Two hundred and eighty revolutionists were killed in an engagement between the Spanish troops, under command of Colonel Azuar, and General Rabi, the insurgent commander, at the head of a large force of revolutionists.

It appears that Major Sanchez received information that a force of 1500 insurgents, under the command of Rabi, had occupied strong positions near Manzanillo. The major sent a message to Colonel Azuar, proposing to the colonel that they should join their forces and make an attack upon the insurgents. The messenger, however, fell into the hands of the insurgents, who hanged him and sent word to Major Sanchez, in the name of Colonel Azuar, to make an attack upon the insurgent position from a point which compelled the troops to approach the insurgents through a narrow thoroughfare.

Major Sanchez, recognizing the difficulty of the movement he was apparently directed by his colonel to execute, sent forward two advance pickets of 12 and 30 men, respectively, under the command of two sergeants, with instructions to push forward to the right and to the left of the narrow thoroughfare referred to, and to be careful to take up advantageous positions from which they could protect the advance of the main body of the troops under Sanchez's command. The sergeants cleverly followed out the instructions given them. Major Sanchez then advanced carefully upon the insurgents' position.

Waiting For Them.

But, as he expected, the troops were no sooner inside the defile than the insurgents attacked them in force. The first charges of the insurgents were made with enthusiasm, and their machetes played havoc among the troops, who were hemmed in and unable to deploy, on account of the narrow road they had to follow.

But it was here that the two advance pickets under the two sergeants came to the rescue. From their elevated positions they kept up a continuous and well-directed fire upon the insurgents within range, and eventually, assisted by a charge of the Spanish troops, compelled them to retreat outside of the defile.

The troops pushed forward after them, and, once in the open, charged the insurgents and compelled them to retreat hastily. The insurgents then sought refuge in the strong position they had previously left in order to attack the troops, but the soldiers carried this position and put the enemy to flight, with the loss of 280 killed. The troops lost 50 men in killed and wounded.

In another fight reported from Veguita, the insurgents, under Rabi, lost five killed and had many wounded, while on the side of the troops one officer and four soldiers were wounded.

Another Rout.

News of another battle of the insurgents has reached here from Bellamotas. Bellamotas was garrisoned by an officer and 50 soldiers, who occupied a fortified building. The place was attacked by the insurgents under Castillo. The enemy built a large fire to windward of the barracks, and the flames communicated to that building.

The insurgent leader then sent word to the officer in command of the garrison, the soldiers forming part of the Union battalion, notifying him to surrender under pain of being burned alive with his men. The officer sent word to Castillo that he preferred to die fighting or be burned to death than surrender to the insurgents.

In the meanwhile some of the soldiers succeeded in extinguishing the flames, and while they were doing so the remainder of the garrison kept up a continuous fire from their guns on the insurgents. The latter replied from every point, but the garrison held out gallantly for two hours.

The news of the insurgents' attack had in the meanwhile been communicated to a detachment of Spanish soldiers in the neighborhood, and they pushed forward to the relief of the garrison of Bellamotas. The moment they reached that place a brisk fire was opened upon the insurgents, and the latter immediately retired, leaving many dead and wounded on the field. On the side of the troops only three were killed and four wounded.

The insurgents have burned a church near Banao, in the Santi Espiritus district of the province of Santa Clara.

Houses Knocked to Flinders.

NEWTON, Kan., July 9.—A tornado swept over the country between this city and Canton, destroying everything in its path. In this city four houses were wrecked, and over 30 farmhouses are known to have been completely destroyed. Twenty-five people were injured, seven of them fatally.

Wicked "Brothers."

BERLIN, July 9.—A surprise visit by an official committee made to the private lunatic asylum near Amelsduren, belonging, like the notorious Mariaberg asylum, to the Alexian Brotherhood, revealed such gross scandals that the provincial administration talk of closing and rebuilding.

Probably a Suicide.

NEW YORK, July 9.—There is believed to be no ground for the rumor of foul play in the case of William McCarthy, the New Haven bartender, who died here last Saturday. The discovery of a pocket flask, half filled with laudanum, in his pocket leads to a belief of suicide.

HOOD'S PILLS cure Liver Ills, Billousness, Indigestion, Headache. A pleasant laxative. All Druggists.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Did you vote for sewers?

Probate court in this city tomorrow.

Dog days are advertised to begin July 25.

Mrs. Chapman of Baxter street and Mrs. J. H. Wales are visiting friends at Nantucket.

It rains easy now-a-days. There was a good shower last night and a downfall this morning.

Dr. D. A. Bruce has moved his residence and office to one of the new houses on Atlantic street.

The Steamer City of Quincy will take out a party of Knights of Pythias from Boston tonight.

The annual picnic of the West Quincy Methodist church will be held Wednesday at Lovell's grove.

Why not have some of those poles on Hancock street removed? They are quite thick in some places.

The DAILY LEDGER will bulletin the result of the sewer election this afternoon, and report fully tomorrow.

Miss Maud A. Curtis will leave Quincy about August 1st, for Saganaw, Michagan, to visit her uncle, George Gay.

Massachusetts Bay Colony of Pilgrim Fathers installed officers Monday evening. The old board were all re-elected.

Mr. J. E. Poland of Norfolk Downs is having a serious time of it. His sickness has now developed into typhoid fever.

Messrs. Merrick of the Willard school and Litchfield of the Quincy school, have gone to Portland, Me., for a short stay.

Supt. Lull and several of the Quincy teachers are at the American Institute of Instruction in Portland, Me., this week.

The Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor No. 1 will hold their meetings once a month during July and August, the second Tuesdays.

Miss Susie Hall and Miss Freda Habberman go to Laconia, N. H., Saturday, for a vacation rest of two weeks at the Forest Home.

Water was turned on at Quincy today as well as Houghs Neck. People at Houghs Neck think they are getting too much water now.

Mrs. H. C. Matthews of Clive street, has received an appointment to an important position on the new magazine—"Household Economics."

A large number of West Quincy's young people went to Franklin Park Monday night to see the fireworks. The trip was made in Doble's and Elcock's teams.

Efforts should have been made to have a pilgrimage of the Christian Endeavor delegates to the home of the Presidents Adams, and the Quincy granite quarries.

An important meeting of the St. John's C. L. and A. A. will be held this evening. A matter of great importance will be considered and the presence of every member is desired.

Atlantic people are still discussing the recent celebration of the Fourth and all are congratulating themselves that everything passed off smoothly and without an accident.

The Swedes of this city will make an excursion by water to Rockport on Thursday. They will be accompanied by the Swedish band. At Rockport they will be entertained by the Swedes of that town.

Lawyer Sears of Bigelow street is not an admirer of President Cleveland, but does envy him his three little girls. Perhaps the feeling would be mutual if the President knew Mr. Sears had three boys.

The Squantum Yacht club held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening. Reports of a favorable nature were made by several committees. There was also some talk on the open race and plans for the future were discussed. The next races will be held Saturday at 2.30.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman of Norfolk Downs mourn the loss of their little two year old. Ethel was the first baby born at the Downs. Last week she was taken to the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston for a slight surgical operation, but she did not rally. Her funeral was held Friday from the family residence on Home street, the Rev. Mr. Fisher officiating, while two members of his choir sang.

SEWER ELECTION.

Apathy and Rain Causes of a Light Vote.

DOUBT AS TO ACCEPTANCE.

Euthusiasm at Wollaston May Carry It Through.

The vote today on the acceptance of the sewer act will be very small. No one expected a large vote but the rain will make it much smaller than expectations. It is thought that the advocates of sewers will carry the day, because the doubtful voters, who would probably vote "no," will not visit the polls. Four years ago the total vote was 696, and the total today will be considerably less than a thousand, although more of an effort has been made to get out a large vote.

In Ward One.

The vote of the Centre ward will slightly exceed the vote of 1891, as the total of that year, viz 113, was reached at 1.30. Not over 125 will probable be thrown, and there may be a slight majority in favor of the act.

In Ward Two.

The interest in Quincy Point over the election, if it can be called interest, is very slight, so slight that but 23 had voted at noon and the prospects are not at all encouraging for a large vote. It has been generally conceeded that this ward would favor the sewer question but the lightness of the vote makes it appear as though a majority for No would be the outcome of the the day's voting.

In Ward Three.

For the first time, the voters of Ward Three are voting by precincts. Precinct one is in Cahill's hall and the officers on duty have had little to do. But 25 votes had been cast at 8.30.

Precinct Two is in the old central fire station. The condition is the same, as but 26 votes had been cast at 8.30. The voters of this Ward have not got accustomed to voting by precincts as yet, and some who were in Precinct One attempted to vote in Precinct Two and vice versa.

The general impression seems to be that while a light vote will be cast, the ward will give a majority for yes.

In Ward Four.

In Ward Four things are still more quiet and as one man expressed it this election will cost the city about 50 cents a vote.

In Precinct One there was no one about with the exception of the election officers in the early morning and the box registered at 8.45 but 15 votes.

In Precinct Two 20 had voted at the same hour and this polling place was almost as deserted as at Precinct One.

The impression seems to be that this ward will throw a light vote and that will be a no majority.

In Ward Five.

Wollaston votes in the early morning, and it voted this morning in goodly numbers before the rain. Flyers were distributed throughout the ward last evening urging a unanimous vote for the sewer act, and a rousing majority is counted upon. At 1.30 the box recorded a total vote of 189.

The total vote in 1891 was but 141, so there will be a gain of 50 to 60 in the vote. The majority of 42 may be increased to 142.

In Ward Six.

Ward Six will doubtless give a majority for yes. The voting was light, only 51 votes having been polled at 10.30. The trouble in this ward seems to be that many are not aware that an election is being held, and some of those who do know of it are somewhat in doubt as to the object of the voting. However, as noted above, it is estimated that a majority of those who do vote, will vote yes.

Quincy Depot Decorated.

The Quincy station has been very tastefully decorated in honor of the Christian Endeavor convention. Streamers of red and white extend the entire length of the depot and there are numerous shields and flags grouped at intervals. On the front of the ticket office are two shields reading: "The home of the Presidents, John Adams—John Quincy Adams."

KILLED HIS WIFE.

Little Daughter of James Shea Saw Him Commit an Awful Deed.

NEWPORT, July 9.—James Shea of this place was arrested last night on suspicion of having murdered his wife, who was in a delicate condition, by kicking her in the abdomen. Shea denies the charge, claiming that Mrs. Shea fell from a chair, and died before help could reach her. The chief witness against Shea is his 6-year-old daughter, who positively asserts that her father and mother quarreled and that her father struck her mother and then kicked her in the stomach. The neighbors claim that trouble has frequently occurred in the Shea family, and they were much excited when they learned of last night's affair, and all sorts of threats against Shea were heard, but no violence was attempted. Four young children are left motherless by Mrs. Shea's death.

Shea, ordinarily a quiet man, did not go to work yesterday, as he desired to make hay about his home, which is on the outskirts of the city.

Between 2 and 3 o'clock he desired to repair a fence, and a discussion over some nails resulted, following which, it is said, he assaulted his wife, who was pregnant.

Shea is a native of Ireland and came here about 15 years ago as coachman for C. N. Beach of Hartford.

Humanitarians Interceded.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The war department has granted a stay of eight days to the Sandy Hook squatter fishermen. This action is owing to the intervention of the American Humane society, and the fishermen will now have a chance to look out for new homes before being evicted. There are 200 of them, and for many years they have squatted upon Sandy Hook government military reservation undisturbed. The magnitude of the military works proposed by the government necessitated the speedy removal of the squatters, and hence the order for the evictions.

May Give Separate Schools.

OTTAWA, July 9.—The government last night announced its policy on the Manitoba school case. The Manitoba Catholics, having appealed to the Dominion authorities to pass a law restoring separate schools as they existed prior to disestablishment, the Dominion government announces that they will make an attempt to arrive at an understanding with the Manitoba government whereby Roman Catholics shall be given their own schools, under state inspection and with teachers who have passed the provincial normal school examinations.

Drought Threatens Ruin.

TORONTO, July 9.—Alarming reports of drought came from all parts of Ontario. Creeks, wells and water holes have dried up, and in many cases the farmers have to go miles for water. There is no feed for the stock, and farmers are cutting down trees for their beasts to browse on. Ruin stares thousands in the face. Merchants refuse to buy goods from commercial travellers until the rain comes. To add to the farmers' misery, grasshoppers have appeared, and threaten what remains of those crops which drought has spared.

Plunged Over a Bridge.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 9.—An electric street car, running between this city and Wellsville, got beyond the control of the motorman yesterday afternoon, and plunged over a bridge into a run, falling 130 feet. The car was smashed, and it was miraculous that any of the passengers escaped alive. As it was, only James Hamilton, the motorman, was killed, after doing all he could to stop the car. Thirteen passengers were crushed and jammed into the wreck and badly injured.

A Chicago Street Episode.

CHICAGO, July 9.—A man, supposed to be C. E. Cole, assaulted and attempted to rob P. G. McGloin in his saloon in the heart of the business district of Chicago last evening. After seriously wounding McGloin, the thief made a most remarkable race for liberty. After firing into the mob that pursued him and seriously wounding three citizens, he was run down and killed by Officer Rosenthal.

Dissolution of Parliament.

LONDON, July 9.—A meeting of the privy council, attended by Lord Salisbury, Baron Halsbury and A. A. Douglas, was held at Windsor yesterday, when the queen signed the proclamation dissolving parliament. The royal proclamation fixes the date of the assembling of the next parliament at Aug. 12.

Sanger's Intentions.

NEW YORK, July 9.—David Shafer, manager and trainer for Sanger, the Milwaukee professional cyclist, says that Sanger, having become a professional, wishes to ride wherever prize money is offered. Sanger will now campaign against Johnson and others for purses.

Beginning to Weaken?

LONDON, July 9.—It is the opinion in yachting circles that if Valkyrie III fails to win the cup the Americans will get a respite from defending it, but that a strong attempt will be made in that case to induce the Defender to come to the Clyde in 1899.

Soldiers Ready to Move.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., July 9.—The situation is very grave in the Elkhorn mining region. Threats of burning the tipples are made, and this, with the derailment of cars, has created serious alarm. The company here is in readiness to move at once if needed.

Thown From a Wagon.

BONDSVILLE, Mass., July 9.—Nora Sullivan, aged 18, was thrown from a wagon yesterday by a runaway horse and instantly killed. Her sister was also thrown out, sustaining a dislocated shoulder and a sprained ankle.

Refused to Resign.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The fire commissioners yesterday requested Fire Marshal Mitchell to hand in his resignation. He refused. The commissioners then served him with a copy of the charges which they have made against him.

Not Ready For Prison.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Judge Gaynor last evening granted the application of ex-Inspector McLaughlin for a writ of reasonable doubt, which shall act as a stay pending the appeal of his case.

Instantly Killed.

HARTFORD, July 9.—Jacob Charner, a peddler, 45 years old, was struck by the cars in Manchester last evening, and instantly killed. The horse he was driving was also killed.

Rumor Corrected.

LONDON, July 9.—It is untrue that Lord Roberts has declined the position of commander-in-chief of the army.

PARK ASSESSMENT.

Apportionment of the Cost by the Commissioners.

SMALL PER CENT. FOR QUINCY.

Allowances Made for Loss of Taxable Property to City.

The cost commissioners, Messrs. Richardson, Clifford and Harriman, have made their report apportioning the cost of the metropolitan parks and boulevards among the 37 cities and towns in the district, and Quincy has no reason to complain as to the result.

The report gives the percentages only, and it is difficult to arrive at the exact assessment. But that of Quincy will probably be between $2,000 and $3,000 per year. The cost of the reservation was $2,300,000, and Quincy's per cent. is nearly $31,000, to be divided over forty years. To this is to be added a large item for interest, and more for maintenance. Quincy's portion of the cost of the boulevards is a little over $5,000, which is also divided over a term of years; and to which is also to be added interest and maintenance.

The LEDGER prints three paragraphs from the report to show in part the principles adopted in the determination of the apportionment. City Solicitor Blackmur in his arguments laid great stress on the fact that Quincy had lost a large acreage of taxable property, and the commissioners undoubtedly took this into consideration.

"We have in making our apportionment taken into consideration the valuation of the respective cities and towns which are to bear the burden imposed by the Legislature, because all taxation of a general public nature, whether levied for the benefit of the commonwealth, or counties, or cities or towns, is assessed upon property, with a single exception of the relatively insignificant tax on polls. As the acquisition and maintenance of these public reservations and the parkways connecting the same were declared to be for exercise and recreation of the people, we have taken into consideration the population of each of said cities and town.

"Since the several reservations differ in size and are located in various parts of the district, it is manifest that some of the cities and towns will receive greater benefits therefrom than others. It is also apparent that to some there is greater need of the reservations than to others. We therefore determined it to be just and equitable that such special benefits should be taken into account in making the apportionment.

"In the application of this rule, due allowance has been made for the losses which certain cities and towns in the district have sustained by reason of the taking for public purposes of taxable property within their respective limits. We have also taken into account the fact that several of the municipalities had, by parks, commons or other open spaces, provided places for the exercise and recreation of their inhabitants."

It appears from the report that Quincy will be called upon to pay between one and two per cent. of the cost and expense of the reservations, the exact figures being 1.358,944 per cent. Twelve of the 37 cities and towns must pay more and 24 less. Boston will pay 50 per cent., and 7 other cities collectively over 25 per cent., while 20 of the towns will each contribute less than one per cent. These latter include Braintree, Weymouth and Dedham.

For the boulevard and expenses of the same Quincy will pay a smaller per cent., 1.060,804. Fourteen cities must pay a larger per cent. Milton and Hyde Park, which contribute more to the payment for reservations will pay less for boulevards, while Medford Woburn, Winchester and Arlington, which contributes less for reservation, are assessed more for boulevards.

In the summary below the percentage for both reservations and boulevards are given, the cities being arranged according to the per cent. for reservations:

Company K Notes.

At the recent examination of candidates for corporal in Company K, M. V. M., Private Lowe of this city was the only one successful. The other candidates were Privates Gannon, Leslie, Fretchoff and Odom. A vacancy does not exist in the corporalcy at this time, but from the termination of enlistments many changes are probable in the company.

The company was pleased at the remarks of Col. Bancroft at the inspection, who said that the company was one of the best drilled in the regiment.

The annual tour of duty will be at Framingham the last week in July.

Serious Accident.

John Mullen of East Milton met with a serious and painful accident Monday. He was at work with a mowing machine to which was attached a balky horse. While he was engaged in fixing the machine the horse became unmanagable and before Mullen could extricate himself his leg was terribly mangled by the knives of the machine so badly that it is thought the member will have to be amputated. He is now at the Quincy City Hospital.

Wisdom In Furniture Buying.

It isn't everyone that knows the value of Furniture, know when they buy it right, know the difference between the substantial and worthy sort and the kind that is made to sell and not to use. But here is a store with a conscience, selling the very best goods that Yankee wisdom can manufacture, and what is best of all, is selling it at a price that wins your favor, and fills the purse of all who choose this store to trade in with money well earned and saved by shrewd and careful buying.

VERY INTERESTING FEATURE.

Resolved, That the New Education is Superior to the Old.

The closing argument of the debate at the High school graduation appears today.

The first argument advanced by the speaker on the affirmative might be answered in the words of a celebrated authority who said, "President Hopkins at one end of a log and a student at the other, constituted a college." Fine buildings have no real value in comparison with true education. Pictures, maps, busts, splendid laboratories and apparatus, become as toys and playthings, and are but a fruitful source of unnecessary expense. It would be very pleasant, without doubt, if every school were kept in palatial buildings, but it is far more to the purpose that the training received, be that which will rightly develop the mind and heart.

The good sense of the teachers of bygone days, when they obliged their pupils to learn thoroughly what they attempted, has already been made evident. One of this evening's debators has told us that the present system of education will never make children "parrot-like;"—the great fault of the old system. We agree most emphatically. Parrots usually learn thoroughly, what they attempt, and always retain it. We should be slow to vouch for the same condition of affairs among the children of the present day. One is almost tempted to ask if the natural retentiveness be not greatly lessened, rather than strengthened.

A speaker on the affirmative has further stated that corporal punishment was a necessary adjunct of the old system. Most cordial felicitations have been offered you who are now freed from such tyranny. It is a question, which strangely enough, people are wont to discuss time and again. And yet it is a question which was answered some thousands of years ago in the admonition of Soloman, "Spare the rod, and spoil the child." Record tells us that the principal characteristic of Soloman was his infallible wisdom, in fact that he was the wisest man who ever existed. It may not be amiss therefore carefully to consider this teaching, and the character of the philosopher, before congratulating oneself upon having reached any equilibrium of certainty upon the point.

From such considerations as these, come our apprehensions as to the education of the present day. We must admit, though it be reluctantly, the inferiority of our schools. We cannot but deplore, again, the training which is made up of many things and a real knowledge of nothing. That the world is awakening to an appreciation of this, argues with no small degree of certainty the happy event of its return to the true and tried methods of former days. ELLEN M. GREANY.

Miss Dyer's Lecture.

A large congregation gathered at Memorial church, Sunday morning, to listen to a lecture by Miss Annie Dyer, and were in no way disappointed. Her rare descriptive powers, her mastery of her subject, and her modest demeanor captivated every listener. No one would ever have supposed that this was her first attempt in this line, for she told the story of her last winter's tour of the Holy Land unusually well. She was royally greeted by the Christian Endeavorers at the close. The tenor solo, "The Hills of God," by Mr. Hersom added much to the service and showed well the rich tones of his excellent voice.

—Upon a petition of W. W. Burke the selectmen of Weymouth have issued a warrant for a special town meeting to be held Saturday evening, July 13, to act upon several articles involving the expenditure of considerable money. One article is to see if the town will instruct the selectmen to submit Chapter 370 of 1891 to the people, being the municipal lighting act. Another article calls for an additional appropriation of $10,000 for highways. Another for a park around Whitman's pond.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

OLD GRIST MILL.

Located on School Street for a Period of 187 Years.

Just at the foot of "Fort street in Quincy, where the Town brook courses under School street, was located the site of the ancient water mill, with the large tract of flowage land, granted in the year 1639-40, by the town of Boston to Richard Wright for the encouragement of a water mill at "Braintry." This mill and at least one other built upon the same site existed for a period of one-hundred and eighty-three years and ground the grists of Indian "corne" of the inhabitants for many generations.

Its upper and nether millstones supplanted the use of the mortar and the pestle of the Indians, by whom it is said, the first Plymouth settlers were taught the manner of cultivating the cereal. The title (or right) to this mill privilege (the flowage of which covered the meadow lands on either side of Water street, at its westerly end, and extended southerly, beyond the now Quincy line,) has vested from Richard Wright through successive owners, as follows:

Richard Wright,	1639-40 to 1644
Edward Gibbons,	1644 to 1653
Simon Lynde,	1653 to 1662
Thomas Gatliffe,	1662-3 to 1698
John Holbrook,	1668 to 1698
John Webb,	1698 to 1706
Peter Webb,	1706 to 1716
Samuel Savil,	1716 to 1761
Dr. Elisha Savil,	1761-2 to 1768
Heirs of Dr. Elisha Savil,	1768 to 1783
Elijah Veazie,	1783 to 1819
George Veazie,	1819 to 1822

Captain, later Major General, Edward Gibbons, the second owner of the mill, was a man of marked individuality and force of character. Prominent in civil, as well as in military affairs of the Province of Massachusetts Bay and beyond its borders he was distinguished for praiseworthy actions at times—and contrariwise, at times, perhaps not. Vide "Three Episodes in Massachusetts History."—C. F. ADAMS

Simon Lynde, the third owner of the mill was, before his arrival in Boston, a merchant in London, possessed of very considerable wealth. He was also the owner of Thompson's Island in Boston harbor.

Thomas Gatliffe, the fourth owner, had contention in the year 1662, with the town authorities relative to certain alleged rights appurtenant to the mill and as to ownership of other contiguous lands. An amicable settlement of the dispute was, however, soon effected. Mr. Gatliffe died intestate, and in the inventory of his estate, administered upon in 1663, his mill was scheduled as valued at £240.

Lieut. John Holbrook, the fifth owner, was an inhabitant of Weymouth. The original mill was destroyed by fire in the year 1674, during Mr. Holbrook's ownership, and it appears that he thereupon, probably with Christopher Webb, built another mill upon the site.

John Webb and Peter Webb respectively, the sixth and seventh owners, were inhabitants of Braintree.

Samuel Savil, "husbandman," was the eighth owner, acquiring ownership by deed from Peter Webb, dated January 29, 1716.

Dr. Elisha Savil (son of Samuel) was the ninth owner. Dr. Savil was graduated at Harvard university in the class of 1744. Thereafter he became a practising physician in his native town. Dying in 1768, of a sudden malady at the age of forty-four, his quaint epitaph to be seen in the old burying ground, runs thus:

"Among the sick I spent my time,
My flower of life; but in my prime,
A little after it was noon,
My sun, it set so very soon,
I had not time to take of you,
My dear sick friend, my last adieu."

Dr. Elisha Savil's homestead estate, of twenty acres, bordered westerly on the Mill Pond, so called. The proprietors whose lands were flowed in 1762 by Dr. Savil, were: Joseph Nightingale, Ebenezer Adams, Moses Belcher, John Adams, William Veazie, Peter Boylston Adams, of what is now Quincy, and Thomas Thayer of Braintree; and as showing the existence of slavery in Braintree as late as 1762, it appears that Dr. Savil's deed of the mill, etc., from his father, Samuel, covered the purchase of "a negro man." And again, the Doctor's father dying in 1761 provided in his will that his "negro man, named "Alta" if he should behave himself well, should receive his freedom twelve years after the decease of the testator!

Dr. Savil dwelt a neighbor of John Adams, and it was he who aroused the wrath of John Adams, by nominating him in town meeting, in 1761, for surveyor of highways. But it thereafter appeared that the doctor, with kind intent, did so to save Mr. Adams, then a young lawyer, from being liable to serve in the then abominated office of Constable. This being, that the "Constable" was required to collect the taxes, and he was responsible, (under bonds) for the whole of the "grand levy," whether he collected all or not.

The heirs of Dr. Savil were the tenth owners.

Lieut. Elijah Veazie was the eleventh owner: (The family of Veazie were for a long time members of the Episcopal church.)

Deacon George Veazie was the twelfth and last owner. The privilege was purchased of Deacon Veazie on December 26, 1822, by John Quincy Adams, Ebenezer Adams, Josiah Adams, George Faxon, Josiah Nightingale, et als, and it was then abandoned and the right of flowage ceased.

Dr. William S. Pattee's history recites the incident, that John Adams, when a boy, often trudged to this mill, carrying the grist of his favorite teacher.

Relative to the present location of the ancient millstones, that may have been in use in the original mill, is the statement of a gentleman, now well advanced in years, himself a son of one of the trio young amateur stone-cutters, who according to Dr. Pattee's history, succeeded in first splitting with wedges, a block of Quincy granite, in the year 1803.

This gentleman being in Quincy a few years since, after an absence from the town the greater part of his lifetime, stated, these millstones (which are still resting upon the Veazie estate) to be the original millstones that did service in grinding for the earliest inhabitants. Should the gentleman's statement be authenticated, our Historical society might desire to obtain and preserve them. LEWIS BASS.

A MARITIME FREAK.

NARROW ESCAPES FROM WATER-SPOUTS IN MEXICO.

A Traveler Relates Two Experiences He Had With These Twisting Terrors—A Congregation of Them, Each of Which Was Nearly 1,000 Feet In Height.

The narrowest escape I ever had was from a congregation of waterspouts. I was making a trip to some of the small islands in the gulf of Mexico, about 50 miles from Cuba, a spot famous for its waterspouts, and in the summer months there were few days that one or more were not seen. Generally a long, attenuated black cloud would appear, from which would drop a pendulous cloud. Lower it would descend, resembling the lower portion of a balloon, and when about half way to the water a corresponding figure would be seen rising to meet it. Finally the two would join, and the column, from 400 to 1,000 feet high, more or less, would move away before the wind, bending before it like a gigantic bow—a thing of terror, a frightful object of the sea.

I had been visiting an island about ten miles from our camp and was in a heavy sailboat—too heavy to manipulate by oars readily. When half way home, on the edge of the channel, the wind died completely away, and I noticed all about us a number of strange black clouds.

Watching them closely and commenting upon them to my man, I suddenly saw the ominous dropping of a pointed index finger not a sixteenth of a mile away. As I mentioned it my companion pointed behind me to another, and in less than five minutes five of these dread objects dropped from the clouds about us.

There was not a breath of air, and there was an ominous silence. Even the ever present gulls seemed to have deserted the place. We got out the oars and endeavored to pull, but the boat was too heavy, and we were compelled to await developments.

The cloud tips slowly dropped, and all about us mysterious columns rose up to meet them, until in a few minutes we were surrounded by these huge pillars, so that in one direction the heavens appeared to be supported upon these watery columns. A more remarkable sight cannot be imagined, and when they began to move we gave ourselves up for lost, as two appeared to be bearing down upon us.

As good luck would have it, they seemed to bring a breeze, and we were able to get under way, and, fortunately, escaped. The two giants came careering down upon us—a spectacle to demoralize the stout hearted. One passed not 200 feet away, rushing on with a noise like that of a steam engine. I could distinctly see the terrific twisting and whirling motion of the water, and for a large area about it there was what appeared to be a heavy rain.

The spouts began to move as soon as they were complete, and very soon assumed the bend or bow shape that characterizes them, and went sailing away. These giants were so tall that I could not venture to estimate their height. My companion said a mile high, and they certainly looked it; but they were under 1,000 feet.

My nearest approach to a waterspout occurred later, and dissipated some of the theories I had concerning them. One was that a spout was broken when touched or interfered with in any way, yet I saw this water giant cross an island.

I was lying in the sands near our camp one day when a lofty spout came into view from the south. It was heading directly for us, but we felt perfectly safe, as there was a large reef and long canal key between us. On came the column, passing the reef in safety, a grand spectacle, and every one in the island was seen watching it as it moved rapidly up the lagoon, its upper portions apparently lost in the clouds. If it had continued it would have passed between the two islands, and so reached the open sea, but for some reason its course was changed, and in a few moments it struck the island at an angle. We fully expected to see the whole mass drop, but it kept plowing up the sand, and soon struck a good sized schooner that had been hauled on the beach, whirling it about end for end like a feather. Then, to our consternation, the spout headed for our island, and with a great bow or curve rushed on.

The distance from island to island was a good rifleshot, and there was not much time to debate, as the spout was now half way across. Seeing that it was veering off and would probably not reach us, I ran out on to a sea wall and watched it. It gradually drifted to the south, and in a few moments struck our shoal with a roar like that of a locomotive.

As I looked up the top seemed a great canopy of water lost in the black clouds, down from which poured great drops which soon drenched me through. The center of the great curve I could not see at all for some singular reason, while the lower end or portion, now but 100 yards away, was rushing by me, a magnificent column of water, boiling and hissing like some living thing. I literally raced with it for the length of the wall, 600 or 800 feet, and had all I could do to keep pace with it.

The water of the shoal was but a few feet deep, and I found later that it cut a deep trench in it as it went along, the coral sand and mud looking as though a dredger had been at work. How long a spout can travel over the land I do not know, but not long. The bay over which this one passed was not over 300 feet at that place. The spout passed us, beating us in the race, and soon disappeared among the dark clouds on the horizon. As common as were these phenomena in this region, I never heard of a casualty, though from the above it will be seen that narrow escapes were not rare.—Cor San Francisco Call.

BETTER THAN THEY KNEW.

Founders of Our Institutions Could Not Foresee Our Greatness.

There has no doubt been a decline in the formal celebration of the Fourth of July. The people are less disposed than in former times to listen to spread eagle oratory glorifying the republic and recalling the heroism of its founders. There is less of the booming of cannon and the blare of brass bands, and such exuberance of feeling as finds expression in noise is mainly confined to boys of a smaller or a larger growth who take pleasure in the explosion of firecrackers. The general disposition is to make a joyous holiday and to indulge in excursions and picnics and the various forms of midsummer "outing."

This may be in part due to the sobering effect of national experience and of national maturity, which tends at once to make the people more confident of the strength of their institutions and more moderate in the expression of their pride. There is at the same time a more general understanding and appreciation of the achievements of other nations, a recognition of the advance that has been everywhere made by the principles of free government, and greater modesty in comparing ourselves with others. We have to admit that mistakes may be made under republican government, and that when the people are their own rulers they are liable to errors that bring serious penalties.

But as we pause at each new milestone in the career of the nation to take account of our progress and our prospects we have no occasion to humble ourselves among the nations of the earth or to moderate our gratitude for the brave work of the founders of our institutions. Could they have foreseen the results thus far of the great departure upon which they entered with so much solemnity, they would doubtless have felt less hesitation in taking the momentous step rather than more. They builded better than they knew and had little conception of the expansion and development which was possible upon the broad lines laid down by them. Their greatest distrust was of the capacity of the people for self government, but the faith upon which they acted has been fully justified, notwithstanding the unforeseen and unexpected commingling of heretogeneous foreign elements in our rapidly growing population.—New York Times.

SLEIGH RIDE ON THE FOURTH.

How a Queer Jerseyman Celebrated Independence Day.

"I recollect one cold day in winter," laughed Mr. Willis of Marlboro, N. J., "when Jonathan R. Schanck came over to my house to borrow a sleigh, but it was being used, and I told him in fun to call around for it on the Fourth of July. He thanked me politely and withdrew. Of course I never thought of it again.

"The winter passed, and the spring. Early summer came and went, and the Fourth of July found me busily superintending a gang of men in a hayfield. Suddenly I heard a crash and a jangle, and looking across the fields to the carriage house I saw four great white horses leap out of its door and start toward the road on a run. They were drawing my best sleigh, and in it sat old Jonathan R. Schanck, lashing them and yelling at the top of his voice.

"The heat was terrific, but the old man wore a heavy catskin overcoat. On he went, turning into the high road and starting over the hills. The sleigh jumped and bumped and swayed, leaping over a rustic bridge and crashing across stones, while sparks of fire flew from the runners until lost in a cloud of dust. I learned afterward that this midsummer Santa Claus appeared in New Brunswick, 15 miles away, in less than two hours."—New York Herald.

In the Wisdom of Maturity.

It may have been fitting that noise and general jollification and abandonment to "brag" were the prominent features of the Fourth of July of the boyhood of our nation, but we have reached our manhood days now and must put away the rattles and romps of children and consider and act as becomes those who have reached maturity and from whom the world rightfully expects and demands man's performance and resulting good for humanity.—Chicago Ledger.

The Fourth of July.

The anniversary of the Declaration of Independence continues to be the chief of American holidays. The Revolution recedes from us into the past, and its heroes are not the commanding figures and ideal characters they were before the civil war. But this day, commemorative of the first great step toward the establishment of a distinct and individual American nationality, remains fresh in the public regard.—New York Sun.

Bicycle Riding

The easiest riding wheel constantly jars the system—an easy sort of jar, maybe, but the kind that wears the vital organs. The greatest wear is on the Kidneys; constant jarring prevents their doing their work properly.

Buker's Kidney Pills

are a natural remedy and act on the Kidneys as sleep acts on the brain. They restore them to their functions and remove the dragging pains in the back. Backache and Kidney ache are tired aches, aches that indicate disease. The pills cost 50 cents at the druggists. Book about Backache, free.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Lack of Sunshine Has Made It Bad For Harvesting Hay.

Grain and Vegetables Improved by Rain.

Berries, Apples and Small Fruits Are Making Good Progress.

BOSTON, July 9.—The New England weather service, in co-operation with the agricultural department, issues the following bulletin for the week ending July 8:

The week proved a cloudy, showery one, except in the northern section, which, on the whole, was beneficial to all growing crops. Haying was, however, retarded. In sections where the one or two favorable days for haymaking were improved, it appears that it had been discolored and damaged to some extent before it could be housed. Showers fell on an average of four days out of the seven. Grain is reported as improved considerably. Vegetables have grown well during the week, but potato bugs are reported in several localities. Warm, dry weather is needed to complete haying, and for corn. Fruits are doing well, which might also be said of garden vegetables and berries. Pasturage is in excellent condition throughout the section.

Not Enough Rain.

Warm, cloudy weather prevailed in Maine during the week, with some light showers in the southern section on the 5th, 6th and 7th. Rains would be beneficial to all vegetation in the central and northern portions of the state. Haying has begun in some sections, but will not be general until the early part of this week. All growing crops progressed well during the week. Corn and grain are looking well, and in some sections correspondents say never looked better at this season of the year. Pasturage is in excellent condition. New potatoes are coming in. Potato bugs are reported by some correspondents as doing some damage to the vines. Strawberries are plentiful in Penobscot county, and other berries are promising.

Generally Favorable.

Cloudy weather with frequent showers retarded cutting of hay in the southern and central portions of New Hampshire, but is needed in the northern portion. Correspondents report only one or two good haymaking days in the week. Some hay was cut, but is reported damaged. The weather was beneficial to all growing crops. Pasturage has improved decidedly. Grass on high ground is light, but on low ground is looking decidedly better. It is, however, a light crop. Some correspondents report corn as above the average. Berries, except strawberries, which are all gone, appear to be plentiful, except in the northern portion of the state, where blueberries, now ripening, will not be an average crop. There are some reports from Cheshire county of blight attacking potatoes, but elsewhere in the state they appear to be doing finely. Apples are dropping badly in some sections. In Coos county grasshoppers are multiplying fast, but this appears to be the only section where they have been seen to any extent. Potato bugs are doing some damage in that county also.

Crops Looking Well.

Correspondents in Vermont report very little rain during the past seven days, and, although it is needed, state that all crops look well. Haying has begun in some sections, while in others it is one-third over. The general trend of correspondents' remarks is that it is of good quantity and quality. Potatoes are reported as doing well and having made good progress during the week. Corn is tasseling in some sections. Fruits, especially apples, are looking well. Mr. C. A. Sanders, Morrisville, states that "Early apples that we thought killed by the cold when in blossom show even better than ordinary." Pastures are in good condition and feed is plentiful, but flies are reported in some sections as very troublesome to cattle.

Sunshine Below Average.

The temperature was uniform, but below the normal, during the week. The rainfall was slightly in excess in amount, with from three to five days with showers. The sunshine was below the average, being about 50 per cent for the week. Rains in the eastern portion of the state retarded haying, but was beneficial to growing crops. A correspondent in Plymouth county reports that the week was "the worst for haymaking that we have had for some years." Such hay that is in is of poor quality. In the central and western portions of the state considerable hay is out, which will be injured in color, but correspondents are hopeful that it will not be otherwise injured. Haymaking appears to be the chief work of the farmers at present, and dry weather is needed during the coming week. Small fruits are ripening, and are said to be of a superior quality. Pears and grapes promise well. Apples are dropping badly in the eastern counties. Cherries, in the central portions of the state, are reported rotting, owing to the rains. Chestnuts are in full bloom, and a large yield is anticipated. The rains during the week were beneficial to garden truck.

Lack of Sunshine.

The rainy weather during the past week was beneficial to garden vegetables, but hay that was cut and not housed has suffered considerably from it. Warm, sunshiny days are needed to prevent corn from spolling.

Oat Crop Better Than Usual.

Rains were generally beneficial to growing crops, but haying was delayed. Part of the crop has been secured, but what is left, it is thought, will be better than expected earlier in the season. Rye will be cut during the coming week, and is of a good quality and promises a fair crop. Correspondents generally comment upon the oat crop, stating that it looks better than it has for several seasons. The pasturage is greatly improved by the wet weather. Corn and potatoes have been benefited during the past week, but several correspondents report potato bugs in abundance. Small fruits promise a fair crop. A correspondent in Franklin county reports that a minute rust-colored insect is attacking the leaves on the pear trees. Light rains were general during the week, averaging five days of the week. The sunshine was below the normal.

No Opposition.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—At a conference between iron manufacturers and the Amalgamated association yesterday, the bar and plate scale for the entire Pittsburg district was signed without opposition.

DAD CLARK'S TEMPER

Responsible For a Run Which Gave the Cubs the Game.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Dad Clark lost his temper and the game in the last half of the ninth. With men on first and second and two out, he threw the ball at Anson, who was coaching at third. Anson dodged and the base runners advanced. Fuller fumbled Wilmot's hot grounder, and the winning run came in.

"Very Dangerous."

LONDON, July 9.—Lock to Lock, a newspaper which is considered an authority on Thames rowing matters, says, in reviewing the prospects of the racing today: Cornell's style is different to ours; but any style is to be commended which applies strength at the right moment, and does so in perfect harmony. In all these essentials the Americans excel. It also believes they have sufficient stamina to negotiate this trying course, and label them—dangerous, very.

Killed His Father-In-Law.

LIVINGSTONE MANOR, N. Y., July 9.—Joshua Townsend, 65 years old, found his son-in-law, George Bretthauer, engaged in mowing down grass on his (Townsend's) property yesterday, and ordered him out of the field. Failing to drive him away, Townsend took a stick and threatened to whip him out. The two came to blows, and Bretthauer suddenly drew a pistol and shot Townsend dead. Bretthauer gave himself up.

Brady at His Old Tricks.

REDDING, Cal., July 9.—The Redding and Alturas stage was robbed yesterday two miles above Morley's station. Supervisor Bass and a lady passenger were not molested. The highwayman took the Wells-Fargo box and registered mail, containing, perhaps, $400. He is believed to be the veteran stage robber, Brady.

The Ohio Contingent.

CLEVELAND, July 9.—The Ohio delegation to the Christian Endeavor convention left this city for Boston this morning in two special trains. Both the special trains will run by the way of Niagara Falls, and pass through the White mountains, arriving in Boston tomorrow morning.

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

THE BIG DELEGATIONS

Add Many Thousands to the Floating Population of Boston.

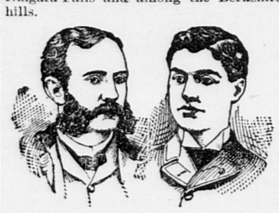

City Has Put on Her Best Bib and Tucker.

Everything Points to a Successful Convention of the Christian Endeavorers.

BOSTON, July 10.—The delegates and visitors to the Christian Endeavor convention have practically all arrived, and a conservative estimate places the number at 50,000.

Up to today most of the Endeavorers struck Boston in the shape of detached delegates who came by regular trains, but things were humming around the depots today on account of the arrival of the big delegations on special trains.

Every quarter of the globe is represented, one church sheltering visitors from Alaska, Mexico and Ohio. Delegates from Chicago—500 strong—representing a membership of 16,500 in that city, arrived today, after making short stops at Niagara Falls and among the Berkshire hills.

PRESIDENT CLARK. SECRETARY BAER

The first regular delegation of Christian Endeavorers to arrive in the city was the Cleveland delegation. They came in at the Union station about midnight. The white-capped knights of the reception committee and the knights of the crimson hue, upon whose caps was inscribed "Accommodation," were right on hand and ready to fulfill their duty. The delegation numbered 150, and were due by the Ontario express at 9:30 last night, but were late by several hours.

The regular state delegation from Ohio arrived at 5 o'clock this morning, and this numbered 500 or more.

The Montreal delegation of 300 arrived at 8 o'clock this morning, and the Wisconsin delegation of 2000, and at 10:20 700 arrived from Ontario. The Vermont delegation will come in two sections this afternoon, one of 300 over the Boston and Maine at 4:15 p. m., and another lot of 200 over the Fitchburg at 4:30 p. m.

And Still They Come!

At 10:20 a. m. a delegation of 10 arrived from Mexico over the Fitchburg road, and at 10:20 a. m. 200 from California.

At 10:20 a. m. 50 delegates arrived over the Fitchburg from Colorado, and the Chicago and state delegation from Illnois of 800 will come in over the same road about 4 p. m.

The St. Louis special, carrying the Texas delegations, has been heard from, and will probably reach here at 11:30 this morning.

The District of Columbia special was in Boston at 7 this morning.

The Buffalo special is so heavy that it was divided into two sections, the first of which arrived at noon today.

The missing South Dakota delegation has been located with the Minnesota delegation, and will arrive here about 6 o'clock this evening.

The Maryland delegation arrived by the New York and New England at 9 a. m. It is 85 strong.

The members of both reception and accommodation committees remained on duty all night, and the good work will be continued until every delegate has arrived and is safely quartered at the places assigned them. About 1000 of these members will be kept on duty all the time, and there is no reason why any one should go astray.

In Holiday Attire.

Boston is arrayed in her most beautiful garments. As the visitors enter the city, they cannot fail to be delighted at the beautiful decorations of the railway stations. In one or two cases these approach the superb, the national colors being intermingled finely with the crimson and white—the Christian Endeavor colors.

Upon many of the great buildings of the city, the homes of business thrift and enterprise, are seen outward decorations which have never been surpassed in elaborate arrangement, even upon important political occasions or national holidays. From roof to sidewalk many of these buildings are hung with the red and the white, while mottoes and inscriptions bid the visitors welcome.

In the windows of the shops throughout the city the presence of the visitors is recognized both in decorations as such and in the arrangement of goods displayed for sale. In many cases the decorative effect in these windows is exquisite in the extreme.

But the display is not confined to the shops where fabrics are sold. Scarcely a tradesman, whatever may be his wares, has failed to catch the popular spirit. And above and over all are seen the little flags of crimson and white, bearing the monogram of the Christian Endeavor society. In the shops of Christian, Jew and pagan it is alike displayed, proving that, for the time at least, difference of creed and religion are lost in a common brotherhood.

Ample Provisions.

The pie market is booming on account of the Christian Endeavor convention, and one baker alone is putting into his oven fully 1000 pies, daily, in excess of the usual demand. Boston lies within the pie belt, and its reputation is to be maintained at all hazards.

The supply of beef in Boston is ample for all demands which may be made during the week. The great dealers say that they are receiving a larger number than usual of special cuts, such as loins and ribs, in anticipation of the demands of the epicures among the Endeavorers.

Investigation shows that there is no foundation for the rumor of a milk famine, which has obtained some currency. At least from 3000 to 5000 gallons of milk beyond the average daily city supply have been engaged, the amount depending somewhat upon the weather. The contractors are of the opinion that their arrangements have been ample, and are confident of being able to supply the extraordinary demand for the week.

In point of police protection, the Christian Endeavor convention and the public generally will be given ample attention during this week. Superintendent Eldridge has asked all the large cities of the country to furnish special detectives to watch for pickpockets in the crowds. These officers arrived here yesterday and will be maintained at the expense of the city of Boston. None of the regular force of the city will be absent during this week, except on sick leave, so the city should be well guarded against criminal invaders.

The Society's Remarkable Growth.

Though one of the greatest religious movements the world has ever seen, the beginning was modest in the extreme. In the winter of 1880-81 there was a revival in the Williston Church, Portland, and many of the young people gave their hearts to God.

The pastor, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., and the older church members, were naturally anxious concerning these young disciples, and felt that great wisdom and care were necessary to keep them true to the Saviour during the first critical years of their discipleship. To fill the gap between conversion and church membership and to train these young people and set them at work was the problem.

After much prayer and thought, Dr. Clark invited the converts and others of the young people of his church to his house on the evening of Feb. 2, 1881, and after an hour of social intercourse presented a constitution which he had previously drawn up of the "Williston Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor."

It will be seen that the society was founded on necessity, and that it had a very definite field.

The authorship of the Christian Endeavor idea has been claimed for others. A western paper has stated that the Christian Endeavor idea was obtained from Rev. Edward Eggleston. This talented author once was pastor of a church called the Church of Christian Endeavor, but no organization like the present society ever existed in his church.

This society has also been said to have been modelled after a young people's society in Dr. Cuyler's church in Brooklyn. This most wise and eminent pastor did, indeed, have a vigorous young people's organization in his church, and the success of this effort inspired the belief that young people could be effectively organized for Christian work. But this admirable organization never had the special features of the Christian Endeavor society.

So far as careful search reveals, the distinctive features of the Christian Endeavor movement—the strict prayer meeting pledge, the consecration meeting, the rollcall, the variety of committee work and the duties of these committees—were characteristics of this organization alone, and, wherever adopted, have been copied from it.

At each of the international conventions of the Christian Endeavor societies it has seemed certain that the high water mark had been reached at last, but every year witnesses increased interest and greatly augmented crowds of delegates at the annual conferences.

Perhaps nothing so clearly shows the power and strength of the Christian Endeavor idea as these annual gatherings of the young people of all denominations from all over the world.

Not only has its growth been phenomenal, but its wide extension has also been wonderful. From country to country the idea has spread, until now there are Christian Endeavor societies in every country on the face of the globe, civilized or not, except Russia, Italy, Sweden, Austria, Greece, Belgium, Iceland and Greenland.

A Talk With President Clark.

The man who is primarily responsible for the hosts of delegates who are now visiting Boston, and in whose thought this entire Christian Endeavor movement had its origin, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., is probably the busiest man in Boston, but he took a few moments to speak of the convention that has already come to the city.

"You notice," he said, after some preliminary conversation, "that the delegates who have already arrived include several from other lands. In out treatment of the convention we must bear this thought in mind, for this is pre-eminently an international convention. All the delegates, from whatever part of the earth they may come, are on an equal footing.

"We have endeavored to have a fair representation of all the nationalities, as becomes hosts worthy of our home and reputation. You must think that our display of foreign flags is somewhat liberal, but I assure you it is as nothing compared with the treatment that has been accorded Christian Endeavorers visiting foreign lands.

"It was my privilege some time ago to visit many of the countries of the world in the interest of Christian Endeavor, and in most of these places, especially in England and Australia, the Stars and Stripes were shown fully as prominently as the native colors, and in many cases more so.

"Christian Endeavor is interstate, international, interracial, and most thoroughly interdenominational. Every evangelical denomination in America will be represented in this convention, so that you see we may well be called, as you say, a society of inters.

"It is more than likely," added Dr. Clark, "that there will be an opportunity for the public to attend the Thursday morning services, as many of the delegates do not arrive in time to attend this meeting."

Each delegate to the convention is presented with a map of the city, an official badge and a copy of the souvenir edition of The Golden Rule, a remarkably fine number of 68 pages.

LEANDERS NOT READY.

First Heat For Challenge Cup Won by Cornell by Default.

Decision Endorsed by the Board of Stewards.

Blame Heaped Upon Americans by Members of Disappointed Crew.

HENLEY, July 10.—The weather was cloudy in the early hours of the morning, and it was greatly feared that the principal feature of the Thames rowing season would be marred by rain; but the clouds lifted about 10 o'clock and the sun shone brightly, while there was a refreshing breeze all along the river. Last year the attendance at the aquatic derby was enormous, but yesterday's crowds eclipsed all previous gatherings.

Cornell was pitted against the crew of the Leander Boat club, composed of ex-Oxford and Cambridge oarsmen, and said to be the strongest on the river. There was some confusion at the start, owing to the presence near the starting line of a number of boats, which seriously interfered with Leander. Consequently, the latter were somewhat slow in getting into position. Then, when the umpire asked if the two crews were ready, Cornell promptly answered "Yes," and, the umpira claims, Leander did the same. This the Leanders deny.

In any case, the umpire gave the word "Go," and the Cornell crew shot away. But only half the Leander crew started, and their stroke protested that they were not ready. In spite of this, the umpire allowed Cornell to pull over the course, and awarded the Americans the race. The Leanders lodged a protest against the umpire's decision, and it was referred to the board of stewards.

The board of committee of stewards last evening issued the following statement: "The committee, while deeply regretting the most unfortunate misunderstanding at the start of the Cornell and Leander heat, feel they must abide by the laws of boat racing and cannot reverse the decision of the umpire and starter."

Vials of Wrath.

C. W. Kent, stroke of the Leander crew, said last night: "An English crew would never have gone on; had they any spirit of sport in them, they would row again. Every one on the umpire's boat was looking at the Americans. Our boat was pointing into the island, and half the men were backing water. I had my hand raised in the air toward the umpire, when he asked: 'Are you ready?' We all cried: 'No! No!'

"I do not think much of your American crew. Any other would not have gone on alone. I never saw such an unsportsmanlike thing before. The trouble was in getting the head of our boat pointed straight up the course. We had not heard the umpire say 'Go' when the mess was made. Any other college would have come back, but Cornell went on and won the race by the beastliest sort of a fluke."

Another member of the crew remarked: "We do not want any more such crews as Cornell." After hearing the decision of the committee of stewards, Kent cried out: "Well, I never want anything more to do with Americans or American crews."

"They are not sportsmen," said still another member of the Leander crew, "and are not wanted in England again. The only satisfaction is that they will get a good licking tomorrow." The general talk of the crew is all in the same tenor. The Cornell men get all the blame for the umpire's decision.

Is This "Sportsmanlike?"

There is much discussion and excitement at Henley over yesterday's incident, and a determined effort is being made by the Britishers, led by the Leanders, to place the Cornell crew in the wrong and put the whole responsibility for the outcome upon their shoulders. The Leanders and their sympathizers ignore the decision of their own umpire, which is upheld by last evening's decision of the stewards. The general cry is "D—n America and Americans!"

As a matter of fact, the Cornell crew are not only strictly within their rights, but, in view of the umpire's orders, they could not well have done otherwise. It would have been a pretty quixotic thing had they disobeyed the umpire and returned to the post; but, meantime, Leander would probably have gone on and won the race. It is the Leanders who are showing a most unsportsmanlike spirit, and in every way trying to discredit the Americans.

Cornells Are All Right.

Andrew S. White of Cornell said last evening in regard to this thing: "It is the greatest outrage that was ever perpetrated. The attempt to put the blame on our boys is a dastardly thing. They could only obey the umpire.

"You must remember that before the regatta we were warned on all sides to beware of the Leanders. 'They will do you in any way possible,' it was said. 'They will run you into the post, as they did the French crew last year.' In our hearts we believe that Leander went to the post determined not to race. We had the best position and had beaten their best time."

Mr. Francis, the Cornell manager, said in regard to the matter: "Our boys have done just right. It must be remembered that Leander is not the only crew we have to meet. Ever since we have been here we have been unfairly treated by the British press."

Umpire Frank Willan, after the meeting of the stewards last evening, said: "I could not do differently than send Cornell along. I, myself, and Mr. Goldie, my assistant, both saw that the crews were ready. I gave the word 'Go' and both seemed to start. Then came calls from the Leanders: 'No; we are not ready.' Had I ordered the Cornell crew back, they might say that because they were ahead at the start; the English umpire recalled them to favor their opponents."

This version of the occurrence can be confirmed by those who witnessed the race from the umpire's boat.

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE AIR seems purer today from the acceptance of the sewer act yesterday. The majority was larger than the most sanguine for the measure had dared to hope. It left no doubt that the voters had arrived at the conclusion that a sewerage system was necessary and could not longer be delayed. That they were ready to pay the increased taxes which its introduction would entail. Quincy is becoming a thickly populated city, but while it needs sewers in the residential sections, they are imperative in the business sections. The problem is solved, how to dispose of sewage, and many nuisances will be abated, and many improvements made.

The city government still has considerable responsibility on its hands, the Mayor to select three intelligent commissioners, and the City Council to determine the method of payment, whether by rentals or assessments. The introduction of sewers will cause many to pay the plumber a good bill, and also more for water, and if rentals would be less burdensome than the assessments that method of payment should be adopted. The columns of the LEDGER are open to all who desire to discuss the two methods, and other public questions.

WHAT ARE Quincy's prospects of being benefitted by Metropolitan boulevards? We know of no plans for any within the city or neighboring town. It is a little surprising, too, that the assessment upon Milton for boulevards is less than upon Quincy, only about one half in fact. Milton has a larger valuation.

John C. Ring Dead.

John C. Ring died on Tuesday, after a lingering illness, at the residence of his father on Washington street, Quincy Point. He was a travelling salesman for the clothing firm of Leopold Morse & Co., and esteemed by all. He was a graduate of the Dorchester High school. For some years he has been active in politics and a member of the Democratic committee, and has been a candidate for the City Council. He was in his 33d year. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning.

July Magazines.

Lippincott's for July contains the complete story, "A Social Highwayman," by Elizabeth Phipps Train, and a fine array of other interesting articles, among them "Railroad Invasion of Asia," by Charles Morrie.

July McClure's has finely illustrated articles on The Telegraph Systems of the World; Edward Kenneys, the Sculptor; The Rise and Overthrow of the Tweed Ring; Possibility of Life on Other Worlds; On the Engine of a London and Paris Express; The American Exchange Bank Robbery; etc., etc.

It is very fitting that the New England Magazine should devote a special article in its July number to the leaders of the Christian Endeavor movement. The frontispiece of the number is a fine portrait of Dr. Clark, the president of the society, and the article is full of portraits of men and women whom the young Christian Endeavor people delight to honor. The article is written by Rev. James Hill, one of the leading men of the movement.

The woman interested in her home will find much of value in Table Talk, the July issue of which is now before us scintillating with the latest recipes, menus, fashions, novelties and ideas which are a constant delight to the progressive housekeeper.

A LARGE MAJORITY.

655 Yes, to 202 No, for the Sewer Act.

ONLY ONE WARD OPPOSED.

Large Yes Vote in Centre, South Quincy and Wollaston.

The sewer act approved by the City Council of 1895, and passed by the Legislature this year, has been accepted by the voters. At the election Tuesday 862 votes were cast, of which 655 were "yes" and 202 "no," a majority of 453. Seven of the eight precincts were favorable to the act, the Quincy Point ward alone giving an adverse majority on a very small vote.

The Wollaston ward gave the largest yes vote and also the largest majority—190 yes to 12 no. The two precincts of South Quincy gave 4 more votes for the sewer than the Centre ward, but not as large a majority by 13. The big West Quincy ward did not give as large a majority as the little ward of Atlantic.

The vote of each ward and precinct is given below:

	Total	Yes	No	Blank and Defective
Ward 1	167	133	33	1
Ward 2	69	29	39	1
Ward 3-1	103	77	26	0
Ward 3-2	84	60	24	0
Ward 4-1	86	55	30	1
Ward 4-2	62	37	24	1
Ward 5	203	190	12	1
Ward 6	88	74	14	0
	862	655	202	5

The vote this year was only 166 larger than in 1891, but there has been a marked change in sentiment, as a comparison of the votes will show. In 1891 the Wollaston ward was the only one in favor. The vote of 1891 is appended:

	Total Vote.	Yes.	No.	Defective.
Ward 1,	113	50	62	1
Ward 2,	97	15	80	2
Ward 3,	112	39	73	0
Ward 4,	203	42	159	2
Ward 5,	141	89	47	5
Ward 6,	30	12	18	0
	696	247	439	10

Election Echoes.

When the time came for opening the polls in Ward Two on Tuesday, none of the Democratic election officers had appeared and the polls were not open. The first Democrat to appear was Patrick O'Neil, who came to vote before going to work in the trenches of the water department. He was immediately sworn in as an election officer and when he learned his pay would be $7.50 and a dinner his joy knew no bounds.

More Trips to Nantasket.

A new timetable will go into effect on the steamer City of Quincy today, the evening trip becoming a daily fixture, making four round trips on week days. On Sundays there is an additional noon trip This trip is now within the reach of a very large number of people, not only have all parts of Quincy connection by electric cars, but Boston, Milton, Brockton, Avon, Holbrook, Braintree, the Abingtons, Rockland, and the Weymouths. The round trip on the steamer is but 20 cents.

Match Shoot Saturday.

There will take place at grounds of Hingham Gun Club on Saturday afternoon, July 13, a match of one hundred birds, between Messrs. Howe, Henderson, Allison, and Breen, of the Hingham club, and Messrs. Federhen and Prescott, of the Wollaston club.

Some very good shooting may be expected.

Historic Gavel and Block.

The Boston delegates will present a historic gavel and block to the United Society of Christian Endeavor; the head from old Faneuil hall, the handle from a rail of a seat in the Old South church, and the block secured by a Quincy gentleman from the old State House.

Band Concert.

The residents of Canal street will give a return party tomorrow evening to their neighbors on Bigelow street, and have also secured the "Ward One playground." The band concert postponed from the Fourth of July will be given.

Missing Man Heard From.

Harvey Beede, who has been missing from Weymouth since Sunday, has been heard from. A telegram received states that he is at his uncle's in Dover, N. H. How he got there he does not know.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—There were 5000 people at Exposition park to see the two games between the Bostons and the Pittsburgs, and it is quite safe to say that the two contests will be long remembered. They were two scorchers. Each was won by one run, and each team won a game. The second one lasted 10 innings, and if the 5000 people did not get the worth of their money they never will in the baseball business.

FAULT OF ENGINEER.

Fearful Loss of Life by a Collision of Passenger Trains in Quebec.

QUEBEC, July 10.—A terrible accident occurred on the Grand Trunk railway at Craig's road station early yesterday morning, the result of which 13 persons were killed and 25 others more or less seriously injured, two of whom may die.

A large pilgrimage from Sherbrooke, Windsor Mills and Richmond had left the latter town about 10 o'clock Monday evening for the famous Catholic shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre. The train carrying the pilgrims was divided into two sections, one running a few minutes behind the other.

The first section reached Craig's road about three o'clock, and stopped at the tank to take water. Due precautions were taken, and the semaphore was thrown to mark "Danger" against the following train. Only the trainmen were astir. The Pullman in the rear was wrapped in silence and the sleepers all unconscious of the terrible fate that was rushing upon them.

Suddenly the second section, which had passed the semaphore at full speed, dashed into the rear Pullman of the first section. The engine embedded itself in the sleeper, and the latter plunged forward and partially telescoped the car next in front.

Every berth in the sleeper was filled, and many of the occupants were killed as they slept. Others awoke to their horrible surroundings, maimed, bleeding and bruised, conscious of little else but the agony that racked them. It was a terrible scene. The cries and moans of the wounded and dying pierced the air on all sides, while as a canopy that served as a veil to the tragedy the steam from the shattered engine rose in clouds that blinded all observation for the time being.

The reason why the second section did not observe the danger signal will probably never be known, as both the engineer and firemen were killed. It is believed, however, that the engineer, McLeod, had fallen asleep at his post. No other explanation seems possible, as there evidently had been no attempt made to stop the speed of the onrushing train.

On Manitoba's Account.

OTTAWA, July 10.—A ministerial crisis has developed in the Dominion parliament over the Manitoba school question. Ministers Ouimet, Caron and Angers, are the only French Canadians in the cabinet, and they were said to have resigned on account of the government's policy of delay in the matter of remedial legislation for Manitoba. Yesterday afternoon in the house of commons, Wilfred Laurie (Lib.) moved as a resolution, a want of confidence in the adjournment of the house, claiming that the resignation of the French ministers indicated that dissensions in the government made it unworthy to carry on the affairs country. This resolution was voted down by 111 to 72. The Liberals expected the French Conservatives to vote against the government, but only one of them voted with the Opposition. It is understood that Messrs. Ouimet, Caron and Angers will reconsider their decision, and will withdraw their resignations, which have not been accepted.

Easy on Debs.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Judge Woods has reinstated his former order making concurrent the sentences of Eugene V. Debs and other officials of the American Railway union. As a result, Debs will serve but six months in jail, and his associates but three months.

All Is Serene.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 10.—Captain Lyons has ordered all the troops of the Second regiment to be dismissed, under instructions from the governor. No further trouble in the mining region is anticipated.

Still Dropping.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Wheat went down grade at a dizzy pace yesterday, ending with a loss of 5⅛ for the day, making the sensational decline of over 8 cents within the last two days.

Stole $20,000.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 10.—W. B. Lysle, bookkeeper of Ingersol & West, commission merchants, has disappeared, and a shortage of over $20,000 in his books has been discovered.

Whole Family Drowned.

PENN YAN, N. Y., July 10.—Perry Tufft, his wife and three children lost their lives by the capsizing of a sailboat yesterday on Lake Keuka.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Invigorating today.

Quincy sends about 300 delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention.

A Boston paper has it that Quincy has adopted the Metropolitan sewer act.

Christian Endeavor flags are flying from the trolleys of the Quincy electric cars.

William S. Osborne is at Nantucket this week enjoying the centennial celebration.

Four household furniture advertisements by three different auctioneers, appear in today's paper.

The eight Quincy men employed as laborers on the Metropolitan Park reservation have been discharged.

Mrs. Hazen E. Ricker and sons and Miss Osborne spent Tuesday at Plymouth. Strange to say it did not rain there.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Sayward and family have returned from a very pleasant outing at Smith's Inn, Cornish, Me.

The chapel of the Centre Congregational church is very prettily decorated because of the Christian Endeavor convention.

Fifty cents for a round trip by water from Quincy to Rockport on Thursday is an opportunity that should not be missed.

Real Estate Agent Johnson sold today two lots of land on Glencoe place, property of T. A. Whicher, to the Glencoe Granite Co.

Mr. C. E. Finch, principal of the Prattsville school, Meridan, Conn., has been appointed principal of the Wollaston school.

There will be an exhibition of the Emergency hand fire extinguisher on Granite street tonight at 8 o'clock, in rear of Hotel Greenleaf.

Mrs. W. N. Eaton, Col. and Mrs. A. B. Packard, Mrs. Whittemore and Mrs. Andrew Dunbar, are on a trip to the White Mountains.

The tennis house on Bigelow street partially destroyed by fire on the morning of the Fourth of July has been demolished and removed.

Ex-Councilman George F. Pinkham, one of the most active workers for the sewer, is suggested as one of the commissioners. It would be a good appointment.

It seems an effort was made by the Christian Endeavorers to have a pilgrimage to this city, but so many cities were anxious to entertain the delegates that the time was well occupied.

The LEDGER bulletined the result of the sewer election promptly yesterday afternoon; that of Ward One within fifteen minutes of the closing of the polls, and that of the whole city in an hour.

The Universalist Sunday School picnic will be held at Lovell's grove tomorrow, Thursday. There will be a special car from the church at 10 o'clock, to accommodate the scholars and others who may wish to go at that hour.

BOYS WANTED TO SELL The Daily Ledger.

THE SEWER ACT.

Full Text of the Act Accepted by the Voters Yesterday.

Those who have not taken an interest in the sewerage question, may be interested now that the act has been accepted, and the LEDGER publishes the bill in full:

An Act to authorize the City of Quincy to construct a System of Sewerage.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

SECTION 1. The city of Quincy is hereby authorized to adopt and construct from time to time a system or systems of sewerage and sewage disposal, substantially in accordance with general plans which may be adopted by the city council of said city and approved by the state board of health and is authorized to connect all or any of said systems of sewerage with the sewers or sewerage system or systems of the city of Boston, the town of Hyde Park, the town of Milton, or of the Metropolitan district, for the purpose of disposing of sewage through the same; and is authorized to make contracts with said city, towns or districts for that purpose, or to contract with the town of Milton to furnish a sufficient outlet for the sewerage systems of said town; and in such case said town shall have and may exercise within said city of Quincy all the powers prescribed in section three thereof, so far as necessary to unable it to connect its sewerage systems with the sewerage system of Quincy. The compensation to be paid by said town, after the first five years, for furnishing such outlet, if not agreed on, shall be fixed at intervals of five years, by three commissiners to be appointed by the supreme judical court, to which court their award shall be returned. The exclusive authority to construct, lay, maintain, repair, alter and operate all sewers and drains embraced within such system or systems, and such other works as may be required to be constructed, maintained and operated for a system of sewage disposal for said city of Quincy, shall be vested in a board of sewerage commissioners, to be appointed as hereinafter provided: provided, however, that said commissioners from time to time, whenever any section of said system or systems is completed and put in successful operation, shall, upon request of the mayor, transfer the management, operation and control of the same to the commissioner of public works of said city of Quincy; and thereafter said commissioner shall have exclusive authority to maintain, repair, alter and operate such section; and provided, further, that whenever said system or systems shall be substantially completed and put in successful operation said commissioners, upon written request of the mayor, shall transfer the same to said commissioner of public works; and thereupon the powers of said board of sewerage commissioners shall cease and all of its powers shall be vested in, and all of its duties imposed upon, said commissioner of public works. Said commissioners shall make all contracts for the above purposes in the name and behalf of the city of Quincy, but no contract shall be made by them which involves the expenditure of money not already appropriated for the purpose by the municipal government of said Quincy.

SECTION 2. Said board shall consist of three commissioners, who shall be citizens of said city of Quincy and shall be appointed by the mayor as soon as practicable after this act shall have been accepted by the voters of said city of Quincy as hereinafter provided; they shall hold their offices respectively until the expiration of one, two and three years from the first Monday in February next proceeding their appointment, and until their respective successors have been appointed and qualified, unless they shall sooner resign or be removed for cause as hereinafter provided; and thereafter in January in each succeeding municipal year one peron shall be so appointed a member of said board, who shall hold office for three years from the first Monday in February next ensuing and until his successor has been appointed and qualified, unless his duties are sooner terminated as hereinafter provided. Appointments to fill vacancies which may occur by death, resignation or otherwise shall be made without delay by the mayor, and he may remove any sewerage commissioner from office for the causes and in the manner provided in section twenty-seven of chapter three hundred and forty-seven of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-eight. Said commissioners shall have such office room and clerical assistance and shall receive such compensation as the city council from time to time may determine.

SECTION 3. Said board of commissioners, acting in behalf of said city of Quincy, shall have full power to take by purchase or otherwise, for the purposes aforesaid, any lands, flats, water rights, rights of way or easements in said city of Quincy necessary for the establishment of such system or systems of sewerage and sewage disposal, and for main drains and common sewers, if any, not included in such system or systems, together with the outlet or outlets for the discharge of the sewage into tide water, and the connections therewith; and may divert streams or water courses, many construct sewers under or over any water course, street, bridge, enbankment, railroad, highway or other way, in such manner as not unnecessarily to obstruct the same, and may enter upon and dig up any private land or street for the purposes of laying such sewers beneath the surface thereof, and of maintaining and repairing the same, and may do any other thing necessary or proper in executing the purposes of this act.

SECTION 4. Said board shall, within thirty days after its selection of any lands, flats, water rights, rights of way, easements or other property to be purchased or taken under this act, file or cause to be recorded in the registry of deeds for the county of Norfolk a description thereof sufficiently accurate for identification, with a statement of the purpose for which the same are taken or purchased, which description and statement shall be signed by said commissioners, and the fee or title of the land or property so taken or purchased shall thereupon vest in the city of Quincy; and the date of such filing or recording shall be deemed the date of the taking. Said city of Quincy shall be liable to pay all damages that shall be sustained by any person or corporation by reason of said taking, such damages to be ascertained and determined in the manner provided in the general laws in regard to ascertaining and determining damages in case of the laying out, altering or discontinuing highways.

SECTION 5. In every case of a petition for the assessment of damages or for a jury said city of Quincy may at any time file an offer in writing with the other papers in the case, to pay the petitioner a sum therein specified as damages, and if he does not accept the same within ten days after notice of such offer and does not finally recover a greater sum than that offered, not including interest from the date of the offer on the sum so recovered, the city shall recover costs from said date, and if the petitioner does not recover damages in a greater sum than that offered as aforesaid he shall be entitled to costs only to the date of the offer.

SECTION 6. Said city of Quincy shall, in respect to all work and structures in tide water below high water mark, be subject to the provisions of chapter nineteen of the Public Statutes and of all acts in amendment thereof, so far as the same are applicable to the subject-matter of this act.

SECTION 7. Said board shall make a semi-annual report of its proceedings and expenditures to the city council, and shall make further reports when requested so to do by the city council. Said commissioners shall cause to be made and retained in their office, at the expense of the city, complete plans and descriptions of all sewers and drains composing said system or systems, or otherwise belonging to the city, and shall keep a true record of the charges of making and repairing the same and of all the assessments thereof.

SECTION 8. The city council of said city of Quincy may by vote determine what proportion of the cost of said system or systems of sewers said city of Quincy shall pay: provided, that it shall not pay less than one-third nor more than one-half of the whole cost. The remaining cost of said system or systems shall be borne by the owners of estates situated within the territory embraced by it and benefited thereby, but no estate shall be deemed to be benefited unless or until a sewer is constructed into which it can be drained. Assessments or charges for defraying said remaining cost shall be made on the owners of such estates by said commissioners in such manner as the city council of said city of Quincy may by vote determine, in accordance with the provisions of chapter fifty of the Public Statutes and acts in amendment there of and in addition thereto; and every such owner shall within three months after written notice of such assessment or charge, served on him or on the occupant of his estate, or sent by mail to the last address of said owner known to said commissioners, pay the sum so assessed or charged, to the city treasurer; provided, that said board shall, on the written request of any such owner made within said three months, apportion such assessment or charge into such number of equal parts or instalments, not exceeding ten, as said owners shall state in such request, and they shall certify such apportionment to the assessors; interest from the date of said apportionment at the rate of five per cent. per annum shall be added to each of said assessments or charges until they are paid, and one of said parts shall be added by the assessors to the annual tax on such estates for each year next ensuing until all said parts have been so added, unless sooner paid, as hereinafter provided; and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the payment at any time in one payment, notwithstanding its prior apportionment, of any balance of said assessments or charges then remaining unpaid, but interest on such balance at the rate of five per cent. per annum shall be paid to the date of such payment; and thereupon the city treasurer shall receive the same and shall certify such payment or payments to the assessors, who shall preserve a record thereof. In cases of corner lots and lots abutting on more than one sewered street the same area shall not be assessed more than once.

SECTION 9. An assessment of charge made under the provisions of section eight shall constitute a lien upon the estate, which shall continue for three years after it is made and notice served as above-provided, or in case of apportionment, until the expiration of two years from the time the last instalment is committed to the collector; and said assessment or charge together with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum may, with incidental costs and expenses, be levied by sale of such estate or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to discharge the assessment or charge and intervening charges, if the assessment or charge is not paid within three months after service of said notice, or if apportioned, within three months after any part has become due. Such sale and all proceedings connected therewith shall be conducted in the same manner as sales for the payment of taxes; and real estate so sold may be redeemed the same as if sold for the non-payment of taxes, and in the same manner. Such assessment or charge or parts thereof may also be collected by an action of contract in the name of the city of Quincy against the owner of said estate, brought at any time within three years after the same has become due.

SECTION 10. Any person aggrieved by such assessment or charge may, at any time within three months after service of the notice mentioned in section nine of this act, apply to the superior court of said county for a jury to revise the same, but before making such application he shall give fourteen days' notice in writing of his intention so to do to the commissioners, and shall therein particularly specify his objection to the assessment or charge, to which specification he shall be confined before the jury.

SECTION 11. All the provisions of chapter fifty of the Public Statutes and of acts in amendment thereof or in addition thereto pertaining to sewers and drains, not inconsistent with this act, shall apply to the city of Quincy in carrying out the provisions of this act.

SECTION 12. The city of Quincy, for the purpose of paying the necessary expenses and liabilities incurred under this act, may incur indebtedness and may issue from time to time as may be required therefor, bonds, notes or script to an amount not exceeding four hundred thousand dollars outside the limit of indebtedness fixed by law for said city, and the provisions of section four of chapter twenty-nine of the Public Statutes, as amended by chapter three hundred and twelve of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-five shall not apply to any debt created under the authority conferred by this act. Such bonds, notes or script shall bear on their face the words, Quincy Sewerage Loan, shall be payable within such periods, not exceeding forty years from the issuing of such bonds, notes or script, respectively, and bear interest payable semi-annually at such rate, not exceeding five per cent. per annum, as the city council may determine. The city of Quincy may sell such securities, or any part thereof, from time to time, at public or private sale, or pledge the same for money borrowed for the purposes of this act, provided that they shall not be sold or pledged for less than the par value thereof; and said city shall retain the proceeds thereof in the treasury, and the treasurer shall pay therefrom the expenses incurred for the purposes aforesaid; but the premiums, if any, received on the sale of such bonds, notes or scrip shall be paid over to the board of sinking fund commissioners and be placed in the sinking fund of said city of Quincy, created for the payment of the loan herein authorized; or, in case said sinking fund is not established as hereinafter provided for, shall be applied to the reduction of the principal of said debt, either by the purchase and retirement of a portion of the outstanding bonds or by the payment of bonds at maturity.

SECTON 13. The receipts from annual rates, assessments, and payments made in lieu thereof, under this act shall, after deducting all charges and expenses for and incident to the maintenance and operation of said system or systems, be applied first to the payment of the interest upon said bonds, notes or scrip issued under the authority of this act, and the balance shall be set apart to meet the requirements of the sinking fund for the payment and redemption of said bonds, notes or scrip, as provided in section nine of chapter twenty-nine of the Public Statutes, or shall be applied by said city of Quincy to extinguish said debt if said sinking fund is not established. If the surplus net income from said rates, assessments, and payments made in lieu thereof, shall in any year be insufficient to pay the interest on said bonds notes or scrip, and to meet the requirements of law either as to said sinking fund as hereinbefore provided, or as to the annual proportionate payments hereinafter provided for, then in such case said city of Quincy, to meet said deficiency, shall raise forthwith by taxation, in the same manner as money is appropriated and assessed for other city purposes, such sum as will together with said net income be sufficient to meet said requirements of law. Said sinking fund shall be used for no other purposes than the payment and redemption of said debt. Except as herein otherwise provided the provisions of chapter twenty-nine of the Public Statutes and of chapter one hundred and twenty-nine of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-four shall, so far as applicable, apply to the issue of such bonds, notes or scrip, and to the establishment of a sinking fund for the payment thereof at maturity. If in any year said surplus net income shall be in excess of the sum necessary to pay said interest and to meet the requirements of the sinking fund for said year, or of the annual proportionate payments hereinafter provided for, the surplus together with any other amounts appropriated from time to time by said city of Quincy for the payment of said principal sum, shall be added to said sinking fund or be applied to the reduction of the principal of said debt, either by purchase and retirement of a portion of said indebtedness or by the payment of the same at maturity. All bonds, notes or scrip of said city of Quincy purchase for redemption or retirement under this act shall be cancelled. The sinking funds of any loan of said city of Quincy may be invested in said bonds, notes or scrip.

SECTION 14. Said City of Quincy instead of establishing a sinking fund may by vote provide for such annual proportionate payments of said indebtedness as will extinguish the same within the time prescribed in this act, and the provisions of chapter one hundred and thirty-three of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-two, except as herein otherwise expressly provided shall, so far as applicable, apply to said annual appropriate payments. In determining the amounts of the several annual payments to be made under this section account shall be taken in each year of the aggregate sums already received from the owners of benefited estates by way of anticipation of the parts or instalments accruing under said assessments. Each of said annual payments to be made under this section shall be such and only such as shall, at the time the money therefor is appropriated, appear to the city council of the city of Quincy to be sufficient, when added to the other like annual payments and the several instalments or parts of assessments then unpaid, to discharge the entire indebtedness at maturity, assuming that the several instalments to fail due in the future will be paid as the same mature, respectively, and not before; but from year to year as it may be found that parts or instalments of assessments have been paid in anticipation of their respective dates of maturity the aggregate sums actually paid into the city treasury of said city of Quincy up to the year in question shall be taken into account in fixing the proportionate payments to be made by said city during that year and subsequent years.

SECTION 15. So much of chapter three hundred and forty-seven of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-eight and acts in amendment thereof as is inconsistent with the provisions of this act is hereby repealed.

SECTION 16. This act shall be submitted for its acceptance to the qualified voters of the city of Quincy, and shall be void unless such voters, voting in their respective wards or precincts at a legal meeting called by order of the city council in the same manner as meetings for municipal elections are called, shall, before the first day of January in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, determine by a majority of ballots to accept the same.

SECTION 17. So much of this act as authorizes the submission of the question of its acceptance to the legal voters of said City of Quincy shall take effect upon its passage, but it shall not take further effect unless and until accepted, as hereinbefore provided, by the qualified voters of said city of Quincy; and the number of meetings called for the purpose of its acceptance shall not exceed three in any year.—[Approved April 17, 1895.

HER LETTER

TELLS A WOMAN'S STORY.

Written for Eyes of Other Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

There is inestimable pleasure in doing good to others, and joy in a grateful recognition of the act.

On the old York Road, Huntington Park, Philadelphia, dwells Miss M. Downs, whose portrait we give. She desires that her case may be stated as a means of benefiting others. She says: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of Kidney trouble, painful menstruations, and headaches. It is truly a wonderful medicine. I cannot describe my feelings before I took it. The pain in my back was dreadful, and during menstruations the agony I suffered nearly drove me wild; and then my head would ache for a week, and now this is all over, thanks to your good remedy. I trust my testimonial will lead others to take it and be cured. They can find it at any drug store. Our druggist says the demand for it is very large, it is helping so many sickly women."

FOURTHS OF LONG AGO

SOME OLD TIME CELEBRATIONS IN HISTORIC BOSTON.

In 1877 the General Court Gave Orders For the Observance of the Day—Four Hogsheads of Free Punch In 1810—Man and Bear Fight on the Common.

The files of old eastern newspapers contain descriptions of striking celebrations and queer events which have occurred on the natal day of the nation. The following, taken from the yellow and musty files, were reproduced in the Boston Globe, in the language of those who witnessed the scenes and incidents:

July 4, 1777, was noticed by every mark of joy. In the forenoon the Rev. Dr. Gordon of Roxbury, at the desire of the assembly, sitting here, preached an excellent discourse from I Kings, xii, 15, after which the general court, having given previous orders for making every preparation for drinking success to the 13 United States, sent an invitation to General Heath and the officers of the continental army and navy, and many other gentlemen. While "The Congress" and other toasts were drunk the guns of Fort Hill, Castle Island, Hull and the vessels of war in the harbor fired a grand salute.

July 4, 1795, there was great excitement in Boston. The Jay treaty of amity, commerce and navigation between the United States and Great Britain had just been concluded. The people of Boston believed that our rights would be surrendered if the treaty were ratified. Petitions for mass meetings to denounce the action of Mr. Jay were being circulated on the streets during the celebration.

July 4, 1801, was a time particularly calculated to excite the most intense patriotic memories and emotions. The informal but vigorous war with France had scarcely ceased. The young republic's merchant marine was between the fires of what has been of late termed French "spoliation," and British aggression and confiscation of ships and imprisonment of seamen. Then, too, the Mediterranean pirates were to be attended to, and the preparation of a fleet for the purpose of bringing the "Barbary rovers" to task occupied attention.

All the bells were rung, flags displayed, salutes fired by the artillery, by the Constitution and Boston frigates, Fort Independence and by the French corvet Berceau, which last was fancifully decorated with colors.

The cadets, under Colonel Welles, as usual, did the escort duties of the day.

The fusiliers, under Captain Brazer, paraded, performed a variety of evolutions and firings with intelligence and exactness and dined together at Dorchester.

July 4, 1806, there was a man and bear fight on the Common. The reporters of the day failed to record the number of rounds or the winner.

July 4, 1810, the town furnished four hogsheads of punch, free to all.

July 4, 1822, from dawn till nearly midnight was a jubilee, and the entire population of the city, "clad in their best attire," were in the streets or on the Common, visiting the various decorated halls or witnessing the parade of military corps of horse and foot, and numerous processions, and no scene of tumult or indecorum was anywhere to be seen.

His excellency the governor held the usual levee in the senate chamber. Among those who called to pay their respects were the consul of the king of France, John Jacob Astor of New York, Chief Justice Parker, Rev. President Kirkland of Harvard university, the Society of Cincinnati in a body (about 20 of the remnant of the Massachusetts line of the Revolutionary army were present on the occasion), Brigadier General Sullivan and the officers of the Third brigade, First division (the officers were in very neat and mostly in new and rich uniforms and were upward of 100 in number), members of the senate and house, mayor, aldermen, clergymen and the officials of the Mechanic Charitable society.

The Society of the Cincinnati held their annual meeting at the Exchange Coffee house, and 24 gray haired veterans of the Revolution and their sons sat down to the dinner. The president of the society read a letter from the Marquis Lafayette, and a toast was drunk to the health of the Frenchman.

July 4, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary. The Centinel appeared in mourning and printed this introductory note:

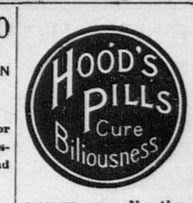

"An extraordinary occurrence makes it a duty to give our columns the respectful garb of mourning, although they are devoted to the records of the most festive celebration of our country's independence since the interesting era of 1776. Near the close of the celebration today the venerable John Adams, the senior surviving signer of the immortal Declaration, and one of the committee which reported it, amid the aspirations of millions in grateful memorial of his services and thanksgiving for the long continuance of his patriarcal life, was translated from this to a better world. For many, many years he had been the surviving father of his country, and having on the decease of his great predecessor clothed our journal in weeds of mourning no consideration can induce us to omit the same prompt and respectful honors to the memory of his early associate and constant friend."

Meanwhile, but unknown in Boston on the day of the celebration, Thomas Jefferson, another ex-president of the United States and another signer of the Declaration of Independence, had died at Monticello. The fact was not published in the newspapers in Boston until July 12.

July 4, 1831, died another ex-president of the United States, James Monroe. His death, however, did not interfere with the celebration, for it was not known in Boston until the arrival of the steamboat mail at noon on July 6.

July 4, 1838, last feast paid for by the state.

A DIPPER OF VITRIOL

Was Intended For the Face of a Grocery Clerk of Dedham.

Miss Milliken Said to Have Been Deceived.

Donned Male Apparel, It Is Alleged, to Carry Out Her Design.

DEDHAM, July 10.—A case of vitrol throwing has stirred up this quiet little town. It happened in this way:

Joseph V. Daly, a clerk in the employ of T. P. Murray, grocer, was on Milton street receiving orders when, near the Four Corners, his team was approached by a slim-built, well-bearded man, who accosted him with: "Will you please give me a ride, sir?"

The man by this time reached the side of the wagon, and, with a quick, upward motion, launched the contents of a dipper directly toward Daly's face. Daly threw up his arm, and the liquid struck the sleeve and side of his coat and hat. Dropping his arm, he caught up his whip and urged his horse into a run.

As the horse galloped down the street the man pulled out a revolver and discharged two shots after Daly, neither taking effect, although the bullets whistled close to his head. After firing the shots the person who fired them, and whom Daly recognized as Miss Mary Milliken, and false beard, hurried away in the direction of her house, on the same street.

Disguised In Man's Apparel

The contents of the dipper proved to be vitriol, and Daly considers himself fortunate to have escaped with nothing more serious than a ruined suit.

Later Daly swore out a warrant for the arrest of Miss Milliken, and she has been summoned to appear in the local court to answer to a charge of assault. She is 22 years of age. Miss Milliken stoutly claims that she did not make the assault alleged against her, and that she was at home at the time it was said to have happened.

The motive for the assault, if it can be proven Miss Milliken made it, no doubt lies in the charge she has brought against Daly, to the effect that he is the father of her unborn child.

This charge Daly denies, and he is now under $300 bonds for trial at the next term of the superior court at Dedham.

Sound Advice.

PORTLAND, July 10.—The second day's session of the convention of the American Teachers' Institute of Instruction was largely attended. Rev. Dr. Thwing, president of the Western Reserve university and Adelbert college, spoke upon "What More Can the American College Do to Help American Life?" Dr. Thwing thinks that all American colleges devote too much attention to athletics, and that the manner of living among collegians is too luxurious. True patriotism should also be taught, and the students should be instructed to understand the democratic principles on which our government is based and live up to these principles. Dr. Thwing also counseled that something be done to cheapen the cost of education, so that every poor boy and girl could take university courses without their parents making too many sacrifices.

Nantucket's Celebration.

NANTUCKET, July 10.—The first day of Nantucket's bicentennial celebration proved a grand success, despite atmospherical drawbacks, and the events were carried out as arranged. The historical exercises in the North Congregational church were given before a great audience. Rev. C. E. Hussey spoke on "Nantucket in its palmy days," Miss Anna Gardner on the "Anti-slavery history of the island," and original poems were read by Miss Emma L. Nickerson, Rev. Walter Mitchell and Mrs. Elizabeth Starbuck. In the afternoon several addresses were given. The music was a special feature. Last night an elaborate banquet with postprandial exercises was held at the rink.

A Postponement.

BOSTON, July 10.—The protestants presented only one witness in opening the frozen herring protest hearing yesterday, and he was Captain Nickerson of the fishing schooner N. E. Simons, also the protestant, and to his appearance the government objected. Consequently the hearing was postponed until September.

Fletcher to Raise Wages.

PROVIDENCE, July 10.—The Providence National and Saranac mills, controlled by Charles Fletcher, yesterday posted notices granting an increase in wages to take effect the first Monday in August. The weavers will receive an increase of 7 per cent and the other departments 5 per cent.

Jackknife Secured Liberty.

BIDDEFORD, July 10.—Arthur Cote and William Lachance, who were confined in the police station on a charge of breaking and entering, escaped from their wooden cell yesterday afternoon by cutting their way out with a jackknife. They have not been captured.

Order Is Growing.

FITCHBURG, July 10.—Sons of St. George of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts held a convention here yesterday. Reports showed a membership of 2939 on May 31, with total funds of $38,758.27. Two new lodges were organized during the year.

Both Skedaddled.

LYNN, July 10.—D. W. Gregware of Salem was held up by a lone highwayman here last night. He refused to give the man 10 cents, and the latter drew a revolver and fired one shot. No booty was secured, as both men ran in opposite directions.

To Return to Work.

NORTH BILLERICA, Mass., July 10.—The Talbot mills' strikers last night decided to accept the offer of Treasurer Clark and return to work at the old rate of wages, understanding that when times warrant it an increase will be given.

Hathaway's Trial Begun.

NEW BEDFORD, July 10.—The trial of Andrew Hathaway, charged with buying votes at the last municipal election, opened yesterday. Several witnesses testified to advances made by the defendant toward purchasing votes.

Expenses Too Heavy.

LOWELL, July 10.—At last night's meeting of the board of aldermen Mayor Courtney said that the city was rapidly approaching the debt limit, and the prospect of making temporary loans to meet running expenses is lessening. He asked for power to appoint a committee of citizens to investigate the financial situation, that they may report some recommendation to the city council. The authority was granted.

Formal Opening of Christian Endeavor Convention.

THE SOCIETY'S GROWTH

Shows Wonderful Progress From Year to Year.

An Account of Highly Interesting Doings at the Hub of the Universe.

BOSTON, July 11.—The convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor formally opened today in Mechanics' building, Tent Williston and Tent Endeavor.

President Francis E. Clark, D.D., presided at Mechanics' building. Praise and prayer service was followed by devotional exercises, led by Rev. Smith Baker, D.D., of East Boston. Next came the following "Hymn of Welcome," written for the occasion by Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D., author of "America:"

We welcome the hosts of our glorious King,
The King whom we worship, whose praises we sing;
His triumph we seek; His dear cause cannot fail.
Christ's servants, Christ's soldiers, for His sake, All Hail!

Our hearts are as one, and one Name we adore;
We lean on one Arm of Omnipotent Power.
Come, Prince of Salvation, come, reign, Thou alone.
All worlds be Thy kingdom, and all hearts Thy throne.

As o'er the wide earth bends the blue arch above,
Brood o'er us, O Spirit of wisdom and love;
Our Life, our Redeemer, our Saviour, our God,
We yearn for Thy coming, we wait for Thy nod.

We march forth, unshrinking, to battle for Thee;
The armies of sin shall not tempt us to flee.
We bow to Thy will, and we honor Thy word,
And follow Thy banner, our Captain and Lord.

Ride on to new conquests, new glory attain—
How grand is Thy kingdom, how blessed Thy reign!—
And wear—for no being is worthy, but Thou—
The crown of the earth on Thy glorified brow.

The remainder of the program was as follows: Welcome of the committee of '95, S. B. Capen, Boston, chairman; welcome of the city pastors, Rev. A. H. Plumb, D.D., Boston; state of Massachusetts' welcome, Governor F. T. Greenhalge; singing; response on behalf of the board of trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavor and visiting Christian Endeaverors, Rev. E. R. Dille, D.D., San Francisco; singing; annual report of the general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, J. W. Baer, Boston.

Trustee Rev. Wayland Hoyt, D.D., Minneapolis, presided at Tent Williston; George K. Somerby, Boston, musical director; praise and prayer service and devotional exercises, Rev. Asher Anderson, Meriden, Conn.; Hymn of Welcome, written by Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D.; welcome of committee of '95, George W. Coleman, Boston, vice chairman; welcome of city pastors, Rev. A. S. Gumbart, D.D., Boston; singing; city of Boston's welcome, Mayor Edwin U. Curtis; singing; response to words of welcome on behalf of visiting Christian Endeavorers by Rev. W. N. Page, D. D., Leavenworth; Miss Cora B. Bickford, Biddeford; Rev. Walter H. Brooks, D.D., Washington; G. T. Ferguson, Toronto; Rev. H. G. Scudday, Tyler, Tex.; J. J. Littlefield, Kokomo, Ind. The reading of Secretary Baer's annual report by Rev. John Barston of Medford was followed by adjournment.

At Tent Endeavor Trustee Rev. John T. Beckley, D.D., New York, presided, and George C. Stebbins, Brooklyn, was musical director. Praise and prayer service and devotional exercises were conducted by R. W. H. Allbright, Boston; Hymn of Welcome, Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D.; welcome of Boston local union, A. J. Crockett, Boston; welcome of city pastors, Rev. Martin D. Kneeland, D.D., Boston; state of Massachusetts' welcome, Lieutenant Governor Roger Wolcott; singing; response in behalf of the board of trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavorers, Rev. John H. Barrows, D.D., Chicago; singing; Secretary Baer's annual report, read by J. E. Cheesman, Cleveland.

Enthusiasm Runs High.

The delegates are the center of interest everywhere. Early this morning they began their convention work by religiously visiting 20 early morning prayer meetings in different parts of the city—at 6:30 o'clock. Refreshed by these, they began to gather at an early hour at the meeting places of the convention. Mechanics' hall naturally had the greater part of the delegates, for here the state headquarters are located, and here Dr. Clark presided at the inaugural session.

It was fully an hour before the time of formal opening that the scattered loiterers about the building were increased by the entrance of delegation after delegation. Some came in by states, some by towns, some by social companies. Many carried banners, all sang songs. The sight from the platform was an inspiring one.

As the throngs poured in at the several entrances of the building, all singing the popular Christian Endeavor songs, often there would be half a dozen different songs heard at the same time. These would commingle in curious fashion, and then the most popular would gain the right of way, and soon sweep over the entire body as one mighty chorus. "Scatter Sunshine," "At the Cross," "There is Sunshine in My Soul Today" and "Throw Out the Life-line" were the most popular melodies.

Some of the western delegates were greeted, as they entered, by the applause of those already in the building, and banner after banner, as it was borne down the center aisle by its adherents, was generously cheered by the delegates.

One after another the notables began to arrive on the platform, and, as each was singled out, he was made the occasion of a vigorous round of applause. President Clark himself received a mighty ovation that continued for two or three minutes—handkerchiefs, flags and banners being waved frantically in the air by the enthusiastic young people, while a steady volume of applause was maintained by the clapping of hands.

It was some time before the beginning of the regular song service that Percy S. Foster, the popular leader from Washington, took his place at the front of the platform, and by a sweep or two of his magic baton brought unity and harmony out of the spasmodic songs of the delegates. From this time until the closing of the session the delegates sang whenever opportunity presented, and with such a mighty volume of song as has never before been heard in this building.

Already the Endeavorers have made themselves a name as singing Christians. In the two tents this same program was practically repeated. The crowds were present, the same enthusiasm was manifest, and the same tendency to sing the popular Christian Endeavor songs.

Crowds of curious on-lookers thronged the entrances of all three auditoriums—Mechanics' hall, Tent Williston and Tent Endeavor—and gazed wonderingly on the delegates as they entered. If the convention grows as it has begun, and maintains the same high spirit of enthusiasm, one scarcely dares prophesy what will be its end on next Monday.

Secretary Baer's Report.

The annual report of John Willis Baer, general secretary of the society, was read simultaneously this morning by Secretary Baer in Mechanics' building, by Rev. John Barstow of Medford in Tent Williston, and by J. E. Cheesman of Cleveland in Tent Endeavor. A synopsis of the report follows:

Every useful wheel must have its hub. Every hub, to be useful, should have its wheel. Figuratively speaking, Christian Endeavor is a useful wheel; certainly Boston is the Hub. As we are in the Hub, let us turn the wheel upon its axis, and from the hub view its revolutions. Its circumference equals that of the globe, and its spokes number thousands upon thousands. Each year the circumference of the Christian Endeavor wheel widens; each year thousands of spokes are added. Last year our wheel was strengthened by 7750 new societies (or "spokes," if you please). This is the largest increase for any one year since the "wheel" commenced revolving, 14 years ago.

"Spoke" after "spoke" passes our vision rapidly in this whirl of inspection, in all 41,229. Of these 4712 are from other lands, the United Kingdom heading the list with 2645, which figures include 180 from Wales, 112 from Scotland and 53 from Ireland. Australia now has no less than 1509; Africa, 30; China, 32; France 64; India, 117; Japan, 59; Madagascar, 93; Mexico, 25; Turkey, 39; West India islands, 63; and so on until every country is represented, save five—Italy, Russia, Iceland, Sweden and Greece.

And now the "spokes" from the Dominion of Canada come into view. Ontario, with her remarkable growth of the last year, leads with 1995; Nova Scotia, 388; Quebec, 264; New Brunswick, 152; Manitoba, 156; Prince Edward Island, 62; Assiniboia, 53; British Columbia, 40; Alberta, 15; Saskatchewan, 5. In all, counting 5 in Newfoundland, 3105, an increase of 1223 during the past year.

And now our view from the "Hub" discloses the balance of the wheel, all bearing the famous colors of the "Stars and Stripes." Pennsylvania still leads with 4139; New York next, with 3822; Ohio, 2787; Illinois, 2446; Indiana, 1762; Iowa, 1563; Massachusetts, 1309; Kansas, 1247; Missouri, 1133; Michigan, 1082; New Jersey, 1045, etc. In all from the United States, 33,412, as against 28,606 last year.

These figures from the United States include 18 senior societies, 33 mothers' societies (a splendid movement, first started in Kansas), 62 intermediate companies; and it includes the societies in our schools, in our colleges, in public institutions of various kinds, in prisons and schools of reform, to the number of 169. It includes that noble regiment of 250, known as the North American Union of German Christian Endeavor; the 7 among the "boys in blue" in the regular army and in the navy of the United States; the societies among the policemen and patrolmen; the companies among the Indians of the north and west; our comrades enlisted in work among the life-saving crews, lighthouses and lightships; the Travelers' Union of Christian Endeavor; it includes 158 "floating" societies and a regiment of 8859 junior companies.

And now for the Juniors. In addition to the 8859 Junior "spokes" from the United States there are 339 from Canada, and 224 from other lands, making in all 9122 Junior societies, with a membership of 340,000. While the numbers of Juniors were included in the enumeration by states, it will be of interest to know that Pennsylvania still leads the Juniors, with 1023; New York, not very far behind, with 920; Illinois next, with 746; Ohio, 623; Indiana, 470; California, 414, etc.

An Interracial Brotherhood.

And now we have counted the "spokes" as they have swept by our vision. A total of 41,229 societies, with an individual membership from every clime and every nation, with skins of varying color, of which 480 are red, 20,360 are yellow, 109,400 are black, and 2,343,560 are white; in all, a great interracial brotherhood of 2,473,740.

England, Pennsylvania, Assiniboia, yours has been a successful year, and the banners you carry from this convention show that Christian Endeavor is not decadent within your borders. Your efforts, put forth in a spirit of friendly rivalry, were not for the banners—we know there is no real value in them—but for the blessings that come to those that valiantly fight "on the Lord's side."

The missionary roll of honor will be unrolled in our meetings on Monday. Upon

Will Work In Harmony With Roads Controlled by the Vanderbilts.

NEW HAVEN, July 11.—The Palladium today prints the following: It is stated here that plans have been perfected for the carrying out of the big deal by which the New York and New England railroad passes into a new control.

It is probable that official announcement will be made of this plan on next Monday, July 15, when it will be found that the deal is much more far-reaching than has been so far suggested, including not only a new ownership for the New England, but also of the Reading system.

The same capitalists who have acquired control of the New England have bought a majority of the Stock of the Reading Company.

The two most important of these capitalists are J. Pierpont Morgan and John D. Rockefeller.

Their plan is said to contemplate traffic arrangements with the New England and Reading companies on the one hand and with New York Central, Boston and Albany and New York and New Haven roads on the other.

This is a revival, but under very different auspices, of the stupendous scheme which two years ago was undertaken by A. A. McLeod, when he tried to combine the Reading with the New England and Boston and Maine systems.

McLeod failed for lack of capital. This combination controls unlimited millions.

Protest Against Riots.

BOSTON, July 11.—Rousing cheers for Old Glory, the little red schoolhouse and the bitter denunciation of what was termed "the Roman hierarchy" were the principal features of the mass meeting in Faneuil hall last night to protest against the riot which occurred in East Boston on July 4. Faneuil hall was crowded to the doors, and hundreds were turned away. A detail of 325 policemen were in charge of the hall and the thoroughfares leading to it, while another 100 patrolmen were held in reserve at station 2, ready to respond to any call that might be made. The police were not needed, everything being as decorous as desired.

Quarrelled Over Cider.

BRIDGEPORT, July 11.—Henry Butler, 22 years old, was killed by a blow from a club in the hands of Peter Winter last night at Chopsy Hill. Winter afterward gave himself up to the police. Winter, who is past middle age, and Butler worked together in a hayfield near the latter's home all day. Both men had been drinking hard cider. Butler asked Winter several times to purchase a 10-gallon keg of cider, but he refused to do so, saying that Butler had had enough. The two men quarrelled over it, and Butler attempted to assault the elder man. Butler threw a stone at Winter and the tragedy followed.

Nantucket's Holiday.

NANTUCKET, July 11.—The bicentennial celebration was continued yesterday. The sports were witnessed by the hundreds of visitors present. The day's exercises closed with an exhibition drill by the volunteer life-saving crew.

Getting Along Finely.

BUZZARD'S BAY, July 11.—Mrs. Cleveland and the baby are progressing finely. The conditions were so favorable that Dr. Bryant yesterday joined the president on an angling trip to a neighboring pond.

Two Victims of Collision.

BOSTON, July 11.—Peter Hickey and John W. Fallon were seriously injured by an electric car colliding with a wagon in Dorchester. Both sustained severe bruises and several bones were broken.

New England Briefs.

James Gallagher, 40 years old, was fatally injured by falling from a Pawtucket electric car.

William Smith and William M. Mahan, two inmates of the Boston house of correction, escaped.

The Massachusetts nautical training ship Enterprise arrived at Tangier, July 8, and left July 5 for Madeira.

Mrs. Mary J. Buncker, for 35 years city librarian of Manchester, N. H., was found dead. Death was caused by apoplexy.

John Flood and Richard Little were arrested, charged with breaking and entering the house of Rev. Mr. Gray of Woolwich, Me. The men say they were in search of food.

One More Effort.

LONDON, July 11. — Friends of Mrs. Florence Maybrick are once more renewing their efforts to obtain her release from prison. Mrs. Maybrick was convicted of poisoning her husband, and sentenced to death on Aug. 7, 1889, which sentence was afterward commuted to penal servitude for life.

Battle Lasted Three Days.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, July 11.—General Gasco, commanding the Spanish troops at Cristo, reports having had a three days' battle with the insurgents at Sierra Maestra, capturing a quantity of arms, provisions, etc. No details of the fighting have yet been received.

Morocco Must Settle.

TANGIER, July 11.—German warships have arrived here with orders to insist upon the payment by the government of Morocco of indemnity of 8000 marks for the murder of a German citizen named Rockstrop, near Saffi.

Bakers Out.

MADRID, July 11.—There is a general strike of bakers here. There were serious disorders last evening. After some violent speeches there was a conflict and several persons were injured and 60 arrested.

SWITHIN BROS.,
Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE RICH town of Brookline is kicking at the system of assessments for Metropolitan parks. The Herald says:

"Brookline is so far away from Middlesex Fells, Revere Beach and the Blue Hills that its citizens can never visit either of these places except by giving a day to the journey there and back. It has not had a penny's worth spent within or near its borders for park improvement or boulevard construction, nor in the estimation of its citizens is it to be benefitted in any degree whatsoever, and yet it is called upon to pay bettermenis of 4 per cent. of the park expense and 2 per cent. of the boulevard outlay—an outlay in the former instance much larger than that demanded of towns that have the park improvements carried out within their own territories, and immediately available for the benefit of their citizens."

Because Brookline escaped so fortunately on the assessment for Metropolitan water is no reason why it should have the best of everything, We cannot see that it has any reason to complain at the park assessments. It is as favorably situated as any town to enjoy the park system and the boulevards, and its residents have the carriages with which to enjoy them. Brookline has a valuation of 59 millions and Quincy but 14 millions. Is the assessment of Brookline four times as large? For boulevards, Quincy's assessment is 1.06 per cent., and that of Brookline but 1.98 per cent. For parks, that of Quincy is 1.35 per cent., and that of Brookline but 3.72 per cent. Taxes are generally assessed upon valuation and Brookline should consider herself fortunate.

THE DAILY LEDGER devotes over four columns today to the opening of that grand convention of Christian Endeavorers in Boston. It has been the occasion of a religious awakening throughout the State and Nation. The young people are at work for Christ and the church, and the growth of the society is marvelous. Boston is giving the delegates a royal welcome.

IN A communication today "E. S. T." complains at length of the inequalities of taxation, but he does not tell us how he would pay for the sewer. How much should the city pay; and if assessments are to be levied, shall they be by frontage, area, valuation, or water rates? Discussion on these matters will be of interest.

THE SEWER SYSTEM

The Benefits and Who Will Pay for Them.

INEQUALITIES OF TAXATION.

A Lesson Drawn From the Acceptance of the Sewer Act.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Now that the majority of our citizens have spoken in favor of a sewerage, perhaps it may be of interest to inquire how, and by whom, all this is to be paid. Surely no one can object to that which is so necessary to the health of our city, and I take it that each is willing to pay his share.

The tax grumbler growls only when he feels he is unjustly taxed or when he is forced to pay for the tax dodger.

Taxation is a subject about which there is the least known, by the masses of men, of any subject that is so important to their welfare, and I use this opportunity, not so much to speak of the sewerage, as to throw some light on this vastly misunderstood subject.

According to the tenure of the new act, the abutters are to pay in three months from the laying of the sewer past his or her land, and the rest is to pe paid by the city during the next 40 years. Who are the city? The people collectively. The terms then are: the individuals who own land are to pay a portion in three months, and the inhabitants collectively, are to pay the rest with interest on same in forty years.

The city will increase in population and, in forty years, there will be many new citizens to help. Certainly they should assist its payment if they share in its benefits.

What are its Benefits?

Cleanliness and healthfulness are the chief. But these are general. All will share equally in these.

There is a class of our citizens—and I belong to that class—who will reap a pecuniary benefit over and above the general ones of cleanliness, etc. I mean the class who own the land; for when $400,000 worth of labor has been expended, and drain and soil pipes are laid to the sea, the value of every foot of land in Quincy will rise in proportion to the labor put into it, and in proportion to the increase in population, who will also expend more labor upon the land in shape of buildings, etc. All this labor is slowly but surely being capitalized in the value of the land, the annual interest of which we call ground rent, to distinguish it from returns from other capital. The people, collectively, then, are taxed to pay for all this labor, while the pecuniary benefit goes only to those who own the land; and these benefits are returned to them, either in higher selling value, or higher ground rents, annually.

In other words, those who own no land, or no property imagine they pay no taxes, yet they pay fully their share, in higher rents, yet reap no pecuniary benefit; while every business man is also taxed upon his stock, which amounts to a double taxation. The land lord can always shift the tax upon the tenant by saying: "The rent is so much, without taxes and water rates, or so much including these."

This might be illustrated more forcibly in this way: Supposing a Rockfeller should be generous enough to give the city of Quincy free gas for one hundred years; also free rides to Boston for the same length of time; pay entirely for this sewerage, and give to each ward a concert hall, with first class free entertainments each month; what would be the effect? All would share equally in these general benefits; but, this city would be so desirable a location in which to live, that there would be such a rush to buy land here, that long before these public works were completed the land would double, thribble in price, so that in the end, would be the only citizens who would be pecuniarly benefitted; and the return would come, either in higher rents, or higher selling value for lots, and what came to them would come out of those who paid the higher rents and added price for land.

But there is another phase of this question still more interesting, viz. This heavy weight of taxation not only falls unequally upon all;—not only does it benefit only the land owning class pecuniarly; but even among them it is unequal, for the reason that, the land upon which industry and enterprize has built homes, is assessed far higher in proportion to its value than land lying adjacent, of same value, upon which no labor has been expended.

The man engaged in the "vacant lot industry will tell you that," there is no money in it; times are hard, real estate is low, that land is not rising in value." But try to purchase some, and you will have to pay for a small lot half as much as a good house would cost. The truth is, that those engaged in the vacant lot industry are the most benefited of any class, by public improvements, while they pay the least for the same. Their profits flow in to them without labor, while men engaged in groceries, drugs, in plumbing, retail stores, etc., must not only labor for their profits but run many risks, and also pay a double tax.

By this I do not mean that those engaged in the vacant-lot-industry are dishonest, or are using any sharp practice. The chance is open to all who have the means. They are simply taking advantage of this law of nature, viz: that land rises, in value, in proportion to population and to public improvements.

But have we not citizens public spirited enough to try to make our city more truly democratic, that all may share more equally in its prosperity by lessening taxes upon stock in trade and assessing all land according to its true value?

But the

in the city of Quincy, (important as they are to each citizen here), are infinitesimal when compared to the gigantic disproportion between our rich men of Quincy and the great monopolists of the country.

Thomas G. Shearman, one of the most reliable statisticians in the United States, says there are 50,000 men in our country who own 30 per cent. of the land—considering land as to its value, and not as to its area. These men own chiefly mines, oil territory, valuable city lots and railroads. These few individuals pay a collective tax of $222,700,000. They gain in profits from the tariff, $300,000,000, besides the enormous benefit which comes to them in the general growth and prosperity of the whole country. This gain is beyond computing.

He, morever, estimates that the burden of taxation which rests upon us, as a nation, is, upon an average, fully 50 per cent. of our actual savings; but that this burden rests so disproportionately; that this means a tax of only 4 per cent. upon the easy savings of the rich, and a tax of 78 per cent. upon the hard earned savings of the poor; and by "the rich" he means the millionaires.

He show that in the year 1880, over one-half of all the accumulations in the country went into the pockets of 28,000 families. That the gain to the middle and laboring classes, by a fair and just system of taxation, would amount, annually, to more than one and a half billion dollars.

To one who can see, these facts proclaim startling omens. To those who cannot—"let them eat, drink and be merry."

E. S. T.

Quincy City Hospital.

The names below are those omitted from the hospital report for 1895. They are few compared with the one thousand and seventy-seven recorded on the books of the Hospital Aid Association.

Unfortunately the above number does not mean so many dollars annually. Not more than two-thirds of it, owing to disaffection, because of omitted names, depression in business, and the falling away of the first enthusiasm.

It is hoped that eventually out of our twenty thousand inhabitants, the Hospital Aid can count upon one thousand women members, who will gladly and regularly give one dollar each per year, towards the support of our great local charity. This sum would also place the Hospital Aid upon a firm foundation, financially, and allow them to carry on their work with assured system. The spirit and the letter are both so necessary in this world that the Hospital Aid is looking forward to securing the voluntary gift of the one and being able to pay the price of the other. Until that time, the association must go haltingly, pay the penalty of unintentional error, and use a great deal of valuable energy, tracing circles in the sand. F C B.

A Quincy Boy at Rest.

Among the death notices will be seen that of Mr. H. Frank Sherburne, in San Francisco, California, on the 30th ult., from heart disease. Mr. Sherburne was a Quincy boy, and his death will be learned with sorrow by many friends and acquaintances. He was the younger son of the late Capt. James T. and Mrs. Almira Sherburne.

He was educated in the public schools of Quincy, and lived here until twenty-one years of age. He was a bright active young man; soon his desire to see the world made him a wanderer from the native state. He had visited South America, Africa, England, California, New Zealand and Australia. He afterwards travelled from New Mexico to California on horseback, and later took a trip to Behring Sea on a sealing vessel. There he was wrecked, and lived among the natives for seven months. He was found and brought back to San Francisco by the U. S. revenue cutter, Ranger, about a year before his death. He leaves a widow, a mother, now Mrs. Samuel Spaulding of Palmyra, Maine, and a brother, Mr. Charles H. Sherburne of this city.

Black America.

Three months ago, in Ambrose Park, South Brooklyn, the first production of "Black America" was given. Its success was instantaneous, and it has continued throughout this time, drawing the largest audiences that ever congregated at this park to witness an outdoor spectacle.

Some enterprising Boston gentlemen, seeing in "Black America" the elements which arouse amusement seekers, interested Mr. Salsbury in bringing on to Boston his colossal entertainment, and on the circus grounds next Tuesday evening, the first presentation in Boston will take place. Upon entering the grounds, the visitor's attention will be called to the remarkably graphic representation of a large southern cotton plantation, and upon this plat, over 150 cabins will be seen. These small domiciles will be inhabited by quite 600 negroes, every state south of Pennsylvania being represented by them.

In another section of the grounds, the reproduction of a cotton field will be seen, and near by, a genuine cotton gin and press in full operation. Visitors can wander about among these cabins and familiarize themselves with the types of southern negroes, either before or after the giving of the entertainment.

Upon the stage a spectacle will be presented in which 587 people will take part.

There will be reproductions of all the types of the negro race seen below Mason's and Dixon's line. Soloists will render the songs that so frequently stirred the blood of the northern soldier during the war, and a chorus of over 500 people will also participate in the melodies.

Test of Fire Extinguisher.

A practical test of the Emergency chemical hand fire extinguisher was given Wednesday evening in the rear of The Greenleaf.

A little three-sided structure had been erected and this was filled with lathes in such a manner as to make a regular fire trap. Besides this a quantity of excelsior was placed in the bottom and the whole thoroughly saturated with oil.

At 8 o'clock a large crowd was present, including Chief Engineer Williams, Deputy Fire Inspector Adams and many prominent citizens, and the small boy.

The match was applied and in an instant the whole structure was a seething mass of flames. When the fire was at its height the agent rushed in with his extinguisher, which he threw at the base of the flames, and almost immediately the fire was extinguished, drawing forth exclamations of bravo.

It was a good test, and the extinguisher proved itself to be just the thing for every household for an emergency fire.

Man has never seen the inside of some of the Egyptian pyramids since they were first built, so far as known.

A Mother's Report

"Hood's Sarsaparilla, is an excellent medicine. I have taken it for catarrh and impure blood and it has given me a good appetite and strength. My husband has also taken it and he is now in good health. When he feels a little run down he gets a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before it is gone he is all right and is able to work all the time. I give it to my baby occasionally, and we have never had to have a doctor attend her." MRS. E. K. WARREN, Greenfield, N. H., Box 34.

Bicycle Riding

The easiest riding wheel constantly jars the system—an easy sort of jar, maybe, but the kind that wears the vital organs. The greatest wear is on the Kidneys; constant jarring prevents their doing their work properly.

Buker's Kidney Pills

are a natural remedy and act on the Kidneys as sleep acts on the brain. They restore them to their functions and remove the dragging pains in the back. Backache and Kidney ache are tired aches, aches that indicate disease. The pills cost 50 cents at the druggists. Book about Backache, free.

Half Holiday.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The grocers of Neponset and Atlantic all signed to give their clerks a half holiday once a week, commencing July 10, but one. Oh, that one!

He was once a grocery clerk and would like to enjoy the beach or a base ball game, and I think if he was one of us now he would make quite a kick about it. It affects between thirty-five and forty clerks, who work about seventy hours a week, without any recreation, and I hope by next Wednesday, to see his name signed with ths rest of the grocers.

AT THE SEASIDE.

Popularity of Houghs Neck Shown by New Cottages.

PICNIC PARTIES EVERY DAY.

Many Personals and Other Newsy Items of Interest.

The season can be said to be fairly on at Houghs Neck. Since the public schools closed people have been flocking here so that today but few cottages are unoccupied. Some of the families are down but for a few weeks, but they no sooner move out than others come in to take their places for this seems to be a favorite summer resort that is every year growing more and more popular. It is evident by the number of new cottages that are each year being erected, the number this year being about thirty-five, with the prospects good for several more before the end of the season.

The nightly dances at the Casino continue popular with the young people.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dixon of the Bostonians are at their pretty cottage, the Bostonian.

Mr. Hill and family are at the Sea Breeze on Bay View avenue.

John Cullen of Roxbury is at his new cottage on Crosby street.

Arthur Reed and family are in a cottage on Great hill.

Mr. Robbins and family are at Rock island for the season.

Gerry Whittemore of Wakefield is at his cottage on Manet avenue.

Mr. Barrell and family of Boston are at the Chapman cottage.

The 100-ride books on the street railway meet with favor and the difference to the cottagers amounts to considerable in the course of the season.

The beach will be alive Monday, the day the Yacht club observes its Ladies' day.

Bathing parties are in order now and each tide sees many taking a dip in the briny ocean.

Arthur Holbrook and family are at their cottage on Centre road.

J. T. Bray has occupied his new cottage on Sea street.

Martin French and family are at the Neversink cottage.

Mrs. Julia A. Caryl is at the Pleasant View cottage for the summer.

Pierce's Hotel continues to be a popular stopping place for picnic parties.

Mrs. John Hanlon has arrived at the Mount Pleasant cottage for the season.

L. A. Hoey and family are at the Moondyne cottage this year.

Several picnic parties have been here this week, and in fact scarcely a day passes without some party passes the day here.

Houghs Neck people can now be said to be in it, as they are now supplied with city water.

Harry Moebes and family are at the Adolph cottage.

Mrs. Kaller of Newton has taken a cottage on Darrow street.

One of the prettiest residences at the Neck is that of Arthur Shaw on top of Great hill.

Barton Derry is at his cottage on Sea street.

C. T. Trask and family are at the Woodbine cottage on Bay View avenue.

Mr. Leonard of Boston has occupied his new cottage off Sea street.

J. J. Weith and family are at Rock Island for the season.

The journeymen barbers of Brockton will have an outing at Houghs Neck next Monday. A ball game will be one of the events of the day.

A Moonlight Trip.

Alpha Council, No. 1, Royal Arcanum of Boston, chartered the steamer City of Quincy for a moonlight sail to Boston Light and around the harbor, Tuesday evening, and report a very enjoyable time. Ice cream, cake and refreshments were served to all on board. About 150 of the council and their friends left Snow's arch wharf at 8 P. M. and returned at 10.30, all expressing their appreciation of the staunch little steamer, and surprise at the room and conveniences to be found on board.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

QUINCY BREVITIES

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Are we to have more rain?

The steam roller is at work on Franklin street.

The Quincy depot has been re-decorated since the rain.

Miss Cornelia Elliot has returned from Plymouth, N. H.

The Lyons Granite Co. has declared a dividend of $2 per share.

The Universalist people are holding a picnic today at Lovell's Grove.

It is almost impossible to supply the demand for Christian Endeavor flags.

Mayor Hodges gives notice that he has issued warrants to kill all unlicensed dogs.

Miss M. E. Fish is in town, being a delegate to the Christian Endeavor convention.

Charles H. Fogg has been appointed assignee of the insolvent estate of Samuel A. Fowler.

Some quite large trees on Franklin street were moved back today by the street department.

The winners of the city of Boston regatta on the Fourth will be announced in the Sunday papers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Burr and friends of Chicago are visiting Mrs. G. W. McClintock at Wollaston.

Band concert tonight by the Italian band on the Ward One playground between Canal and Bigelow streets.

A number of barges loaded with young people passed through the Square this morning on the way to Houghs Neck.

The headquarters of the Norfolk county delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention is at the Harvard Street Baptist church on Harrison Avenue, Boston.

The older classes of St. John's church Sunday School, with the teachers, are taking an outing today at Salem Willows. Rev. F. A. Cunningham is conducting the party.

Mrs. C. H. Field and son Eddie, left Monday for North Dighton, where they will spend their vacation. They will also visit friends in Pawtucket and Newport, R. I.

The Christian Endeavor societies of Quincy purchased over 500 flags which have been used in decorations put up by the societies, or else sold to the storekeepers.

The music at the Quincy Yacht club on Ladies' Day from Baldwin's Cadet band will be by Harry C. Daggett, piano, Thomas M. Henry, cornet, and Vincent Aheroyd, violin.

Houghs Neck people are to celebrate the advent of water by a band concert at the Casino by the Italian band. There will also be fireworks and a grand hurrah. The date is not settled.

Mrs. Nettie Manuel of East Weymouth visited friends in Quincy, Wednesday. On her return, while riding in the electric car, the register clock fell on her head inflicting a severe scalp wound.

Mrs. Copp, of Glencoe place, has returned from a visit to Norway, Maine, where she accompanied her daughter Miss Eva Miller, on her vacation, Miss Miller will remain there six weeks.

An Atlantic man is positive now that the Quincy DAILY LEDGER has a wide circulation, for a firm in New Jersey desire to treat him for rheumatism, having noticed his affliction in the LEDGER.

The Methodist Sunday Schools of Atlantic and West Quincy united in a picnic at Lovell's grove, Wednesday, and were treated to ice cream through the generosity of Henry H. Faxon. It was an enjoyable time.

It is said that work on the extension of Walker street will begin next Monday, and indications are that this improvement will at least be consummated. The owners of the Hinkley estate have removed the fence and loam.

The Quincy directory for 1895 is out with 9,236 names, an increase of 2,101 over last year. It is published by W. A. Greenough & Co., and makes a book of nearly 500 pages, liberally patronized by our business houses. It is for sale at Souther's periodical store.

About 200 besides the band left on special cars for Quincy Point this morning to participate in the excursion of the steamer City of Quincy to Rockport. The steamer Surf City was to take the City of Quincy's place on the Nantasket line, but owing to the breaking of her wheel there is no boat running to Nantasket today.

A party of Quincy gentlemen dined at Anderson's Wednesday evening and when they came to leave one of the party, whom we will call Sam, not knowing that the dinners had already been paid for, passed the pretty waiter girl fifty cents and received her gracious smile in return. Later he learned that he had tipped the girl fifty cents. "How about that tip, Sam?"

It is said that the frigate bird can fly at the rate of 100 miles an hour and live in the air a week at a time without touching a roost.

Were it not for the multitude of storks that throng to Egypt every winter there would be no living in some parts of the country, for after every inundation frogs appear in most incredible numbers.

BUILDING COLLAPSED.

A Hundred Persons Injured at the Elks' Celebration at Trenton.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 11.—The social session tendered by the Atlantic City lodge to the visiting Elks at the Baltic Avenue Casino last night ended in a terrible disaster, in which fully 100 persons were more or less seriously injured.

The session had just opened, and only one of the speakers had been heard when, without the slightest warning, the building, which has not been used for several years, collapsed, and fully 1000 persons were thrown to the floor beneath. Many women, the wives of the visiting Elks, went down in the ruins.

The first victim to succumb to his injuries was Frederick Claproth of Camden. He died shortly after midnight at a neighboring hotel, to which he had been conveyed.

It is now feared that other deaths will result, and it is a matter of wonderment that out of the 200 or more persons who were on the lower floor none were killed outright.

Cornell Beaten.

HENLEY, July 11.—The second day of the Henley regatta was marked by a large attendance. The principal features of the day's program were the trial heats between Eton college and Trinity Hall (Cambridge), and New college (Oxford) and Cornell university of Ithaca, for the grand Challenge cup, the winners of which will contest in the final heat for the trophy. Trinity Hall won the race from Cornell with the greatest ease. New college was the victor in the other big event.

Valley Laid In Waste.

SALINA, Kan., July 11.—Five hundred people have been driven from their homes in this city alone. The valley of the Smoky river has been desolated beyond description. Hundreds of farmers and their families have had to fly for their lives, and crops are destroyed and stock and buildings washed away. The damage cannot be estimated until the water recedes.

Four Were Drowned.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Two women and a man, names unknown, were laughing, joking and struggling on an East river pier last night. Suddenly, no one knows just how it happened, they were precipitated into the water and were drowned. Michael O'Neil, who heroically tried to rescue them, was also drowned.

Baby Alone Survived.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—Mrs. Lena Rotsener hanged herself to a closet door yesterday after she had hung up two of her children in another room. It is supposed she was insane. When discovered, all were dead except the baby, and it was chewing the towel with which it was tied.

Is It Worth It?

MADRID, July 11.—Senor Sagasta declares that the Liberals will agree to pay the Mora indemnity, provided the United States grants indemnities for damages sustained by Spaniards during the war of secession, and provided the cortes agree to vote the credit necessary.

Run Down at Sea.

HALIFAX, July 11.—Captain Morris and crew of the schooner Valorous, from Canso, for Portland, were landed here yesterday by a pilot boat. The schooner was run down southwest of Beaver island by the steamer Louisburg.

Fishermen's Hardships.

HALIFAX, July 11.—Amos Musie and James Shea arrived at Liverpool in a dory, having strayed from the schooner Orient on LaHave banks, Monday, in a dense fog. They will be forwarded to Gloucester by the American consul.

China Figuring on Finances.

PEKIN, July 11.—The Chinese foreign office has intimated that half of the second Chinese indemnity loan, which will amount to 100,000,000 taels, will be reserved for Great Britain and the other half may go to Germany.

Big Crowd Looked On.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 11.—Alexander Simms was hanged here yesterday for the murder of Policeman Minor. The neck was not broken. The hanging was witnessed by a large crowd.

Respite Granted.

HARRISBURG, July 11.—Albert W. Woodley, who was to have been hanged yesterday at Pittsburg, has been granted a respite, by Governor Hastings, until Oct. 29.

Wisdom In Furniture Buying.
It isn't everyone that knows the value of Furniture, know when they buy it right, know the difference between the substantial and worthy sort and the kind that is made to sell and not to use. But here is a store with a conscience, selling the very best goods that Yankee wisdom can manufacture, and what is best of all, is selling it at a price that wins your favor, and fills the purse of all who choose this store to trade in with money well earned and saved by shrewd and careful buying.

The Cycler's Song.

Oh, it's joy to be up in the morning when the dew is yet on the clover
And the air is full of sweetness that makes it a draft divine,
To mount one's wheel and go flying away and away—a rover
In a wide, bright world of beauty—and all that world is mine!

There's a breath of balm on the breezes, a scent of the wayside roses,
A hint of the incense odors that blow through the hillside pines,
And ever a shifting landscape that some new, bright charm discloses,
As I flash from nooks of shadow to plains where the sunlight shines.

I sing in my care free gladness; I am kin to the wind that's blowing;
I am thrilled with the bliss of motion like the bird that skims the down;
I feel the blood of a gypsy in my pulses coming, going!
Give me my wheel for a comrade, and the king may keep his crown.

Shakespeare's Name.

It has often been a puzzle to students of Shakespeare why his name is spelled in so many different ways. Shakespeare himself is said to have signed his name on different occasions "Shakspeare" and "Shakespere," and learned disquisitions have been written to prove which is the proper spelling. None perhaps was more amusing than the "weather" reason given in 1851 by Albert Smith, who averred that he had found it in the Harleian MSS. It was as follows:

How dyd Shakespeare spell hys name?
Ye weatherre mayde ye change, we saye,
So write it as ye please;
When ye sonne shone he mayde hys A,
When wette he took hys E'es.

WORK HAS BEGUN.

it are the names of over 5000 societies from 85 states, 7 territories, 7 provinces, 4 foreign lands. Each society has given not less than $10 to its own denominational home or foreign missionary board for the cause of missions. The total amount as reported on this roll of honor is $149,719.09. In addition to this amount of money which has been given by these 5551 societies that we have enrolled upon the roll of honor, we find that $190,884.45 has been given by these same societies for "Christ and the church" in other ways, making a total of $340,603.54, the largest amount given by any one society being the $1900 of the Clarendon Street Baptist church of Boston. So much for the roll of honor, which measures nearly 500 feet if we use a yardstick, but who can measure its real length and breadth but he that guides us all in our endeavor?

Let me make it plain that the $149,719.09 given direct to mission boards by the 5000 societies, and their gifts of $190,884.45 for other benevolences, represent only the record of the societies that have asked to be enrolled upon the "missionary roll of honor."

After careful gathering of other statistics and information, and from advice received from the representatives of missionary boards, home and foreign, we find that the societies in the United States and Canada have contributed not less than $425,000 for missions at home and abroad.

Endeavorers' Watchword.

Let me mention now, and briefly, too, that the battle for Christian citizenship, which was begun three years ago at President Clark's suggestion, has been fearlessly waged, and has been blessed in promoting a more intelligent spirit of patriotism: "Christian Endeavor is against the gambling dens, the lotteries, the violation of the Sabbath, and condemns intemperance in every form, stands for total abstinence, for the suppression of the saloon, and for the annihilation of the power of the saloon in politics and in all 'parties.' Aye, we believe the liquor traffic is the implacable enemy of righteousness and purity, and of Christ and his church. The saloon must go! The saloon must go!"

The Christian Endeavor "local union" idea is assuming larger and better proportions every month. It contains so much of the blessed idea of interdenominational fellowship, and its possibilities in the way of inspiration and fraternity are so large, that it is evidently an institution that has come to stay. Many of these unions are doing practical work through their missionary, executive, citizenship, correspondence, lookout, evangelistic, press and visiting committees.

If one thing has been made clear by the history of these 14 years, it is God's design to bring the young people of all evangelical denominations together, not for the sake of denouncing denominations or decrying creeds, but in a common fellowship that respects differences and believes in diversity. The fears of those who thought that the society would destroy all distinctive beliefs, and demolish the principles for which the fathers suffered persecution have been largely allayed, for it has come to be acknowledged that the society makes every young person more loyal to his own denomination, at the same time that it makes him more generous toward others.

In the United States, the denominational representation of the Christian Endeavorers is as follows: The Presbyterians still lead, with 5283 Young People's societies and 2269 Junior societies; the Congregationalists have 3990 Young People's societies and 1908 Junior societies; the Disciples of Christ and Christians, 2687 Young People's societies and 862 Junior societies; the Baptists, 2686 Young People's societies and 801 Junior societies; Methodist Episcopal, 931 Young People's societies and 391 Junior societies; Methodist Protestants, 853 Young People's societies and 247 Junior societies; Lutherans, 798 Young People's societies and 245 Junior societies; Cumberland Presbyterians, 690 Young People's societies and 231 Junior societies, and so on through a long list.

Its Wonderful Scope.

In the Dominion of Canada the Methodists of Canada lead with 1057 Young People's societies and 122 Junior societies (most of the societies known as Epworth Leagues of Christian Endeavor); Canadian Presbyterians are next, with 979 Young People's societies and 105 Junior societies; Baptists next, with 160 Young People's societies and 26 Junior societies; Congregationalists next, with 122 Young People's societies and 36 Junior societies, etc.

In the United Kingdom the Baptists lead, with 791; Congregationalists next, with 733; Presbyterians, 182; Methodist Free church, 175; Methodist New Connexion, 132, etc.

In Australia the Wesleyan Methodists lead, and Congregationalists, Baptists, Presbyterians follow in the order named.

And, while this is a long list of denominations, first and last, I believe you will agree with me that the crown of the movement is our blessed inter-inter-interdenominational fellowship. As a Presbyterian, I say, for one, let us have more, rather than less, of this fellowship. The Christian Endeavor society is as loyal a denominational society as any in existence, as well as a broad and fraternal, interdenominational, interstate, international, interracial society. "One is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren."

Time will not permit me to touch in detail upon many practical results of our societies and individuals, such as increased attendance upon the part of the young people upon all regular church services and the midweek prayer meeting; the definite and practical work of the various committees in the local societies; the systematic study of the Bible and an ever-increasing knowledge of its use in hand-to-hand work for the saving of souls; a clearer understanding that the society is only a means to an end; a determination to get good and do good.

You will agree with me that the growth of the local societies "is marvelous in our eyes," but what of the large number that have taken the "next step" and have joined the various churches east, north, south and west? In all, 202,185 have joined the churches since the last convention. In 1890, 70,000 new church members were reported; in '91, 82,500; in '92, 120,000; in '93, 158,000; in '94, 183,650; and now, in '95, 202,185. In the last six years, 816,335. What a ransomed host! "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

How much or how little our individual work or that of the society has gained this blessed victory, we know not; sufficiently happy and thankful are we to know that these recruits, to the number of 816,335, have come from our ranks in six years. Again I say: "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

Now turn from this retrospect of magnificent achievement, pleasing, cheering and comforting as it may have been, and with the spirit for the exaltation of Christ in our hearts and lives, let us think, plan and act for the future, believing that if each one of us stands strenuously for the preservation and faithful observance of the active members' pledge, which is the golden "tire" that binds the Christian Endeavor wheel together, felly, spokes and hub, we shall have before us, when we gather next summer in Washington, a report which shall be a vision as splendid as ever fell on John's anointed eyes on Patmos. God grant it!

Services In Many Churches.

The spirit of the Endeavorers was given a sort of preliminary test on the eve of the convention at 19 meetings held simultaneously last night in 19 different churches in the city and suburbs. These churches are mostly headquarters of the different delegations, large numbers of whom attend the meetings, together with hundreds of outsiders. The latter gathered about the entrances early, but were kept out until the delegates had been accommodated, and then in many cases scores had to be turned away.

The cosmopolitan nature of the Christian Endeavor movement was shown by the addresses delivered—Rev. H. S. Jenanyan of Mable, India; Rev. K. Tsunashima of Tokio, Japan; Rev. Richard Burgess, Cardiff, Wales; Parbala Ramachaudrayya Garu, India; Miss Florence Ben-Oliel, Jerusalem, Palestine, and Rev. Jesse Malex Yonan of Persia, being among the speakers.

At the Brookline Baptist church, Rev. H. C. Tarsus of Boston presided, and addresses were made by Rev. H. S. Jenanyan, Mabie, India; Rev. R. D. Grant, D.D., Portland, Or., and Rev. K Tsunashima, Tokio.

Rev. Arthur Little, D.D., pastor of the Second church, Dorchester, presided at the meeting in that edifice. Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley of Belfast, Me., spoke first. Miss Sibley was followed by Bishop Samuel Fallows. Rev. W. H. McMillan then spoke.

At the Pilgrim Congregational church, Dorchester, Rev. H. B. Grose of Chicago was the principal speaker.

The Dudley Street Baptist church, Roxbury district, was filled by a throng which listened to interesting addresses by Mrs. Emily McLaughlin of Boston and Rev. T. S. Hamlin of Washington. The pastor, Rev. A. S. Gumbart, led the meeting.

At the Phillips Congregational church, in South Boston district, Rev. S. B. Meeser of Wilmington, Del., was the leading speaker.

At the Jamaica Plain Baptist church, Rev. H. C. Farrar, D.D., of Albany, made an address. Pastor R. M. Hunt presided, and followed Mr. Farrar.

At the Shawmut Congregational church, Rev. W. E. Barton presided. Mrs. Grace Hill of Germantown, Pa., and Rev. J. F. Cowan, D.D., of Pittsburg, were the speakers.

In the Warren Avenue church, Rev. Robert MacDonald, pastor, led the meeting. Rev. H. F. Shupe of Dayton, O., spoke.

At the First Baptist church T. E. Murphy of Pittsburg and Rev. J. T. Beckly of New York spoke. Rev. W. E. Wood presided.

Miss Florence Ben-Oliel of Jerusalem, Palestine, was the chief speaker at the Clarendon street church. The others who addressed the meeting were Prabala Ramachaudrayya Garu, Gunter, India; Rev. John Schon, D.D., Baltimore, presided.

At the People's Temple the pastor, Rev. J. B. Brady, presided. Miss A. P. Jones of Falmouth, Mass., and Rev. J. Z. Tyler, D.D., Cleveland, spoke.

At the Pilgrim Congregational church, Cambridge, Rev. Canon J. B. Richardson, London, Ont., made an address. He was followed by H. L. Hastings of Boston, the widely known tract publisher. The pastor, Rev. Charles Olmstead, presided.

At the Franklin Street Congregational church, Somerville, Rev. J. M. Gray, pastor, presided. The speakers were Rev. J. A. Rondthaler, D.D., Indianapolis; Selah Merrill, D.D., LL.D., Andover, Mass.; Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, Alleghany City.

At Berkeley Temple, Rev. G. E. Horr, Jr., presided. The principal address was delivered by Rev. W. H. Ward, D.D., of New York.

At the Park Street church Rev. C. H. Daniels, D.D., of Boston, presided, and Neal Dow of Portland, Rev. Jesse Malex Yonan of Persia, and Rev. T. J. Morgan of New York, spoke.

At the Central Square Baptist church, East Boston, Rev. D. M. Gardner presided. Rev. M. M. Binford of Richmond, Ind., W. J. Darby, D.D., of Evansville, Ind., and Rev. William Patterson of Toronto, spoke.

At the First Baptist church, Charlestown, Rev. A. S. Burrows presided. Addresses were delivered by J. C. Berry, M.D., Japan, and Rev. Wayland Hoyt, D.D., Minneapolis.

At Shepard Memorial church, Cambridge, A. P. Foster, D.D., presided. Speeches were made by Rev. W. R. Miller, Reading, Pa., and Rev. F. N. Peloubet, D.D., of Auburndale.

Won't Move to Chicago.

The most important proceeding in connection with the convention was the meeting of the trustees of the organization.

The chief business to be considered was the offer of H. H. Kohlsaat of the Chicago-Times-Herald, who had agreed to pay $5000 a year for three years toward the maintenance of the society's headquarters on condition they be removed from Boston to Chicago. After a committee had passsd adversely upon the subject, and reported, the report of the committee was unanimously accepted, and the headquarters will not be removed from Boston for the present.

H. H. KOHLSAAT.

The committee reported their appreciation of the generosity of Mr. Kohlsaat's offer, which, they were pleased to note, indicated that the work of the society was hereby recognized as being of a national and international character. The work, however, is wholly one of influence. It is not necessary that the society should have large buildings or incomes. The work is successfully carried on at small expense, and the principals of the organizations forbid its headquarters being more than a bureau of information, levying no taxes and seeking no authority. Therefore, it is inexpedient to accept the kind offer. A letter embodying the decision of the trustees was mailed to Mr. Kohlsaat.

The trustees will, later on, decide the matter of the '97 convention, and also take action looking toward the expansion of the society into a world's organization. Twenty-eight of the 36 trustees attended the meeting. Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., president and originator of the society, presided.

Systematic Work.

The reception, accommodation and information committees of the local Christian Endeavor societies are able to view the result of the last 24 hours' labor with satisfaction, since over 40,000 delegates have arrived from all sections of the country during that time. The arrangements for handling this great number of strangers were almost perfect, and the throngs disappeared quietly and quickly as soon as they left their trains. These delegates who did not care to put themselves into the custody of the committees registered at the Mechanics' building.

—The United States District court has refused to compel Editor Dana of the New York Sun to go to Washington to answer a charge of libel. The pretext was, that as the Sun was circulated in the District of Columbia the alleged libel was perpetrated there. This decision is valuable as guaranteeing one right of a free press. If our legislatures will now pass a law making it impossible for shyster lawyers to try to blackmail reputable newspapers there will be a still larger gain.—Franklin Press.

—In the Boston railroad stations the summer baggage is piled in long tiers awaiting tranportation, and the waiting rooms are thronged by ladies and children passing away the minutes, before the next train shall bear them away to farm or mountain or sea shore. The space in the baggage cars not occupied by trunks is about equally divided between baby carriages and bicycles, while the usual proportion of poodles and window brush canines and felines in perforated baskets and bird cages, betoken that the whole family is on the move. All these signs and tokens testify to the fact that "the season" at the resorts is fairly opened, and that "everybody is away" for the next two months.

A VAST MULTITUDE

Attended Meetings of the Christian Endeavorers.

SOUND ADVICE GIVEN

In President Clark's Annual Address to Delegates.

A Story of the Big Meetings of Yesterday, Last Night and Today.

BOSTON, July 12.—The splendid welcome that was officially extended to the 53,000 delegates to the grand Christian Endeavor convention has gladdened their hearts, and last night three magnificent divisions of the happy multitude praised God in song and prayer.

Even the immensity of the enthusiasm that prevailed yesterday at the big meetings in Mechanics' hall and the two great tents, Williston and Endeavor, was exceeded last night at yet greater gatherings at the same places. Clouded skies, that late in the afternoon threatened to destroy the continuation of the fine weather that has prevailed since the delegates began to arrive, cleared away as the shades of evening fell, and the very heavens added to the many beautiful electrical decorative features throughout the city that has so completely and sincerely done all it could to welcome within its precincts so many who have scarcely felt like strangers.

Long before the hour appointed for the opening of the meeting large crowds were pouring into Tent Endeavor and devoted the time in singing a number of hymns, under the direction of Musical Director Foster. When Chairman Rev. J. Z. Tyler, D.D., of Cleveland, stepped upon the platform, the vast seating capacity was tested to its utmost limit. After singing the hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves," Rev. W. B. Milligan of Alleghany read a section of the Scriptures, the vast congregation joining in the responses, which were printed in the official program.

Rev. Dr. Harding, general secretary of the general missions, offered prayer, and the Hampton (Va.) institute quartet sung several selections, which were enthusiastically received. In a graceful speech Chairman Tyler introduced W. H. Pennell of Washington, the first person who signed the active membership pledge at the Williston church, Portland, on Feb. 2, 1881. Mr. Pennell gave an amusing account of Washington, where the convention will be held in '96, and extended a hearty invitation to the Endeavorers to come to that city in 1896. The vast congregation then sung the song, "Washington, '96," printed especially for that convention.

The annual report of President Clark was the next feature of the meeting. This was read by Professor James Lewis Howe of Lexington, Va., and was greeted with so much enthusiasm that at several places the reader was interrupted by the great applause. The hymn, "Blest be the Ties that Bind," was then sung by the audience, after which Chairman Tyler introduced John G. Woolley of Chicago, who spoke on "Christian Endeavor vs. the Saloon."

The address was frequently punctuated with spontaneous bursts of applause, cheering and the waving of handkerchiefs, prompted by the speaker's caustic characterization of the liquor traffic.

In closing the session, the delegates rose and sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. G. W. McLuckley of California.

The Williston Meeting.

The glare of electric lights reflecting from the white sides of the big Williston tent lit up the eager, enthusiastic faces of 10,000 Endeavorers last night as they assembled for the first time on Boston Common in the night services.

The same enthusiasm and spontaneity were manifest as at the big day meetings, and song after song burst forth from the delegates. From the Endeavor tent nearby came the sounds of hymns sung by another 10,000, and to and fro the flood of song urged until Rev. B. B. Tyler of New York hushed the multitude in prayer. Treasurer Shaw then asked all the pastors, missionaries and their wives in the audience to rise, and, 300 standing, were greeted with tempestuous applause.

A quintet of colored singers from the Atlanta university, and the Park sisters of New York, were greeted with enthusiasm in their selections. The audience, standing, sang to the tune "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "Washington, '96." Ten thousand fans and handkerchiefs were waved and enthusiasm ran high.

"Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love," and "Scatter Sunshine," were sung by the entire audience, and the thousand voices of the choir on the platform roused the Endeavorers to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Rev. Teunis S. Hamlin, D.D., of Washington, a member of the board of trustees, was the first speaker. His topic was "Washington, '96," and after complimenting Boston for its treatment of her guests, eulogized General Booth for the great work of the Salvation Army in and about Boston and New England. Washington, he said, was already preparing for the reception of the convention of '96, and they intended to surpass in welcome any city in which the conventions had yet been held.

Rev. H. T. McEwen, Ph.D., D.D., of New York, then read the annual address of President Clark. Musical selections by the Park sisters were followed by an address by Rev. R. H. Conwell, D.D., of Philadelphia, on the rejuvenating work of the Christian Endeavorers throughout the world.

At 9:30 o'clock the great meeting closed with a grand chorus, under the direction of Musical Director Stebbins of Brooklyn, and prayer.

Overflow Meeting Necessary.

Half an hour before the meeting of the evening opened in Mechanics' hall, over 9000 persons crowded the big auditorium, and at 7:15 an overflow meeting, in which over 2000 participated, was being held in front of the building. All the doors of the hall had to be closed, and not even delegates were admitted after 7 o'clock.

In the glare of scores of brilliant electric lights and crowded to its utmost with happy Endeavorers, the richly decorated hall presented a sight even more impressive than in the daytime. As during the session of the forenoon, the chorus and prominent leaders of the society crowded the great platform, the chorus including over 1000 voices.

Several beautifully rendered hymns, in which the chorus and all the delegates raised their voices, echoed through the convention building before the opening hour, and the enthusiastic ones were still singing when at 7:30 General Secretary Baer called the delegates to order.

After a brief address by Secretary Baer introduced Rev. J. Missil of Derby, Eng., who led the opening prayer and praise service, at the conclusion of which W. H. H. Smith of Washington invited the United society to the convention of '96, which is to be held at the national capital.

Mr. Smith was frequently applauded, and when Musical Director Somerby announced the song which followed, every Endeavorer joined in, singing "Washington, '96," with a will.

President Clark received a grand ovation when he advanced to the speakers' desk to read his annual report. The Chautauqua salute greeted him as he appeared, and loud and long continued cheers followed. Following is a synopsis of President Clark's Address.

Judged by all standards, it is no immodest statement that the Endeavor movement is a success. An organization which in 14 years has grown from one society to 40,000, from 56 members to nearly 2,500,000; an organization that has belted the globe; that finds itself as much at home in Old England as in New England, under the southern cross as under the north star, under the dragon flag of China as under the Stars and Stripes of America, can claim surely to be no provincial and temporary expedient, but a world-wide, providential movement.

But success brings its own responsibilities. If the crop is large, the duties of stewardship are also large. The responsibility for the future of Christian Endeavor rests not with any leaders or officers or united society or union, but with the Endeavorers themselves, in every one of the 40,000 societies the world around. What is demanded of us by the very triumphs of this good year?

First—I would mention humble, selfish devotion to the cause we represent, which is the cause of Christ; a devotion which is not measured by loaves and fishes; a devotion which is entirely independent of offices and emoluments and honors. This society, thank God, has never yet been at the mercy of designing, mercenary schemers. Its very genius, its spiritual aims, its lofty purpose, its loyal dependence on the church which it serves, will, I believe, preserve it in the future as in the past.

Second—Past successes have all been won along the lines of fidelity and intense loyalty: loyalty to God and his word, loyalty to our individual churches and their interest. These very successes thrust upon us the same course for the future. In order that we may be more intelligently faithful, may I suggest that greater attention be paid to the study of God's word, Systematically and Consecutively.

It is the proud boast of this society, and it is no empty boast, that it is as loyal to its own church as any purely denominational society possibly can be. Let this loyalty be as intelligent as it is intense. Let us know why we are Baptists and Methodists and Presbyterians and Lutherans and Disciples of Christ and Congregationalists and Episcopalians. Let us base our service on intelligent devotion as well as on traditional veneration.

Third—The successes of the past have been due to certain distinctive principles, which have come to be known as Christian Endeavor principles. This convention is not an agglomeration of all kinds of young people's societies. It is not a gathering of musicial and literary and social and amusement societies. It is a convention of Christian Endeavor societies. The growth of these 14 years is not a happy combination of odd elements which have come together by chance. As every plant has a root, so every Endeavor society has a root. Rather, it has three roots: the pledge, the consecration meeting, and a system of committees by which its practical service for Christ is performed. You might as well expect a plant to grow strong and vigorous if you hack away at its roots, as an Endeavor society to grow strong without these cardinal principles.

The God-ordained purpose of the Endeavor movement is to raise the standard of practical devotion and consecrated religious enthusiasm of young people. It is constantly saying by means of the pledge, the consecration meeting, and the leading committees: "Make of your religion the first thing in all your lives. Place it before your business, before your social pleasures, before your school, before your amusements. There is one supreme thing in the world, and that is the service of the Master." This gives Christian Endeavor a right to live. This accounts for its success in the past. This guarantees

Its Success In the Future.

Fourth—But while the absolute necessity of keeping the movement "true to type," as the gardeners would say, is laid upon us, a necessity no less strenuous is ours to wisely follow the late providential paths which God has marked out. When, two years ago, at Montreal, the suggestion was made to you, Endeavorers, that as individuals you had unfulfilled duties along the line of Christian citizenship and missionary enlargement, who would have believed that your response would have been so prompt and generous? How you have leaped forward to your duty and your privilege! How the rapid contagion of these ideas has spread from society to so-

HERSELF ONCE AGAIN.

Nantucket Winds Up Her Celebration In a Blaze of Glory.

Rising Generation Receives an Object Lesson.

Historical Parade, Fireworks and a Grand Ball End Centennial Observances.

NANTUCKET, July 12.—The three days' centennial celebration closed last night in a blaze of glory. It was by far the greatest event the island ever saw. The afternoon parade was an object lesson to the younger generation. It was the aim of the committee to reproduce, so far as possible, the scenes and customs of 100 years ago. Floats and characters were devised to that end, and the result was a parade full of interest and instruction.

The town of Nantucket started in life without a cent, made a fortune in the business of killing whales and selling whale products, and then went into bankruptcy. Her commercial end came almost like the bursting of a bubble or the snapping of a thread.

There was no end of secrecy in preparing the floats for the procession. It was hard work to hide individual preparations in a place such as this, but pretty good success was had by the originators of some of the most interesting designs.

Among the Old-Time Vehicles

that figured in the parade was a conveyance such as the fishermen at Siasconset used to haul fish from the water to the houses up the beach. It was a curious contrivance. The running gear was nothing more elaborate than a common barrel with an axle run through it. The body of the cart sat over the barrel and the shafts projected much like the bowsprit of a vessel.

"All the way to Shearing" was represented by an old couple in a crazy-looking cart that dates back a century. Arthur Dyer was the driver, and beside him sat a woman gowned in the raiment of the days when Nantucket was Sherburne.

Dramatic in its lesson was "Homeward Bound; Full Ship," represented by Captain William Baxter, a seadog of 90 years, and a group of children. They were seated in a boat supposed to represent a whaler coming into port after a long cruise, with a hold full load of oil.

Then there was a stuffed whale on wheels. Right in the wake of the whole was a whaleboat and crew.

The Goddess of Liberty was Miss Anna Folger, attended by maids of honor.

Another float gave a good illustration of the Indians who sold the island for the price of a small potato patch as Nantucket land is held in the market today.

An interesting feature during the parade was the display of relics.

Flags of privateersmen, battle flags and colors of famous whaleships were seen on every hand. Many of these tattered emblems are coupled with history made by brave Nantucketers.

At dusk 500 people crowded to the waterfront to witness the display of a carload of fireworks. There were a number of set pieces that produced a brilliant spectacle. In the harbor a score of yachts were decorated with lanterns. When the spouting whale, Nantucket's town seal, went up in a shower of sparks, the enthusiasm was intense.

The grand ball was the event of the three days' jollification. It marked the end of the celebration in a most fitting manner. The skating academy, where it was held, was decorated with bunting. There were some 300 couples in the march.

Today Nantucket is herself again—quaint, quiet and 30 miles at sea, looking forward to her bicentennial.

Claims Self-Defense.

BRIDGEPORT, July 12.—Peter Wintter, who gave himself up to the police, saying that he had killed William Butler at Trumbull, was heard in court yesterday. Wintter claims that he struck Butler in self-defense. Ludwig Lett said that both men were drunk and that Wintter became enraged because Butler would not go to supper, and struck Butler with a crowbar, the blow killing him. Wintter was given into the custody of Sheriff Strong.

Asks For Forgiveness.

BRIDGEWATER, Mass., July 12.—Robert Perkins, who mysteriously disappeared on the eve of his contemplated marriage to Miss Carrie Bevan, has written a letter, dated St. Louis, to Miss Bevan, saying that he would return if he was forgiven, and that the reason he left was because he had been influenced by others.

A Little Girl's Awful Fate.

PORTLAND, July 12.—Mary Waters, 6 years old, was instantly killed yesterday by being run over by a freight train here. The little girl broke away from her mother's grasp, rushed in front of the engine and was ground to pieces before the mother's eyes.

Home Firm Gets It.

NORTH ADAMS, July 12.—The contract for the new normal school was awarded to Porter & Hannun of this town. The contract was awarded at Boston and was approved by the governor's council.

New England Briefs.

Bernard Bennett was arrested at Lynn on the charge of setting fire to a house.

Lizzie Gowden, 12 years of age, fell into the cove at Pawtucket and was drowned.

Rev. Carl G. Horst of Pittsfield was installed as pastor of the Second Unitarian church at Athol, Mass.

By the recent death of an aunt in California, Charles Follensbee of Haverhill, a shoemaker, has fallen heir to $10,000.

City Treasurer Moody of Biddeford negotiated with Boston parties a temporary loan of $25,000 at 2¾ per cent.

At Rutland, Jonas Higgins, an elderly man, was shot in the left arm by the accidental discharge of his gun and bled to death.

The Maine school fund and mill tax for 1895 has been apportioned, amounting to $518,185, against $514,399 in 1894. The total number of scholars in the state is 208,528.

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE CITY COUNCIL has refused to accept Miller Stile road, and because of the unsafe condition to travel, it has been closed to carriages. Pedestrians are wondering if they may not be shut off if the order to close Miller stile passes the City Council. It has already had one reading. The road should be accepted if the stile, which has been a public way over 250 years, is to be closed.

Wedding of Missionaries.

A wedding of unusual interest in missionary circles took place at the Wollaston Baptist church on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Simeon C. Gordon was married to Miss Nora A. Gordon by the Rev. Preston Gurney, the pastor of the society, before a large number of friends. Miss Emily Bjorkman officiated at the organ. The ushers were young lady members of the society.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon are graduates of the Spellman University of Atlanta, Ga. They will proceed to the Congo, in Equatorial Africa, where they will preach the Gospel to the heathen.

The Excursion to Rockport.

The Swedish people of Quincy had a glorious time Thursday on their excursion to Rockport. The party, over two hundred in number, accompanied by the Swedish band, left Quincy at 8 30 on special cars for Quincy Point, where they embarked on the steamer City of Quincy.

The trip down was uneventful, and a very enjoyable sail was had, the occasion being enlivened by music by the band. The boat arrived at Rockport about 1 30 and upon landing, the party were given a hearty welcome by the people of that place.

A substantial dinner was awaiting them, to which all did justice and were high in their praise of the hospitality shown.

Before embarking for home the band paraded through some of the principal streets of Rockport and were greeted with applause on every corner.

The boat arrived back to Quincy about 9 o'clock, where special cars were found in waiting to take them home.

Entertainment at Braintree.

Last evening was held one of the best entertainments the Baptist society has ever given.

The programme was decidedly patriotic and was well received by a large audience.

Instrumental music, Nellie Borden; singing, "Wreath of Honor," duet and chorus; recitation, "Fighting the Foe," Alice Dyer; flag exercise, sixteen children; recitation, "True Soldier," Willard Dyer; dialogue, "Our Country's Wealth," six girls; Star Spangled Banner, chorus of children; Spirit of Liberty, young women of 1776 and '95; "Ten Famous Women of the World;" Boston Tea Party, Rev. Mr. Hatch; Tea Party Reception; The Little Red Schoolhouse, by Mabel Dyer, Clara Call and Genie Dyer. The dialogue, "Our Country's Wealth," was excellent, and the flag exercise received considerable praise.

The "Ten Famous Women" was the best feature of the evening and included the following people:

Joan D' Arc, Mrs. Gibbes; Queen Elizabeth, Bertha Blake; Queen Josephine, Miss White; Lucretia Mott, Emily Young; Eliza Browning, Margaret Percy; Harriet B. Stowe, Mrs. Saunders; Grace Darling, Mrs. Gardner; Florence Nightingale, Edna Smith; Jennie Lind, Amy McVane; Harriet Hosmer, Mary Coleman.

Miss Susie Doane presided.

TODAY'S COURT.

Juda Wells of Milton was arraigned for having in his possession milk below the required standard with the intention to sell the same and was fined $50. Appealed.

Howard H. Jones of Milton was arraigned for tresspassing on the premises of Joseph W. M. Pond and was fined $6.

Canal Street Band Concert.

The "return party" given by the residents of Canal street to their neighbors on Bigelow street, on Thursday evening, was a grand success. It was the postponed band concert of the Fourth of July and was given by the Italian band of twenty-five pieces, on the "Ward One playground," between Canal and Bigelow streets. In honor of the event most of the residences in the vicinity were brilliantly illuminated with lanterns. Among the more noticeable were those of G. H. Wilson, Joshua Hanson, A. W. Dunbar, Frank F. Prescott, W. E. Howe, Mr. Hunt, George H. Bean, R. A. Sears and Walter S. Randall.

The concert was from eight to ten, and attracted over 1000 people, who were also entertained with fireworks.

Previous to the concert a series of impromptu sports took place which interested many. The race once around Bigelow and Elm streets and Miller Stile road was won by David White. Will Hodges and mate won the three-legged race. Another race through the above streets was won by young Moran, the potato race by D. White, and the tug of war by J. McDonald's team. John Black excelled in the three long jumps and also won the concluding race.

It has been suggested that the band concerts be continued fortnightly through the summer. The location is an excellent one and a small subscription from several would give an evenings' enjoyment to many.

John Hancock Lodge.

District Deputy Joy and suite installed the officers of John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F. of Wollaston, on Wednesday evening. After the ceremony, which was largely attended, a lunch was served.

The officers:

Braintree Y. M. C. A.

A meeting was held at the M. E. church on Monday evening to make arrangements to organize a Young Men's Christian Association. Rev. Mr. Ross was chosen chairman and Henry French, secretary.

A general discussion of the project followed and several committees were appointed.

Rev. Mr. Ross, Mr. Cook and Mr. Heath were made a committee of three to meet Judge French and inquire about the use of the Thayer Academy gymnasium.

A committee for quarters included Rev. Mr. Ellis, Rev. Mr. Ross and Mr. French.

Mr. Wheeler of the Congregational, Mr. French of the Baptist, and Mr. Cushman of the Methodist church, will act as membership committee. As no representatives of the other churches were present it is understood that the pastors of those churches will appoint a committee of one for the membership committee. The meeting adjourned till September 9th.

Lawn Party at Wollaston.

The Epworth League held a very pleasant and successful lawn party on Monday evening, July 8, nearly opposite the residence of Mrs. Stiles on Everett street. The grounds were prepared by several members of the league on Saturday last. Members and friends began to gather about 4 P. M., and in the evening a large number were present. Fruit, ice cream, candy and lemonade were on sale. The orchestra discoursed sweet music and the swings furnished enjoyment for a goodly number.

The principal entertainment of the evening was an exhibition of "The Family Album," and a life-like description of the life and character of the persons whose portraits it contained, given by "Mrs. Mehitable Lucratia Elkins." A gang of "hoodlums" disgraced themselves and Wollaston by creating some disturbance near the close of the exercises.

The tracks of the extension of the street railway to Milton have been laid to near the boundary line.

Rev. F. L. Bristol of Uxbridge, and Miss Mary Hill of Bath, Me., are guests of George W. Hill of Atlantic.

Mrs. Joseph C. Morse, accompanied by her youngest son, Edwin, is at Kennebunk Beach, Me., for a few weeks.

Miss Sarah Ayer is rapidly recovering from her recent illness and will soon return to her home on Atlantic street.

The second race of the Squantum Yacht club will be held Saturday at 2 30. The club's new float is nearing completion.

Many of the members of the Christian Endeavor from other states have been in town this week on sight seeing expeditions.

Auctioneer Johnson sold the property of H. S. Kingman on Howard avenue at public auction to James Murdock for $1350.

The street railway poles on Franklin street are being moved back further into the sidewalk that the street may be widened.

The late trains out last evening were crowded with Christian Endeavor delegates. Quincy is well represented at the meetings.

Miss Clara Keith, daughter of Mr. Aubrey Keith of River street, is visiting in New York. The young miss made the trip alone.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jameson and Mrs. Sage of Wollaston leave on Saturday for York Beach, Me., where they will pass a portion of the summer.

Miss Margaret Houston of Lincoln, Ills., a delegate to the Christian Endeavor convention in Boston, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Shackley.

Saturday afternoon at 2 30 there will be a rally of Junior Christian Endeavorers at Mechanics' Building, Boston, which the Quincy members are urged to attend.

Rev. J. H. Yeoman went to Bellows Falls, Vt., Wednesday to escort the "Green Mountain" delegation to Boston in behalf of the reception committee of the convention.

Next Wednesday evening there will be a meeting of the Quincy union of Christian Endeavorers at the Presbyterian church, Water street. Subject: Echoes of the Convention.

The concert by the Sacred Heart Sunday School Tuesday evening at Music hall, was one of the best ever presented in Atlantic. The visitors from West Quincy scored a great success as minstrels.

The funeral of John C. Ring was held Thursday from St. John's church and was largely attended by many of his friends. Rev. A. F. Roche conducted the services after which the remains were taken to Dorchester for interment.

The Water Commissioners selected a bad time of the year to put in water at Houghs Neck. The season is at its height down there now, and the laying of the water pipes interferes with the travel very much and is also dangerous.

Francis L. Souther Camp Sons of Veterans has accepted the invitation of Woman's Relief Corps to attend their basket picnic at Lovell's grove on the afternoon of Saturday. The car leaves City Hall, Quincy, at 1.35 P. M.

Rev. H. Hanson, pastor of the First Swedish Methodist Episcopal church, Boston, was at the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday evening. He gave an interesting account of the work of Methodism among the Scandinavians in the United States and also in Europe, and took a collection to aid in completing his church on Ferdinand street, Boston.

Capt. Dow, well known in this city and more extensively at Quincy Point, has arrived at Seattle, Washington. The Times of that city says: "Capt. Freeman A. Dow, master of the barkentine Planter, now at Port Townsend seeking a charter, is as famous a skipper in his way as John Paul Jones of old. He is noted as a successful first mate on some of the biggest wind jammers on the ocean and is a well known navigator in ports in every part of the world. The Planter will probably load at some of the Sound mill ports for Shanghai or Honolulu."

Two divines from the Provinces will preach at the Presbyterian church on Sunday.

A public meeting will be held at Music hall, Saturday evening, July 13, to close up matters pertaining to 4th of July celebration.

The celebration at Houghs Neck over the advent of turning on the water will not take place tonight, as the line is not quite ready as yet.

The Ladies' society of the Wollaston Methodist church have not suspended work because of the hot weather but held a sewing meeting at Mrs. E. E. Hoxie's Wednesday afternoon.

An example of how the servant rules th ehouse was given this noon, when the girl employed at W. H. Doble's on Canal street, drove the family from the house. The services of Officer Furguson were sought.

Rev. O. M. Fisher of Atlantic and Rev. C. W. Wilder of Wollaston have arranged for an exchange next Sunday morning. The evening services at the Wollaston church will be omitted, the Epworth League and the Congregationalists will join in the union Christian Endeavor meeting at the Baptist Church.

Quincy Endeavorers' Hymn.

TUNE, "CORONATION."

Oh list, for thousands raise the call,
"Endeavorers be alive;
And lend your talents each and all
To Boston '95."

"We come! we come!" send back the cry
Before the echo dies,
"With heart and hand we'll do or die
For Boston '95."

Christ and the Church our watchword is
And by it we will strive,
To raise a power to rouse the world
At Boston '95.

Oh Saviour, sanctify our hearts,
Our sluggish zeal revive;
May Quincy prove a power for Thee
At Boston '95.

Wisdom In Furniture Buying.

It isn't everyone that knows the value of Furniture, know when they buy it right, know the difference between the substantial and worthy sort and the kind that is made to sell and not to use. But here is a store with a conscience, selling the very best goods that Yankee wisdom can manufacture, and what is best of all, is selling it at a price that wins your favor, and fills the purse of all who choose this store to trade in with money well earned and saved by shrewd and careful buying.

Our efficient and ever alert fire department, under the command of Capt. Watson, extinguished a fire in the rear of Ellsworth block the other night. It looked at one time as though aid might have to be summoned from neighboring places but a conflagration was averted.

Mr. Somes, teamster of the O. T. Rogers Co., is building a two and one-half story house on Bryant avenue, corner of State street.

Mr. Smart is the new clerk at W. H. Puffer & Co's.

Miss Alice Wrigley will spend her holidays in the woods of Maine, and her friends unite in wishing her a pleasant trip, and that she will return much improved.

Several new houses are under construction in East Milton.

The street railway is steadily approaching East Milton and but a short time will elapse before it is finished.

Frank H. Quimby is passing his vacation on his wheel, taking a tour through Maine.

The boys kept the police on the alert on the morning of the Fourth and some of the young men who prepared to stone the police got sadly left. They are known and it is hoped that their parents will give them a talking to. This would make a good subject for a Sunday evening discourse.

Fire Department Notes.

The matter of better fire protection for Houghs Neck has been settled by the advent of water. This is not all, for Chief Williams is to replace the old chemical now located there, by a hose wagon with 800 feet of hose. The new company will be known as Hose 5.

Chief Williams will make an official test of the hydrant service at Houghs Neck, as soon as the water is turned on.

A new fire alarm box, No. 27, is to be located in front of the Universalist church on Washington street.

The two new fire alarm boxes at Norfolk Downs will be put in immediately. One will be located at the corner of Rawson road and Billings street and the other at the corner of Beach and Billings street.

The permanent men of the department have commenced to take their vacations.

The prospects are that an electric striker will be placed on the bell in the house of Hose 3, as an order for the same is now before the Council.

The automatic whistle at the Wollaston machine shop has been cut into the line.

An inspector of wires should be appointed for the city.

AN EXCITING GAME.

Sixteen Innings Failed to Settle the Boston-Louisville Contest.

LOUISVILLE, July 11.—The Colonels and the Bostons put up a game that is seldom seen in these parts. Brilliant play after brilliant play was made by both teams. Almost every man made some kind of a circus catch or stop. The most exciting incident of the game occurred in the 14th inning, when McCarthy singled and McCreery let the ball get away from him. Spies interfered with Tommy at first and received a biff in the jaw for his trouble. Tommy continued around to third, and Spies rushed across the diamond to punch his head off, but Umpire McDonald prevented further trouble. Umpire McDonald then ordered both men out of the game.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION.

Formal Opening of Their Annual Convention at Boston.

BOSTON, July 12.—The convention of the National Young People's union was opened at the Church of the Unity, with 232 delegations present. Rev. Dr. Q. H. Shinn offered prayer, and, after sending greetings to the Christian Endeavorers, committees were appointed.

Rev. Elmer J. Felt, the president, then addressed the assembly in a review of the work of the past year. Secretary Canfield reported that the national union had a membership of 9000. Miss Goldthwaite, treasurer, submitted a statement showing that $2559.69 had been received, and all expended. After other reports had been read, the convention adjourned for dinner.

At the afternoon session papers were presented on the work of the various committees of the local unions, the devotional committee, the lookout committee and the charity committee. The session closed at 3:30, when the visiting delegates proceeded on a sight-seeing tour.

At the evening session the first speaker was Rev. Henrietta G. Moore of Springfield, O., who spoke on "What American Citizenship Should Mean." She said that American citizenship should mean a citizenship of brains and character, not one of sex. It means loyalty. Loyalty to religion—not the religion of creed, but of helpfulness; loyalty to our own youth. American citizenship should not grow old. American citizenship should mean a sober citizenship; one that seeks not to perpetuate, but to overthrow the liquor traffic.

Rev. F. O. Hall of Lowell spoke upon "The Claim of the Church Upon the Young." He said that some sneer at the claims of the church upon the life of the mortal, but they have stopped sneering in New York ever since Dr. Parkhurst wielded the power of Christian sentiment and cleansed the politics of the metropolis. There were many problems for the church to solve. The church means the young people. It used to be thought that the schoolhouse would answer—"all honor to 'the little red schoolhouse,'" said he, "and to the larger schoolhouse which has succeeded it."

Murdered by Italians.

NEW HAVEN, July 12.—The body of Thomas Lavelle of Shelton was found in the Housatonic river on July 7. Joseph Rom, an Italian, aged 16, has just been arrested, and a warrant is out for the arrest of another Italian. The Shelton police have obtained evidence that Lavelle went to a slum of Birmingham the night of July 6 and got into a quarrel with Rom and his companion. They struck him with brass knuckles and choked him to death and then threw the body into the Housatonic river.

A Chicago Sensation.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The recent failure of the Leader department store took a sensational turn yesterday, when the three members of the firm were arrested upon a charge of making false statements with regard to their credit and obtaining goods on the strength of such statements. The men were released under heavy bonds.

Pontifical Endorsement.

ROME, July 12.—A papal brief, addressed to Cardinal Gibbons, approves of the projects he submitted to the pope, especially the convocation of a Eucharist congress in America, and an educational program of philosophy, letters and science for the Catholic university of Washington.

Gone Since Saturday.

GENEVA, N. Y., July 12.—Harry May and Cleveland Coxe, students at Hobart college, started on Saturday last to row around Seneca lake, and have not since been seen. It is feared that they have been drowned.

BRAINTREE.

The Quincy cars now run to the Braintree Square.

Horace R. Drinkwater has been getting his yacht "Gipsy" into shape this week. He has established new moorings near Germantown.

Charles Hollingshead fell from his bicycle last Sunday and severely wrenched his shoulder. He tore the cords in such a way that his arm will be in a sling for a month. His bicycle wheel caught in the electric car tracks and threw him.

Miss Cummings of South Braintree, who recently returned from South Africa, will speak at the First church next Sunday. Miss Cummings gave some very able talks at South Braintree, on the African seminaries, several weeks ago.

Miss Ruth Annie Damon, formerly of East Braintree, a granddaughter of Deacon John Crane, was married to Mr. E. F. Heald at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Damon of North Hanover, June 22. After a short visit to New York they are to live at Rockland.

The Universalist Y. P. C. U. met at the home of Miss Lilla Anderson, Taylor street, Tuesday evening. There was some fine singing by a male quartette and a farce was very finely given by Mrs. F. Hobart and Miss Isa Coye. Ice cream and cake added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Miss Anderson, employed at Morrison's mill, caught her finger in a carder yesterday and it was badly crushed.

Misses Cora, Bessie and Jessie Thurber of Central Falls, Rhode Island, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. L. A. Hollis, of Taylor street.

Hon. H. A. Blood, Ex-Mayor of Fitchburg and a prominent member of the Braintree & Weymouth electric company, died last Friday night of apoplexy. He was one pf the first promoters of the Braintree and Weymouth road and a prominent railroad man.

The Pond Streets have won two out of three games. The third will be played on the Common tomorrow afternoon.

A meeting of the directors of the Institutes base ball team was held this week and it was voted that the team play two more games.

If these games receive a good patronage the base ball team will be continued, otherwise it will be necessary to disband the club at least for this season.

The Warrens of Roxbury, a strong team, will be met a week from Saturday on the Institute grounds, and the following Saturday the Norwoods of Norwood will play.

Both of these teams are very strong and good games are expected.

The local society has been well represented at the convention this week. Miss Lotta Thomas is one of the reception committee and many others have attended every day. The station is prettily decorated with the C. E. colors.

Tuesday evening an Italian was severely injured at South Braintree depot. The man is employed on the construction gang that camps near the depot and was returning from work on the train. Before the train had stopped he jumped to the ground and stepped under the car. His foot was badly crushed and his shoulder broken.

DARAB'S WINE CUP.

A certain wine cup belonged to Darab, a Persian king. To him it had come as an heirloom from a long line of ancestors. He prized it over all things.

Truly this cup was a marvel of exquisite craftsmanship. The name of its maker was lost 'mid the mists of dead ages. Indeed so magical seemed the skill of its fashioning that some there were who thought that it surely must be the work of a power more than mortal. It was formed wholly of jewels that were fastened together by some strange, subtle device, and it was shaped in a manner most curious. Its craftsman had taken a flower of peculiar beauty for his design.

As Darab, on feast nights, held it, wine filled, before the light it seemed as if a many tinted cluster of precious stones was plunged into a luminous sea—a sea softly, sensuously red. The rare old grape juice, fostered to life in the long ago by the sunlight, appeared to awake, to exult, to live again in the glow of a milder light.

But none might drink from this cup but Darab—Darab, the king!

Toghrul, the soothsayer, he of the white flowing beard and mystic, piercing eyes, averred that this cup ofttimes possessed strange powers. He said that if Darab gazed into the depths of the wine as it foamed and sparkled within its embrace he might see, as in pictures, happenings in faroff places, or he might see deeply into the workings of the hearts of those who stood near.

This saying of the soothsayer had caused fear to enter into the minds of the courtiers, and whenever Darab looked steadily into the cup all trembled, as none knew what next might happen. Again, it was whispered, by whom none could tell, that if it was destroyed Darab would die, and never more would one of his race reign as king.

Thus was this cup of grave, of ominous import.

* * * * * * * *

This night was a night of feasting and grand revelry within the king's palace. Lights flashed and sheened. Wines of the rarest and choicest vintage flowed freely as water. Delicate viands, fruits and subtle triumphs of cookery were spread upon the great tables. And there were gleamings of countless gem incrusted, precious metaled goblets. Glorious clusters of flowers gave forth a sense lifting all pervading aroma. Varied and mingling colors and hues raptured the eye.

And here were women of a glory and a beauty indescribable. Silks shimmered. Eyes shone.

And here was the cold, cruel glint of steel, for soldiers, accoutered, were at the feast.

Sable slaves ministered to the wants of the feasters. Bracelets and anklets of ivory flashed as they flitted to and fro.

King, satraps, women, courtiers—nay, all—were blended in a grand, joying unition. Like fire flamed all hearts.

And music rang.

* * * * * * * *

The moon's light was calm and clear. Stars twinkled, glistened in the profound afar. All was still. But in the stillness there seemed to sleep some strange, mighty secret. And there came into the air a heaviness.

* * * * * * * *

"Ho! Toghrul, Toghrul! Thou of soothsaying fame, come hither—come hither! I have gazed into this cup, and, lo, it has revealed to me the face and thoughts of one who is a traitor—one who plots against my life, my throne, my all. Yonder he stands. He! Hyder!"

It was Darab who called out thus in a loud voice. A wicked, cruel smile played in his face as he pointed to Hyder, one of his satraps. The night had passed well on, and the revelry had become of the wildest.

A silence as of the grave fell over all as the king made this accusation. They knew and feared what was coming. None dared speak but Toghrul.

"Art sure, O king!" he asked. The soothsayer felt kindly toward the satrap.

"Sure as that I am of woman born," Darab replied as he again looked into the cup, "here is the face of yon unworthy servant. Now it is still and tells naught, but an instant ago as I gazed its lips moved, and from them I heard murmurings of revolt and treachery. He must die. This cup is my safeguard and guide. Ho, guards! Seize yon traitor!"

Hyder turned pale. Brave though he was, he trembled—trembled because of one he loved and little ones. Yes, he was lost—lost. Ofttimes had he known Darab to order men to the death because of things revealed to him in this strange cup.

Hyder was seized, and death hung in the air, when a loud cry broke from Darab. Again he was looking into the cup, but this time his face was convulsed with fear.

"Ho! To arms, to arms!" he cried wildly. "Soldiers, all, to arms! Foemen surround the palace! Rebels are upon us!"

Hyder was loosed, and in a flash the revel was turned to a wild, terror stricken confusion.

Then was heard a low rumbling in the air, and suddenly there came a fearful roll of thunder and a succession of blinding, destroying lightning flashes. The walls of the palace near the king's throne fell.

Clashing of arms and savage shouts were heard in the distance.

Darab was standing with the cup raised aloft in his right hand. He was invoking aid from the powers above. Near him stood the soothsayer and Hyder with drawn sword. He was prepared to defend to the last gasp the king who had so cruelly condemned him. Shrieks and cries were rending the air.

Then came a lightning flash that was mightier and more blinding than all that had gone before. It struck the cup, shivering it to dust. Darab fell dead. It was even as if the powers above had spoken.

Into the palace rushed the enemy.

And tumult reigned.—Bart Kennedy.

The Elephant Liked His Toddy.

It is a curious thing, and one which I have never heard satisfactorily explained, that animals and fowls, and almost every living creature upon which the test has been made, take to intoxicants. Instead of mankind alone, as Byron had it, being distinguished from the brute creation by his ability to get drunk, the exception is largely favorable to civilized mankind. I thought of this recently when present at a private experiment on savage and domestic animals. Without any preliminary education the most savage animals, the tiger and the lion, took to raw whisky with all the avidity of old topers. The elephant drank it by the bucketful and sighed for more. Any domestic animal will do the same. It upsets a good many preconceived notions.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 14. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—For Christ and the church.—Math. xvi, 13-20. (Prayer for the international Christian Endeavor convention.)

The topic, "For Christ and the Church," is a very appropriate one. The fourteenth annual convention of the movement that has had these words for its motto and Christ and the church the objects of its love and fidelity is being held at Boston, and well may we obey the suggestion of the topic to pray for it. It may best suit the spirit of the occasion to consider Christian Endeavor as related to Christ and the church.

1. Christian Endeavor stands for Christ. It stands for a divine Christ and says of Him, as Peter said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." It stands for a personal Christ, abiding in the heart and manifested in the life. The supreme object and aim of the movement has been and is to instil personal loyalty and fidelity to Jesus Christ into the heart and life of every one coming under its influence. "To do as He would have me do" is made the mainspring of life's every action. Christ first, everywhere and always, is its abiding principle. It stands for Christ as the founder of the church. Christ and the church are inseparable. He founded it not upon Peter as pope or prelate, but upon confessing Peter, and it was to be built up by the addition of others who confessed Christ divine, as living stones to Peter as the beginning. Christ is the head, and the church is the body, and even in its work for the church this movement represents Christ.

2. Christian Endeavor stands for the church. Next to loyalty to Christ it emphasizes fidelity to the church of Christ. It stands for interdenominational fellowship in the church. It would remind the Christian world that we are all brethren, all one in Jesus Christ. Yet it also emphasizes denominationalism. Loyalty to denomination, to the local church, has ever been one of its tenets, and the charge that it was or would undermine Christian denominations has ceased to be heard. Its history has been a sufficient answer to this oft repeated cry against it in the day of its early history. It stands for work in the church. It is indeed the church at work and has done more to introduce systematic, regular lines of Christian work into the church than any other religious movement.

"For Christ and the church!" Under this motto the Christian Endeavor movement has prospered in the years gone by. Let us as Endeavorers be so faithful to our motto that in years to come the prosperity of this movement may be even still more great.

Bible Readings.—Ps. cxxii, 1-9; Isa. ii, 3; Jer. xxxvii, 3; xlii, 1-3; Mic. iv, 1, 2; Zech. viii, 20-22; Math. x, 18-22; Luke xxi, 10-12; Acts ii, 44-47; xv, 25, 26; xx, 28; Rom. i, 7-9; viii, 35-39; Gal. ii, 20; Eph. i, 22, 23; iv, 15, 16; Col. i, 18, 24; Heb. xii, 22-24; I Pet. i, 6-8; Rev. i, 4-6.

Endeavorers In South Africa.

A union of South African Christian Endeavor societies has been formed, with Rev. Andrew Murray, D. D., author of "Abide In Christ," as its president. The annual convention will probably be held next September. The union has started a bright little paper, and, although this is in many respects the day of small things with our South African brethren, yet they have great hopes for large growth. The Endeavorers who go out from the schools take with them the principles of the society, not only to different parts of Cape Colony, but to Natal, the Free State and Transvaal as well. At the last meeting of the synod of the Dutch Reformed church in Cape Town one evening was devoted to Christian Endeavor, with Dr. Andrew Murray presiding. An address was delivered by A. E. Bliss. Surely there are great things in store for the dark continent through the medium of the Christian Endeavor society.—Golden Rule.

Bringing the Members Together.

The executive committee of the local union of Seattle has a very pleasing plan for bringing the members together. At 6 o'clock on the evening and at the church previously designated the members congregate and partake of a plain lunch provided by ladies from the society at whose church the meeting is held. After the lunch a business session of the executive committee is held. Thus far the social feature has not interfered with the business meeting, but it has aided by causing prompt and good attendance.

Spreading the Glad Tidings.

The Christian Endeavor society is proving a great help in the Lutheran mission at Muhlenberg, in Liberia, Africa. Rev. George Goll has not only organized a flourishing society in his own mission, but the good news comes that five others have been formed through his instrumentality, and that this has proved one of the most helpful of all the agencies he has used for the evangelization of the Africans.—Exchange.

The Divine Helper.

Thou, too, wert forsaken; thy lonelier cry
Sent a wider appeal through the darkening sky.
Alone on the mountain, the garden, the cross,
Thou hast felt all humanity's anguish and loss.
My sorrows have touched Thee, my woes have been Thine.
Give help to my weakness, Thou Helper divine.
—Rose Terry Cooke.

Christian Endeavor Jottings.

The Christian Endeavor superintendent in Switzerland reports four societies in that country already.

Scotland now has 150 Christian Endeavor societies. This is just the number enrolled in the United States during the first three years of the society's existence. Christian Endeavor was almost unknown in Scotland three years ago.

To act nobly unconsciously we must strive for nobility consciously. A pail spills only that of which it is full.—Ivan Panin.

A VAST MULTITUDE.

clety, from local union to local union, from city to country, from state to state and province and nation! Not a death-dealing contagion is this, but a blessed inoculation which, please God, will make forever impossible the smallpox of such municipal misrule and corruption as we have known in the past.

To speak first of our efforts for a better citizenship. It behooves us to be very modest. I make no extravagant claims for the Christian Endeavor society, but it is fair to say the society has had no insignificant part in the general uprising of Christian people which has buried Tammany under 50,000 white ballots in New York city, and is now fighting an equally corrupt foe of another breed in the same state; which has voted for reform, 50,000 strong in Chicago; which is now engaged in cleansing the dirty streets and the dirtier politics of that and other cities; and which in a hundred places has awakened the civic conscience and purified a fetid political atmosphere.

But the very success of these movements for a better citizenship and a larger missionary zeal, unprecedented and unexpected as it has been, brings with it responsibility for further effort along the same lines. Grant's laconic commentary on success in arms was, "Push things." Napoleon's tactics were to follow up a victory; to crowd the enemy; to pursue the flying foe. I believe our captain issues no other orders to us, fellow Christian Endeavorers. I can find no other interpretation of the success he has already given us. Not as a political party, but in all political parties, stand for righteousness, for honesty, for purity, for good men and good laws. Do not be content until a corrupt political deal is as impossible and intolerable as an open cesspool would be in your parlor. Follow the flying foe. Push things. The sword of the Lord and of Christian Endeavor.

A Tammany in America forever more impossible! A missionary board debt forever impossible! These are two of the responsibilities of the future from the successes of the past in Christian Endeavor.

Fifth—Once more, our success in the past has been the success of a united host. It could never have been won as a sect, as a segment of the hosts of God's people. So far as we have been allowed by our superiors, we represent the undivided evangelical young people of America. For this spiritual unity Christian Endeavor stands, as well as for the pledge and consecration meeting. Thank God, that in every denomination but one, the world around, during the last twelvemonth, this fellowship has been growing broader and more complete. "E Pluribus Unum" is our motto all around the world as truly as it is the motto of the United States of America. State and provincial pride and loyalty are no less intense because of the union of states in the United States, of the provinces in the Dominion of Canada, against common foes. Denominational loyalty and love are only more marked when we are bound together in this alliance, offensive and defensive.

Against the Hosts of Evil.

In such a fellowship only can we go forward to the largest victories. But this fellowship, I believe, is assured.

Then let us enlarge our boundaries, Christian Endeavorers, not for the sake of the organization, but for the sake of the kingdom; enlargement means a larger federation, a sweeter fellowship, a wider unity, a stronger army to fight against hoary and venerable wrongs. Let us enlarge our fellowship for no selfish motive, but because the God-given successes of the past show that enlargement means the spead of the intense devotional idea for which Christian Endeavor stands, because it means civic purity, missionary extension—the world for Christ. Let us enlarge our fellowship because thereby we are answering our Lord's prayer "that they all may be one."

I have thought you might grow tired of our old annual motto, and I have tried to find another one as appropriate, but I cannot do it. The successes of the past year only emphasize it, for they are all of Christ and of Christian fraternity; so I must give it to you again for the coming year—the motto which tells of one captain and of one fellowship; the motto which points backward to past successes; the motto which shows the only road to future victories; the motto which tells alike of our leadership and our brotherhood. Here it is. Take it, O Christian Endeavorers; take it, and live by it for another twelvemonth. "One is your master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren."

The Convention of '97.

Another enthusiastic round of applause marked the conclusion of the president's address, and the cheering continued when Secretary Baer announced that at the meeting of the trustees San Francisco had been decided on as the meeting place of the convention in 1897.

Dwight L. Moody, Northfield, was introduced next, after the hymn, "The Banner of the Cross," had been rendered by the entire congregation. "The Bible and Its Relation to the Christian Endeavor society" was the topic discussed by him. He said that he believed something more than enthusiastic meetings and charitable work were necessary for the perpetuation and extension of Christian Endeavor, and he believed that something was the Bible.

He urged the delegates to base their faith and trust in the world of the omnipotent as spoken to them through the Bible, and to make the Bible entire and complete the foundation of their religion. He was not a pessimist, he said, and could see today a brighter outlook for Christianity than ever before. Mr. Moody concluded with a fervent prayer and an appeal to the delegates to learn the Bible thoroughly and follow its teachings.

The hymn, "Tell the Glad Story Again," and prayer by Rev. William Patterson of Toronto, concluded the evening's exercises.

The overflow meeting, which was held on the steps of the main entrance to the hall, was opened by Rev. Henry Lamont of Ireland. Rev. John Pollock of Scotland, President Clark and Secretary Baer also addressed the meeting. The addresses were interspersed with numerous hymns, and the gathering did not adjourn until delegates within the hall began to pour out through the doors.

TODAY'S MEETINGS.

Enthusiam Appears to Grow as the Convention Progresses.

If the meetings of yesterday could be called enthusiastic, what shall be said of those of today? From the opening of the early morning prayer meetings in the various churches up to the noon adjournment at Mechanics' hall and Tents Williston and Endeavor, one could go but a short distance without hearing songs of praise to the Almighty.

The scenes at the convention's meeting places today were a repetition of those of yesterday, unless, perhaps, the delegates were more numerous. Long before the hour of opening the doors of Mechanics' hall, the space in front of the building was closely packed by a mighy throng, and song after song was sung with a spirit that showed how sincere were the Endeavorers' feelings. Inside the hall the singing was continued until the convention was called to order at 9:30. The same enthusiasm prevailed at Tent Endeavor and Tent Williston.

Today's work of the Endeavorers was begun this morning by attending prayer meetings in 21 city churches. The services lasted from 6:30 to 7:15, and the topic was "Faith—Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for Strength."

Trustee Rev. M. Rhodes, D.D., St. Louis, presided at Mechanics' hall today, and George C. Stebbins, Brooklyn, was the musical director. After praise and prayer service, the information committee's report was made by William T. Ellis, Boston. "Cardinal Principles of Christian Endeavor" was presented by an English Endeavorer, Rev. Knight Chaplin, London; singing; presentation of state banner, for greatest proportionate increase in number of local societies, presented by Rev. Wayland Hoyt, D.D., Minneapolis; "Cardinal Principles of Christian Endeavor," presented by an American Endeavorer, Rev. O. A. Smith, D.D., Evansville, Ind.; open parliament—topic, "The Pledge, the Backbone of the Society, Its Necessity and Its Paramount Value"—conducted by O. W. Stewart, Eureka, Ills.; singing; address, "I Ought, Therefore I Can," Rev. A. E. Turner, D.D., Lincoln, Ills.

Williston's Program.

This was the program at Tent Williston, President Francis E. Clark presiding; Percy S. Foster, musical director: Praise and prayer service; information committee's report, Amos R. Wells, Boston; Cardinal Endeavor Principles, presented by an Australian Endeavorer, Rev. W. J. Closs, Sydney, N. S. W.; singing; reports from denominational meetings, conducted by Rev. E. B. Bagby, Washington (representatives having two minutes each): African Methodist Episcopal and African Methodist Episcopal Zion (joint rally), Rev. R. H. Stitt, Philadelphia; Advent Christian, Rev. A. C. Johnson, Lynn; Baptist, Rev. H. C. Nedder, Chester, Pa; Canadian Presbyterian, Rev. W. R. Cruikshank, Montreal; Christian, Rev. G. W. Morrow, West Randolph, Vt.; Church of God, John W. Mackey, Harrisburg; Congregational, W. H. Strong, Detroit; Cumberland Presbyterian, Rev. R. W. Lewis, Meridian, Miss; Disciples of Christ, Rev. Allan B. Philputt, D.D., Philadelphia; Free Baptist, Rev. O. H. Tracy, Somersworth, N. H.; Friends, Winslow M. Bell, Milton, N. Y.; German Societies, Carl E. Wittwer, Buffalo; Lutheran, Rev. Willis S. Hinman, Columbia, Pa.; Mennonite, Rev. A. S. Shelly, Bally, Pa.; singing; Cardinal Endeavor Principles presented by a Scotch Endeavorer, Rev John Pollock, Glasgow; presentation of state banner, for greatest absolute gain in number of societies, presented by Rev. F. E. E. Hamilton, Newtonville; Open Parliament—Topic: "The Feet and Hands of the Society, How they are employed"—conducted by Rev. J. A. Rondthaler, D.D., Indianapolis.

At Tent Endeavor.

Rev. Howard B. Grose, Chicago, presided at Endeavor tent, and George K. Somerby, Boston, was musical director: Praise and prayer service; information committee's report, by George B. Graff, Boston; presentation of Junior state banners, one for greatest absolute gain in number of societies, the other for greatest proportionate gain, conducted by Rev. J. F. Cowan, D.D., Pittsburg; Cardinal Endeavor Principles, presented by an Irish Endeavorer, Rev. J. L. Lamont, Belfast; Open Parliament—topic, "The Heart of the Society, the Consecration Meeting, How to Make the Most of It"—conducted by Rev. Burt Estes Howard, Los Angeles; singing; report from denominational meetings, conducted by Rev. D. O. Mears, D.D., Cleveland (speakers limited to two minutes each): Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal South, Methodist of Canada (joint rally), Rev. Wallace McMullen, Philadelphia; Methodist Protestant, Paul M. Strayer, Baltimore; Moravian, Rev. A. D. Thaeler, Winston, N. C.; Presbyterian, Rev. George B. Stewart, D.D., Harrisburg; Protestant Episcopal in Canada and United States, Rev. Canon J. B. Richardson, London, Ont.; Reformed Church in America, Rev. Isaac W. Gowen, New Durham, N. J.; Reformed Church in the United States, Rev. Henry T. Spangler, D.D., Collegeville, Pa.; Reformed Episcopal, Bishop Samuel Fallows, D.D., Chicago; Reformed Presbyterian, Rev. Samuel McNaugher, Boston; Southern Presbyterian, Professor James Lewis Howe, Lexington, Va.; United Brethren, Rev. H. F. Shupe, Dayton, O.; United Evangelical, Professor Otis L. Jacobs, York, Pa.; United Presbyterian, Rev. R. M. Russell, D.D., Pittsburg; Cardinal Principles of Christian Endeavor, presented by a Canadian Endeavorer, Rev. S. P. Rose, D.D., Montreal.

Workers Amid Workers.

One of the most unique features of the great convention is the series of noonday prayer meetings held at business places throughout the city. The first of these meetings proved to be all that their originators hoped. Delegations from different states had charge of the various gatherings, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed everywhere.

The prayer and song services were held in every conceivable place. In Faneuil hall were a great number of market men, in Seamen's Bethel and along the wharves the "tars" in port were entertained.

Into lumber and coal yards, factories, shops and mills, the young Endeavorers penetrated, and wherever they went they were welcomed, and a fine half-hour enjoyed by all.

At the hospitals some pathetic scenes occurred, which were in striking contrast to the gayety and good cheer at other places.

The meetings will be held every day during the convention, judging from the "come again" that followed the Endeavorers as they left the places of meeting.

Services are being held this noon at Faneuil hall, conducted by Dwight L. Moody, in Bromfield Street Methodist Episcopal church, conducted by Rev. J. W. Chapman, D.D., Albany, and evangelistic services are being conducted in various parts of the city by state and city delegations.

FOES OF SATAN.

Enthusiasm of Endeavorers Has Not Abated.

A WORLD'S PARLIAMENT

An Interesting Feature of the Convention.

Trustees Form an Organization Embracing the Whole Work.

BOSTON, July 13.—If the continued fervency of the Christian Endeavor multitudes be a proof, the devil is on the run. After the great meetings of Thursday and the yet greater meetings of yesterday, thousands and thousands of delegates last night attended the marvelous gatherings in Mechanics' hall and in Tents Endeavor and Williston.

Unwearied by the fervor of the huge morning meetings in these places, not tired by the earnest efforts of the noon rallies in a dozen places, where congregate the toilers of Boston, and far from satisfied with the encouragement gained at the 15 general committee meetings yesterday afternoon, the Christians gathered, 25,000 strong, at the big meetings at the three great auditoriums of Mechanics' hall and Tents Williston and Endeavor. The splendid weather, continued since the beginning of the greatest religious festival the world has ever seen, has not yet failed.

Like the modern three-ringed circus, the big meetings of last evening presented an embarrassment of riches, and Endeavorers hardly knew where to go. At Mechanics' hall building the address of Rev. A. C. Dixon, D.D., of Brooklyn, attracted thousands, while other thousands were drawn to Tent Williston by the announcement of an address by Rev. Henry Montgomery of Belfast, one of the grand ecclesiastical triumvirate of European fame—Spurgeon, Brown and Montgomery.

Pennsylvanians were partial to Mechanics' building because of the speech there of Rev. J. T. McCrory, D.D., of Pittsburg, but Marylanders generally attended the meeting at Tent Endeavor, that they might hear, among other good things, the address of Rev. Hyle Delke of Hagerstown, Md., on the "Centrality of Christian Fellowship."

At Tents Endeavor and Williston the five-minute greetings of Endeavorers from the corners of the earth, constituting that part of the program designated "The Parliament of Nations," were both encouraging and instructive, and at all three meetings the presentation of a banner to a local union for best work in promoting our local fellowship provoked multitudinous approbation for the successful and deserving union.

The other speakers at the meetings last night were received with that warmth that has unceasingly been the spirit of the convention, and especially does this apply to the pleasing report of the "Senior Mothers'" (or Parents) society held at Mechanics' building by Rev. H. N. Kinney of Syracuse. This is comparatively a new feature of the Endeavor society, and its increase, as indicated in the reports, produced marked congratulatory applause.

At Mechanics' Hall.

Before seven o'clock last night every available seat in Mechanics' building was occupied with Christian Endeavorers, who early joined heartily in the praise service of song. The audience and chorus joined in hymns with such earnestness that soon after seven o'clock Musical Director Foster took his position and conducted the praise service, which lasted for three-quarters of an hour.

Rev. Samuel McNaugher of the Reformed Presbyterian church of Boston conducted the devotional exercises, which consisted of the responsive reading of the 24th psalm, prayer and the singing of the Endeavor songs. Before opening the regular program President Clark, who presided, read a protest which had been sent to the convention, directed against the singing of denominational songs. The protest was dismissed with a few sincere and graceful remarks by President Clark.

Yong Kai of San Francisco, a member of the Chinese society of Christian Endeavor, was introduced. In a few feeling remarks Yong Kai urged that efforts of Christian Endeavor be exerted in the broad fields of China to convert his countrymen.

President Clark then introduced Rev. H. N. Kinney of Syracuse, N. Y., who spoke on the Senior Mothers' society of Christian Endeavor, which, he said, was the auxiliary to the Junior Endeavor society. Mr. Kinney was a pioneer in the movement for the establishment of this society in 1887 and spoke earnestly for the furtherance of the society. The object of the Y. P. S. C. E., he said, was to feed the sheeplings; the Junior society to feed the lambs, and the senior society to feed the Juniors.

After singing, "Hallelujah, Praise Jehovah," Rev. A. C. Dixon, D.D., of Brooklyn was introduced. Mr. Dixon was warmly received, and spoke on "Denominational Loyalty and Interdenominational Fellowship." Dr. Dixon was frequently interrupted by applause during his address, which was followed by the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" by the Every Day Church quartet.

Rev. U. F. Swengel of Baltimore was next introduced, and with a few words presented the banner prize to the Philadelphia union for having done the best work in promoting Christian Endeavor fellowship. This emblem was accepted in the name of the society by President Lee of the Philadelphia union, and J. D. Robinson, president of the Junior society.

Rev. J. T. McCrory, D.D., of Pittsburg, made the closing address of the evening upon "Where we come together."

The Park sisters followed in the rendition of "Heaven is my Home," and the meeting adjourned with benediction by Rev. A. C. Crew of Toronto.

Tent Endeavor's Big Crowd.

Ten thousand delegates attended the evening meeting in Tent Endeavor, and at least 2000 more were kept outside by the incapacity of the enclosure. Songs of praises were the feature of the half-hour preceding the formal opening of the service, at which Trustee E. R. Dille, D.D., of San Francisco, presided. George C. Stebbins led the song service.

The brief devotional services, with which the meetings are always opened, having been finished, the presentation of the banner to the local union showing the best work for promoting Christian Endeavor fellowship was made to the Philadelphia union. The same honor fell to the union last year, the banner having been awarded them at the Cleveland convention.

The banner was presented by Rev. H. W. Sherwood of Rondout, N. Y., and was accepted by Rev. Wellington E. Lowtes of Philadelphia. He feelingly promised that the society, honored by the possession of the banner, would continue their efforts to retain the distinction attained by them in the last two years.

These exercises were followed by an address by Rev. G. F. Love, Jr., of Rochester, on "The Christian Home Bureau," as exemplified by the work in the city of the speaker.

In the five minutes' greeting from representatives, under the parliament of nations, Edward Marsden, an Alaskan native, told of the 9000 native Indians of his country who had been converted through Christian missionary influence.

Rev. R. Burgess of Wales said that in Wales there are 10,000 Christian Endeavor members.

Prabala Ramachaudrayya Garu said that if there was any country in which Christian Endeavor influence was needed it was India, and he expressed the belief that India, containing many castes, whose people speak no less than 365 dialects, is dependent upon the Christian Endeavorers to bring the inhabitants all together.

Rev. W. J. I. Close of Australia, Rev. A. A. Burrows of Bermuda, and Miss Anna M. Cummings, on behalf of Africa, also spoke.

Delos K. Lonewolf, who represented the North American Indians, greeted the Christian Endeavorers because they have no committee of Indian affairs. Christian influence, he said, will do more for the Indian than secular education. "We have more right to live in this country than you have. We await the opening of the door of citizenship, under one God."

Japan was represented by Rev. K. Tsunashima. He said: "Japan, the oldest country in the world, is but 40 years old, for its birth dates only from the time when your Commodore Perry bombarded our shores with the peaceful methods of the Christian Bible."

Jesse Malex Yonan represented Persia. He said that if in Persia the Christian Endeavor movement prevailed, the unspeakable Turk would make no more trouble. Persia is groaning for religious freedom.

An address by Rev. Edwin Heyl Delk followed. Songs and a benediction closed the services.

Williston Overtaxed.

Tent Williston again proved too small to contain the throng that last night gathered to attend the services. Songs by the choir of a thousand voices, led by Director Somerby, in which the 10,000 auditors fervently joined, opened the meeting. Rev. H. C. Farrar, D.D., of Albany, presided.

W. H. Allbright, D.D., of Boston, led in prayer, and the prayerful responses of the audience, with bowed heads, lent impressiveness to the service.

Rev. James Pollock of Scotland was then introduced. He said that there had been formed "The World's Christian Endeavor union," a planetary union, and the next move would be the institution of a society to cover the interplanetary spaces.

D. H. Tribou, chaplain of the U. S. N., was the next speaker. He delivered an impressive address.

Rev. Rivington D. Lord, D.D., of Brooklyn, then presented to Philadelphia the banner for the best local work in the ranks of Christian Endeavorers. The banner was accepted in a graceful speech by Rev. Allan D. Philputt of Philadelphia.

Chorus and congregational singing preceded the parliament of nations, whose representatives were each allowed four minutes of greeting. Responses were made by the following: England, Rev. James Mursel; Scotland, Rev. John Pollock; Canada, Rev. T. S. McWilliams; United States, Rev. S. W. Adriance; China, Yong Kai; Spain, Miss C. H. Barbour; Mexico, Rev. A. C. Wright; Germany, C. E. Wittwer.

Rev. A. M. Boulgonrjo of Armenia was greeted with the waving of 10,000 handkerchiefs and the shouts of the people. He thanked the Christian Endeavorers in behalf of his suffering people for the great work done in their behalf.

Rev. T. W. McWilliams, representing Canada, elicited applause, lasting fully two minutes, by his reference to the war going on in the Dominion against sectarian schools.

Other hymns were followed by an address by Rev. Henry Montgomery of Ireland, who told of the rapid progress of Christian Endeavor in the Emerald isle.

Prayer and benediction ended the meeting.

After adjournment of the above three meetings an open air meeting was held on Boston Common, President Clark presiding. A poem, written for the occasion by Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D., was next on the program. Addresses were made by S. B. Capen of Boston, Governor Greenhalge, Mayor Curtis and Rev. Donald MacLaurin, D.D., of Detroit.

Evangelistic Rallies.

The venerable sides of historic Faneuil hall almost bulged at noon from the pressure of 4000 persons, who were jammed into the limited space to attend the Christian Endeavor or Evangelistic rally. Long before the hour appointed for the beginning of the meeting the police were obliged to deny admission to hundreds. There are no seats on the floor of Faneuil hall, and all through the services the congregation was startled by the staggering of fainting men and women. More than 25 women and half a dozen men were overcome by the heat and excitement.

A FIGHTING CHANCE.

Liberals May Win Out In the Parliament General Elections.

Tories Had Slight Lead at Time of Dissolution.

An Interesting Review of the Political Strength of the House.

LONDON, July 13.—The general elections for members of the new parliament began yesterday. Members of the last parliament were returned from their previous constituencies without opposition. The Tories expect to win, but the Liberals have a fighting chance.

The parliament now being elected will be the 26th of the United Kingdom, and the 14th of Queen Victoria's reign. The 13th parliament, which was dissolved July 8, was elected in July, 1892, and assembled on Aug. 4 of that year. Under the septennial act, passed during the reign of George I, it would not have expired by limitation until Aug. 4, 1899, but its career has been cut short by the exigencies of party politics after an existence of 2 years 11 months and 4 days.

When the parliament first assembled, nearly three years ago, it contained a home rule majority of 40, the home rule party including 274 Liberals and 81 Irish members, these last divided into 72 anti-Parnellites and 9 Parnellites, while the anti-home rule minority of 315 was made up of 269 Conservatives and 46 Liberal Unionists.

At the close of the parliament, July 8, the maximum majority on any question on which Liberals, Radicals, anti-Parnellites and Parnellites could be brought into line was 27. The home rule side, exclusive of the speaker, numbered only 348, and the opposition 321. The regular Conservatives had increased to 272, and the Liberal Unionists to 49; while the Liberal forces had fallen to 267, exclusive of the speaker, the anti-Parnellites and the Parnellites remaining at the original figures.

Affected by Bye-Elections.

This marked change in the size of the home rule majority was the result of the great number of bye-elections which have occurred since the general election of 1892. The bye-elections, exclusive of those made necessary by the acceptance of office under the two ministries, numbered 63.

At the bye-elections the Conservatives won seven seats, the Liberal Unionists three and the Gladstonians four. In addition, T. H. Bolton, who was returned as a Gladstonian Liberal, become an avowed Liberal Unionist, but did not resign his seat.

There is, therefore, nothing in the feeling of the country, as indicated at the bye-elections, that need discourage Liberals. On the contrary, the change in the opinion of the electorate has been so slight, especially when all the facts of each electio are remembered, that with a good figh the Liberals may achieve a result that may certainly surprise their opponents. The present strength of parties in England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland is shown in the subjoined table:

	England.	Scotland.	Wales.	Ireland.	Totals.
Liberals	199	47	23	....	269
Nationalists	1	....	....	71	72
Parnellites	....	....	....	9	9
Conservatives	237	14	2	19	272
Dissentients	34	11	....	4	49
	465	72	30	103	670

The Tory Unionist party are in a decided minority in Scotland, Wales and Ireland, and they will have to make a net gain of 14 seats before they become equal in numbers to the Liberals, Nationalists and Parnellites combined.

A Washington Sensation.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The grand jury has an indictment against Benjamin H. Milliken, a young man well known in official and social circles in this city, and private secretary to Senator Harris of Tennessee, for house breaking and felonious assault. The offense for which he is charged was committed on the night of July 4, at the house of ex-Solicitor General Samuel F. Phillips. Milliken has left the city.

Friend of the Oppressed.

DANSVILLE, N. Y., July 13.—Dr. James C. Jackson died at Brightside, aged 85. For more than 50 years Dr. Jackson has been actively engaged in public philanthropic work. He was a co-worker with the great anti-slavery lights, and was noted throughout New York and New England as an eloquent and effective speaker.

Unnecessarily Abandoned.

HALIFAX, July 13.—Two days ago the Austrian bark Redonto went ashore on Magdelan island. The crew got to land, and afterward the bark floated and went to sea. Yesterday she was picked up by a schooner believed to be an American fishing schooner, and is being towed to port.

Sent $250,000 In Gold.

NEW YORK, July 13. — Gold to the amount of $250,000 was shipped today to Europe by Nesslage, Colgate & Co. A member of the firm was interviewed on the subject and stated that the shipment was made in the ordinary routine of business.

Safe Tapped.

KINGSTON, July 13.—The authorities are investigating what seems to be a mysterious robbery of £5000 in government debentures. The securities disappeared from the safe of the ex-crown solicitor.

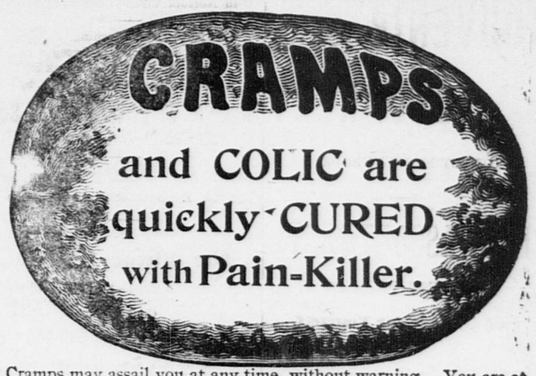

A Day Off.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 13.—President Cleveland did not go fishing yesterday, but remained at home. Secretary of State Olney spent some time with the president yesterday afternoon.

Failure In Clothing Trade.

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—G. L. Kahn, wholesale dealer in boys' and men's clothing, has assigned. Liabilities will amount to about $100,000 and the assets will slightly exceed liabilities.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

IT WAS expected that the Metropolitan park assessments would be payable this year, possibly a double assessment, as the Act of 1893 provided that the cities and towns should pay annually by the first apportionment for the term of five years next following the year of the first issue of scrip or certificates by the State. The bonds were issued in 1893 we believe, but the apportionment has not yet been confirmed by the court, and will not be in time for the tax levy.

The award of the commissioners, G. F. Richardson, C. W. Clifford and H. P. Harriman, who have apportioned among the 37 cities and towns their apportionate share of the expenses of the Metropolitan park and boulevard system, was yesterday called up before Judge Allen in the supreme court by Counsel Felix Rackeman for the Metropolitan park board, the petitioners in the case. He asked that a reasonably sufficient notice be given to the various cities and to appear in court at a day to be fixed by the court, and show cause why the report should not be confirmed as made by the commissioners.

Judge Allen issued an order accordingly, returnable Sept. 5.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE orders should receive first consideration at the meeting of the City Council on Monday evening, for the summer season is the most desirable for building. It will be impossible now to complete the buildings for the September term, which will be open in seven weeks, but they will be completed none to soon. The new building at "The Rail" will not only accommodate that section and relieve the Willard, but will also relieve the John Hancock and the Lincoln by a change of district boundary. The new building at Norfolk Downs is needed more for the relief of the Wollaston and Atlantic buildings than as an accommodation at the Downs. A progressive city will not erect large wooden buildings, and now that the brick and stone plans are approved by two-thirds of the members of the City Council and the School Committee there should be no further delay.

Auction Sale.

WHEREAS, in the matter of the petition of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company for the approval by the Board of Railway Commissioners, under Chapter 462 of the Acts of 1894, of an issue of capital stock by said company to the amount of $37,500, in addition to the amount of $262,500, now authorized and outstanding, for the purpose of providing means for the purchase of the rights, franchises, and property of the Quincy Street Railway Company, and for other purposes set forth in said petition, the following order has been passed by said Board:

ORDERED—That the Board approve the sale of the said shares at not less than their par value to the highest bidder at public auction in the city of Quincy; notice of the time and place of such sale to be published at least five times during the ten days immediately preceding the sale, in the Boston Daily Advertiser, the Boston Evening Transcript and the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

Notice is hereby given that said amount of $37,500 of the capital stock of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company, consisting of 375 shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars a share, will be sold at not less than their par value to the highest bidder at public auction at the office of said company in the city of Quincy, at 3 o'clock P. M., on MONDAY, July 22d, in the following manner, in accordance with a vote passed by the Board of Directors of said Company, namely: Said shares of stock will be offered in ten share lots, and the highest bidder upon each lot of ten shares will have the privilege of taking the whole or any part of the same until all of said 375 shares shall be thus disposed of.

Quincy and Boston Street Railway Co.,

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the Heirs-at-Law and all other persons interested in the estate of late of Quincy, in said County, deceased,

JOHN M. CALL,

Whereas, Henry J. Call, administrator of the estate of said deceased, has presented to said Court his petition for license to sell at private sale, in accordance with the offer named in said petition, or upon such terms as may be adjudged best, the whole of a certain parcel of the real estate of said deceased for the payment of debts and charges of administration, and for other reasons set forth in said petition.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at E. Hyde Park, in said County of Norfolk, on the twenty-fourth day of July, A.D., 1895, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each person interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the QUINCY LEDGER, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. Newton Harlow and family of Mattapan are spending the month of July on Manet avenue, at the Teele cottage.

Superintendent Cavanagh gives out the statement this morning that the water has been turned on at Houghs Neck. The celebration however has been postponed until Monday evening.

The Houghs Neck cars go down crowded Saturday afternoons. Two cars for the early afternoon to accommodate the people from Boston would be appreciated, also at half past five and six o'clock every night.

Treasurer Henry E. Reynolds of the Brockton street railway spent Sunday in this place.

No better hose wagon is owned by the city than that to be located at Houghs Neck. The wagon was built to order for Engineer Frank C. Packard, and was originally intended for a protective wagon. It is now in the paint shop being lettered and varnished.

Mass is celebrated every Sunday at the church of St. Frances-by-the Sea, Houghs Neck, at 10 30.

A Fine Trip.

Mr. John Wilder with his son Harry and Frank M. Coe started from Atlantic at an early hour, Friday morning for a ten days' trip on their wheels They go direct to New York city where they expect to arrive Sunday. From there they go to West Point, to remain one day, and will then push on to the Catskill mountains. On the return trip they will come directly across the state, and expect to be home one week from Monday. The whole distance to be covered is about 600 miles, and with good weather a very pleasant outing is anticipated.

Hay on Fire.

The alarm from Box 45 at 10.30 Friday night was rung in for a fire in two bundles of hay in the rear of Badger Bros. machine shop on Willard street. The hay was probably set on fire by a passing locomotive, but the blaze was extinguished before any great damage had been done.

SWITHIN BROS.,
Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

Wisdom
In Furniture
Buying.

It isn't everyone that knows the value of Furniture, know when they buy it right, know the difference between the substantial and worthy sort and the kind that is made to sell and not to use. But here is a store with a conscience, selling the very best goods that Yankee wisdom can manufacture, and what is best of all, is selling it at a price that wins your favor, and fills the purse of all who choose this store to trade in with money well earned and saved by shrewd and careful buying.

SPOONING PARTIES.

How These Commendable Aids to Matrimony Should Be Conducted.

"Spooning" parties are popular in some quarters. They take their name from a good old English word which was intended to ridicule the alleged fantastic actions of a young man or a young woman who is in love. For some reason, which no one ever could explain, everybody pokes fun at the lover. In fact, that unhappy character is never heroic in real life, no matter what great gobs of heroism are piled about him on the stage, and in all the romantic story books. The girl in love and the boy in love are said to be "spoony."

When a "spooning" party is given, the committee in charge of the event receives a spoon from each person who attends, or else presents each guest with a spoon. These spoons are fancifully dressed in male and female attire, and are mated either by the similarity of costume or by a distinguishing ribbon. The girls and boys whose spoons are mates are expected to take care of each other during the continuance of the social gathering.

Of course the distribution of the spoons is made with the greatest possible carefulness, the aim being to so place them as to properly fit the case of the young people to whom they are presented. The parties are usually given by the young people of some neighborhood where the personal preference of each spoony is well known, and they are the source of no end of fun. It is possible also that they serve as aids to matrimony as well, and are therefore commendable, since an avowal is made more easy to a diffident swain after he feels that his passion is not a secret, but that his weakness for a "spoony" maiden is known to his friends and enemies on the committee which dispenses the spoons. It may be mentioned that after the spoons have been distributed among the guests, each couple retires for consultation regarding the reasons which caused the award of mated spoons in their case. This consultation is known by the name of "spooning."—St. Louis Republic.

A Clever Way to Get a Dinner.

I happened to be one of a party of six dining the other night at an up town restaurant. Most of us were strangers to each other, having met only in the afternoon in the course of business. There were a banker, a politician, a lawyer, a theatrical manager and a something else, I do not yet know what, in the company. The something else made himself exceedingly agreeable. He was, in fact, the life of the party. He was politeness itself, and his wit and epigrams were fetching. After dinner he rather suddenly and mysteriously dropped out of sight and was missed.

"Who was the gentleman?" I asked of the theatrical manager.

"I'm sure I don't know," he replied. "I thought he was a friend of yours."

"No, I never saw him before. I supposed he was a friend of yours," I said. Then I put the same question to each of the others and found that the man was unknown to any of the party. He had simply invited himself to dine with us, behaved like a jolly good fellow and disappeared at the right moment. The only thing we have against him is that he forgot to pay his bill.—New York Press.

Just What's Needed

Exclaims thousands of people who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at this season of the year, and who have noted the success of the medicine in giving them relief from that tired feeling, waning appetite and state of extreme exhaustion after the close confinement of a long winter season, the busy time attendant upon a large and pressing business during the spring months and with vacation time yet some weeks distant. It is then that the building-up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are fully appreciated. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration caused by change of season, climate or life, and while it tones and sustains the system, it purifies and vitalizes the blood.

—Nothing has been done the past year that will help the A. P. A. movement more than the riotous conduct of the foreign element at East Boston on the Fourth.

TO VISIT IN AUGUST.

Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association will ENTERTAIN WESTERN DEALERS.

Notes from Shed and Quarry—New Work, Etc.

It is not perhaps generally known that Quincy is to be visited by a large number of western granite men in August, and that the outcome will doubtless be very beneficial to our chief industry. The visitors will remain with us two days.

The excursion is that of the Michigan Marble and Granite Dealers association. The associations of Ohio, Indiana, Nebraska and Iowa will also be in the party. They will leave Chicago August 19 and will arrive in Boston on the night of August 27 and will come immediately to Quincy.

While here they will be the guests of the Quincy association who will entertain them in a royal manner. What the programme will be has not been arranged as yet, but it will probably include a tour of inspection among the quarries, and a dinner. The annual outing of the Quincy association will doubtless be postponed until that time, and the visitors taken to one of the many sea shore resorts in this vicinity.

The final arrangements will be made at the next meeting of the Quincy association.

Shed and Quarry.

The Mitchell Granite Co., is hard at work upon the 36 monuments for the State of Illinois.

The Saturday half holiday affords the workmen an opportunity to take their families on an outing.

Swingle & Falconer are keeping up their reputation and have all the work they can do.

Milne & Chalmers have some pretty monuments of Quincy granite in their yard.

A number of western dealers are in town this week, having come on with the Christian Endeavorers.

While none of the granite firms are over and above stocked with orders, all have more or less to do.

The monument to the memory of Harry M'Glennen is to be of Quincy granite, but the question is, who will get it?

Swithin Bros. do not say much but they are hard at work and are turning out a large amount of work, and every monument they put out is a standing "ad." to their work.

Badger Bros. polishing machines have a wide reputation, and they are constantly receiving orders from all parts of the country.

There are not as many small firms in business as there was, as the hard times have forced them out.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Bicycle Riding

The easiest riding wheel constantly jars the system—an easy sort of jar, maybe, but the kind that wears the vital organs. The greatest wear is on the Kidneys; constant jarring prevents their doing their work properly.

Buker's Kidney Pills

are a natural remedy and act on the Kidneys as sleep acts on the brain. They restore them to their functions and remove the dragging pains in the back. Backache and Kidney ache are tired aches, aches that indicate disease. The pills cost 50 cents at the druggists. Book about Backache, free.

FOES OF SATAN.

Other Evangenstic rallies were held at noon on several wharves, in a few big stores or manufactories, on street corners and vacant lots. They were more largely attended than those previously held in the same places and will be continued until the convention finally adjourns.

A Planetary Union.

At a meeting of the trustees, called especially for the purpose, a "World's Christian Endeavor union" was formed, with officers identical with those of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor. The union was formed to confederate the societies which have grown up all over the world, which, it is believed, will facilitate the work of the Christian Endeavor movement throughout the globe. Rev. F. E. Clarke, D.D., of Auburndale was chosen president for one year. Secretary Baer will act as secretary and William Shaw as treasurer, until they meet at Washington in '96.

TODAY'S MEETINGS

Show The Same Enthusiasm and Christian Spirit on the Part of Endeavorers.

Vast auditoriums again crowded to their utmost capacity, and large crowds turned away from the necessarily inhospitable doors, was the rule for the third day of the Christian Endeavor convention. With ardor unabated, the young people took advantage of the delightful weather, and in the comparative coolness thereby afforded they were able to give their energies to drinking in the words of speakers or to storing up the strains of the spirited hymns and songs for future inspiration.

The cool air and the bright blue of the sky proved favorable for sight-seeing also, and crowds of the Endeavor people and visitors made good use of their spare time in wandering through the crooked streets of old Boston, and looking up all the places of historic interest in which the city abounds.

Sunrise prayer meetings began this morning in 21 churches of the city and suburbs, and when the early morning sun was just brightening the city thousands of Endeavorers were wending their way to the churches.

The South End was the best place to get a glimpse of this early morning devotion of Christian Endeavor, for there the great bulk of the convention delegates are staying, and it was there that many of the most enthusiastic meetings were held.

There seemed to be as many people on the street this morning at 6 o'clock as one would ordinarily notice in the afternoon when people are going home from work, and when the time for the prayer meetings at 6:30 arrived there was a hurrying hither and thither of young men and young women from all directions.

Today was international citizenship day. The meeting at Mechanics' building was conducted by Trustee Rev. H. F. Shupe, Dayton, O.; George C. Stebbins, Brooklyn, musical director. Praise and prayer service preceded the presentation of the banner to a local union for best work reported in promoting Christian citizenship, presentation being made by Rev. C. M. Southgate, Worcester; address, Elijah A. Morse, Canton; singing; introduction of Neal Dow, Portland, Me., who made a 10-minute address; address on "The Responsibility of the Afro-American Race in America," by Bishop Alexander Walters, D.D., Jersey City.

At Tent Williston, President Francis E. Clark, D.D., presided; George K. Somerby, musical director. Praise and prayer service; voices from North America (six minutes each)—A voice from the north, Rev. C. D. McDonald, Grafton, N. D.; a voice from the south, Professor W. P. Taylor, Birmingham, Ala.; a voice from the west, Rev. J. A. Allison, D.D., Seattle, Wash.; a voice from the east, Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley, Belfast, Me.; a voice from Canada, Rev. Mungo Fraser, Hamilton, Ont.; presentation of a banner to a local union for best work reported in promoting Christian citizenship, presented by Rev. G. L. Morrill, D.D., Denver; singing; address, "The Responsibilities and Possibilities of an American Citizen," by Bishop B. W. Arnett, D.D., Wilberforce, O.

Adjournment to open-air meeting on Boston Common.

Trustee Rev. J. M. Lowden, Boston, presided at Tent Endeavor; Percy S. Foster, Washington, was musical director; praise and prayer service; voices from North America (six minutes each)—A voice from Canada, Rev. A. M. Phillips, Montreal; a voice from the north, Rev. Pleasant Hunter, D.D., Minneapolis; a voice from the south, Rev. John Boyd, D.D., Charlotte, N. C.; a voice from the east, Rev. Dwight M. Pratt, Portland, Me.; a voice from the west, Thomas Jones, Kansas City; singing; open parliament—topic: "What Are You Doing for Christian Citizenship?" conducted by Rev. William G. Clarke, D.D., Chicago; presentation of a banner to a local union for best work reported in promoting Christian citizenship, by Rev. S. Edward Young, Newark, N. J.

Evidently Poisoned.

BOSTON, July 13.—Florence and John Haglett, 5 and 3 years old, respectively, of 14 Parker street, were seized with violent sickness last evening and died shortly after. The children had been playing in the back yard of their home, and, it is said, they drank part of the contents of a bottle which they found in the yard. An autopsy will be held.

Bondsmen Settle.

SALEM, Mass., July 13.—Sheriff Johnson has received a check for $2500 from the bondsmen of Fred M. Smith, who was convicted in the Haverhill boodle aldermen conspiracy case, and who was defaulted on his bond of $2500. The bondsmen pay to avoid the expense of a suit on their recognizance.

Claimed That They Were Displaced.

LYNN, Mass., July 13.—Over 50 employes of John F. Donallon & Son, morocco dressers, here, struck yesterday. A month ago an increase of pay was granted. Since that time the men allege the firm has been gradually discharging its old help and substituting Armenian workmen.

Wasn't Strict Enough.

NEW HAVEN, July 13. — The board of education last night dismissed Ernest Leifield, a teacher in the high school, on a charge of not enforcing dicipline. As Leifield is very popular, the action of the board will probably be strongly protested against.

Murderer Turner Dead.

PROVIDENCE, July 13.—Edward Turner, aged 45, who was serving a life sentence in the state prison for murder, died yesterday afternoon from general debility and insanity.

THE Y. P. C. U.

Topics of Interest to Unitarians Discussed at Their Convention.

BOSTON, July 13.—At the morning session of the second day's convention of the Young People's Christian union Jersey City was chosen as the place for the convention of 1896.

The convention adopted the report of the committee on reports recommending the continuation of the 2 cents a day plan of raising funds.

Professor I. Wallace Cate of Tokio, Japan, made the address of the morning. His subject was the success of mission work in Japan, and, after thanking the young people of America for their sympathy and aid, he called for assistance in the establishment, in the near future, of a union in the land of the mikado. During the morning a resolution of greeting and good wishes was presented by Rev. G. W. Cook on behalf of the Young People's association of the Unitarian church.

At the evening session Rev. J. M. Pullman, D.D., spoke upon "Modern Methods of Charity Work." "There is," he said, "a new charity. The charity which not only seeks to give relief, but to give character to the objects of charity. The methods of modern charity may be grouped into three classes: First, is the ameliorating effort—the poorhouse is an instance of this kind of charity. The second is the restorative effort by which, through friendly visits to the unfortunate, they may be restored to a condition of self-respect and self-support. The third effort is the prevention, and this is the kind of work which can best be done by the members of the Y. P. C. U. This is the work with the children, by which they are so trained that they shall become useful and self-supporting."

Rev. Florence Kollock of Pasadena, Cal., spoke on "Latent Power of Universalism," urging with rare eloquence upon the young people the necessity of homes seeing their religion and putting it to work if they would know its power. There is no power in theory. There is untold power in the principles of Universalism, but the power is latent until helpful service is attempted, when it shows itself and increases with divine rapidity.

Rev. Augustus J. Chapin of Omaha spoke on "Youth In Age"—striking the chord of sympathy between the young people and the old, and helping to increase the spirit and power of the church as a whole in all its departments of work.

HINTS AT CONSPIRACY.

What Mrs. McDonald Has to Say of Her Husband's Financial Troubles.

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—Mrs. Elis McDonald, reported to have fled from San Francisco with $100,000 belonging to her husband, Richard H. McDonald, Jr., now in jail in that city awaiting trial for forgery and embezzlement in connection with the wrecking of the Pacific bank, was located in this city yesterday. She is stopping with her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Carlton. At first she would not admit her identity, but after reading the report of her alleged flight, she acknowledged that she was Mrs. Richard McDonald. She then said:

"Richard McDonald, Sr., my father-in-law, went to New York and sent for us," she said. "When we arrived, he asked my husband to take me and go abroad. My husband said no; that he was content and would go back to San Francisco and face the charges. His father begged him to go, and even offered our expenses. But my husband refused, and the result was that we went back to San Francisco, his father remaining in New York, where he is at present.

"Then followed my husband's arrest, and all of this trouble, of which I know nothing. I am totally ignorant of my husband's financial dealings, therefore am not in a position to talk of them, but I know that my husband is innocent of the charge against him, and is the victim of a political conspiracy. That is why his father wanted him to go abroad, as he said that our enemies in San Francisco would resort to any means to pull us down."

Superb Playing by Colonels Resulted In Beaneaters' Defeat.

LOUISVILLE, July 12.—The cultured Bostonians again succumbed to the Kentucky Colonels. It was every inch a ball game, marked by brilliant work throughout, in which Duffy for the visitors and Clarke were the most prominent. The Louisville team, without an exception, played superb ball, and they ran bases in a manner that was refreshing.

Fire-Swept Michigan.

DETROIT, July 13.—The telegraph companies report communication cut off to Traverse City, Charlevoix, Petoskey and other points in that region. Trains on all roads in the locality are badly delayed, and in some cases cut off. Nothing has been received here in response to inquiries sent to Thompsonville, where most of the residents of Benzie county who lost their homes by fire took refuge.

Objectionable Bouquets.

LONDON, July 13.—Sir William Harcourt and wife, while returning from a political meeting in a carriage yesterday, were vigorously pelted with cabbage stalks and rubbish while passing through a suburb of Derby. The two were hit, but were not injured.

Special Dispensation.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The state department has been notified that the British government has granted permission for the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Massachusetts to enter England in July and August, with their full equipment and arms.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 13.—A fight occurred in Jackson Hole between settlers of the region and a party of Bannack Indians, who were unlawfully killing game. One Indian was killed and 15 captured.

Orangemen Out In Force.

HALIFAX, July 13.—For the first time in the history of the city, Orangemen of Nova Scotia, to the number of 2000, paraded yesterday afternoon. There were no disturbances.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Shows the Present Month to Be Profitable In Business Circles.

Cotton Is Unchanged---Wool Is Advancing.

Prices For Hides, Leather and Shoes Remain as Stiff as Ever.

NEW YORK, July 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: A business flood, so strong and rapid that the conservative fear it may do harm, is out of season in July. But the seasons this year lap over and crowd each other. May frosts and frights, it is now evident, kept back much business that would naturally have been finished before midsummer, and the delayed culmination of one season gets in the way of efforts to begin another on time.

But the volume of business, however it may be measured, is remarkably large for the month, even in a good year. Clearing house exchanges for two weeks have been 35 per cent larger than last year and 6 per cent larger than in 1892.

The week has been notable for a sensational fall in wheat of 8 cents in two days, followed by recovery of 5 cents, though neither accords with any interpretation of the quite disregarded government report. The sudden drop in prices was the result of speculative rather than commercial influences.

Corn Crop Outlook Favorable.

The latest news indicates an enormous crop of corn, much the largest ever grown, if weather favors, but the price is only ¾ cent lower than a week ago.

Cotton has not changed, though speculation still turns wholly on prospects, regardless of enormous stocks carried over. In Europe the manufacture lags, but here is satisfactory.

There is more business this week, with prospects of further increase, though much is said of the prices at which foreign goods are heavily sold, and undervaluation is alleged. Labor controversies in woolen mills have generally resulted against the workers, although some advances in wages have been obtained, but a strike of carpet weavers at Philadelphia already affects several thousand, and threatens to include as many more, an advance of 7½ per cent being demanded, while the market for goods is so dull and weak that manufacturers unitedly refuse.

Cotton goods continue active and strong, with comparatively little difficulty as to labor. The northern mills have taken little over 100,000 bales in the past three months, since cotton was below 7 cents, but with cotton bought cheap for months ahead they are able to do good business.

Wool is still advancing, with enormous sales, 12,714,000 pounds for the week, and in two weeks of July 26,497,614 pounds, against 11,986,550 in the same weeks of 1892. As the sales are about four times the weekly consumption, it is obvious that the market is essentially speculative, but the rise abroad has set the country ablaze, so that Western holders are asking even higher prices than heretofore.

Scarcity of Domestic Wool

helps them, and as yet the enormous sales of foreign only compensate for the reported decrease in the domestic clip. But buying by most manufacturers is already affected, and, at the prices now asked for wool, some manufacturers are doubting whether a corresponding value for goods can be realized. Pending prices for many light-weight goods show great irregularity, perhaps a majority being on a par with last year, but some lower and some higher.

It is not the season for activity in boots and shoes and orders have fallen off, but shipments in July have been 191,170 cases, against 167,326 in 1892, and prices of shoes, leather and hides are as stiff as ever.

Failures this week have been 253 in the United States, against 247 last year, and 35 in Canada, against 49 last year.

Pearl's Captain Fined.

KINGSTON, July 13.—Captain Love of the schooner Pearl has been convicted for a breach of the custom laws, and fined £500. The schooner Pearl was seized at Port Morant, after a search by the customs officials and constabulary. The search resulted in discovering that the vessel was laden with all the arms and ammunition that she could carry in her hold.

On a Vacation.

SARATOGA, July 13.—Ex-President Harrison is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McKee at the United States hotel. On Monday General Harrison will leave for Camp Dodd in the Adirondacks, where he will remain until Oct. 1.

A Modest Request.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 13.—The directors of the Washington County railroad have succeeded in inducing the county commissioners to join them in asking the county to vote to aid the railroad by raising $500,000.

They Want More.

LEWISTON, Me., July 13.—Between 300 and 400 weavers and carders struck at the Continental mill yesterday for a 10 per cent increase above what they were getting before the advance two weeks ago.

A Protective Tariff.

BRUSSELS, July 13.—The senate, by a vote of 59 to 33, adopted the protective duties bill.

Citizens of Norfolk, Conn., think they have seen the postoffice burglars who escaped from Ludlow street jail, New York.

John Rom, the young Italian of New Haven charged with the murder of Thomas Lavelle at Birmingham, will be given a hearing next Friday.

Edward L. Norfolk, aged 80 years, died at Kingston, Mass. He was a native of Salem, and was known throughout the country as an inventor.

Haverhill's (Mass.) tax rate for this year will be $16.70, against $17.80 in 1894. The total valuation is $20,797,004, an increase of over $360,000 over last year.

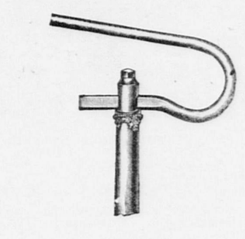

Burglars entered the New York, New Haven and Hartford station at West Bridgewater, Mass., and stole tickets and mileage books amounting to about $80.

—Rockland had a grand parade on the Fourth. Brother J. S. Smith of the Standard had his office finely represented on a float 7 by 13; editorial, composing, and press departments. Engaged in printing a souvenir edition of the Standard containing complete description of the parade and distributing it en route. Float decorated with national colors and bearing emblems of the trade and motoes.

—Massachusetts may not grow as rapidly in population as some of the larger states, but its wealth continues to pile up steadily. It carried a fire insurance last year of $986,000,000, or about five times that of other States with about the same population.

—One of Middleboro's residents has gone into the business of raising skunks for a living. He sells the skins for about seventy-five cents apiece and makes money.

DAY OFF FOR PASTORS

Pulpits In Boston and Vicinity Filled by Visiting Endeavorers.

Great Convention Comes to a Close Tonight.

"The Scholarship of the World For Christ" Considered by the Delegates.

BOSTON, July 15.—The program of the Christian Endeavorers yesterday included work only for visiting clergymen. The local ministers in general gave place to those who had come from other localities to attend the convention, and it is doubtful if ever before in the history of Boston its pulpits have been supplied with such an array of eminent preachers on the same Sabbath.

To the more than 50,000 members of the Y. P. S. C. E. the day came as a literal "Day of rest." The untiring and energetic young men and women who, ever since the convention opened, have had but little respite from their labors in caring for the many visitors, appreciated the change, and the visitors, wearied by continued convention sessions, were glad to be able to attend service in the locality in which their headquarters were located, instead of having to undergo the crowding and hustling necessary to get to the tent meetings and the Mechanics' hall sessions.

But yesterday's program on the part of the Endeavorers was not primarily prompted by the desire for rest. The strict observance of the Lord's day is one of the fundamental principles of the Christian Endeavor movement. True to this principle, the members refused to travel on Sunday, and the distribution of clergymen was so planned that the delegations quartered in the suburbs could attend worship in their districts.

Several delegations located down-town emphasized their ideas on the matter of Sabbath observance by meeting Saturday and passing resolutions pledging themselves not to use the street cars or conveyances on Sunday. As a result the streets, just prior to the commencement of regular church services, were thronged with men and women wearing Christian Endeavor badges, proceeding on foot to the most convenient churches. They had already begun the day with the usual 6:30 a. m. prayer meetings at their various headquarters, but in contrast to their practice on other days there was no singing on the streets as the delegations passed to and fro.

The clergymen who spoke yesterday were among the most eminent in the country, and also included many distinguished preachers from abroad. In many cases the themes were upon the Christian Endeavor movement and its results. In others, general religious subjects were chosen. With 50,000 visitors in the city, besides the regular church-goers, nearly every church was filled with attentive audiences.

Open-Air Service In Chinatown.

Boston's Chinatown, which is quaint and unique at all times, was rendered still more so in the afternoon, when Young Kay, the first Chinese minister of the Christian faith who ever came to this city, conducted an open-air service in the midst of his people.

In a large space on Harrison avenue, between Essex and Beach streets, which fairly swarmed with the celestial population, a covered platform had been erected by the committee of the Mt. Vernon church, but the minister discarded all such facilities, and stood on a small box, leaving his countrymen to occupy the platform, and to peer down upon him from windows on every side.

A small force of police had been sent to guard the service against any interference, as it was understood that the Chinese of the section were unfriendly to the doctrines which Young Kay had come to preach; but there was apparently no need of such precaution, as unbroken quiet and attention reigned, except when now and then a Chinese boy in an upper window gave vent to exclamations in his own language, suggestive of mirth.

The minister, who is devoted to the Chinese mission work in San Francisco, was assisted in the rendering of hymns by a number of young ladies and gentlemen, who were chiefly Christian Endeavor delegates from Illinois, New York and California. They sang with a fervor such hymns as "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and "In the Sunshine," while a few of the Chinese spectators essayed to join in the refrain.

After a brief prayer the preacher made an address in Chinese, in which he condemned the doctrine of Buddhism which had invaded China, and set forth the Christian principles, showing that all that was best in the principles of Confucius and other Chinese sages were in keeping with the Bible and the doctrines of Christianity.

The listeners were manifestly impressed with the strange doctrines uttered to them in their native tongue, and it is understood that much initial work was done at this time in preparing them for more systematic religious effort and organization.

The Last Day of the Convention was opened with early morning prayer meetings, with this topic: "Consecration—Just so far as I know how, throughout my whole life, I will endeavor to lead a Christian life."

The meeting at Mechanics' building was presided over by President Clark, D.D. George K. Somerby was musical director. Praise and prayer service came first and 10 minutes for information concerning Christian Endeavor and missions followed, conducted by Miss Ella D. MacLaurin, Boston; next came the presentation of a banner to the local union for best work reported in promoting systematic and proportionate giving, presented by Rev. W. E. Park, Gloversville, N. Y.; unrolling the roll of honor, Rev. W. C. Bitting, D.D., New York; address, "The Light of God the Life of Man," Rev. O. P. Gifford, D.D., Buffalo; singing; address, "The Christian Personality," Rev. J. H. W. Stuckenberg, Cambridge, Mass.; singing; open parliament—topic: "The World for Christ—What is Your Society Doing About It?" conducted by Rev. L. A. Crandall, D.D., Chicago.

President William R. Harper, LL.D., Chicago, presided at Tent Williston. Percy S. Foster was musical director. "The Scholarship of the World for Christ" was the topic. The program was as follows: Praise and prayer service; 10 minutes for information concerning the religious life in colleges, Franklin D. Elmer, Hartford; address, "The Consecration of an Educated Life," President George A. Gates, D.D., Iowa college; singing; address, "The Bible, the Great Text-Book," Dean Alfred A. Wright, D.D., Auburndale, Mass.; unrolling the roll of honor, Rev. A. C. Peck, Denver; presentation of banner to the local union for best work reported in promoting systematic and proportionate giving, presented by Rev. A. C. Crews, Toronto; singing; address, "The Attractions of the Ministry to Talented Young Men," President Ethelbert D. Warfield, LL.D., Easton, Pa.

Trustee J. Z. Tyler, D. D., Cleveland, presided at Tent Endeavor. George C. Stebbins was musical director. "The Scholarship of the World for Christ" was, as at Tent Williston, the topic of discussion. The praise and prayer service was followed by an address by Rev. A. P. Cobb, D.D., Springfield, Ills; singing; address, "The Missionary Uprising among the Young," John R. Mott, New York; address, Rev. William G. Puddefoot, South Framingham, Mass.; unrolling the roll of honor, Rev. Ira Landrith, Nashville; a missionary resolution service—topic: "What More Will You Do? What More Will You Give?" Robert E. Speer, New York.

Rev. Francis E. Smiley, Denver, presided at the noon meeting at Faneuil hall, and C. N. Hunt, Minneapolis, conducted services in the Bromfield Street M. E. church. Evangelistic services were held in various parts of the city, conducted by state and city delegations. These meetings were arranged by Rev. J. L. Hill, D.D., Salem, Mass; Rev. Charles Roads, Philadelphia; Rev. C. A. Oliver, York, Pa.

Visited Salem.

SALEM, Mass., July 15.—Yesterday was Endeavor day in this city, and special services were held all day. At the Tabernacle church Rev. Dr. MacLaurin of Detroit spoke. In the afternoon there was a monster mass meeting on the Common, addressed by Bishop Arnett of Ohio and Charles N. Hunt, the lawyer evangelist from Minnesota, and others, and last evening there were two mass meetings, one at the Tabernacle church and the other at the First Baptist.

Friends of Fallen Women.

BOSTON, July 15.—The Woman's Rescue league passed resolutions asking the Christian Endeavorers to suggest a universal plan of relief to ameliorate the condition of outcasts and to co-operate with the league in saving the fallen women of the large cities of the world.

Pittsburg has thus far tried nine pitchers.

Indianapolis still leads in the western league.

Tom Lovett is pitching winning ball for Providence.

Chestnut is the name of the second baseman of the Chatham club.

There will be few sales of minor league men next fall and winter.

The Lima (O.) club of the Interstate league has gone up the spout.

Pitcher Ferson has been released by the Fall River club, and Stevens signed.

Breitenstein has won four games from Philadelphia and five from Baltimore.

Pitcher Griffiths had a record of straight games in Chicago before it was broken.

The Bostons ran against a snag in Louisville, where it was the least expected.

Baltimore and Boston are both well behind their percentage of a year ago at this time.

Hardly a team in the New England league but has New England association players in it.

Herman Long went nine times to bat in the two games at Pittsburg on Tuesday and failed to make a hit.

Sunday ball is a boom to the Eastern league people. Without it more than one club would have hard sledding.

In Philadelphia they complain of the little amusement the spectators indulge in by throwing cushions at each other.

Duffy has the record for outfielders of the season in 19 putouts in three consecutive games, one being an extra-inning contest.

Pitcher Terry of the Chicagos says there is absolutely no need for the wearing of sharp spikes in vogue nowadays, and they should be done away with.

Sunday baseball will go in the league all right. Brooklyn, Baltimore and Washington would not be foolish enough to want to lose what little money they make in the east.

HAVANA, July 15.—Captain Jose Guerrioa of the Spanish steamer Palentine has landed here Captain Barbarich of the Austrian bark Ida B and the quartermaster, steward and nine sailors of that vessel. The Ida B was wrecked on the Terceira islands, and her crew took to the boats. They had been 12 days without food or water

Cable News.

OUT IN THE COLD.

Liberals Badly Left by the Rejection of Harcourt and Others.

LONDON, July 15.—Sir William Harcourt's defeat in Derby is the sensation in political circles. It is admitted on all sides that the Liberals are beginning very badly. Of 110 members thus far elected, 96 are Unionists, 10 Liberals and four Parnellites. Eight Liberal seats have been captured by the Unionists, and the Radicals have captured one Unionist seat—that at Perth.

The moral effect of Harcourt's defea will be great, as the most sanguine Conservative did not expect a Liberal majority of 1900 to be converted into a Unionist majority of 1100.

While Harcourt fared so badly, A. J. Balfour, the new first lord of the treasury, who is to succeed Harcourt as leader of the house of commons, nearly doubled his majority in Manchester.

After the result had been announced in Derby at midnight, Harcourt, with his wife, drove to Liberal headquarters and made a speech, in which he said that he had been defeated too often to be either elated if successful or depressed by a reverse. But he did not wish to conceal the magnitude of the defeat which had fallen upon his colleagues and himself. Harcourt's defeat is generally attributed to the prominence which he gave to the local veto, or local option measure.

The Times, this morning, in its comment upon the elections, says that the first batch of contests reduces the Radical majority to half at a single blow. The most striking and important incident of Saturday is the crushing defeat of Harcourt. The Unionists will throw themselves with redoubled ardor into the struggle which has already been crowned with encouraging success. The opposition will be scarcely able to shake off the depression caused by the wholly unexpected defeat of their leader. The Times proceeds with the hope that Harcourt will find another seat, as the Unionists will be sorry to miss his presence from the house of commons, of which he is an ornament.

Cool and Courageous.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The French line steamship La Normandie, from Havre, had a fire on board during the passage. Shortly after 7 p. m. on July 9 smoke was seen issuing from the starboard alley about amidships. It permeated the staterooms and saloons, and was soon noticed by the cabin passengers while they sat at dinner. The stewards, who were the first to discover it, passed the word aft, and Captain Deloncle was notified. Search was made for the source of fire. It was found to be in a compartment in the lower hold, about amidships. It is supposed to have resulted from spontaneous combustion. When the passengers learned of the danger they had passed through and the coolness with which the captain and crew met the situation they adopted resolutions of gratitude to the captain and his men, and expressing admiration for the order, discipline and efficiency shown on the occasion.

Double Lynching Bee.

CAMDEN, Ark., July 15.—Two weeks ago a white man by the name of Martin was killed by three negroes. Two of them were arrested and confined in jail. A mob gathered several nights ago, but were persuaded to desist. Last night there was another gathering, and 75 determined men marched to the jail and demanded of the sheriff the surrender of the murderers. It was useless to resist such a force, so the keys were delivered to the mob. The culprits were carried to the neighboring forest and hanged to trees.

Bad For Sluggers.

AUSTIN, July 15.—Attorney General Crane has handed down his opinion in relation to the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at Dallas. He holds that the law of 1891, which prohibits prize fighting, is legal, and contends that it has been so held by the court of criminal appeals. He instructs the sheriff of Dallas county to do his duty and see that the fight is prevented.

Fresh Start on Clear Track.

SANTIAGO, July 15.—The cabinet crisis has virtually ended through the union of all the branches of the Liberal party. The Balmacedists will not be represented in the ministry, but will support it. The conversion of the currency is proceeding without a hitch, $20,000,000 having been converted, which is an ample reserve to satisfy any demand.

Protests Against Lynching.

LAKE CITY, Fla., July 15.—The citizens of this city held an indignation meeting over the lynching of Robert Bennett, a young negro preacher, who was taken from his pulpit on July 4 by a mob and hanged. Resolutions were adopted expressing confidence in the efficiency of the courts to punish crimes against women. This is the first time in the history of the state that whites and blacks have met together for such a purpose.

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

Q. Y. C. LADIES' DAY.

A Review and Sail, Concert, Lunch and Dance.

The electric cars to Houghs Neck are running half hourly this afternoon, and every trip since noon has had a full load, most of the passengers being guests of the Quincy Yacht club. The triangular badge issued was in great demand, only one being issued to each member in addition to membership ticket.

The promenade concert began at 2 P. M. and the bay is alive with yachts. It is a beautiful day although partly cloudy. The review is at three o'clock, followed by a sail. Upon the return lunch will be served at the club house. Dancing this evening from 8 till 11 o'clock.

Commodore Pettengill has secured the steam yacht "Marie" for a flag boat this afternoon.

Yachts Capsized.

Our lively yachtsmen, Henry M. and Harold B. Faxon, landed their crews in the seething waters of Dorchester bay, Saturday afternoon. Among many capsized boats, theirs promptly responded to the violent squall and they, with nearly two score others, had a lively time. Fortunately our Quincy friends escaped with only severe chills. The yacht that passed giving no assistance, was in the minority, and there was no lack of generous help among some of the young Dorchester gentlemen. Hail, added to a small hurricane and heavy wind, which made a clean cut through the fleet of boats.

TODAY'S COURT.

Henry Tallant of Braintree was fined $10 for drunkenness.

Richard Matterson of Quincy was fined $5 for drunkenness.

James F. Gainer of Randolph was arraigned for keeping a common nuisance. Case continued until July 24.

Martin Burns of Quincy was fined $5 for drunkenness.

THE SQUANTUM RACE

A Thunder Squall Makes It Lively For the Yachtsmen.

The second championship race of the Squantum Yacht club was sailed Saturday afternoon and a very cold disagreeable day it proved to be, as few of the yachtsmen came out of it without a wet jacket.

The owner of the Eva, Capt. Nelson, placed his trim little yacht at the disposal of the judges and reporters and made them as comfortable as possible.

The wind at the start was light from the west but the indications were that there would be plenty of wind later and such it proved to be, for scarcely was the race under way when a thunder squall came up, and for about ten minutes things were lively, and it looked as though some serious accident would occur. All of the boats dropped anchor and made things fast, but some of them were not quite quick enough, for the Agilis split her jib and was obliged to withdraw and the Estella broke her wheel and also withdrew. Several of the other boats did not attempt to finish. About ten minutes was thus lost and it was nearly 7 o'clock before the last boat crossed the line at the finish.

The first class got away at 3.15 but had a poor start owing to the placing of the flag boat, and were some time in getting away. The Ocean Spray crossed first and had a lead of five minutes over the Naid Queen and ten minutes over the Agilis. At the finish, however, the Naid Queen had not only made up her handicap but had a lead of nearly six minutes. This gives the Naid Queen a leg for the championship cup with the Agilis.

In the first class cats there was but one entry, the Myrtle, and she therefore had a walkover.

In the second class sloops there were two entries, the Mary C. and Fannie. The latter boat withdrew after the squall, leaving the Mary C. to have a walkover.

In the second class cats there were five starters. The Arctures crossed first, followed by the Fairy, White Wing, Estella and Locia well bunched. The Estella broke her wheel during the squall and the White Wing withdrew. After the squall the Locia took the lead and beat the Arctures three minutes on corrected time, while the Fairy was way behind.

In the special class for jib and mainsail, the West Wind was the only entry and she had a walkover.

The judges were J. E. Drew, F. E. Badger and J. Stewart.

Well Appointed Stable.

Contractor Langley has about completed the extensive alterations made at Penniman & Son's stable, and today it is one of the best appointed stables in the city. An addition has been built on the front, in which is located the office, and in the rear is a large carriage wash-room. Up-stairs there is a sleeping room for the night man and a well appointed harness-room with a dumb waiter. The front part of the main stable has been finished as a carriage house, while in the rear are twenty-three single and a box stall, all newly finished. The whole building has been wired for electric lights. Telephone connections make the establishment complete.

It is a bad oversight of somebody that the keys of the First church are not left in some handy place so that visiting Christian Endeavors could visit the old tombs. Nearly every day visitors come to Quincy and are unable to visit the church without considerable trouble.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon paid a flying visit to Poco cottage, Houghs Neck, yesterday afternoon and took with him a large box of Lowney's delicious chocolates and a role of entertaining literature which were much appreciated. Mr. Faxon departed for home amid waving handkerchiefs and exclamations of thanks.

Electric cars going in opposite directions met on the Quincy Point bridge Sunday night and while it was being settled which car had the right of way, two young men, passengers for Quincy, started out to reconnoitre, but both fell through the bridge. It was low tide and they stuck in the mud and were fine specimens when rescued.

The decorations for the Christian Endeavor in the store of our enterprising townsman, Mr. John C. Randall, of the old firm John H. Pray & Co., of Boston, were elegant in the extreme. The fine fabrics, lace damask and brocade of red and white, made a rare and rich effect, with the gracefulness of arrangement that was noticable.

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Nye of Coddington street are entertaining visitors to the C. E. Convention. A nephew from the Pacific coast, George F. Nye, a delegate from the Congregational church in Aberdeen, Washington; he also represents the county as delegate. The church in Aberdeen is thought to be the most westerly Congregational church with a pastor in the United States. He is a young man only twenty years of age and full of zeal and earnestness in the Christian Endeavor movement. They have also with them, a sister, Mrs. Mudgett, from western New York.

The Quincy Sea Shore Resort has Many Sunday Visitors.

Notwithstanding the showery weather Sunday hundreds of people were at Houghs Neck and at times when it was pleasant the beach was crowded with people. It was an orderly crowd too. Chief Hayden had several officers on duty but they were not called upon to quell any disturbance.

The most of the crowd came on the electrics, yet there were many that came down on bicycles and private carriages. All the public houses were well patronized and everybody seemed to be enjoying themselves.

This afternoon and evening will be lively at Houghs Neck. This afternoon the annual Ladies' day of the Quincy Yacht club takes place and this evening the celebration in honor of the introduction of water which will take the form of a band concert and fireworks.

—The Cadets are in camp at Hingham.

CONVENTION ECHOES.

It Was Christian Endeavor Sunday in the Quincy Churches.

Every meeting in the evangelical churches of Boston and its neighborhoods yesterday, may fairly be called an "overflow" of the great convention holding in city; and that in the Baptist church, in Wollaston, last evening, was certainly no exception in this regard. The Christian Endeavorers of this ward united their forces for the occasion, and the Baptist, Methodist, and Congregational societies all entered heartily into the union, and these congregations were amalgamated in an assemblage that completely filled the Baptist house of worship.

Besides this union of Endeavorers and congregations there were present Endeavorers from Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Missouri, and other states, with representatives from neighboring Quincy wards and districts. Of the entire congregation present about one-half were members of Endeavor organizations.

The service opened with an organ voluntary, followed by the singing of the Doxology; then followed a praise service, led by Mr. A. D. Albee; the selections being from the Christian Endeavor edition of the Gospel Hymns:—"Onward Christian Soldiers," "Speed Away," "On Worship the King," and "True-Hearted, Whole-Hearted."

The Scripture selection was read by Rev. Wm. Wilder, of the Wollaston Methodist church, and was from Matthew 16:13—20, the Christian Endeavor lesson read in all meetings under the auspices of the organization, whereever held last evening. The reading was followed by the singing by the quartette choir, of a selection—"Jesus Lover of My Soul."

Prayer was offered by Rev. Preston Gurney, of Wollaston Baptist church. This was followed by singing by the choir.

Rev. D. C. Stewart, of St. Louis, Missouri, was then introduced, who addressed the assemblage at considerable length upon the missionary feature of the Endeavorers' work, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Mr. Stewart was followed by Rev. J. A. Bellenger, not long ago President of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Wollaston Congregational church, but now settled as pastor over a church just outside of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Bellenger's address was based upon the "Good Citizenship" question, that has occupied so much of the attention of the Endeavor Convention within the past week.

Next was introduced Rev. J. W. Brownville, of Irving, Mass., who spoke on the topic of the "Personal Performance of Endeavor Duties." At the close of Mr. Brownville's address, a duet,—"Why art Thou Cast-down, Oh, My Soul?" was sung by Mrs. Frank Page and Mrs. Samuel King.

The meeting which continued for an hour and a half, was ended by the singing, by the congregation, of "The Lord Keep Watch Between Us;" and the benediction, by Rev. Mr. Stewart.

The meeting was conducted by Mr. A. E. Brownville, president of the C. E. society of the Baptist church, and Mr. W. H. Hull, C. E president of the Congregational church, who had been appointed Committee for the occasion.

Large congregations attended the services at the Centre Congregational church on Sunday. The church was extensively decorated with Christian Endeavor colors, flags, motoes, and emblems. At the morning service, Rev. Mr. Hardy was assisted by Rev. Charles J. Keevil of Lowell, who read the Scriptures and offered prayer, and Rev. Rufus W. Miller of Reading, Penn., one of the trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavorer, who spoke concerning the society.

It was the intention to have held the evening service in the chapel but it was crowded before the opening hour, and an adjournment was made to the main church. It was a Christian Endeavor service opened by singing of convention hymns. Rev. F. M. Hollister of Waterbury, Conn., was the principal speaker, but there were interesting remarks by Rev. C. J. Keevil and the pastor. C. E. delegates were requested to tell the best thing noticed at the convention, and ten or twelve young people responded.

The Point church was tastily decorated in Christian Endeavor colors and emblems in honor of the great convention. The evening service consisted of "echoes" from the convention.

During the rest of July and the month of August the West Quincy Methodist church will be supplied by Rev. W. A. Longnecker of Iowa, a student of Boston Theological Seminary. He will do the pastoral work and lead the social meetings while the pastor is absent on his vacation.

Rev. Walter Russell Breed of Christ's church preached at Nahant on Sunday.

Rev. Preston Gurney preached a very earnest sermon on "Numbers" Sunday morning at the Wollaston Baptist church. His text was taken from Deut. 32:20 and was suggested by the C. E. convention.

The Rev. E. W. Bellanger preached at the Wollaston Congregational church on Sunday.

The pastor of the West Quincy Methodist church preceded his Sunday morning sermon by a short sermon to the boys and girls, on the words, "There be four things which are little upon the earth, yet are they exceeding wise. The ant, the cony, the locust, the spider."

The text of the main sermon was from 2nd Corinthians 8:9. "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor that ye through his poverty might be rich." Rev. Mr. Virgin spoke of the riches of Christ before his humiliation; second, his voluntary poverty, and third, the benevolent design.

The Quincy Point Sunday School will picnic at Franklin park on Wednesday.

The Wollaston Unitarian society held its last service for the summer on Sunday and the church will be closed as usual during the summer months.

At the Calvary Baptist church, Rev. Mr. McLeod of Prince Edward Island, preached from Rev. 3:20, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." Very earnestly were these words brought to bear upon its hearers. The Lord Jesus, by the word, "Behold," calls the sinner's attention to his great need of salvation and the fact that Jesus is "standing" and "knocking" shows He will save the sinner if he opens the door of his heart. Consider the character of the one who "knocks." The great Emmanuel Creator Jesus our Savior, standing at the door. He will not always stand knocking, pleading with sinners. The door of the heart is our will and only when surrendered to Jesus, can we be saved. His gaping wounds on Calvary, says open your hearts and sweat drops of blood in the garden, say open your hearts and let the King of Glory come in. Sinner, behold, see, take notice. All is for you if you surrender.

A promise meeting was held at the seven o'clock service at the West Quincy M. E church, after which the pastor spoke on the words, "Come and see"—John 1.46.

The test of Curistianity. The great S T. Coleridge was asked if he could give a proof of Christianity? "Yes," he said. "Try it." There were three points: First, the Christian religion is a fact in the world, and its author was an individual who bore the name of Jesus.

Second, whatever may be said of the Christian religion, it must be confessed that from an origin so humble, incalculably exalted effects have sprung.

Third, the grand test is, what does this religion do for individual character? It aims to change and reform men, which it certainly has done in unnumbered instances. It has entered the heart and tamed fierce passions and transformed obstinate prejudices and rooted out deep seated desires, and given new hopes, a new purpose, and a new life, and it offers to do this for every one who will follow its precepts. Instances of men who have recently spoken in the noon day meetings in Boston were referred to. The conversion of Saul of Tarsus was sketched. Before conversion, he would have crucified Christ, now he would die for him. And to countless numbers who have hated the name of Jesus, that name has become the dearest of all names in heaven or earth. They testify to His ever living power, their lives as well as words bear witness that this same Jesus who was crucified lives and is willing and able to save. Jesus saves, He does save, if you doubt come and see, you have the surest way to test His truth and strength, by making application of His word.

A fourth point: Jesus never fails to satisfy the soul that trusts in Him. "If any man thirst, etc.," still sounds down the years, and a great multitude whom no man can number have hied to that fountain and have found joy and peace in its living streams.

"I heard the voice of Jesus say.
Behold, I freely give
The living water, thirsty one,
Stoop down, and drink, and live.
I came to Jesus, and I drank
Of that life-giving stream,
My thirst was quenched,
My soul revived,
And now I live in Him."

—Charles H. Litchman, the Marblehead labor agitator, was again refused a discharge in insolvency in the Suffolk court Friday.

—It costs $24 a minute to fire the new Maxim gun, but it only takes about two minutes to wipe out everything in sight. Another illustration of the fact that the best is the cheapest in the end.

IN A DESPERATE MOOD

Armenians Willing to Sacrifice Themselves to Turkish Butchery.

Christians May Then Heed Their Wrongs.

Some New Light Shed on the Awful Massacre at Sassoun.

VAN, Armenia, May 24.—There are in this city at this moment 500 young men sworn to give themselves as a sacrifice to the Turkish butchery, in the hope that the attention of England may be more strongly called to the desperate situation of these people.

The Armenians cannot accept any scheme of reform which does not have for its fundamental principle the absolute control by the European powers. The moment that it becomes clear that the execution of the reforms is to be left to the Turk, the Armenians will arise in despair and fling themselves to destruction. Unless Europe controls the reforms, there will be a massacre of 20,000 Christians in the city of Van within three months.

The Armenians themselves will bring this about rather than be cast adrift by their fellow Christians of the West. Their argument on this point is perfectly plain. They assert that it is better to die by the sword, with perhaps the chance that their death will advance the cause of the Armenian race, than to die by torture and starvation.

There is no language quite adequate to a description of the real condition of Armenia at present. Men are beaten, robbed and murdered, and women are ravished by Kurds and Turkish soldiers; property is stolen or destroyed; crops are trampled down and eaten by herds of cattle; churches and monasteries are desecrated and used as stables and bathhouses; business is absolutely ruined; there is no wheat for bread.

Many villages are deserted by their starving inhabitants, and thousands of villagers are crowding into the cities, begging from door to door of people who are little better off than themselves. Woe and want and despair and death stalk abroad in this beautiful land that was once a part of the Garden of Eden.

The inhabitants of Van are living on the brink of a massacre from day to day.

The Sassoun Massacre

was one of the most carefully planned outrages in history. The evidence of this is circumstantial only; but it is alleged to be none the less conclusive.

During the months of June, July and August preceding the Sassoun massacre, the Kurdish chiefs in the country surrounding the Sassoun region, and particularly the districts in the southward and southwestward, were apparently unusually busy in gathering up the scattered warriors of their tribes for an invasion of the Sassoun region.

In July and August enormous quantities of petroleum were shipped from Erzroom to Moosh. This petroleum came originally from Russia to Erzroom, and so great was the quantity brought over the mountain roads that it was a subject of remark to very many persons. For a time it looked as though nothing went over the roads between Erzroom and Moosh but petroleum.

Now, it is a fact that Moosh does not use a great quantity of petroleum herself, nor do her merchants sell much of it to the surrounding country. In the villages candles of sheep fat oil are used for lights. What Moosh wanted with those countless cans of petroleum was a mystery. But the mystery was a mystery no longer after the Sassoun massacre, for that petroleum was used to burn the houses of the Sassoun villagers and to cremate the bodies of the wretched villagers who fell

Victims to the Awful Butchery.

In burning the houses the petroleum was thrown upon the woodwork in generous quantities and set on fire, with the result that everything that could burn went up in smoke. In cremating the dead the bodies were in many cases placed between layers of wood and built up into a sort of funeral pile. The entire mass was then saturated with petroleum and set on fire. It is charged that living men were cremated in the same way. But this was a merciful way of putting unfortunate creatures to death in comparison with the tortures inflicted upon many others.

A few weeks prior to the beginning of the Sassoun massacre there was an unusual demand for horses for the army. This demand was not confined to the city of Moosh, nor yet to the province of Bitlis. In the case of horses owned by Armenians no pretense was made for paying for them. The press gang simply took the horses wherever they happened to be found, and said no more about it. In many instances horses were seized as they were carrying loads through the city streets. The loads were dumped off into the streets and the horses taken away.

Several weeks after the Sassoun massacre, it is claimed, orders were sent from the palace at Constantinople for a massacre of the inhabitants of Modikan, a district lying to the south and southeast of Sassoun, but when it was seen that an investigation of the Sassoun affair was inevitable, the order, it is said, was recalled, and Modikan was not molested, except in the ordinary course of the persecution

General In All Parts of Armenia.

At about the same time, it is asserted, that preparations were being made to massacre the inhabitants of Sassoun, the Turkish government tried to induce the Kurds to massacre the Armenian inhabitants of the Nourdouz region, which lies almost directly south of Lake Van, but the Kurds refused to have anything to do with it. It is charitable to suppose that the refusal of the Kurds was due to feelings of humanity, but it is more than likely that they regarded such a course as killing the goose that lays the golden eggs, for if their Armenian vassals were killed off, they themselves would be reduced to the dreadful necessity of working for a living.

In 1893, it is added, an attempt was made by the Turkish government to exterminate the Sassoun people, but on this occasion the work of extermination was entrusted to the Kurds, with the result that the latter decidedly had the worst of it. After a prolonged attack on the village of Dalvoridge, in the center of the Sassoun region, during which many Kurds were killed, the attempt was abandoned.

But the events of 1894 would seem to show that it was merely postponed until more thorough preparations for the complete annihilation of the Sassoun people could be made.

MISS ANTHONY'S PROPHECY.

She Recites the Advance Made by Women and Predicts Greater Achievements.

Miss Susan B. Anthony sat in the sunny library of S. E. Gross' home on the Lake Shore drive. She was daintily, almost coquettishly, gowned in a dress of black satin, with a misty collar of lace caught about her neck with a jeweled pin of quaint and elaborate workmanship. Her white hair was parted smoothly over her high forehead and came down over her ears in a fashion so very old that it has suddenly become new again. Looking at Miss Anthony as she sat in the quiet library, observing her handsome dress, her air of elegance and her gentle voice it was hard to think of her as the type of all that is aggressive in the nineteenth century womanhood. In fact, she looked like only a very quiet, well dressed little gentlewoman who would like nothing so well as to spend the day in the big chair of Mr. Gross' library.

And when she talked about the so called new woman and the twentieth century woman it was harder still. For Miss Anthony doesn't much admire either of these in the accepted sense of the terms.

When a timorous inquiry was made as to who the new woman is, when she will come, or if she had come already, Miss Anthony said: "It all depends on what you mean by the term 'new woman.' The term has become a cant phrase, carrying almost as much opprobrium as the term 'woman's rights woman' used to imply. The 'new woman,' as the phrase goes, may mean a loud, mannish woman affecting the boisterous conduct of men, with none of the saving graces of her own sex. If that be the new woman, I do not welcome her coming. If by the new woman is meant a woman earnest, thoughtful, lofty of purpose, self reliant and equally well educated with man, why, then she has come. We have got her in our homes, where she stands side by side with her husband, welcoming his friends on the common ground of intellectual equality, joining in their discussions—a college bred woman, who can do something more than pour tea when her husband entertains his friends. We have got the new woman in everything except the counting of her vote at the ballot box. And that's coming. It's coming sooner than most people think. The new woman made her appearance 45 years ago, when Antoinette Brown entered Oberlin college. Next November we are going to have in New York an exhibit of new woman.

"Nov. 12 Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton will be 80 years old. The anniversary will be made the occasion for a grand gathering of women who were the first to enter those fields of intellectual and business endeavor which half a century ago were occupied solely by men. At that time no trades, no institutions of higher learning were open to women. A woman who was driven to self support could do a little sewing, could enter domestic service or perhaps teach in a primary school. From not being able to earn a livelihood as she chose, from not being able to reap the results of her labor after she married, from not being able to control her property after she married, from, in brief, a position of civic nullity she has advanced to her present position. Forty thousand women have been graduated from American colleges, every calling has its followers among women, and they are today as well educated as men, if not better.

"In the state of New York one-eleventh of the property tax is paid by women. In my own city of Rochester women pay taxes on a property valuation of $29,000,000. These are some of the results of the battle for equal rights, which women have been waging for 40 years, and they have fought alone. The blacks had a nation's aid in the struggle for emancipation. Women are the only oppressed class who ever were compelled to battle for emancipation unaided. No party gives our claims for equal suffrage its indorsement. But today the nation is known as a nation of educated women. To be sure, as wage earners they do not receive compensation equal to that of men. That is because, being without the ballot, they cannot dictate the terms upon which they shall be employed. All the women of today ask are the rights, powers, privileges and immunities of an American citizen. We have been granted equal suffrage in Wyoming and Colorado, virtually in Utah. Equal suffrage bills are now pending in the legislatures of Oregon, Idaho, Nevada, California and New York. The question of equal suffrage is beginning to be respected as a political measure. And it's coming." —Chicago Tribune.

Two Able Women.

Miss Helen Morris Lewis and Miss E. U. Yates called out high commendations from the local press when they lectured for equal suffrage recently in the courthouse at Asheville, N. C. There was a large audience, and the mayor was among the speakers. The Asheville Register says: "Miss Lewis, representing the ideal southern woman, being a native of South Carolina, and Miss Yates, a fine model of New England womanhood, are one in the great cause they so ably and worthily represent. These two devoted women should be called to speak in every town and city in the state. Those who heard their logical addresses certainly withdrew many of their inherited objections to equal rights for women."

The Effect.

When women get to voting at all elections and for all candidates, the problem of street cleaning and proper sanitary care of cities will be solved, in addition to the causing of a decided improvement in the morals of candidates. —Mansfield (O.) News.

Bravery Rewarded.

The Humane society of Massachusetts has presented its medal for bravery shown in saving life to Jennie C. Campbell and Mary A. Driscoll of Boston, who on March 1, at great risk to themselves, rescued a little boy from being burned to death.

Reflections of a Gilded Youth.

What is it, he mused, that makes life worth the living?
Is it endless receiving and spending or giving?
Is it lollipops, gingerbread, horses and yachts,
Having pennies to drop in all possible slots?
Is it hustle and get there, the genius for trade
And commercial combines by which fortunes are made?
I never liked that. Was it luck or mishap
That fortune without it fell into my lap?
A bowlder of size has been rolled to the crown
Of a hill; I can start it and let it roll down.
If you set a great trap and within my reach bring it,
No doubt I can jump on the bait plate and spring it,
But the question keeps pressing what fellow gets caught—
Whose legs the trap shuts on—who is it that's bought?
I'm not sure, but at odd times I own I opine
That the limbs that I see held so firmly are mine.
Must I keep to the end of the chapter, I wonder,
This purposeless role of the idealized rounder?
It is really a good gift that snatches away
The motives for labor and substitutes play.
The fellows that do things and are things attain
Their lead by hard discipline, seasoned with pain.
Their characters grow by the sort of endeavor
That seizes on time as a slice of forever.
It begins just a little to get through my head
Why the grave Seer of Galilee meant what he said
To that opulent youth who disliked his advice
And went off disconcerted to pause and think twice.
If the spirit's the man, what in thunder's the use
Of indulging the senses with pains so profuse,
If the more you indulge them, then the harder it is
For the spirit to get what is lawfully his?
Not the best behorsed drag can keep up very far
With a tuppeny cart that is hitched to a star.
Having fun with one's money is a good thing to do,
But how about letting it have fun with you?
Mine shall serve, not possess, and unless I can keep
My place soul end upward, on top of my heap,
I vow that by way my defeat to acknowledge
I'll dump the whole pile on a Methodist college.
—Edwin S. Martin.

An Effect Missed.

He—I shot him in the Rockies.
She—What fierce eyes he had!
He—Oh, they are only glass!
She—I see. You had the advantage of him.—Life.

In Whitechapel Style.

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—A white man took the life of Ella, alias "Kid," King, a negress, 28 years of age, and a dissolute character, late Saturday night. The woman's abdomen was ripped open by the knife of the assassin, the entrails slipping out. Charles Svhlick was arrested on suspicion of having committed the murder, which he strongly denies.

Fish Plentiful.

HALIFAX, July 15.—Reports from all points of Newfoundland show that such fishing has not been known for many years, and it is believed the fish have struck in all along the Labrador coast. This will greatly help the finances.

Spain Will Settle.

MADRID, July 15.—The Spanish government has finally agreed to the immediate payment of the Mora indemnity which was recently demanded by the United States through Minister Taylor.

Slight Check Only.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The resurrection of the Sunday law by Judge McAdam but slightly checked the sale of soda and mineral waters by druggists and confectioners of this city yesterday.

Miners' Strike.

BELLAIRE, O., July 15.—Three thousand coal miners in Ohio county, West Virginia, district will quit work today and ask for an increase of wages from 51 to 60 cents a ton.

Fishermen Drowned.

HALIFAX, July 15.—Dowe and Strange, two fishermen of the schooner Arctic, of Port DeGrave, were drowned in Bay Roberts while chopping ice from a berg.

Seaman Convicted.

DETROIT, July 15.—Dr. Seaman was convicted of having performed an abortion upon Emily Hall by means unknown.

YOUNG LADIES' TROUBLE.
FACTS MADE KNOWN TO FRIENDS
Lady Stenographers, Typewriters, and all Working Girls Interested.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

This class of women are more or less afflicted with illness brought on by constant application in one position. Therefore all will be interested in the candid expression of this bright young lady of Denver, Col., who writes Mrs. Pinkham as follows:—

"This is the first opportunity I have found to write and thank you for the good your Compound has done me. I feel better than I have for years. It seems a seven days' wonder to my friends. Where I used to be pitied, everything is the opposite, and there is not a day but what some one wants to know what I have done to work such a wonder.

"Before taking the Compound I had constant headaches; was constipated; bloated; eyes weak, with watery whites; bearing down pains; pains in the small of my back and right side; took cold very easily, which always caused intense pain in ovaries. I did not want to go anywhere or see any one.

"I was called cross, but I could not help it, feeling as I did. I could not lift anything or do any hard work without suffering for days afterward. Menstruation lasted from eight to ten days, the first two or three days being in almost constant pain, day and night.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made a new girl of me; am now well, happy, and strong." Yours truly, A STENOGRAPHER, Denver, Col.

FINEST IN HER CLASS.

Opinion of the Defender by Those Who Have Seen Her Work.

Easily Outpointed and Outsailed the Vigilant.

Able to Hold Her Own In Almost Any Kind of Weather.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 15.—The Defender outsailed the victorious Vigilant in a fair and interesting contest yesterday afternoon off the Rhode Island coast, and the members of the syndicate, who followed every movement of both boats, expressed themselves as well pleased with the result. The new yacht again behaved admirably, and both outsailed and outpointed her opponent. The crew of the Defsnder made quick time in bringing her about again, it only requiring 18 seconds to change her course.

The Defender arrived here in tow of a tug early yesterday morning. Captain Haff was in charge, and after spending two hours in making preparations for a sail, waited for the Vigilant to put in her appearance. Just before 11 o'clock the latter was seen coming down the bay under sail.

Captain Haff at once gave orders to get under way and lay in waiting for the Vigilant. As she approached, the Defender's crew hoisted clubtopsail. The Vigilant did the same and both boats headed seaward, the Defender in the lead. The latter's sails fitted perfectly. Her clubtopsail was much larger than the Vigilant's, and gave her a decided advantage.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the boats were sighted off Castle hill, their sails taking a good breeze, which came from the northwest and which was sending them along at a lively rate. The spinnaker booms were then run out to starboard on both yachts. The Vigilant broke her spinnaker, but the syndicate boat waited for her to come up.

At 11:15, when both yachts were half a mile north of Beaver's Tail light, the Defender broke her spinnaker, and both started on an even line, heading south by east. During the next few minutes the Defender had considerable trouble with her spinnaker, and it was taken in three times before it fell properly. On this account she lost ground. The Vigilant's spinnaker wa much larger, but it did not draw as well as the Defender's after it was adjusted.

At noon the Vigilant hauled in close to the other yacht, and the Defender was a trifle ahead. At 12:06 p. m., after having run eight miles in 51 minutes, the Vigilant took in her spinnaker and headed toward the Narragansett shore. The Defender immediately followed. When they came about, the Vigilant was two lengths ahead, with the wind on the beam. The Defender at once from leeward, soon opening a space of two lengths between her and the Gould boat. In a few minutes more the distance was doubled. Both boats were then carrying balloon jibs.

At 12:20 the Defender came about and set her jib and staysail and hauled down the balloon jib. The baby jibtopsail was also set. The Vigilant came about seven minutes later and set the same sails. Her jibtopsail was nearly twice the size of the Defender's. Both boats pointed well, but the Defender showed marked superiority in this respect as well as in speed on this tack.

At 12:48 they came about on the first tack, the Defender far ahead and well up to windward. The latter came about and pulled away in 18s. Both continued on the same leg until after 1 o'clock, when a squall was seen coming from the southward. The Vigilant at once came about, took in her head sails and was taken in tow by her tender. The latter headed for New London. With the squall came a shift of wind from the south. The Defender took in her clubtopsail and set her working topsail, came about and put to sea in a 12-knot breeze.

In order to show what she could do, after making a long reach, she was headed for Point Judith, which the Vigilant was about rounding in tow of the tender. The Vigilant was soon overhauled, and apparently anxious for another brush, she again got under sail. But after a short trial, in which she was again beaten, the Vigilant gave up the race, and the Defender returned to Newport.

The crew of the Defender on their return spoke in high terms of her behavior. Captain Haff was elated with her work after the squall, and all who observed the yacht expressed confidence in her ability to compete with anything in her class afloat.

Knocked Down and Kicked.

PROVIDENCE, July 15.—Shortly before 12 o'clock Saturday night, David F. Lingade, managing editor of The Telegram, was assaulted and nearly murdered on Weybossett street by William Swinburne, the adopted son of ex-Mayor Swinburne of Newport. Swinburne knocked Lingade down, jumped on him and kicked him repeatedly. Mr. Lingade received a broken nose, a severy injury to one of his eyes, the side of his face was knocked in and his mouth badly cut. Swinburne has been giving ball in small cases in the lower court, having no estate, and Lingade has been scoring the police for accepting the bail.

Officer Used His Pistol.

MALDEN, Mass., July 15.—Police Officer Kelly of Everett arrested two drunken men who were fighting on an electric car. While on his way to the police station he was pounced upon by two men, knocked down and beaten. He drew his revolver and fired, hitting Dennis O'Leary, one of his assailants, in the breast. The bullet penetrated one lung and made a dangerous wound, which may prove fatal. The O'Learys are cousins, and reside in this city. During the row the first two prisoners escaped. Policeman Kelly was badly cut and bruised.

Carriage Demolished.

EVERETT, Mass., July 15.—An electric car bound for Boston, while near Prescott street, yesterday, struck a carryall containing two men named Jacobs and Goldstein and a young son of Goldstein. The carriage was demolished. The boy had his collar bone broken and the two men received severe injuries. It is feared the boy cannot recover.

Sued For $10,000.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 15.—B. W. McKeen, secretary of the state board of agriculture, is defendant in a $10,000 libel, brought by N. D. Baker, an agent for the W. S. Davis company of Chicago, for alleged libelous language in trying to induce farmers not to become interested in a creamery system operated by the Chicago firm.

Y. P. C. U. Adjourns.

BOSTON, July 15.—The closing session of the Young People's Christian union was held at the Church of the Unity. After the presentation of the banners to New York and Texas for the greatest gains in members and contributions, Rev. G. E. Nash, D.D., appealed for funds for the union—the response being $1000. Rev. W. H. McGlauflin of Harriman, Tenn., and Rev. Q. H. Shinn gave missionary addresses relating to the work accomplished and the need of greater efforts, especially in the south and west. The convention closed with devotional exercises, to meet next year at Jersey City.

No Proof of Guilt.

BOSTON, July 15.—The hearing in the case of John Ross and Harold G. Brown, charged with shooting John Wills, in the East Boston riot, terminated in the discharge of both prisoners, Judge Emmons deciding that the conflicting nature of the evidence would not warrant the court in holding them for trial.

A Temperance War.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 15.—Several liquor raids have been made in the past few days. John Cony held the officer who was searching his saloon and his bartender spilled the liquor. The saloon keepers swear that the hotels must stop, if they do.

Jailbirds at Large.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 15.—Joe Dunham, who has been in Knox county jail several months, and George Otis, who was serving a 10 months' sentence, escaped yesterday by cutting a bar away from one of the windows on the first floor.

Swindler In Custody.

PORTLAND, Me., July 15.—Joseph A. Williams, employed by C. W. Dennis, a blind man, in selling telephone attachments, is charged with fraudulently collecting money and also with forging Mr. Dennis' name to receipts.

Destructive Fire at Northampton.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 15.—Fire last night completely destroyed the dry goods store of A. McCallum. The block destroyed was valued at $30,000. Loss on stock, $50,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Still at Odds.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 15.—A conference between Agent Quinn and a committee of the Hamilton mills' strikers Saturday night did not result satisfactorily, as the agent declined to make any concession.

Prompted by Alcohol.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., July 15.—John Keenan, 65 years old, of Cottage street, committed suicide yesterday by taking paris green. Alcoholism was the cause. He was a widower.

Cheap Fares.

BOSTON, July 15.—Railroad offices in this city announce that round trip tickets from Boston to the Louisville Grand Army encampment and return will be sold for $15.

Hon. E. A. Stevens of the Massachusetts railroad commission is dead.

Oscar D. Lovejoy, a war veteran, died at Chelsea, Mass. He was a member of the Kearsarge association of naval veterans and was once sergeant-at-arms of that organization.

Peffer Heard From.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 15.—Senator Peffer is out for a new party. He says: "A new party must be formed because there is new work to be done, work that the other parties are not fitted for. But it will be built on a foundation deeper and broader than 'Free silver' or 'Bimetallism.' Its motto will be something like this: 'Let the people rule.' Its platform is properly short, plain and impressive to the needs of the times, and could be safely constructed on these six pillars: Get the people at work, pay them for what they do; away with landlordism; out with the transportation monopoly; out with the money power; up with the people; long live the republic."

Death Stopped Proceedings.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 15.—Application was to have been made to the supreme court on Saturday next to have a permanent committee appointed for John H. Iselin, who was on Thursday last adjudged by a jury an habitual drunkard, and declared incompetent to manage his own affairs or those of the Gouverneur estate, of which he was trustee. The motion will not be made, as Iselin died at Eagle's Rest, Garrison, Saturday night, from acute alcoholism.

Proved a Total Loss.

LEWISTON, N. Y., July 15.—Early yesterday morning the passenger steamer Cibola was discovered on fire. Efforts to extinguish the flames were ineffectual, and the steamer was cut loose from her moorings and allowed to drift down the river. She is a total loss. The Cibola cost about $250,000. The steamboat dock and the freight shed of the New York Central were burned.

Maggie May's Prize.

PICTOU, N. S., July 15.—The Austrian bark Redonto was brought in here yesterday by schooner Maggie May. The bark was picked up adrift 15 miles from Magdalen islands, having floated off the White Horse shoals, where she had stranded and been abandoned by her crew. The Redonto is loaded with lumber.

One Settlement Obliterated.

HALIFAX, July 15.—Forest fires have done a tremendous amount of damage throughout Newfoundland. There are altogether about 100 miles of country burned over, and much timber land, as well as crops, destroyed. The settlement of Norris Arm has been entirely swept out of existence.

Owner and Builders Drowned.

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich., July 15.—H. Fillsworth took his new yacht Artist out for her trial trip yesterday afternoon in company with the builders, Messrs. Coats & Stillson. About 3 o'clock a squall struck and capsized her. The men were all drowned before aid could reach them.

France's Holiday.

PARIS, July 15.—The fete of the Republic was celebrated throughout France yesterday, it being the anniversary of the fall of the bastile. Various patriotic societies made demonstrations, but all were conducted in an orderly manner.

AIMS OF ENDEAVORERS

Christian Citizenship and Loyalty to God and Church.

Convention at Boston Completes Its Labors.

Rousing Meetings In Mechanics' Hall, Tent Williston and Tent Endeavor.

BOSTON, July 16.—The following is the platform and principles of the Society of Christian Endeavor, as formulated by the board of trustees and unanimously endorsed by the convention:

We reaffirm our adherence to the principles which, under God's blessing, have made the Christian Endeavor movement what it is today.

First and foremost—Personal devotion to our divine Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Second — The covenant of obligation embodied in the prayer meeting pledge, without which there can be no true society of Christian Endeavor.

Third—Constant religious training for all kinds of service involved in the various committees, which—so many of them as are needed—are, equally with the prayer meeting, essential to a society of Christian Endeavor.

Fourth—Strenuous loyalty to the local church and denomination with which each society is connected. This loyalty is plainly expressed in the pledge; it underlies the whole idea of the movement, and, as statistics prove and pastors testify, is very generally exemplified in the lives of active members. Thus the Society of Christian Endeavor, in theory and practice, is as loyal a denominational society as any in existence, as well as a broad and fraternal interdenominational society.

Fifth—We reaffirm our increasing confidence in the interdenominational spiritual fellowship, through which we hope, not for organic unity, but to fulfill our Lord's prayer, "that they all may be one." This fellowship already extends to all evangelical denominations, and we should greatly deplore any movement that would interrupt or imperil it.

Sixth—Christian Endeavor stands for Christian citizenship. It is forever opposed to the saloon, the gambling den, the brothel and every like iniquity. It stands for temperance, for law, for order, for Sabbath keeping, for a pure political atmosphere, in a word, for righteousness. And this it does not by allying itself with a political party, but by attempting through the quick conscience of its individual members to permeate and influence all parties and all communities.

Seventh—That all moneys gathered by the various societies of Christian Endeavor for the cause of missions be always sent to the missionary boards of the special denomination to which the peculiar society belongs, and, also, Christian Endeavor officers and societies are affectionately reminded that appeals to them for money should come through their pastors and the officers of their churches, and when such appeals are addressed to the societies directly they should be referred to the pastors and church officers for their approval before being acted upon by the societies; also, that the causes to which the societies give should be those approved by the denominations to which the societies belong. Thus the societies avoid recognition and support of independent and irresponsible movements.

Eighth—Christian Endeavor has for its ultimate aim a purpose no less wide and lofty than the bringing of the world to Christ. Hence it is an organization intensely evangelistic and missionary in its spirit, and desires to do all it may under the direction of churches and the missionary boards for missionary extension the world around.

These objects it seeks to accomplish while it remembers that it is an influence rather than an institution; that its united societies, and its state, provincial and local unions have no legislative functions; that they can levy no taxes and control no local society which is always and only under control of its own church. The duties of these unions are limited to matters of information, inspiration and fellowship.

We rejoice in the growing friendliness of Christians, and in the fact that more and more, as the true spirit of Christian Endeavor is understood in every evangelical Protestant denomination, world around, with but one or two exceptions, our fellowship is constantly growing larger.

We believe that for the sake of Christian fairness and courtesy, in all denominations and all over the world, the Christian Endeavor principles should go with the name, and the name, either alone or in connection with a distinctive denominational name, should go with the principles.

For the maintenance of these principles of covenant obligation, individual service, denominational loyalty and interdenominational fellowship, we unitedly and heartily pledge ourselves.

The 14th International Christian Endeavor convention

Came to an End Last Night.

Since last Wednesday morning it has overtowered all contemporary events in the city or state, perhaps in the entire country.

During its continuance more than 500 meetings have been held. Approximately, 50,000 men and women have come from all corners of the North American continent as delegates. Others have come from strange and distant and obscure lands, and the greatest and most powerful nations of the earth have been represented in this vast gathering.

This great organization, the growth of which, from a membership of 1 in 1881, to more than 2,300,000 in 1895, has been expanded into a world-wide organization, and what its growth under its new possibilities, or the good its influence may do religiously, socially and politically in this land and all the rest of God's footstool, no man's mind can predict. Yet, notwithstanding all its prominence of today, and its newly created cosmopolitanism, it remains as simple as ever, doing merely a work of influence.

When the publisher of a great paper in great Chicago offered the society the tempting offer of $5000 a year for three successive years, on condition that the headquarters of the organization be removed from Boston to the city by the lakes, the trustees at their meeting last Thursday made an answer characteristic of the principles. "No," they said, "we are but a society to influence. We need no costly buildings or expensive offices. Boston is strong in ideas. We shall stay there."

"Ideas" is the tocsin of the Christian Endeavorers, and then they propagate them. And how widely have been those ideas propagated by the series of splendid meetings this week. Everywhere where newspapers are printed the news of the convention has been carried. The convention just closed has been one of the greatest religious event the world has ever seen, its promoters believing its influence for good incalculable.

Three great meetings were held in Boston last night. They closed the convention in a manner entirely befitting its character. Thirty thousand people gathered in Mechanics' hall and Tents Williston and Endeavor.

The meetings at these places last night were marked with a sort of spirituality that has not so notably characterized any previous meetings of the week. Not that the gatherings of last night were a jot less earnest than their predecessors, but there seemed to be a deeper and holier sentiment filling the three great composite bands that worshipped, a sentiment denoted by an absence of the wonted demonstration of the days that have passed.

At all three great auditoriums the meetings were much the same. "Consecration, a Striving to Get Nearer the Master," was the subject of them all. The purely consecration services were led by President Clark in Mechanics' hall, by Secretary Baer in Williston, and by Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, D.D., in Endeavor tent. These leaders also presided at the respective meetings. Beside the singing and the prayer services, sermons by Rev. H. M. Wharton, D.D., of Baltimore, in Mechanics' building; Rev. Samuel H. Virgin, D.D., of New York, in Williston, and Rev. John Potts, D.D., of Toronto, were the only programed numbers at the meetings.

The petition of 50,000 delegates, representing a constituency of nearly 3,000,000 to Queen Victoria, relative to the condition of Christian subjects in Turkey, was an important event and aroused great interest.

At Mechanics' Hall.

Every available space of the great Mechanics' hall was filled by persons who had gathered to attend the closing session of the Christian Endeavor convention. Probably 12,000 people attended. President Clark presided, and Percy Foster directed the music he also singing a solo at the opening of the meeting.

Immediately after the session was opened, Dr. H. B. Grose presented to the convention the following resolutions:

We, the members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, representing a constituency of nearly 3,000,000, assembled in Boston, in our 14th international annual convention—50,000 strong—most respectfully address and petition her majesty, the Queen of England, urging upon her attention the terrible condition of the Christian subjects of Turkey, and praying her in the name of a common faith and an outraged Christian conscience to use her great influence and authority to help those who are perishing, and to give to that country a safe and just government.

The resolutions were received with great applause, and on a viva voce vote were carried with a mighty shout from the multitude of delegates present, amid a tumultuous upheaval of a great sea of multi-colored flags and snowy handkerchiefs. Wave after wave of applause rose and fell, and the tumult arose again when, during a lull, Dr. Grose announced that the same petition would be presented to President Cleveland.

When the audience at last grew quiet, Dr. Clark announced that the last hours of the convention were to be devoted to personal consecration on the part of the members. The meeting at once assumed a character much different from that of all its predecessors, but the absence of physical approbation only emphasized the solemnity of the hour. The annual convention sermon was delivered by Rev. H. M. Wharton, D.D., of Baltimore. His subject was "Consecration," and was a touching, learned plea for a closer communion with God.

President Clark, in opening the consecration services, said the hour was the supreme one of the convention. And so it proved. First, 12,000 heads bowed in silent prayer, then the soft chanting by all, in the same humble attitude, of the hymn, "Just as I Am," made the hour one of the most startling solemnity. The delegations of different states and territories and countries answered by reciting a verse of scripture or sentiment or by singing national or state air. Dr. Hoyt of Minneapolis closed the meeting with prayer After the song "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," the "Mizpah" benediction was pronounced, and the meeting adjourned.

Many Turned Away.

The meeting in Tent Williston seemed to bring to a climax the deep devotion and intense interest which have characterized the 14th international convention. The throngs of those who could not gain admission to the monster tent even exceeded in number those thus disappointed on previous evenings. Within the enclosure the audience was densely packed together.

The praise and prayer service was entered into with great spirit, responsive singing being conducted with remarkable effect. Prayer by Rev. John Barstow of Medford and the repetition of the 23d psalm by the audience followed. The praise service included selections by the Park sisters, cornetists, and a solo by Mrs. William Patterson.

Before the opening of the regular program Treasurer Shaw was introduced, and presented the petition to Queen Victoria on behalf of the oppressed Armenians.

The members of the committee of 13, upon whom has rested the responsibility of the management of the convention of '95, were then introduced individually, and were loudly cheered.

The chairman of the committee read resolutions of thanks to the various departments and individuals who have extended courtesies to the Endeavorers during the convention.

Rev. S. H. Virgin, D.D., of New York, delivered an earnest and impressive sermon. The consecration service, in which the delegates from the different states and countries took part as they were called by Secretary Baer, closed the session.

At Tent Endeavor.

The last session in Tent Endeavor opened with soul-stirring melodies of the Endeavorers. The chorus of 1000 voices was guided by George K. Somerby. Rev. N. Boynton, D.D., rapped for order and services opened with singing "The Banner of the Cross," devotional services led by Bishop Arnett, and two verses of "Throw Out the Life-Line." The sermon of the evening was presented by the Rev J. Potts, D.D., of Toronto.

The audience sang "Speed Away" prior to a congratulatory presentation of the

BURIED IN A CELLAR.

Bodies of the Pitzel Chilren Discovered by Two Detectives.

Were Killed by Holmes In a Toronto House.

The Crime Believed to Have Been Committed In October Last.

TORONTO, July 16.—Found buried in the cellar of the house 16 St. Vincent street yesterday afternoon were the bodies of Alice and Nellie, the two missing daughters of Benjamin F. Pitzel. Detectives Cuddy of Toronto, and Geyer of Philadelphia made the discovery, and all the doubts as to their fate have been set at rest.

It is now a matter almost beyond doubt that H. H. Holmes, when here last October, deliberately murdered the pair and thus rid himself of two troublesome young beings, after he had murdered their father in Philadelphia. The inquiries begun by the police led to the knowledge that Holmes and the children lived at the house in question, and a search was made by the two officers. A photograph of Holmes was shown to Frank N. Nudel, owner of No. 16, and without any hesitation he identified it as that of his tenant.

H. H. HOLMES.

When they reached the cellar, it appeared to the detectives that something had disturbed the cellar floor, and, arming themselves with shovels, they began to dig. A short distance below the surface they came across the arm and a portion of the head of one of the murdered little girls. Further work soon revealed the entire body, not only of the first, but of her sister.

They Were Both Naked

and had lain there in all probability since last October. The last the officers had heard of the children was at Detroit. They were taken there from Chicago, where they had been attending school. They boarded on Congress street one week in 1894. Holmes secured possession of Alice, aged 13, first taking her to Philadelphia to identify her father's body. Then he went to St. Louis, and told the mother that he would put Howard and Nellie in a good school in Indianapolis. This was on Sept. 28, 18894.

Mrs. Pitzel received two letters from Holmes in Indianapolis, and, acting on his advice, she went to her parents' home in Illinois. Becoming worried about the children, she went to Chicago, where she received word from Holmes to go to Detroit. She met him in that city and demanded the children, but was induced to go with him to Toronto and then to Burlington, Vt. So far as known the boy was never seen in Detroit.

The Thunderer's Tip.

LONDON, July 16.—The Times today contains an article on politics in Canada, in which it says: It may be premature to forecast the breaking up of the Dominion, as the ultimate result of the lamentable quarrel between the Roman Catholic minority in the Canadian legislature, but there can be no question that the effect of the dispute will be felt far beyond the frontiers of Manitoba, and the already strongly marked racial and religious differences that distinguish the population of the Dominion will be accentuated and strengthened by the dispute, unless it is handled in a spirit of the broadest and most enlightened statesmanship.

Fire Officials Fired.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Fire Marshal Mitchell was removed from his office by the fire commissioners yesterday afternoon. The commissioners also removed Charles R. Soteldo, superintendent of the supply department, and Storekeeper Daniel Delaney. The two departments were merged into one.

Cooling Down.

LIMA, July 16.—The extreme state of irritation and excitement which existed here when it first became known that Bolivia had made a peremptory demand for immediate satisfaction of her claims shows some signs of abatement, as it is now believed that a mode of peaceful settlement may be arrived at.

Murderer Lynched.

GREENVILLE, S. C., July 16.—Ira Johnson, colored, who killed a young white man named Longford in a quarrel at Piedmont, was taken from the county jail by a mob of 100 men, who swung him to a tree and riddled his body with bullets.

Lynching In Kentucky.

WINCHESTER, Ky., July 16.—The jail was surrounded by armed men early this morning, and Bob Huggard, a mulatto, who was accused of having assaulted a young woman, was lynched.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE EAST BOSTON riot was not half as serious to Quincy people as the fight for red schoolhouses in this city. West Quincy and Norfolk Downs people need new schoolhouses. A new argument was advanced last evening why they should be of brick, because then they would be red. Of course, a wooden schoolhouse could be painted red, but would it? But the wooden schoolhouse would have to be painted frequently, and local option on the question: "Shall the schoolhouse be painted red?" would keep the red schoolhouse issue constantly stirred up. Wonder that an order has not already been introduced to paint all our schoolhouses red.

THE CITY Council has been generous to Dr. Everett. In voting to close Miller stile that gentleman will be benefitted perhaps a thousand dollars. While the acceptance of Miller Stile road has been rejected, the street must soon be accepted, but the city will not be in as good a position to levy betterments or bargain with abutters when that time arrives. Did the City Council think of this?

THE COMMITTEE of the Quincy Yacht club showed excellent judgment in selecting a day like yesterday for the ladies. It rains easy nowadays, and it is the exception to have a day wholly pleasant.

WHY SHOULDN'T the arrangements of the Quincy Yacht club pass off like clock work with Jeweller Pettengill as commodore. He carried off the honors well.

LADIES' DAY.

Jolly Tars Entertain Happy Maidens.

A Good Breeze and a Delightful Sail.

Concert, Lunch and Dance at the Clubhouse.

The annual Ladies' Day of the Quincy Yacht club is an occasion that is always looked forward to with pleasure, as upon this day the club house is thrown open to the ladies and the yachts in the fleet are placed at their disposal.

The Ladies' Day of this year was no exception to the rule, unless it be said that the affair of Monday surpassed in point of enjoyment anything heretofore held.

It was a perfect day, and there was plenty of wind and a large attendance. The arrangements were so well planned that everything went off like clock work and Commodore Pettengill has good reason to be proud and to feel elated over the success of the occasion.

The committee in charge of the affair consisting of Commodore Charles F. Pettengill, Vice Commodore William H. Shaw, Secretary James S. Whiting, Horace R. Drinkwater, Walter B. Wilson, William C. Harrison, C. Eaton Pierce, Gordon M. Keating, Fred B. Rice and Arthur J. Shaw, were on hand early and when the guests began to arrive shortly after 2 o'clock all details were arranged.

Every car after 2 o'clock brought down a large number of lady guests, most of whom were dressed in yachting costumes, their bright faces beaming with happy smiles.

Soon after 3 o'clock the transfer of the guests from the club house to the yachts was commenced and at 3 30 Commodore Pettengill's yacht Marie steamed into position and was saluted by eleven guns.

At 3.45 the starting gun was fired and the yachts one by one sailed in review by the Commodore, each saluting and in return being saluted with the boom of a gun.

As they sailed away toward Jackknife ledge buoy the view as seen from the broad piazzas of the club house was a pretty one, for it was an yachtsman's ideal day.

Those who did not participate in the sail were not forgotten, for while enjoing the view they were also entertained by a promenade concert by an orchestra from Baldwin's Cadet band.

Officer Bradley was stationed at the outer door and his presence kept out many who in past years have participated in these affairs uninvited and without tickets.

On the float was Officer Murray and here a new plan was put into operation which worked successfully and saved confusion and perhaps accident, for as fast as the yachts landed their fair freight they left the float and the passengers proceeded at once to the club house. This prevented many a wet foot, for it kept the float clear and above water.

At the club house lunch was not served until five minutes after the last boat had landed and there was less confusion than on some occasions. All the ladies were seated either in the hall or on the verandas, and there was a generous supply of sandwiches, ice cream, sherbet, cake and Quincy water, served by Caterer Cook.

Many returned home after the sail, but before 8 P. M. were back reinforced to enjoy a hop. Music was furnished by Peter's orchestra and dancing continued until 11 o'clock.

—The newspapers note a remarkable change in public sentiment throughout the south and west in regard to the silver question. In this connection, the Boston Commercial Bulletin says: "The business interests of the country want to see that the work so successfully begun is pressed to conclusion, and, more than that, give timorous politicians to understand that no temporizing with the question will be permitted. International agreement on silver may be desirable, but until England is ready to meet the case fairly, no concession to silver must be made by us."

PHILLIPS COLLAPSED.

The Bostons Made a Brilliant Finish and Won the Game.

CINCINNATI, July 15.—Phillips went to pieces in the ninth inning. He gave two bases on balls, and Boston made five hits and won the game. He took Parrott's place in the third, and allowed only two hits up to the last inning. The Reds batted Dolan freely, but he received excellent support, except at third base.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.

Stambuloff, Ex-Premier of Bulgaria, Assaulted by Unknown Enemies.

SOFIA, July 16.—M. Stambuloff, ex-premier of Bulgaria, was returning home last evening from the Union club, accompanied by a colleague, M. Petcoff, when they were attacked by four persons armed with revolvers and knives. M. Stambuloff received several wounds and lost a quantity of blood. His condition is serious.

Stambuloff was taken to his house and laid upon a sofa. The doctors declared that both of his hands must be amputated, which was done, and he may possibly die.

Famous Horses Sold.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, July 16.—The dissolution sale of Gideon & Daly's racing stable took place yesterday. The biggest bargain in the sale was Ramapo. He was knocked down to Duke Bros. for $6600. His racing career is not nearly ended, and a big future awaits him in the stud. The Butterflies, winner of the futurity in 1894, brought $7000. Her former part owner paid this figure for her. August Belmont bought Hastings, the unbeaten 2-year-old son of Spendthrift and Cinderella, after a struggle with David Gideon. He paid $7000 for this great youngster. He also bought Keenan, giving $18,500 for this 3-year-old. David Gideon bought Hazlet for $14,500.

Tories Away Ahead.

LONDON, July 16.—The total results of the parliamentary elections, for which returns have been made up this morning, are as follows: Conservatives, 151; L 5-eral-Unionists, 21; Liberals, 23; Parnellites, 4; McCarthyites, 4; Labor, 1. Total, 204. As compared with the parliament which has just been dissolved, 24 seats thus returned show gains for the Unionists and 5 are gains for the Liberals.

Police Stepped In.

JERSEY CITY, July 16.—At a boxing tournament here last night, Frank Erne of Buffalo and Joe Craig of this city were billed to box 10 rounds at 122 pounds. They fought three hot rounds, when the Jersey boy fell to the floor. Policemen jumped into the ring and stopped the fight. Craig spat out a lot of clotted blood and a couple of teeth. The referee awarded the fight to Erne.

Tit For Tat.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 16.—The negroes in Greenville are greatly excited over the lynching of Ira Johnson, whose lawyer says he could have established a clear case of self-defense. They want to lynch a white prisoner in jail, charged with murder of a white man for retallation. One militia company is guarding the jail and another is under arms in its armory.

Big Suits Entered.

LEWIS, P. Q., July 16.—Several suits for damages have been begun against the Grand Trunk railway by relatives of persons killed in the collision at Craig's road a week ago. The property loss was $150,000, but the claims for personal damages may exceed even that sum.

Railroad Dickering.

LIMA, O., July 16.—It is stated that Senator Brice is behind a scheme to buy in the Ohio Southern railroad from the receiver and building an extension from Lima to Detroit to parallel the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.

John L.'s Big Talk.

HALIFAX, July 16.—John L. Sullivan and his combination attracted an audience of 6000 persons last night. John L. announced that he would challenge the winner of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight.

ATLANTIC CELEBRATION.

It Cost $314.52 and All Bills Are Paid—Plans for 1896.

The affairs of the Independence Day Celebration committees of Atlantic for 1895 were closed up at Music hall Saturday evening. A total subscription of $312 40 was reported. The treasurer reported bills to the amount of $314 52. The deficiency of $2.12 was immediately subscribed by those present, the bills all paid and all committees and officers discharged. S. O. Moxon was requested to call a meeting of the citizens early in the season of 1896 to consider a celebration for that year. He was also instructed to convey to the DAILY LEDGER and PATRIOT the thanks of the community for the liberal notices and reports of the proceedings, connected with the celebration of 1895. The meeting was then adjourned.

Metropolitan Water Order Not in Due Form.

The Red Schoolhouse Orders Not Passed.

A Serious Delay as City Council Adjourned for Three Weeks.

Metropolitan water and red schoolhouses were the important issues before the City Council Monday evening. The decision of City Solicitor Blackmur on the former reopens the water question, and the absence of Councilman O'Brien postponed an attempt to pass the schoolhouse orders, every affirmative vote being necessary.

There were two absentees Councilmen O'Brien and Sidelinger.

Water Order Illegal.

City Solicitor Blackmur rendered a decision on the resolution requesting the Mayor to have Quincy reinstated in the Metropolitan water district, that the resolution did involve an assessment and that the Mayor cannot legally carry out its instructions. He says further: The mode of payment is provided for in Section 19 The assessment is here made a part of the city's state tax. It is true the council will appropriate the money as a part of its annual tax levy, but it will then have become in the nature of a debt incurred which simply requires the formality of an appropriation.

Petitions.

The usual number of applications for licenses and State aid were received and referred.

Mary A. Galvin petitioned for allowance for damages caused in regrading Quarry street. Referred.

The Telephone Company petitioned for a location on Butler road and other streets. To committee.

A petition was also received for a fire alarm box at the corner of West and Hayden streets. To committee.

Councilman Johnson offered the petition of Charles Hall and 100 others of Quincy Point, also a petition from Germantown, for a public landing for boats at Quincy Point, near the bridge and old toll house. To Committee on Streets.

Committee Reports.

The Committee on Elections reported the result of the election on the sewer act of July 9, viz: 655 yes, 202 no, in a total of 862. Accepted and declared.

The Committee on Claims reported reference of claim of Martha B. Newcomb to the Executive department for settlement. Accepted.

The same committee reported that the claim of J. E. Drake for rent be paid from balances of 1894. Accepted.

Schoolhouse Orders.

The order appropriating $28,000 for a brick and stone schoolhouse at Norfolk Downs came up for its final passage.

Councilman Bigelow moved an amendment, that all the granite used be from Quincy quarries, which was accepted without debate.

Councilman Bigelow then inquired if there was any guarantee from a contractor that building could be erected within appropriation.

Councilman Nickerson thought that question had been answered several times. Mr. Kingston stood ready to give his bond to build it for that sum.

Councilman Bigelow then inquired if the School Committee had approved the plans, and being answered in the affirmative, he said he was ready to vote for the order. He had been a wooden schoolhouse man from the first, but if a good brick and stone building could be secured for $28,000 he was for it.

Councilman Rice protested against two cheap brick schoolhouses. Didn't believe they would be first class. If the city desired to experiment and build one, he would vote for one.

Councilman Russell thought one enough, and that the one at West Quincy was most needed.

Councilman Sprague was interested in the public schools. He belived that new buildings were needed. Justice to the children demand they should be erected. He favored brick because then the schoolhouses would be red. He hoped the councilmen would come together tonight and pass the orders.

Councilman Nickerson had been counting noses however and Councilman O'Brien an advocate of brick being absent, he moved to lay on the table, and it was so voted.

A similar order for West Quincy was likewise amended and also tabled.

Councilman Rinn asked the Finance Committee what had become of the order for heating and ventilating the Quincy school at Atlantic.

The committee did not remember having seen the order, and believed it lost. They were asked to report promptly.

Councilman Dixon offered an order requesting the Commissioner of Public Works to furnish an estimate for the paving of School street, from Hancock to Franklin street. Passed.

An order granting the Telephone company a location on Whitwell street was passed.

The order discontinuing Miller stile between Canal and Elm streets was passed by a vote of 19 to 1, viz:

YEAS.—Adams, Barker, Bigelow, Bryant, Dixon, Geary, Grindell, Hayden, Johnson, Lamb, Nickerson, Parker, Pinkham, Rice, Rinn, Russell, Shackley, Spear and Sprague.—19.

Nay,—Phillips.—1.

Adjourned at 8.17.

GOOD WATER SUPPLY

Houghs Neck Now Well Protected From a Conflagration.

Chief Engineer Williams visited Houghs Neck, Monday night, with a hose wagon and a detail of men to test the efficiency of the hydrant service. The test proved beyond doubt that the pressure of water for fire service was ample to handle any ordinary fire until the department from Quincy arrived.

Two lines of hose of 150 feet each were run near the Casino and two powerful streams were thrown over the buildings in that vicinity.

Then two streams were put on near the Yacht club house and good streams thrown.

The most severe test was made from the top of Great Hill where a line of 300 feet was run and a good stream thrown.

Taking everything into consideration the test was entirely satisfactory.

In the mean time the Columbus band had arrived and the hose wagon was paraded through the several streets. After which there was a concert from the Casino band stand which was enjoyed by a large crowd.

"ECHOES OF THE CONVENTION."

Distinguished Delegates to Address Quincy Christian Endeavor Union.

Wednesday evening at 7 30 o'clock the Quincy Christian Endeavor Union will meet in the First Presbyterian church, Water street, South Quincy. Space will be reserved for each of the societies of the Union and also for each of the Wollaston societies. The public will be welcomed so long as there is room. Brief addresses will be given by the Rev. John Pollock, of Glasgow, Scotland, the Rev. W. Knight Chaplin, of London, England, the Rev. James Mursell, of Derby, England, and perhaps by the Rev. W. J. L. Closs, of Australia.

One minute discussions of the great features and thoughts of the Convention will be called for from each Christian Endeavorer who will respond. Subjects to be emphasized, Fellowship, Denominational Loyalty, Good Citizenship, Missions and Home Evangelization.

Songs from the Convention programmes, which delegates are requested to bring with them.

Endeavorers from Wollaston and Atlantic are informed that the electric cars pass the church, and the railway station is Quincy Adams, four minutes' walk.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

A BIRD CALL.

Bird of the azure wing,
Bird of the silver note,
Come, for it is the spring,
And high the white clouds float.
Come, bluebird, come!

Bird of the crimson breast,
Robin, we miss you well.
Robin, we love you best.
Come, for the cowslips swell.
Come, robin, come!

Bird of the circling flight
'Gainst twilight's pearly skies,
Soft call the winds of night,
Lonely the water cries.
Come, swallow, come!
—Sara M. Chatfield in St. Nicholas.

SHE WAS RIGHT.

Aubrey Everdene looked out upon Sackville street and yawned. Only an instant before he had written "Finis" to an article with a dash of the pen across the last sheet, and now the manuscript lay ready for the post among the debris of printer's proofs, new novels awaiting review, etc., with which the writing table was strewn.

One of the best known litterateurs in London and a brilliant conversationalist, his tongue could be as scathing as his pen, and it was said of him with regard to the latter weapon of warfare that in half a dozen polished sentences he could do more toward damning a book than any two of his compeers. A big, loosely made man, Mr. Everdene, with shrewd, gray eyes and the pessimism of a modern. Studying his face as he lounged by the window, his hands in the pockets of his smoking jacket, one could see that he had a lively sense of humor combined with his other characteristics and understood the interest his personality aroused.

Presently a servant brought him a visiting card on a salver. "The lady would be obliged if you would grant her an interview, sir."

"Lady Hilyard," muttered Everdene, reading the inscription. "I can't recall the name. Bother the woman! What does she want? However—ask her to come up, Blake."

When she entered, a fair, elegant woman of perhaps five and twenty, in an irreproachable Parisian toilet, he was still more convinced that he had not the privilege of her acquaintance.

"Mr. Aubrey Everdene?" she queried.

Mr. Everdene bowed.

"Pray take a seat, madam."

"No," she said. "I have come to quarrel with you, and I don't sit down in the houses of my enemies."

"To quarrel with me!" His eyebrows went up. The thought came to him that his visitor was not in her right mind.

"Yes. Perhaps I had better explain myself at once. I am the author of 'Fashion and Footlights.'"

"'Fashion and Footlights,'" he reflected aloud. "'Fashion and Footlights.' Ha!"

Comprehension stole over his face, and with it a slight amusement. He fished among a pile of volumes and brought out three bound with an elegance destined to win the hearts of suburban circulating libraries.

"Here it is. I reviewed it in The Centurian, didn't I?"

"No," she said, "you hanged and quartered it!"

"I am sorry! May I ask how you found out that I was the culprit?"

"Oh, by accident! It's a long story and unimportant, since you don't deny the imputation. Now, Mr. Everdene, I know it is very impertinent of me, a stranger, to come to your private address and worry you. I am doing a very unusual thing, I am afraid, and Mrs. Grundy would be horrified. But 'fools rush in,' you know, and widows are privileged! You must have a little patience with me, because"—for the first time her lips relaxed, and she smiled a smile that was sweetness itself—"well, just because I'm a woman and you're a gentleman! Acknowledge the truth now on your honor. Don't you think you were unnecessarily harsh to my poor little literary effort?"

"No," he said bluntly. "I always give my true opinion of things, and I consider your book had many faults."

If she had been a man, he would have said, "I thought it was excessively bad," with the brusqueness of conviction, and probably declined to discuss the matter. But to a lady it was impossible to be rude. He regarded her absurdly unconventional presence with a tolerant kindliness.

"Of course I admit that there are faults, but upon one or two points in your criticism I cannot agree with you. I should very much like to discuss them with you. May I?"

"Certainly." His mouth was twitching under his heavy mustache. "But don't you think, pending the verdict, that you had better sit down? You will be fatigued. If you'll permit me to wheel this armchair nearer the fire for you—so!"

Having carefully arranged it so that she should face the light, he seated himself opposite to her—the A B C of diplomacy, but she did not appear to notice it. She was drawing arabesques on the carpet with the point of her ivory handled umbrella.

"I should very much like to know," she said, "what you think of me for coming here?"

"I think you are plucky—yes, and recklessly unconventional."

"Candid, at any rate! And I like that." She looked up. "Now for the first indictment on the list, Mr. Everdene. You accuse me of improbability. I deny it."

His manner bordered upon preoccupation. In truth, he was thinking what wonderful lashes she had and how becoming a flush of excitement could be to a clear, pale skin.

"You assert," she continued warmly, "that it is ridiculous to suppose that a man and a woman could fall in love at first sight, as I make my hero and heroine do, and that such proceedings are limited to boys and girls in their teens and the pages of penny fiction. I should have thought that Mr. Aubrey Everdene would have shown wider sympathies."

"Then you really believe, Lady Hilyard, that adult, sensible people do conceive such abrupt attachments?"

"I am convinced that it happens frequently."

"Oh, come, not frequently?"

"Well—sometimes," she amended. "I could give you a dozen instances."

He lacked the heart to argue with her. It would have been like breaking a butterfly on a wheel, and, after all, there might be more sentiment in fin de siecle humanity than he thought. Women have wonderful intuition in these matters.

"Well, suppose we let that slide for the moment and proceed to indictment No. 2. What other phrase of mine do you take exception to?"

"You said that I had not the remotest idea of construction, and that 'Fashion and Footlights' was evidently a specimen of that objectionable class of fiction which you regretted to see was growing so prevalent—the amateur novel, born of vanity and a lack of wholesome occupation."

Her voice died away with a tremor. He had only stated the truth, but the fact did not prevent the speechless Mr. Everdene from feeling as if he had committed a particularly brutal murder and the ghost of the victim had come to arraign him before all the people whose opinion he valued most.

"I—I cried," she murmured pathetically.

Her lips quivered. Beads of perspiration rose to the man's forehead.

"Good heavens, if I had only guessed how much I should hurt you! It was harsh, monstrous. No doubt I was in a bad temper, and your unfortunate book was the first thing that afforded me an opportunity to vent my spleen."

"Then you acknowledge that you were needlessly cruel?"

"I was brutal." He would have committed blacker perjury as she wiped that tear away.

"And that I had just cause for indignation?"

"You were perfectly right."

A smile broke like April sunshine over her face.

"In that case I suppose I must forgive you?"

He was ridiculously grateful. He heaved a sigh of relief and hesitated with his hand on the button of the electric bell.

"Lady Hilyard, you know the Arab custom of taking salt with one's friends? As a token of good will permit me to give you the prosaic English equivalent of a cup of tea."

The offer was tempting, the weather was hot, and she had talked a great deal. She yielded. When the refreshment came, accompanied by wonderful sweetmeats from round the corner, she asked permission to pour it out for him, with a winning graciousness which charmed him. It afforded him an odd sense of pleasure, too, to see her white fingers moving about the china. He was unaccustomed to the presence of women in his home.

With the Japanese tables between them they chatted for awhile, and then the clock on the mantelpiece struck 6. She rose with a pretty gesture of dismay, like a second Cinderella.

"Do you know, Mr. Everdene, that I have been here a whole hour wasting your valuable time?"

"I thought it had been ten minutes," he answered, "and the pleasantest of my life."

"Very pretty!" she said, blushing faintly. "And in return for it let me tell you that my address is on my card, and that my 'day' is Thursday; also I must thank you very heartily for your kindness and courtesy to an impertinent intruder. Very few men would have been so considerate."

"Please don't thank me. It is I who owe you a debt of gratitude. You have taught me something I never expected to learn."

"What?"

"That the conduct of your hero and heroine was not improbable at all."

Their eyes met, the woman's drooped, self conscious, pleased.

"You really mean that?"

"On my soul I do."

The most delicious softness was in her voice.

"It makes me so proud and happy to think I have convinced you."

There was a silence. She smoothed a wrinkle in her suede glove. He twisted a button on his coat. Then she aroused herself, with a little laugh, and extended her hand.

"Well, goodby, Mr. Everdene, and once more, thank you!"

He pressed her fingers ever so lightly—her proselyte.

"Not goodby," he murmured. "Au revoir!"—Black and White.

Saved His Whisky.

A Greek fisherman recently decided to branch out a little in a business way, so opened a small saloon on the water front. He bought a barrel of whisky from a local dealer, paying 10 per cent down, and agreed to pay the balance when the whisky was delivered. He failed to keep his agreement, and the dealer commenced planning some way to get his whisky or the money. Every time he called on the fisherman he saw the barrel lying in the saloon, and he wanted it.

Finally the dealer commenced suit and attached the liquor. The saloon man pleaded poverty, hard times and everything else, but his creditor was obdurate. An agreement was reached after much parleying that the dealer should take the whisky back, keep the 10 per cent that had been paid and give the saloon keeper a receipt in full and dismiss the suit.

The saloon keeper shed tears as he saw the barrel of whisky carted off and declared he was a ruined man, but he did not close his saloon. The shrewd dealer found that the whisky had been drawn from the barrel and water substituted. He is still wondering how he can get his whisky or the money for it when his receipt is standing against his claim.—San Francisco Post.

AIM OF ENDEAVORERS

chairmen of the various committees, and their responses were in the same words as given at the other meetings. George W. Coleman read the resolutions adopted by the trustees on Armenia, which were received with tumultuous applause, and the aim and objects of the Christian Endeavorers.

The consecration service was opened by singing "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and after prayer offered by the the chairman, the different states and territories publicly consecrated themselves to the work of Christ for the ensuing year.

Thinning Out.

While several thousand delegates will return to their homes today, the greater part of the multitude of strangers in town will remain, sight-seeing, until the end of the week. Many excursions have been planned for the next three days, and a large number of tickets to them are already sold. Plymouth, Salem, Lexington and Concord, Hoosac Tunnel, the Berkshire hills, White mountains and Church Williston in Portland, Me., the birthplace of the society, will be visited.

There were no afternoon meetings yesterday, so the delegates flocked to Bunker Hill; the Washington elm in Cambridge, and many other places.

A THEORY.

Why do the violins shudder so
When across them is drawn the bow,
Sob for anguish and wild despair?
Human souls are imprisoned there.

Souls are shut in the violins,
They are the souls of Philistines,
But the Philistines, row on row,
Soulless sit and they do not know.

But they brandish their eyeglasses,
Stare at each other's evening dress,
Scrutinize form or brilliant hue,
Say, "Is it rouge or is it true?"

"Some one was flat a semitone,
And how stout the soprano's grown!
Isn't the bass a dear? And, oh,
Do look at Mrs. So-and-so!"

Still the musicians play serene,
As though Philistines had not been,
But their souls in the violins
Mourn on bitterly for their sins.

Call them wildly and call in pain,
Call them with longing deep and vain
And with infinite tenderness,
Since they can give them no redress.

Since not one of them is aware
Here is he and his soul is there,
In the music's divinest chord,
Making melody to the Lord.

So how often in life and art
Soul and body must dwell apart—
Great is the master's soul, no doubt—
Twenty Philistines go without.

Are we body or are we soul?
Little matter upon the whole.
Human soul in the violin,
Save me at last, a Philistine!

—May Kendall.

A Warning to Women.

We can bear with the woman of science,
And the devotee, too, of art.
On the follower after fashion
We cannot quite close our heart.
We can pardon, perchance, the weakness
Of the woman who always brags,
But we haven't a mite of patience
With the awful woman who nags.

The woman who scolds us soundly
At once and then is done,
Who wants her say and who says it
In spite of every one—
That woman may be a terror
And a butt for witty wags,
But we'd rather risk her temper
Than the awful woman who nags.

Oh, ye women wise, take warning,
If in peace with men you'd live,
If you'd keep their fond affections,
Sin the sins they can forgive.
If you're fretty, their allegiance
They'll transfer to other flags,
For a home is just a hades
Where an awful woman nags.

—Susie M. Best.

Where I may kill my friend or wed my foe

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Rain Has Boomed Agriculture In All Sections of New England.

Hay Crop Will Be Better Than Was Expected.

Tobacco and Field Crops Severely Damaged by Hail In Connecticut.

BOSTON, July 16.—The New England weather service, in co-operation with the board of agriculture, issues the following bulletin for the week ending July 15:

Sufficient rains have fallen in Maine for the good growth of all field crops during the week, but for the most part favorable weather for curing hay has prevailed, and has been improved to its fullest extent. One correspondent in Penobscot counry reports about two-thirds the average hay crop, but generally the prospect is for fully an average yield. Pastures are very good for the season. Small fruits are generally in abundance. Corn is excellent. Potatoes are growing well, with no report of blight as yet; this crop was being damaged by dry weather fully as much as any other. The prospect for all crops is very encouraging. At Harrison in Cumberland county 1.53 inches of rain fell in 2½ hours on the 9th. It was not accompanied by wind, and did a great deal of good.

A Light Hay Crop.

The grass on New Hampshire lowlands has been improved by the wet weather, but haying has been delayed in most sections, and the grass on uplands is getting much too ripe. It is rusting to considerable extent, and in Hillsboro county there is complaint of its mildewing badly. The general report is for a light hay crop, though some work on lowlands show that it is better than expected. The feed in pastures is reported short in Cheshire county, but generally it is splendid and stock is doing well. There is great promise of a second crop. Grain is growing fast and filling well. Corn is growing luxuriantly, but was damaged considerably by the high wind on the 10th, especially in Belknap county. Blackberries are reported in fine condition in southern counties, but in Coos county a blight is affecting the bushes; the fruit does not grow, the stems dry up and the leaves die. Blueberries are reported not to be very plenty. Grasshoppers are reported unusually thick. Slightly too wet for potatoes on low ground in central counties.

Grasshoppers In Vermont.

Excellent weather prevailed over most of Vermont until Friday, and a great deal of hay has been put in in splendid condition. The quality of the hay this year is very high, but nearly all the correspondents report less than the average quantity. The weather has been very dry here, and crops were suffering when the rains of the last of the week revived them and gave them a new color. Potatoes have suffered, but are now growing well. Corn has been growing slowly in Lamoile county, but other correspondents pronounce it in splendid condition. Pastures are very short in many places and grasshoppers are doing considerable damage. Transplanted crops are making good growth and gardens generally look well. The rain in southern counties lodged oats badly. Pears are looking well, but apples continue to give prospect of light crop.

Rain Lodged Grain.

Very unfavorable weather for curing hay has prevailed in most of Massachusetts, and considerable damage has been done to partly made hay by the frequent showers. The general prospect is for a crop below the average, but it is reported to be better than was expected. Pastures are good, and the promise for a second grass crop is excellent. The heavy rains have lodged grain and stout grass badly. At Fitchburg, in Worcester county, on the 9th, 4.13 inches of rain fell in 3¼ hours, 3.37 inches falling in 1¾ hours. The correspondent, Dr. Fisher, states that this fall is unprecedented there in his 31 years of observation. Hail accompanied a thunderstorm on the afternoon of the 13th, doing much damage in Hampshire county and continuing with less severity eastward almost to the coast. In South Amherst it is reported that thousands of dollars' damage was done to early vegetables and corn that were nearly ready for market, peas, vines and onions being cut to pieces. There are reports of frosts in lowlands in Hampden county on the morning of the 11th. Tobacco stands well, but needs more sunshine. The reports on small fruits and berries are quite variable, but generally there is no great crop of berries in prospect. The correspondent from Winchendon, the great blueberry section, reports the lightest blueberry crop for some years. Cranberry bogs that escaped the damaging cold of the past winter are showing a good set of fruit.

Too Wet In Rhody.

There is some fear that the continued wet weather will injure potatoes in Rhode Island, but the moisture is very beneficial to the rest of the field and garden crops, and all are growing well. Haying is advancing slowly, and considerable has been damaged by the frequent showers.

Much Damage by Hail.

A great many sections of Connecticut have been visited by hailstorms this week, and one correspondent in Fairfield county reports great injury to field crops, and many acres of tobacco destroyed. Another correspondent states that while the chief damage was to tobacco, it was not great enough to be serious, as not more than four to six leaves on a stalk are large enough to be punctured. Corn leaves were slitted and torn, but not seriously injured. Grapes, where not covered by leaves, were bruised and injured some. Poor hay weather has prevailed, but a good many of the correspondents say the crop is thickening up at the bottom, and is really improving. Corn and potatoes are generally fine. Tobacco is reported to be behind the season. Rye is being harvested, and is giving a fair crop. The correspondent at Milford reports a small amount of celery being set, as the seed failed to come up well. At Greenfield Hill, in Fairfield county, the harvesting of onion sets has begun, and an excellent crop is in prospect. Peaches are dropping considerably in Fairfield county, but generally a large crop is assured. Apples are promising well, generally. The cloudy weather is dangerous for potatoes and onions, though the first named crop is in excellent condition now.

Weavers Not Satisfied.

PROVIDENCE, July 16.—A committee of weavers from the Fletcher mills, Olneyville, waited upon Superintendent Hollingsworth yesterday and informed him that the weavers were not satisfied with the proposed increase of 7½ per cent. They told him that the weavers wanted the entire 15 per cent cut down restored. Superintendent Hollingsworth said that they might as well get through work now, as it never would be given. The refusal was taken under consideration by the committee, and it is given out that a strike will begin Aug. 5, if another raise is not forthcoming.

Pugilistic Officer Suspended.

BOSTON, July 16.—The police board last night found Patrolmen Francis Spring and Patrick Kennedy guilty of conduct unbecoming officers, and dismissed Kennedy from the force. Spring's case was placed on file. Kennedy and Spring quarreled at the Mechanics' building during the Christian Endeavor rallies, and both came to blows, one finally knocking the other down.

Barry's Easy Victory.

BOSTON, July 16.—Jimmy Barry of Chicago defeated Dave Ross of Cambridge last night for the 110-pound weight championship of America in two rounds. Barry weighed 106¾ pounds, and Ross 109. Barry's clever fainting and quick leads so mystified Ross that he was rather an easy mark for the champion bantam weight.

A Compromise.

RICHMOND, Me., July 16.—The suit to recover damages from the Eastern Steamboat company for the death of George C. Hatch, who was drowned from the company's boat while on an excursion down the river, was settled by compromise yesterday, the company paying the parents of the young man $1200.

Finishing Up.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 16.—The Defender and her tender, the Colonia, arrived here from Newport yesterday afternoon, and the workmen at once resumed the task of finishing their work. Wednesday night the Defender will go to Newport and from there she will proceed to New York.

Fruitless Conference.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 16.—Another conference was held yesterday afternoon between a committee of the Hamilton mills' strikers and Agent Quinn, but no understanding was arrived at. The company claims to have 274 looms running out of a total of 1700.

Skeleton a Century Old.

CONCORD, N. H., July 16.—Fishermen unearthed the skeleton of a man on the river banks yesterday. The teeth are well preserved, but the other bones are in partial decay. A local dentist gave as his opinion that the body had been interred at least 100 years.

Held In $500 Bonds.

PROVIDENCE, July 16.—William C. Swinburn, who so terribly beat David F. Lingane, managing editor of The Telegram, was arrested and held in $500 bonds. Lingane's wounds are so serious that he will not be able to appear in court.

Strict Registration.

PROVIDENCE, July 16. — The medical registration law compelling surgeons, physicians and dentists to pass examinations and register before practicing their profession went into effect today. It is a very strict law.

The First Dividend.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 16.—Stockholders of the Augusta, Hallowell and Gardiner Electric railroads yesterday declared a dividend of 2 per cent. This is the first dividend of the road, which was built five years ago.

Ten Per Cent Increase.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., July 16.—Employes in certain departments of J. M. Canedy's and N. F. Millard's shoe factories were yesterday granted a 10 per cent increase. The increase affects about 75 men.

Situation Unchanged.

LEWISTON, Me., July 16.—The Continental mill strikers held a meeting and spirited speeches were made. No definite action was taken. The situation is unchanged.

New Source of Revenue.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 16.—The state board of assessors have found nearly 12,000 bicycles in the state and estimate their value at $480,000, upon which a tax will be placed by the assessors.

Twelve Thousand Shares.

CONCORD, N. H., July 16.—Treasurer Webster of the Concord and Montreal road has notified stockholders of an issuance of 12,000 shares of new stock.

No Armenians Need Apply.

LYNN, Mass., July 16.—John Donallen & Son have agreed to employ no Armenian labor hereafter, and the strikers returned to work this morning.

BIG TENTS ARE DOWN.

Christian Endeavor Delegates Taking In Historical Sights.

A Trip Over Paul Revere's Route on Bicycles.

Pilgrimages to Plymouth Rock and the Old "City of Witches."

BOSTON, July 17.—A scene of demolition greeted the few Christian Endeavorers who went down to see the big tents on the Common yesterday. The work of taking out the benches was started Monday night soon after the last spectator had gone home from the final meetings, and yesterday morning all the seats were removed, and the work of tearing down the platforms proceeded.

The big tents were taken down yesterday afternoon by the firm which leased them to the United Society of Christian Endeavor, and will probably be used again next year at Washington, although they remain the property of the maker.

Decorators and others dismantled the Mechanics' building yesterday, and the great structure is silent and deserted. The postoffice was closed yesterday, and the 300 or more letters remaining will be sent to the Boston postoffice.

Of the thousand or more Endeavorers who visited Mechanics' hall yesterday, many were in search of lost articles, and so admirable was the system of ushering that but few were disappointed in their search. Chief Usher Holt had his men so well trained that but few things were lost beyond redemption.

"Every night after the sessions," said Mr. Holt, "the ushers would come in with their arms full of articles found, most of which were rubbers, umbrellas, gloves, wraps, and occasionally small pieces of jewelry. We have found 40 pocketbooks, some of which contained considerable sums of money, and all these, with three exceptions, have been returned to their owners, who gave complete descriptions of the property. We have had on hand during the convention as many as 100 umbrellas, and other articles in proportion."

All the missing articles were taken to the headquarters of the United society at 646 Washington street, where they will be kept until called for by their owners.

The Endeavorers' Bicycle Excursion

started for Concord this morning, leaving Copley square at 7 o'clock. The delegates, mustered by states, formed in line and wheeled over the route taken by Paul Revere on the night of April 18, 1775. The route lies through Charlestown, Somerville, Medford, Arlington, Lexington and Concord, and not only runs through a beautiful country, but is replete with objects of historical interest for the whole distance.

In Medford there was a reception at the house of Secretary Baer, at which the mayor and other city notables assisted. At Lexington there was a stop of an hour, to allow the delegates to visit the many points of interest. Special tickets were provided for those who wished to leave the excursion at Lexington and Concord and return by rail. There were excursions by train to Lexington and Concord.

Four special trains left here yesterday for Plymouth. The first was the Ohio delegation, accompanied by delegates from Wisconsin, Illinois and other places. They were in charge of R. H. Magwood of Boston, and numbered about 350. Rev. W. E. Barton of Boston served as guide to the party, giving short addresses on the principal points of interest. "America" was sung at the rock. G. A. Whitney of Boston had charge of the second section; this numbered 750. The third section, with 780 in it, soon followed in charge of Charles P. Floyd of Winthrop. The fourth section left soon after, 750 strong, J. H. Pollard of Watertown having charge.

Fully 2500 Endeavorers joined in the visit, planned for their pleasure and edification, to Salem, the early colony, the scene of the witch trials and executions, and once the home of Hawthorne. It was a cosmopolitan company that gathered at the Union station and which boarded a special train. They were for the most part, however, people from the west and south who knew of Salem only from their readings and by the fame that has for years attached to it and its history. They were not mere sight-seers, impelled by curiosity alone, but were bound upon a pilgrimage to learn by object lessons some chapters in our history hitherto obscure. Salem was gayly decorated in honor of their visit.

Concerning Finances.

It is thought that the money already paid in and the amount pledged will be sufficient to pay all the expense of the convention. The societies have responded generously, and it is entirely due to them that so satisfactory a financial exhibit can be made. The largest items of expense have been: Hall, $10,000; decorations, $1000; speakers' expenses (traveling and hotel), $4000; printing and postage, $2000; badges, $1600; programs, $1500. There are other items which will bring the total up to about $22,000.

The business houses in Boston were not as liberal in their contributions as in other cities, but the officers of the convention feel that if called upon now the response would be far greater. For the Boston convention 53,000 regular badges were provided, and 5000 ribbon badges were furnished the late comers.

Shot a Boy.

WAREHAM, Mass., July 17.—Charles Ryder has been held for the grand jury, charged with shooting Leonard Kleib, a 12-year-old boy. Young Kleib says that he was passing along the road when he heard the tread of some one behing him. A voice cried out: "Stop, or I'll fire." At the same time Ryder discharged his pistol, the bullet passing through Kleib's left hand. The defendant's mental caliber is said to be rather limited.

Done In Secret.

PROVIDENCE, July 17.—Sails for the Defender will be made in this city. Infantry hall was hired yesterday afternoon, and, after taking possession, the designers chalked the floor in readiness for the laying of the canvas. The work will be carried on under the supervision of Nat Herreshoff. The doors of the hall are kept locked, and the utmost secrecy prevails.

An Insurance Contest.

LYNN, Mass., July 17.—The insurance companies in which the L. A. May company was insured will not pay the insurance on that company's stock, destroyed July 3, without a contest. The amount of the insurance is $40,000. The fire was caused by a lighted firecracker exploding among a lot of fireworks in a booth that the company had erected in front of their store. The underwriters claim conditions of the policies were violated by placing the booth in front of the store without giving notice or applying for a permit.

Swanton's Big Fire.

SWANTON, Vt., July 17.—Fire yesterday destroyed four residences, the Central House, the Swanton Methodist church, three large barns and a number of outbuildings, causing a property loss that will reach $50,000. St. Albans, in response to a call for help, sent two pieces of apparatus and a dozen firemen. They experienced much difficulty in getting an effective stream on the fire, owing to the low water pressure.

Ready For Trial.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 17.—The time is near at hand for the official trial of the torpedo boat Ericsson, which event has been frequently postponed and delayed. The lighthouse steamer Cactus has been engaged for several days buoying a course, which work was completed yesterday. The torpedo boat is now ready, and the first favorable opportunity will see her going over the course.

A Venerable Couple.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., July 17.—The diamond wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Manuel of this town occurred yesterday. Mr. Manuel is 98 years old, and his wife two years his junior. Both are in excellent health. Mr. Manuel came here in 1817, and three years later married Miss Sarah Wildes. In early life he was a sailor, but for years has been a fisherman. Seven of their 10 children are living.

Steele Identified.

BOSTON, July 17.—Chief Inspector Watts received a telegram last night from Inspector Houghton, who was sent to New York in connection with the arrest of Max Steele, stating that Steele had been identified by several Boston people as one of the gang who swindled Boston banks out of $20,000 or more last spring.

An Indian Grave.

NEWTON, Mass., July 17.—A party of laborers repairing a wall on Ellis street unearthed a human skeleton yesterday afternoon. The remains were nearly eight feet below the surface. The skeleton was that of a full-grown man, and from the appearance of the skull it is supposed was that of an Indian.

Given Until Monday.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 17.—The slasher tenders last night discussed the manufacturers' proposal, and it was unanimously rejected. Secretary Lonsdale was instructed to inform the Manufacturers' Association that there would be a strike unless a concession was made before Monday.

WORSE THAN BRUTES.

Another Story of Fiendish Outrages Practiced Upon Armenians.

Women Become Victims of Lustful Mohammedans.

Practically the Slaves of "Tax Collectors" of the Various Villages.

[Special Correspondence.]

VAN, Armenia, June 3.—After the most careful inquiry it can be stated that in hundreds of villages in Armenia there is hardly one woman, old or young, who is not from time to time made the victim of the passions of the Kurds and Turks.

By way of a general statement of the situation, it may be said that in all the villages of Armenia the Christian women, both old and young, are absolutely at the mercy of their Kurdish and Turkish neighbors. This is not the case in the larger cities of Van, Bitlis, Moosh and Erzroom, because in these cities the large Armenian population is in itself a protection to the women; but in the villages, where the Armenians are in the minority, protection is not possible, and the women are at the beck and call of any Kurd or Turk who happens to take a fancy to them. Moreover, this state of things is said to be perfectly well known to the Turkish government.

It is the custom of the government to sell to the highest bidder the tax privileges of the various villages, the purchaser having the right to collect all of the taxes from the people. In very many cases the number of young Armenian women in a village has a great deal to do with the price paid for the tax privilege. When the public sale is made of the tax privilege, it is no uncommon thing for the auctioneer to so that all may hear, that so many girls are available in the village. This is done most frequently in the streets of the city of Bitlis.

When a man has purchased the tax privilege of a village he considers that he has also bought and paid for the women of the village, and any attempt on the part of the husbands, brothers or fathers to resent this interpretation of the law is looked upon as high treason, punishable with death. If the Armenian men object to this treatment of their women, they are beaten and driven from the village, and in many cases even killed.

The tax farmer is able to take an extra profit out of his village by renting out to his friends among the Turks and Kurds the privilege of making use of such women as he does not want for himself, and Kurds who cannot afford to pay for this privilege content themselves with taking the women by force when the owner of the village is not present.

Kurds and Turks who cannot afford to make financial arrangements with the tax farmer, and enter the villages openly, are compelled to wait until they can catch the Armenian women going across the fields. Then the poor women are pounced upon and dragged out of sight of their friends.

The women who suffer the most are the brides. Turks and Kurds think it great sport to carry off a bride from the very arms of her husband, and to keep her in their own houses until they have Become Tired of Her Presence.

So great is the fear felt for the official class of Kurds and Turks by the Armenians, that oftentimes the compliment of forcible seizure is not offered to the brides. One case is cited in which the Kurdish chief does not even take the trouble to go to the houses of the women he desires. He merely says to his chief servant: "I want those two new brides. Tell one of them to come here tonight and the other tomorrow."

The servant who receives this order immediately gives notice to the families of the brides, and at the appointed time the brides present themselves to the chief who has power over them.

One Kurdish chief is said to manage the affairs of his village with some semblance of method and system. He makes it a rule that no girl shall be violated until she has become a bride. His theory is that when a maid has been violated, her chances of getting married are lessened, and she is, therefore, not as desirable a piece of property in the Oriental estimate of her village.

When, at the age of 12 or 15 years, she ventures to marry, this restriction is renewed, and the chief himself is usually the first to seize her and carry her off to his own house as the wedding procession leaves the church door. But the forbearance of this Kurd is a rare exception.

Ten Thousand Out.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—The striking ingrain carpet weavers decided yesterday afternoon not to accept the manufacturers' proposal to continue work at the present rate of wages until Dec. 1. When their decision was announced the manufacturers decided to close all their factories. About 10,000 people will be thrown out of work.

Lost an Eye at Play.

BOSTON, July 17.—Annie Bornstein, 9 years old, was at play on Tyler street yesterday afternoon when she was struck in the face by a file thrown by one of her playmates with such force as to gouge out her left eye.

Who Knows "J. E. D.?"

HYDE PARK, Mass., July 17.—An unknown man, about 30 years old, was struck by a train here yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. The initials "J. E. D." were marked in ink on one arm.

Dissatisfied Weavers.

PROVIDENCE, July 17.—The weavers at the mills of the Fletcher corporation are endeavoring to secure the co-operation of the other Olneyville mills in an attempt to have the prices for weaving increased.

The National Championship Meet held at Denver, August 17, added another grand victory to the credit of "The Spalding" Bicycle. Fred Titus, mounted on "The Spalding," easily won the five-mile championship and in this race made the fastest five miles in competition, showing the superiority of "The Spalding" Bicycle at racing. At the same meeting Titus also rode the fastest mile ever made in competition

Auction Sale.

WHEREAS, in the matter of the petition of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company for the approval by the Board of Railway Commissioners, under Chapter 462 of the Acts of 1894, of an issue of capital stock by said company to the amount of $37,500, in addition to the amount of $262,500, now authorized and outstanding, for the purpose of providing means for the purchase of the rights, franchises and property of the Quincy Street Railway Company, and for other purposes set forth in said petition, the following order has been passed by said Board:

ORDERED—That the Board approve the sale of the said shares at not less than their par value to the highest bidder at public auction in the city of Quincy; notice of the time and place of such sale to be published at least five times during the ten days immediately preceding the sale, in the Boston Daily Advertiser, the Boston Evening Transcript and the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

Notice is hereby given that said amount of $37,500 of the capital stock of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company, consisting of 375 shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars a share, will be sold at not less than their par value to the highest bidder at public auction at the office of said company in the city of Quincy, at 3 o'clock P. M., on MONDAY, July 22d, in the following manner, in accordance with a vote passed by the Board of Directors of said Company, namely: Said shares of stock will be offered in ten share lots, and the highest bidder upon each lot of ten shares will have the privilege of taking the whole or any part of the same until all of said 375 shares shall be thus disposed of.

JOHN HANCOCK.

A Patriot of Whom Quincy Is Proud—A Distinguished Son.

"Our Debt to John Hancock," written by Frederic Allison Tupper, head master of the Quincy High school, was the subject of the concert recitation by pupils of the John Hancock school at the graduating exercises in June. The LEDGER is pleased to reproduce it:

To the fathers of the American revolution we owe a debt that never can be fully paid. In the glorious list of names that must forever command our gratitude and affection, John Hancock's will always have a prominent place. It was characteristic of his love of freedom that, even before the "spirit of '76" had animated the American nation, he gave the name of "Liberty" to one of his sloops. It was deeply significant of "coming events" that the seizure of the "Liberty" by officers of the British crown was followed by a riot.

Hancock was a fearless defender of his Country's rights. He it was who pronounced an eulogy of surpassing eloquence over the victims of the Boston Massacre, and, so, greatly angered the government of the King. Indeed, it was as much to seize Hancock and Adams, as to destroy munitions of war, that the British marched to Lexington and Concord, and thus brought on the Revolutionary War.

Hancock and Adams enjoyed the proud distinction of being exempted from the royal pardon promised by Gage to all other Americans who would submit. But threats of punishment could not daunt the heroic soul of this unflinching patriot. As President of the Continental Congress, he showed his contempt for tyranny, and his confidence in the successful issue of the cause which he had championed, by signing the Declaration not only a month before any other signature was appended to it, but in a hand so clear and bold that "the King of England could read it without spectacles."

He lived to see the complete triumph of those principles to which he had devoted himself. Quincy is proud of him, for he is one of her distinguished sons. Here his early life was spent; here "he found a wife," the beautiful Dorothy Quincy, who used to live just across the way. As Governor of Massachusetts, he signed the act by which Quincy became a separate town.

How shall we pay our debt of gratitude? By emulating the virtues of our heroic patriot, by honoring the memory of the illustrious dead, and by "pledging to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor" in defence of our beloved land.

BOSTON'S MAYOR.

Favorable to Quincy's Sewerage Plans at Squantum.

From the official report of the meeting of the Board of Aldermen of Boston, held Monday, the LEDGER learns that Mayor Curtis forwarded a communication and order relative to the outfall at Squantum for Quincy sewage. The communication:

City of Boston, Office of the Mayor,
City Hall, July 15, 1895.

To the City Council: Gentlemen—By Chapter 279 of the Acts of the current year, the City of Quincy is authorized to construct a sewerage system. Representatives of that city have called upon me to see if an arrangement can be made under which the City of Quincy can use the outfall section of the improved sewerage from Squantum to Moon Island as a part of its system, and the Superintendent of Streets and the City Engineer are of the opinion that it will be advantageous to the two cities to make this arrangement, to accomplish which the Law Department has at my request prepared the accompanying order, which I submit for your consideration.

Respectfully submitted,
EDWIN U. CURTIS, Mayor.

Referred to the Committee on Streets and Sewers.

One Boston paper reports the order to have passed on the recommendation of the committee, but this is probably a mistake, no report being made. The next meeting of the aldermen will be held Monday, July 29.

Sons of Veterans Picnic.

At the meeting of Francis L. Souther Camp S. of V. on Tuesday evening preparations were made to have a basket party at Lovell's grove on Saturday afternoon, July 27, in connection with Camp 36 of Weymouth. Games, boating and sports will enliven the time. A challenge to play ball has been issued to the Weymouth Camp, and a prize will be offered to the winner. A swimming match is talked between the heavy weights, and perhaps a tub race. The committee in charge will do all in their power to make it enjoyable for all S. of V. in this vicinity and lady friends. Sons will appear in uniform.

IN THIRD PLACE.

The Bostons Severely Drubbed at the Hands of the Cincinnatis.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—Sullivan was what is popularly known as "pie" for Cincinnati, and the Reds ate him up to the crust, leaving never a mouthful. Dwyer by comparison was hardtack for the devourers of beans. In every inning but one a Bostonian reached first, but few got any farther. Cincinnati's victory places Boston in third place.

Given the Mitten.

HALIFAX, July 17.—John Curley, a well-known cabman, lies in a precarious state, suffering from poison taken deliberately on account of disappointment in love. Curley loved Miss Minnie Graves. The wedding day was fixed, and the prospective groom prepared a home for his intended. The young woman, however, changed her mind. Curley prepared two packages of "rough on rats," mixed the stuff in water and drank it. Doctors pumped considerable of the stuff from Curley's stomach.

Peace Yet Far Away.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 17.—The peace negotiations between the government and the insurgents in Rio Grande do Sul are reported to include general amnesty and the appointment of a national arbiter by the government concurrently with Castilho. Few believe that the scheme will succeed. The Castilho party demand the absolute submission of the insurgents. It is the general impression that peace will not last unless Castilho resigns.

Not Guilty.

LA PLATA, Md., July 17.—The trial of Mrs. Farrell, charged with murdering her husband, ended yesterday in acquittal. Mrs. Farrell broke down and became hysterical. Hearty applause burst out and swept spontaneously over the audience. General approval was expressed at the verdict. The trial has proved one of the most noted in the criminal annals of the state.

Fleet Martin Hogan.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 17.—Martin Hogan, the fleet fielder of the Indianapolis base ball club, made a tie of the world's record at 100 yards yesterday. He defeated Henry Buschmann, the Indiana intercollegiate champion. Hogan completed the distance in 9 4-5s., which is the record held by H. Bethune, the professional runner.

Shocked Haverhill Folks.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 17.—Henry Smith, robed only in a shirt, created a sensation yesterday by promenading up and down the main streets. He carried a stove poker in his hand and threatened to brain anybody who interfered with him. Patrolman Pearson, after a hard tussel, landed him at the station.

THE SOUTHER WILL.

The Courts to Unravel the Curious Document.

H. O. Souther, executor, has carried to court the will of John L. Souther for a legal determination of the instruction therein. It came up Tuesday before Judge Allen of the supreme court, and is thus reported by the Record:

J. L. Souther, who was a shipwright, died at Quincy, Oct. 18, 1891, at the age of 86 years, leaving four sons. He left a will dated March 23, 1879, and a codicil to it dated March 9, 1882, which have furnished the foundation for the present case.

The will contains this clause: "Secondly, the residue and remainder after all notes and accounts are paid, to be divided equally between my four sons; alway remember that each son or their representative must take as a part of their portion the notes and accounts as kept recorded and settled up by myself every six months, showing the total amount due at that date (urn over) then standing on my book, and should either of my sons dispute or in any way try to make trouble or deny their indebtedness as there recorded by me on my book, then I hereby give that son or sons only the smallest sum the law will allow of one dollar, and let his share be divided equally among the other heirs.

"To my son, J. S. Souther, one-fourth part, or his heirs. To my son, F. L. Souther, or his wife her natural life, the income of one-fourth part, at her decease to her children; principal income, etc., G. G. Souther, one-fourth part or his heirs. H. O. Souther or his heirs, one fourth part, and in case of the decease of either of my sons the income of said one-fourth part to go for the use of the wife of the said son her life, then to their children, always remembering that the indebtedness of each son must be a part of his portion of my estate, be it more or less, as recorded in my book."

In his codicil the testator provided that J. S. Souther shall not draw any portion from his estate until he pays H O. Souther all that he owes the latter.

The will and codicil taken in connection with his book referred to present a bunch of knotty legal conundrums. The estate amounts to about $7000, and book contains accounts against all the sons, save F. L. Souther, which are so peculiarly defined as to make them of doubtful meaning, whether they were intended as gifts or as loans.

It is also a legal question whether the accounts referred to are incorporated as a part of the will or not; and also whether the will is operative upon such of the items as were made subsequent to its execution. Questions of interest also arise; and if the items are to be set off against the share of each son fixed by the will, then the question arises as to what was the amount of the indebtedness due the testator.

The court took the case under consideration.

W. G. A. Pattee for the executor; G. M. Reed for J. S. Souther; W. C. Cogswell for G. G. Souther, H. R. Bailey and J. H. Appleton for F. L. Souther, and J. W. McAnarney for H. O. Souther.

Long Legal Contest Decided.

In the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, Judge Wheeler handed down a decision on the 2d of July, requiring Hermann Kutnow, and others to render an account to the City of Carlsbad and its representatives in the United States of America, for a preparation which they have sold as "Improved Effervescent Carlsbad Powder."

This suit was brought by the City of Carlsbad (Bohemia) through its representatives, the Eisner & Mendelson Co. of New York, sole agents for the products of said City for the United States of America, to restrain Kutnow Brothers from the unlawful use of the name of "CARLSBAD," for a preparation sold by them.

In this opinion Judge Wheeler says that the City of Carlsbad has the exclusive right to name the Waters obtained from the Springs at Carlsbad, as well as the Salts evaporated from these waters, as CARLSBAD WATERS OF CARLSBAD SALTS; that these Springs were well-known for their curative properties, and that the defendants should be restrained from using the name of "CARLSBAD" for any preparation other than the Genuine Carlsbad Salts.

This suit is of great importance, as it has always been contended that the name of a city could be appropriated for commercial purposes, and was not a valid trade mark, and various dealers have been using the name of "Carlsbad" or "Sprudel" for artificial and spurious imitations in direct opposition to the above decision. No doubt other suits will follow, in order to stop these infringements. The public must, therefore, be careful, and insist upon the genuine Natural Carlsbad Salts, otherwise one of these spurious and worthless imitations will be palmed off on them by unscrupulous dealers.

A NEW CHURCH BELL.

Henry H. Faxon, Esq., Makes a Presentation to Swedish Lutheran Church.

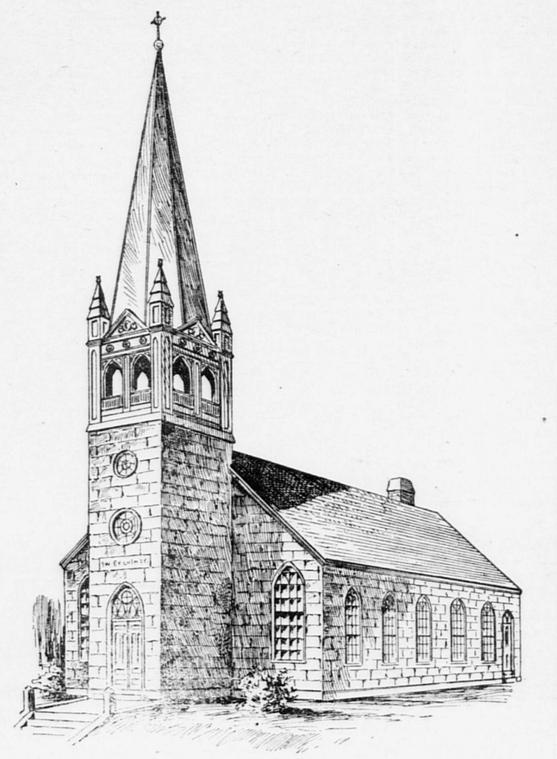

Unless all plans fail the good people of the Swedish Lutheran church on Granite street will be summoned to attend divine service next Sunday by the sweet tones of a new bell.

Some few weeks ago Mr. Henry H. Faxon being informed that the society wanted a bell, immediately came forward with his accustomed generosity and volunteered to supply the want

The order was placed with a well known Boston firm who have completed their work and the bell is now ready for shipment.

A committee from the church with Mr. Faxon will visit Boston this afternoon to inspect the bell and arrange for its shipment to Quincy. It will be placed in position in the belfry of the church Saturday afternoon at which time appropriate exercises will be held.

The bell is a large one and weighs in the vicinity of 2200 pounds and is said to be the second largest in the city.

The Industrial Arts.

In the Woman's Exhibit at the Cotton States and International Exposition, at Atlanta, Ga., a special feature will be made of woman's advancement in the industrial arts, such as modeling in clay, designing wall paper, and other branches of industrial art work. It is hoped that operative exhibits of this character will be secured for the Woman's building, from which visitors can see the practical application of all forms of work done by woman for her own support, in the highest grades of artistic effort. Every department of work in which woman is engaged, from the most practical to the most artistic, it is the intention of the Board of Woman Managers to place in the Woman's Building in the form of object lessons before the eyes of the visiting multitudes.

Another special feature in the Woman's Building will be an operative exhibit, illustrating the training of the blind in industrial work. This was made quite a feature at the Paris Exposition, and it is the purpose of the Board of Women Managers at the Cotton States and International Exposition to have such an exhibition in the Woman's Building. It will illustrate the education of the blind in the industrial arts, such as the manufacture of brushes and other small articles, and their wonderful skill in a thousand different lines of practical work.

Fame.

How sweet to mortal ears the fame!
Like music it doth touch the strings of pride,
Doth promise an imperishable name,
An aureole which ever shall abide.

And yet of all the phantoms of the mind
There's none more unsubstantial, more absurd
Than fame. Who seeks her leaves repose behind,
Content to struggle for an empty word.
—Milton Goldsmith.

Hence, when anatomists discourse
How like brute organs are to ours,
They grant, if higher powers think fit,
A bear might soon be made a wit,
And that, for anything in nature,
Pigs might squeak love odes, dogs bark satire.
—Prior.

MUSIC WON THE FIGHT

"I just was saying," said the major, "that the boys are getting into the old step again, and if we can catch a good swing from whatever band we get tomorrow we'll show the way for you old fellows in great shape."

"Yes; a great deal depends upon the band," said the colonel, reaching down to a drawer in his desk and bringing up from its depths a box of cigars. "A good band can put life into the lamest column, and I've even known a band to put life into a dead man. Fact! But here—light up. We'll make a short session of it tonight, for tomorrow calls us out early, but there's plenty of time for a cigar all round.

"It was—let me see—30 years and some odd months ago," continued the colonel. "The 'old regiment' was down in Virginia then, as I have said, and a merry time we were having of it too. There had been about two days' let up in the general unpleasantness, though, and we were beginning to wonder if the other side had emigrated. They hadn't—oh, no! At this time were all by our alone, off on a sort of side track, watching a road that came from nowhere in particular, but which was thought to be worth watching just the same. Our position was a beauty, and it was lucky for us that it was. I tell you, boys, it's about the same in war as in billiards—'position's everything.' The road we were watching ran almost exactly north and south. To the east of us, on our left, was a dense patch of woods, and on our right was another, with the added feature of a good sized swamp. In our front the ground was open for a distance of about 500 yards, and beyond that the unbroken woods began again. The clearing before us was of almost the exact shape of a fan, and we were at the point where the lines that would represent the sticks converged, so that in line of battle we stretched completely across from the woods on one flank to those on the other. Some 200 yards to our rear a road came into the one that we were guarding, from a northwesterly direction, and at the intersection of the two was a forlorn group of tumble down houses, which collectively went by the name of Ashford Four Corners, apparently for no earthly reason, for there certainly were not four corners there.

"To tell the honest truth we didn't expect we were so far to one side of active operations that we should see or hear from the enemy, so long as we were lucky enough to be allowed to remain where we were. But we had 'been in the business' too long to take any chances, and so we put in a day's work with the ax and shovel and laid out a very tidy line of breastworks across our front.

"We had a picket line in the woods beyond the clearing," he continued, "and felt pretty comfortable and safe, and so we went to work to amuse ourselves as best we could. I am free to say that most of us found our best amusement in going to sleep, for we had had a hard drive of it during the ten days previous, and it would have taken mighty lively surroundings to rouse much sporting blood in us. We had foraging parties out, of course, but what they found wouldn't have filled a haversack, and so we had to be content with what our few wagons had brought along.

"It was our second night in that position. I had been officer of the guard on the night before, and as a result I was sleeping in a very determined and businesslike way. But it didn't take any alarm clock to bring me out of my blankets when a shot came cracking out from the woods where our pickets were, and when another sounded, and then two or three together, I began routing out my men mighty promptly. Well, our drummers thumped out the long roll, and the regiment fell in, and presently back came the pickets with the report that the enemy was in our front and, so far as they could judge, in force. The night was pretty well used up then, and the first hazy light of the new day was just coming. But there wasn't enough of it to show what was going on across the clearing, and so we threw out skirmishers into the woods on either side of us and waited for the other fellow to show his hand. Apparently he, too, was a bit doubtful as to what might be in his front, and so as we stood behind our breastworks a half hour went by without our being able to detect a movement on his part. But all this time the light had been growing brighter, and just as we could begin to make out objects a skirmish line came out of the opposite woods and began to make its way slowly across the open. On they came for perhaps a couple of hundred yards, and then, seeing clearly for the first time our works, they halted, not seeming to have any great ambition to obtain a closer view, for you must know that by this time both the Confederates and we had learned that it was well to think twice about intruding upon a force well intrenched. However, these fellows didn't get much time to consider the situation, for we gave them a volley that left here and there a vacancy in their line, and back they went to the cover of the woods, firing as they fell back. But this little exchange of compliments was only a curtain raiser to the real performance, for in about ten minutes a regiment came out into the open, changed direction to the right and formed line of battle. Another followed it and formed line to the left of the road, and a battery came into position in the interval between them and unlimbered. We didn't care particularly for the two regiments, but the battery looked ominous, and the conviction was forced upon us that Ashford Four Corners was destined to become Confederate territory in mighty short order unless a heavier force than we could muster were placed between it and the gray line in front of us.

"But old Colonel Burleigh didn't seem to be much worried at the outlook, though he did seem a trifle in earnest when he turned to the quartermaster and said: 'Woodside, take my horse and get back to the brigade as fast as the Lord will let you! Tell the general that we've got a brigade to handle, and nobody knows how much besides. Tell him I'll try to amuse 'em all for an hour until he can get up, and while you're riding down, Woodside, you may as well ride like h—l!' He had no more than got the words out of his mouth when the battery opened on us, and nobody saw Woodside start on his errand, for we had plenty to attract our attention in front. Of course we did our best to reply to the civilities of our visitors, for, though 500 yards was good long range for the muskets of those days, we yet hated to be idle. But it was unequal work, and we felt the need of guns badly. Why, even a single section would have been a godsend to us then.

"I can't go much into the details of the next hour or half hour. How long it was, in fact, I shall never know, for in a fight of that sort one has no eye for anything except what immediately concerns him. But I remember, as if it had happened but yesterday, how I turned when a shell burst just over us, and I saw Whiting, my captain, throw up his hands, stagger and pitch forward upon his face. I was at his side in an instant, but there was nothing that I could do to help him, for even before I got to him he was covered with blood from a wound that seemed to have crushed in the whole top of his skull. Poor old Whiting! I turned him gently over upon his back, gave just one look at him and then went back to my company, for I was the only officer left, our second lieutenant being then in hospital. Meanwhile there had come a short pause in the firing, and we felt that the next few minutes would bring the rebs down upon us in a charge. It was just at this moment that we heard the notes of a band playing in our rear, and presently the breeze brought them to us more clearly, and we recognized the tune that they were playing. It was our own band, and the colonel had ordered it to march from the rear up to our line playing for all it was worth in the hope that the Confederates might be led into the belief that we were being re-enforced. I cannot tell you, boys, the effect of that music upon our wornout line. We were all New Englanders—all Massachusetts men—and although some of us were a godless and careless lot, yet most of us, I think, had been brought up in the good old way and knew, if only by ear, the old 'psalm tunes' of our boyhood. So perhaps you may imagine what we felt when the band came toward us playing the Portuguese hymn—that grand old hymn beginning:

"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith on his excellent word.

"Boys, I never heard a march that sounded more like a veritable paean of victory than that glorious hymn, and in the midst of the smoke and dust and blood of the fight it brought us both hope and courage and gave us the feeling that no odds could be strong enough to crush us. Colonel Burleigh afterward told us that he had intended to give the word to the regiment to set up a cheer when the band got well up to the line. He never got a chance, though, for that order—for as the notes of the band came swelling on the wind the regiment rose as one man and shouted and yelled and yelled again until the woods echoed with the cheering. And then an inspiration came to our color sergeant, a giant of a fellow, with a voice like a trumpet, and springing upon the breastworks, holding high the faded and tattered colors, he broke into the second verse of the hymn:

"Fear not; I am with thee; oh, be not dismayed!
I, I am thy God and will still give thee aid.
I'll strengthen thee, help thee and cause thee to stand,
Upheld by my righteous omnipotent hand.

"It was magnificent. A hundred strong voices joined in with his, and up and down the line went the electric thrill that comes to men but few times in a lifetime.

"I've put a long preface before the story I started to tell, but the story itself will take but few words. I had joined in the hymn with the others and was singing away with the best of them when I heard at my side a weak voice trying to follow the air, and looking down I was confounded at seeing poor Whiting, whom I had thought instantly killed, leaning on his elbow and struggling along on the chorus. He was a ghastly sight, for his face was so covered with blood that his features were almost unrecognizable, and his hair was matted with blood and dirt around the gaping wound in his head. As I knelt beside him he sank back with a groan, but he kept muttering to himself, and now and again I caught a word or a sentence that showed him to be wandering in his mind, 'It's such—such a fair night, little girl.' I heard him murmur: 'Church was over early tonight, Mary. We'll go the long way round home. Your mother never will mind.'

"Poor old Whiting! I knew how hard it had been for him to leave the sweetheart on whom his thoughts were running then, and I remember wondering vaguely if it would be my duty to break to her the news of that day's work. Ah, boys, war is cruel, and yet this case was but one among many, many thousand. But, after all, this case did not turn out so badly, for when the 'old regiment' went through Washington in the grand review Whiting rode with us, and on his straps the silver bars had given place to the gold leaves of a major. And, by the way, I was best man at his wedding soon after we were mustered out. You see, the flying splinter of the shell that bowled him over had torn a frightful gash in his scalp, but the skull was not fractured, and so after a week or two in hospital he came back to us as well and strong and nearly as handsome as ever. And that, Charley," turning to the adjutant, "is the case in which I knew a band to call to life a dead man."

"But the fight, colonel—how did the fight come out?" asked the major.

"Oh, I forgot about that," said the colonel, pausing to relight his cigar. "Well, I suppose the band is entitled to the credit of stopping the fight, too, for the Confederates really were fooled by the music and the yelling, and while they were stopping to figure out just what it all might mean Woodside came galloping back with a couple of troops of cavalry and Morgan's battery, bringing word that the rest of the brigade would be up as fast as feet could carry them. But we didn't need them after all, for the other side made a masterly retrograde movement as soon as Morgan's guns were put in evidence. We learned afterward that we had been fighting a single brigade, but none of us ever complained because their force was no larger."—Boston Herald.

Glory Guards Where Valor Sleeps.

Our heroes—a mighty army of them—died that this nation might live. But the cause for which they perished triumphed, and triumphed gloriously. It is, then, not too much that on each returning Memorial day this nation should, in its onward march, halt at the graves of its defenders. Nor is it too much—nay, it is small recompense—that we strew these mounds with garlands and roses and immortelles. In one sense we cannot honor them. No words of ours can pierce the portals of the grave, but we can honor the cause they espoused. We can teach our children to guard and protect the priceless inheritance of liberty, which the suffering and valor of these heroes bequeathed to us.

Mary Smith.

Away down east, where I was reared, among my Yankee kith
There used to live a pretty girl whose name was Mary Smith,
And though it's many years since I last saw that pretty girl,
And though I feel I'm sadly worn by western strife and whirl,
Still oftentimes I think about the old familiar place,
Which oftentimes seemed the brighter for Miss Mary's pretty face,
And in my heart I feel once more revivified the glow
I used to feel in those old times when I was Mary's beau.

On Friday night I'd drop around to make my weekly call,
And though I came to visit her I'd have to see 'em all.
With Mary's mother sitting here, and Mary's father there,
The conversation never flagged, so far as I'm aware.
Sometimes I'd hold her worsted, sometimes we'd play at games,
Sometimes dissect the apples which we named each other's names.
Oh, how I loathed the shrill toned clock that told me when to go!
'Twas ten o'clock at half past eight when I was Mary's beau.

And Mary, should these lines of mine seek out your hiding place,
God grant they bring the old sweet smile back to your pretty face;
God grant they bring you thoughts of me, not as I am today,
With faltering step and dimming eyes and aspect grimly gray,
But thoughts that picture me as fair and full of life and glee
As we were in the olden time—as you shall always be.
Think of me ever, Mary, as the boy you used to know
When time was fleet and life was sweet and I was Mary's beau.

—Eugene Field.

WAS NOT UNEXPECTED

Stambuloff Was Aware of a Plot to Assassinate Him.

Ex-Premier the Victim of Russian Intrigue.

Prince Ferdinand Now Placed In a Most Uncomfortable Position.

SOFIA, July 17.—The excitement into which the city was thrown by the attempted murder of ex-Premier Stambuloff has not subsided, but, on the contrary, has become intensified. Several arrests have been made in connection with the outrage. The condition of M. Stambuloff is such as to give slight hopes that he may yet recover from his wounds.

M. Stambuloff, late yesterday, made a statement to the public prosecutor, who has ordered the arrest of Tufektchieff, who was formally charged with the murder of M. Beltcheff, the Bulgarian minister of finance, who was assassinated in March, 1891, while in company with M. Stambuloff. Mme. Beltcheff, it will be recalled, was recently induced to believe that M. Stambuloff was the murderer of her husband, and a warrant was issued, but never executed, for his arrest.

A man who witnessed M. Stambuloff's coachman pursue the assassin, says he saw a policeman strike the coachman because of the latter's refusal to give up the revolver with which he was chasing the criminals, and to whom the policemen were not paying any attention.

The Kolnische Zeitung (Berlin) calls attention to an interview which it had with M. Stambuloff some months ago. M. Stambuloff then had forebodings of his fate, and said that a band had been formed at Uetschbunar, a suburb of Sofia, which practiced the use of firearms. The government said M. Stambuloff was aware of their existence, but winked at it. Among the band were the murderers of M. Beltcheff, former minister of finance of Bulgaria, who was assassinated in 1891. "They have taken an oath to assassinate me," said M. Stambuloff in the interview, "and to avenge Major Panitza (executed for treason in 1890 at the instance of M. Stambuloff). Prince Ferdinand is included in the list of impending victims."

A Perilous Situation.

Stambuloff represented the most ardent patriotism and national ambition of his people. He was the heart of the opposition to Russian influence, and when he retired from the premiership a short time ago, that act was felt to be the signal of a great change. Other evidences of that change have not been wanting. Prince Ferdinand seems to have decided that the best course for Bulgaria was to accept the Russian alliance, and it is for that that he has left his kingdom.

Stambuloff was a strong statesman in a position which circumstances rendered untenable. Bulgaria needed such a man, but that man should have been its prince. Ferdinand would have been abolished long ago but for Stambuloff, and his dismissal meant the subservience and final subjection of the little country which made so brave a fight under Alexander of Battenberg for its autonomy, and gained it. The foremost man in Bulgaria for the last 10 or 12 years, Stambuloff was the latest victim of Russian intrigue.

Prince Ferdinand is apparently between two fires. What he especially desires is the formal recognition of his princely status by Russia. He has received a deputation of Macedonians, and though he lectured the members of it, the fact that they were received at all has been freely commented on. Further, Prince Ferdinand's unexplained journeys and the ambiguous language of the Bulgarian government papers have given rise to the belief that the movement in Macedonia is being encouraged by the prince and his ministers.

Courting the Czar's Friendship.

On the other hand, as is made evident, Prince Ferdinand is earnestly bent upon standing well with the czar, in the hope, of course, of obtaining from that august monarch the official recognition of his rulership, which Russia, and in consequence the rest of Europe, has so long denied.

The inauguration of this distinctly Russophile policy dates from the fall of Stambuloff, last year. Stambuloff fell because he put his faith in the triple alliance, but was unable to obtain from it a recognition of Prince Ferdinand's international status. Hence, since Stambuloff and the triple alliance, whose steadfast supporter he had always been, could not obtain for the prince what he desired, Stambuloff was crushed, and a reapproachement was attempted with Russia.

The difficulty of Prince Ferdinand's position lies in the fact that the sentiment of the bulk of his subjects is decidedly anti-Russian. Since Stambuloff's overthrow there has been an increase of the influence of the Russophile party in the principality, but the distrust with which Russia has come to be regarded in Bulgaria is widespread, as well as deep.

These two circumstances—Prince Ferdinand's desire to please Russia in order to obtain a recognition of his rulership from the czar, and the thorough unpopularity of Russia in the principality—combine to render the situation in Bulgaria both complicated and dangerous.

The Defender's Rival.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The Vigilant reached Erie basin at 5 o'clock last evening. The Defender's only competitor for the honor of representing the United States in the international cup races will be drydocked. Captain Barr thinks the Vigilant has a royal chance to defeat the Defender at the trials.

Counterfeiters Bagged.

NEW YORK, July 17.—A counterfeiter's den at 95 Fourth avenue was raided last night by several deputy marshals. Three men were molding coin. Two of them, Bill Jones and Harry Kitchen, were captured. The third man, Patrick Carr, broke both his legs in an attempt to escape.

More Troops Needed.

RICHMOND, July 17.—Company D of the First regiment left here for Lunenburg Courthouse in response to a telegram that there might be trouble, and the force of two companies was not sufficient to protect the four alleged murderers of Mrs. Pollard.

Must Face the Music.

LONDON, July 17.—An extradition order was granted yesterday in the case of Percy B. Taylor of New York, a bookkeeper, who is wanted by the United States authorities on the charge of forgery.

CLAIMS INNOCENCE.

What Holmes Has to Say Regarding the Murder of the Pitzels.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—H. H. Holmes, the insurance swindler, accused of having murdered the Pitzel children, whose bodies were found in Toronto, denies having any knowledge whatever of the crime. It is probable, however, that he will be taken to Canada, there to answer the charge of murder, as the authorities here have given up the hope of fixing upon him the responsibility for the death of the man found in the Callowhill street house, this city, and who it was supposed was the father of the Pitzel children.

MRS. PITZEL.
(Mother of the murdered children.)

Holmes asserts that in October of last year he was in Toronto, where he had left the Pitzel children in charge of Minnie Williams, the girl he met in Chicago. He asserts that he knew nothing of what became of them after that time, and he always believed the Williams girl had taken them to Europe. He also insists that he knew nothing of the boy, and that he had nothing to do with the death of Pitzel.

Superintendent of Police Linden declares that there is no possibility of convicting Holmes of the murder of the man found in the Callowhill street house, and says the authorities here will not oppose his extradition to Canada.

Harcourt In It.

LONDON, July 17.—Sir William V. Harcourt has accepted the offer of C. N. Warmington, who was nominated to stand for election in West Monmouthshire, to retire in his favor. There was to be no opposition to the candidacy of Warmington and Harcourt will be nominated in his place. The result of the general elections, therefore, is as follows: Conservatives, 166; Unionists, 23. Total, 189. Liberals, 29; Parnellites, 4; McCarthyites, 12; Labor, 1. Total, 46. The net Unionist gains up to this hour are 20 seats.

Death of Dr. Brooks.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Rev. Dr. Arthur Brooks, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, of New York, died on board the German Lloyd steamer Fulda on July 10 at 6 a. m. The body was brought to this port. Dr. Brooks came on board the Fulda at Southampton, dangerously sick and sank rapidly until he passed away. The cause of death was a tumor of the bowels.

Band of Negro Murderers.

HAVANA, July 17.—At Cayajahos, near Artemisa, a family comprising a man, three women and two girls were attacked by five negroes and brutally murdered, their bodies being frightfully gashed. Two other persons were also seriously wounded by the negroes, who were pursued and captured by the civil guard.

Won't Permit Work.

ISHPEMING, Mich., July 17.—The strike situation in Ishpeming and Negaunee gradually grows more serious. All work at the mines has ceased. About 25,000 men from both cities held a mass meeting yesterday. They decided to hold out and to molest all who dare to resume work.

The A. P. A.'s Decision.

CHICAGO, July 17.—The executive board of the American Protective association, which has been in session for two days, adjourned yesterday. A resolution was adopted declaring against any ex-Romanist lecturing under the auspices of the order.

Cuban Warfare.

HAVANA, July 17.—Near the plantation of Sofia, in Manzanillo, a column of La Coambre was fired upon by a small band of insurgents, who lost two dead and two prisoners. The insurgents have burned the church in Uljamal, near Baracoa.

Will Open Up Tomorrow.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 17.—The Hamilton mills' management will open the mill gates tomorrow and it is expected the spinners will return to work. One-fifth of the total number of looms in the mill are running.

Not Dying.

ALBANY, July 17.—The report that Richard Golden ("Old Jed Prouty") is dying in this city is untrue. He has recovered and is now with relatives in Troy.

Peruvian Spite.

LIMA, July 17.—The feeling against Bolivia here is very strong. A crowd stoned the escutcheon of the Bolivian legation last evening.

AMESBURY STRIKE OFF

Strikers Must Take Chances of Obtaining Old Looms.

Had No Funds Left to Continue the Battle.

Agent Quinn Claims That Hamilton Mills Employes Get Good Wages.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 18.—The strike among the 375 weavers at the Hamilton mills has been virtually declared off. A meeting was held in Bahan hall, yesterday, and by a vote of 48 to 46 the weavers decided to return to work if Agent Quinn would give them their own looms.

A committee of two was appointed to wait upon Agent Quinn to see if he would agree to this proposition.

He referred the committee to Overseer Yates, but the latter refused to consider the question, stating that Mr. Quinn must decide the issue raised. Mr. Quinn replied that a third of the 1710 looms were now running, operated by men who have returned since the strike was declared, and that under no consideration would he discharge them. The strikers could return, but would have to run their chances of obtaining looms which they had previously left.

It is probable that the strikers will all return by next Monday morning. Another meeting was held to receive the report of this special committee. The situation was then discussed by the leading strikers, but the prevailing opinion was that they had better return to work and obtain what they could, as their Funds Have Already Given Out.

By another vote the help decided to do so, the same number holding out against the majority.

Agent Quinn said he had about 50 men in the weaving department already, and that there are 408 looms running. The men have been out now four weeks and are on their fifth. They have not accomplished anything, and their families have had to suffer for it. The weavers have been misinformed from the start, but I convinced President Whitehead that the Hamilton mills were paying their help as much wages as any other mill in Massachusetts.

"I had Mr. Whitehead go through the mill and investigate matters himself, and not take my work for it. We manufacture here mostly 64 print and some sheeting, running five factories the year round. Mr. Whitehead informed me that he was satisfied that we were doing as well by the men, and better, than most companies. When we are rushed, we employ 750 in all departments, and we give them steady employment.

"Now, to show you how our mill compares with other places, here is a table which will back up our statement:

Amesbury	19½ cents for	48	yards
Fall River	18 "	47	"
Lowell	19½ "	53½	"
Lawrence	20 "	58¾	"
Suncook	19 "	51	"

"This table is absolutely correct and tells the whole story."

EARLY IN THE FIELD.

Massachusetts Populists Frame Platform and Ticket For Fall Election.

BOSTON, July 18.—The People's party of Massachusetts held its first state delegate convention yesterday in Arcade hall. Two hundred and sixty enthusiastic Populists were in attendance, and the following state ticket was nominated:

For governor, E. G. Brown, Brockton; lieutenant governor, Thomas C. Buddington, Springfield; treasurer and receiver general, M. W. Moran; secretary of state, Charles D. Nash, Whitman; auditor, Andrew H. Paton, Danvers; attorney general, B. O. Winn, Springfield.

Much of the afternoon session was devoted to framing resolutions. The committee finally reported a platform, the introduction of which attacks both old parties. The platform reaffirms the Omaha platform of the People's party; asks for an unvariable silver dollar, issued by the government alone; demands the free coinage of silver, 16 to 1, without waiting for any other nation; demands a published record of legislative debates; urges the adoption of the initiative referendum; opposes the biennial election law; promises support to all reasonable demands of labor, and favors public ownership of monopolies.

A Peculiar Case.

PROVIDENCE, July 18.—Henry Baxter of this city yesterday applied to Medical Examiner Palmer for permission to exhume the body of Mrs. Alexander Baxter, his brother's wife. Mr. Baxter regards the death of Mrs. Baxter as somewhat suspicious. Since Mrs. Baxter's death the insurance on her life has been paid over. She was 70 years of age, and Alexander Baxter, who is only 26 years old, was her third husband. She possessed money and property valued at least at $20,000, and in her will left her husband, his brother Henry and a 15-year-old adopted daughter each one-third. The will provided that in the event of the girl's death, her share was to revert to her adopted father. On June 13 Mrs. Baxter fainted on learning of a family difficulty and died the next day. The adopted daughter is now very sick. An investigation will at once be held.

Will Be Married, After All.

PEABODY, Mass., July 18.—William Gove, a Lynn shoemaker, who mysteriously disappeared June 29, two nights before his contemplated marriage to Miss Barbara Duke of Lynn, had a conference with Miss Duke here yesterday afternoon. Gove claims that after drawing his wages on the last Saturday in June he remembered nothing until he found himself in Cincinnati on July 9. He saw what a sensation his sudden departure had caused by reading a Boston paper, and determined to come to Massachusetts again. He went to Lynnfield last Thursday. He then went to Salem, and finally came here, where a conference between him and Miss Duke was arranged. Miss Duke decided not to allow William's unexpected visit to Ohio interfere with the wedding.

Endeavor Pilgrimages.

BOSTON, July 18.—The roads and streets of Concord and Lexington were thronged with Christian Endeavor pilgrims yesterday, but there were not as many as Concord people had expected. Lexington, on the contrary, was astonished at the size of the crowd. The local society had expected about 1500, but when train load after train load was emptied at the depot, and the long black line began the march to the center of the town, the local guides had more than they could attend to. Concord people, on the other hand, expected from 10,000 to 20,000 people. As it was, there were about 3000 pilgrims scattered over the town during the afternoon.

Off For New York.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—The flag of the New York Yacht club was raised over the Defender yesterday, and a large American yacht ensign was displayed at the stern, the syndicate having taken formal possession of the boat. The Defender is headed for New York, she having been taken in tow last evening, with the Colonia, by the ocean tug Walter A. Luckenback. It is announced here that the Defender will race off Sandy Hook with the Vigilant.

May Start Up Anew.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 18.—The Dime Savings bank of this city has decided to reorganize. When the First National bank failed some time ago, the Dime Savings bank was so affected that a 90 days' withdrawal notice from depositors was demanded, and a scale of 16 per cent was announced. The bank is at present in the hands of the state bank commissioners, and its continuance depends upon the strength of the reorganization.

Arrested and Forced to Wed.

HARTFORD, July 18.—Martha Glenn, 16 years old, and George Drake, 28, who eloped from Glastonbury Saturday, were found in the American hotel, this city, yesterday, where they had registered as man and wife. The girl is weak-minded. Drake and the girl were arrested and afterward released on his promise to marry her before sundown. The girl's brother consented.

A Foolish Strike.

WESTBORO, Mass., July 18.—The foundry employes of the American Bedstead company have gone out on strike because one of the men working in the foundry has two sons working in another shop where there is trouble. The foundry started up today with new help. The men who went out were having steady work and good pay.

Water Was Too Shallow.

CONCORD, Mass., July 18.—Owen Partland, 29 years old, of Boston, was killed in Lake Walden yesterday afternoon by concussion of the brain, sustained by diving in too shallow water. The man was attending a picnic and was partially intoxicated.

Wires Were Crossed.

NORWALK, Conn., July 18.—Katie Valentine, aged 16 years, was killed by a live electric wire while on her way to work yesterday. The line was a private wire and was crossed with an electric light wire. Yesterday was the girl's birthday.

Editor Seeks Damages.

PROVIDENCE, July 18.—Editor Lingane, who was thrashed by William C. Swinburn of Newport, has brought suit against his assailant for $5000 damages. Patrick W. Baxter furnished surety for bail.

To the Olinda's Rescue.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 18.—A tug from Brooklyn arrived here yesterday and chartered a lighter for the purpose of floating the wrecked British steamer Olinda, stranded near New London, Conn.

Not Mushrooms.

WESTBORO, Mass., July 18.—Several inmates of Wayside cottage at the Lyman school for boys were poisoned by eating what were supposed to be edible mushrooms. All are now doing well.

Hoe and Fork Factory Burned.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., July 18.—The hoe and fork manufactory on Moose river was destroyed by fire at midnight. Forty men were thrown out of employment. The loss is estimated at $30,000.

An Increase Aug. 1.

FITCHBURG, Mass., July 18.—The promise of an increase in wages Aug. 1 was sufficient incentive for 100 strikers at the Orswell cotton yarn mill to return to work yesterday.

Ran Into a Wagon.

MILTON, Mass., July 18.—Miss Florence Bates, while riding a bicycle yesterday afternoon, ran into a wagon and was fatally injured. Her skull was fractured in two places.

A Visit From Olney.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 18.—President Cleveland yesterday received an early call from Secretary of State Olney.

ILL-FATED ERICSSON.

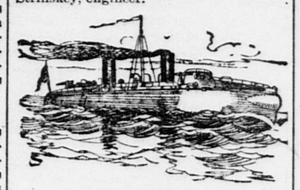

Another Accident Aboard the Western Built Torpedo Boat.

Five Men Were Almost Boiled to Death.

Further Trials Delayed by the Unfortunate Bursting of a Steam Pipe.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 18.—The worst accident that has as yet happened to the torpedo boat Ericsson occurred yesterday afternoon. She was out on the Sound for a run, when a steam pipe burst, shockingly scalding five men. The men were all connected with the engineer's department of the Ericsson.

Their names are: Austin Williams, junior engineer; David Cody, junior engineer; Joseph Hamilton, junior engineer; William Merwin, machinist; Jacob Strinskey, engineer.

THE ERICSSON.

The accident occurred while the Ericsson was between Bartlett's reef and Cornfield. The injured men were brought to the marine hospital in this city by the lighthouse steamer Cactus and their wounds were dressed. They were then transferred to the Bacon House, where they are under the care of physicians.

The torpedo boat left the harbor at about 9 o'clock in the morning for a speed run down the Sound. It was not intended to cover the course laid out for the official trial, but only to run two miles under trial conditions. On board, in addition to the crew, were Lieutenant Usher of the United States navy, and Assistant Superintendent Hopkins of the Iowa iron works, at which the Ericsson was built, who is here in charge of the vessel.

The Ericsson was proceeding under favorable conditions and gradually increasing her power until the speed should reach full trial conditions. She had reached the rate of 28 knots, and was being pushed toward the 29-knot speed, when an explosion occurred which shook the entire craft. A volume of steam which began pouring out of the hatchway, and the immediate stopping of the starboard engine, indicated where the trouble was.

Mingled with the sound of escaping steam came the cries of men, and five of them pushed their way blindly out of the engine room and fell writhing in agony upon the deck. The high pressure had burst one of the immense hot water pipes. The men's bodies from the waist up

Were Terribly Scalded.

Lighthouse tender Cactus happened to be near at hand, and she immediately came alongside, and the men were placed on board. The Cactus made all haste to this city, and the injured men were soon in charge of doctors.

Neither of the men could give any information as to how the accident occurred. All they know is that there was a loud explosion and they were suddenly enveloped in a cloud of scalding steam and a deluge of boiling water, which nearly burned them to death before they could reach the open air.

Ericsson, with one engine disabled, returned to this harbor. No examination of the engine room could be made to determine the cause of the accident, as the escaping steam had heated everything to a boiling point, so that no one could enter the room to make a close examination of the machinery. Superintendent Hopkins said last evening that he believed the accident occurred to the low pressure cylinder of the starboard engine, by which the cylinder-head was broken out and smashing what is known as the by-pass pipe.

It is said the Ericsson's speed yesterday was greater than she has yet made, but the officials decline to give out the actual figures. Her contract calls for 24 knots, but she has, it is claimed, made close to 30 in preliminary runs.

Until an examination is made, it will not be known how much delay the accident will cause in the further trials of the vessel.

Decision Reserved.

HARTFORD, July 18.—Charles Miner, who attempted suicide, and severely wounded his wife, June 30, was tried in the police court yesterday. Mrs. Miner testified that her husband had assaulted her on three previous occasions. He cut his throat with a razor, and when she tried to take the weapon from him cut her in four places. He then accused her of cutting him. Judge Bill reserved his decision.

Ready to Fight.

OMAHA, July 18.—A committee representing settlers evicted on the reservation are in Omaha purchasing 250 rifles, with 100 loaded shells for each. They will be taken to Pender, and Captain Beck and his armed Indians will be surrounded and captured, even if blood flows.

Revolution Spreading.

SOFIA, July 18.—Newspapers here have alarming news from Macedonia. It is asserted that the revolution is spreading and that two towns and three villages have been burned by insurgent bands, who are successfully operating in three districts.

Murdered by Tramps.

BUCYRUS, O., July 18.—Harry Bowden, an operator for the Pennsylvania Railroad company in the tower between here and Upper Sandusky, was murdered and robbed by tramps. His body was found on the track.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

In 1880 Woburn, situated about the same distance from Boston as Quincy, had a larger population than this city; that of Woburn being 10,931, and that of Quincy 10,570. In 1885 the census showed Quincy to have a lead of 395 and in 1888 both towns became cities, and were termed the twin cities. Notice the progress since; one would hardly recognize Woburn and Quincy as twins. In 1890 the population of the former was 13,499 while our city had 16,723. The census figures of Woburn for 1895 are just out and make a weak showing with those of Quincy for 1891, those of this year not being known:

	Woburn 1895.	Quincy 1894.
Valuation,	$9,670,944	$16,817,455
Rate of taxation,	$17.80	$17.60
Tax levy,	$177,457.92	$307,827.20
Polls,	3,250	5 920
New houses,	57	150

The census of 1895 will show a more marked difference in population, that of Quincy being nearly, if not fully, fifty per cent. larger than Woburn.

THE LAW limiting the debt of cities and also the tax rate was framed to check extravagance in the large cities of the state, but it was made applicable to the small cities as well. A special commission of the city of Boston has this week made an exhaustive report of the finances of that city. The commission finds "that the limit of indebtedness has practically failed." In 1885 the net debt of Boston was less than in 1875, viz: $24,596,579.91. The commissioners now find it to be over $43,000,000, or a little less than five per cent., although there is a law on the statute books apparently limiting the net debt to two per cent. They find the limited tax rate to be inadequate, and after considering a proposition to raise it, they come to the conclusion it would be merely transitory and finally recommend:

First—An amendment to the constitution of Massachusetts limiting the amount of debt; and,

Second—When such an amendment shall have been adopted, that the law limiting the rate of taxation shall be repealed.

The report says: "The conditions of Boston lead us to recommend an amendment which should provide a limit of debt, for purposes other than water, of 5 per cent. of the average valuation of the five preceding years, with a reduction annually of one-quarter of one per cent. until the limit or 2½ per cent. is reached. This limit is one-half of one per cent. higher than the limit adopted in the legislation of 1885, and we believe at the end of ten years will be sufficient to provide for all legitimate improvements for which money should be borrowed.

"We believe that this limit would be applicable to all other cities and towns, and in view of the fact that it takes two years to pass an amendment to the constitution, if our views commend themselves, we urge immediate agitation so as to present the question at the next session of the Legislature."

The law limiting the tax rate and the debt have been applicable to Quincy, although entirely unnecessary, and have worked great injury to the city. Quincy has weathered the worse of it, however, and is now willing that the law should stand. In 1888, the last year of the town the tax levy was about $180,000 and the tax rate $16.70. In passing to the city government in 1889 it was possible under the new law to raise but $117,000 for current city expenses, and the tax rate dropped to $10.80. All enjoyed the low taxes that year but a debt was inevitable, and it grew during the next few years for the same reason.

But it had another effect, to jump up the valuation; and now that the valuation is high we have no trouble in raising under the limit sufficient for current expenses. But now we have a higher State and County tax, a large interest account and a good-sized debt, but still within the limit of the law, two and one-half per cent.

This limit should be maintained and not increased to five as the Boston commission suggests. The State in the future should be careful not to work injury to small cities in fruitless attempts to check the large cities.

—The Harbor and Land commissioners have asked for proposals for removing the wrecked steamship Venetian in Boston harbor.

—Robert L. Gray of Walpole, at present senator from Second Norfolk district, is a candidate for councillor in this district.

QUINCY ENDEAVOR.

A Memorable Meeting Held Last Evening.

The Union Enjoys a Rare Privilege.

Speakers from England Scotland and Prince Edwards Island.

Last evening the First Presbyterian church was well filled with Christian Endeavorers and others, for an "Echoes of the Convention" rally,

"Onward Christian Soldiers," and "The Banner of the Cross" were the opening hymns of praise. The Psalm of Gratitude was read by the President of the Union, the pastor of the church, and the Rev. C. W. Wilder, of the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church, offered prayer. The stirring words and strains of "True Hearted, Whole Hearted" by the congregation were followed by the baritone solo, "Calvary," Paul Rodney, sung by Mr. Walter Lindberg, a student of the Metropolitan College of Music, New York.

Then the Rev. James Mursell, pastor of a large Baptist church in Derby, England, was presented, and gave a masterful address.

His theme was the practical living of the Christian Endeavor Principles,

and the almost inestimable benefit to the church of the Christian Endeavor society. When he was converted, there was no such society. With a few others he undertook work somewhat along its lines, but lacking the unity of purpose and development of plans of the great society. When he began to preach, he lacked the facility of speech, which every faithful Endeavorer may acquire in that training-school, the prayer meeting; and it was a long, hard task for him to fight free from his manuscript. In the private exercises of the Christian life, he thought the early morning hour the best time for prayer, and advised early rising for that the specific purpose. At night, wearied after day, instead of a prayer kneeling at one's bedside, he thought it helpful to walk up and down in one's room or in the garden, eyes open, but thoughts turned inward in communion with God.

Before the introduction of the Rev. James Pollock, of the United Presbyterian church, who has a congregation of 850 members in Glasgow, Scotland, the beautiful hymn, "Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love," was sung as a duet by Miss Mamie A. Gardner and the Rev. Robert Westly Peach, the congregation joining in the chorus.

Mr. Pollock gave an address charged with clear thought, bright illustrations, and High Purpose.

In order to have health, we must breath vigorously air that is pure and breath constantly. "Pray without ceasing," said the Apostle; and prayer is the breathing of the Spirit. To the same end we must thoroughly assimilate enough nutritious food. The Word of God is the food for our souls. Daily we must "read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" a goodly portion of the divine message. But as praying is not merely asking, but breathing in communion with God, so reading the Bible is not of itself, feeding on the Word. The message must be studied and put into practice. So finally, in order to have physical breath, we must have rational, habitual physical exercise, and in order to have spiritual health we must exercise the gifts of grace in a godly life.

This was, in brief, the Rev. Mr. Pollock's message, but not expressed in the crisp and telling diction which he commands.

As he took his seat, the audience rose and gave the two speakers an enthusiastic

Chautauqua Salute.

Immediately the Rev. E. N. Hardy, pastor of the Centre Congregational church, came forward, at the call of the chairman, and made an earnest appeal, in a few sentences, that the Endeaverors who had been on the Mount of Transfiguration in the great Convention should not come down to dream or idle, but to cast out devils in the Master's name.

The Rev. J. Herbert Yeoman, of the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, being called for, responded with a telling speech for good citizenship.

The hour being too late for further addresses, the Rev. Charles J. Keevil, pastor of the Berean Primitive Methodist church of Lowell, was introduced, and helped effectively in leading the enthusiastic closing service of song, in which the congregation standing sang in close succession "Scatter Sunshine," "Send the Light," "Sunshine in My Soul," and "O Glad and Glorious Gospel."

The Rev. William McLeod, Presbyterian, of Prince Edward's Island, pronounced the Apostolic benediction, the Endeavorers joined in the Mizpah benediction, and at 9:45 closed a service unique in the experience of Quincy Endeavorers.

IN FIFTH PLACE.

Bostons Sustained Two Defeats at the Hands of the Cincinnatis.

CINCINNATI, July 17.—The Bostons lost both games here and dropped into fifth place. The Bostons did not bunch their hits, but had them scattered all along the route a great deal farther apart than railroad ties. Both Foreman and Rhines pitched ball that was up to championship form, and they not only had excellent control, but winning support.

Three Killed and Many Injured.

MONUMENT, Colo., July 18.—For a month a gang has been at work building a dangerous bridge on the Santa Fe over a gulch called Dirty Woman's gulch. A passenger train, heavily loaded, passed over the bridge yesterday, and the vibrations caused by the train had not ceased when a freight train of 24 cars followed. The trestle gave way and the whole train fell through, grinding the cars into kindling wood. Mrs. Albert Cooper, J. C. Childrea and an unknown tramp were killed and over a dozen persons seriously injured.

Dispute of Forty Years Settled.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 18.—Superior Judge Ogden has rendered a decision in favor of the city in its case against the Water Front company, otherwise the Southern Pacific railroad, involving the title to 11 miles of water front, valued at many millions of dollars, which had been practically in dispute for 40 years. The court holds that the water company had no title to the land, but that the city cannot take possession of the wharves built by the railroad company without paying for the improvements.

Royal Family Attacked.

BRUSSELS, July 18.—A scene of great excitment occurred in the chamber of deputies yesterday, when M. Demblen (Socialits), in a speech, declared that although the Belgian royal family had come to Belgium as poor as rats, they had become enormously rich from the sweat of the poor of the country. A prolonged uproar ensued, and the president ordered M. Demblen to withdraw his words, but the deputy refused to retract.

Nebraska Democrats Meet.

OMAHA, July 18.—The regular Democratic state central committee met yesterday and set the date and place for the state convention to meet, Aug. 22 at Omaha being agreed upon. They invited Secretary Carlisle to address the convention. This is the free silver wing of the party, however, and Carlisle has already accepted the invitation of the section which bolted the fusion ticket last fall to speak at their convention Sept. 5.

Trouble With His Eyes.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Among the passengers who arrived yesterday on the Anchor line steamer Victoria, from Gibraltar, was Cadet John Frame, of the Massachusetts training ship Enterprise. Mr. Frame was obliged to return home, owing to his eyes being affected.

HOUGHS NECK.

Poor Beach Weather but Many are at the Seashore.

Few indeed are the houses at Houghs Neck that are now unoccupied, although the past week has been anything but favorable for large picnic parties or transient visitors. Yet withal there have been many visitors and everybody who comes here goes away pleased and with the determination to come again, a promise which is certainly fulfilled, for every year sees many of the same faces that were here the year before.

New houses are numerous and have been mentioned from time to time in these columns and while this has been a good building year the prospects are that next year will be even better.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

SEWER PAYMENT.

Assessments Should be by Land Values.

The System of Fixing Valuation Criticised.

Vacant Land Should be Taxed at its True Value.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

You ask, "how I would pay for the sewer? How much should the city pay; and if assessments are to be levied, should they be by frontage, area valuation or water rates?"

I answer, in brief, that I do not object to the terms of the new law; but I would interpret that law so that the portion paid by the land owners should be levied according to its value; and "the city"—i. e. the people collectively—shall pay the remainder, but that such taxes should be raised by assessing all land at its true value, exclusive of all improvements, and also by lessening taxes upon every form of business enterprise, and upon all buildings.

I would have the voters of Quincy consider these propositions seriously, and see to it that assessors are elected or appointed, who will carry out their wishes.

Allow me to state in as few words as possible, the great advantage this simple change would bring to all of us, except those engaged in land speculation.

It cannot be too often repeated that "the city," or "the nation" has no money with which to pay for anything, except what it raises by taxation. "The city" or "the nation" can issue bonds, but these bonds, with interest upon same, must be paid by the people in increased taxation. It is so easy to say, "let the city do this, or the nation do that," without stopping to think that all of this burden rests, finally, upon the people, collectively—millionaires usually escaping; and the city or nation has no more right to live beyond its means, and go unnecessarily into debt, than has the individual.

What are its means, and how are we to know what it can afford? By a just valuation. Ours is said to be about 14 millions; but this is incorrect, for the reason that, vacant land is not assessed at its true value. It has long been the universal practice of assessors to rate vacant land, held for speculative purposes, much lower than occupied land having precisely similar market value, for the reason that such land was supposed to return no income, whereas it does return the surest profits of any property, by its steady rise, and often, exceedingly rapid rise.

For example: the assessed valuation of the land—exclusive of all improvements—in the city of Washington, D. C. in 1892 was about 76 millions; while the real value according to the testimony of the best real estate experts was over 300 millions.

This subject is receiving much attention everywhere. A bill has passed the New York Legislature which provides for taxing farm lands in upper New York city as city lots. It is raising a storm of protest from rich owners of lands, as it would increase the assessments from $500 per acre to $8,625 an acre, and 5,000 acres would be affected. In these is included the James Gordon Bennett estate, and of course, the New York Herald is naturally very indignant. This is the home seeker's opportunity, for these so-called "farms" must now be sold.

It is said that the building of this sewer will "make work." So it will; but it will not make nearly as much work or improvement in all kinds of business as would come to this city if vacant land was taxed at its true value, for this would make more homes, stimulate the building trade and all other allied industries. There would be more mouths to feed, more to buy newspapers, etc.

In Hyattsville, Maryland, this plan was put in operation for one year, and then defeated, not by the people,—but by the courts, through the influence of land speculators. Though, in Hyattsville, taxes were taken off business and all improvements, in order to encourage and stimulate them—the only increase upon land values being ten cents upon one hundred dollars—yet a much larger revenue was raised than under the old system, for the reason that, all land was assessed at its true value. Many land-owners, who most strenuously opposed this system, at first, were surprised to find their tax bills much lessened, because there was no tax upon buildings.

Perhaps this is too great a reform to be brought about, suddenly; but there is no reason why we should not begin, by lessening taxes upon business and everything produced by labor, skill and enterprise, and tax all land at its true market value. If this could be done, we would not be taxed as now, $17 50 per thousand, yet raise a much larger revenue, sufficient for all our actual needs.

This change would be beneficial to all except the land speculator; and even he has other interests. He is also a laborer and a business man, and in these two relations he would be a great gainer. Morever, he is ubiquitous. Few men of means can be found who do not carry a title deed to vacant land.

It would be unfair to ask that one or two individuals only, shall cease to hold land idle—shall cease to make money by the growth of the community; for this wrong is institutional, not individual, and the only way to right it is to treat all alike, and by taxation eliminate this great wrong everywhere, and so give the home seekers a better chance, make it easier for those struggling to pay for homes and for all business men. Besides this method is just and equitable.

But I would appeal to something deeper than the pocket, stronger than selfishness—to each one's sense of justice. Indeed, I would appeal to all landlord's themselves. I believe when they see this in its true light, that their love for their city and public spirit will make them foremost in trying to bring about a change that will prove so beneficial to the great majority of our citizens.

Let us all unite in one earnest effort to return to the city—i. e. the people collectively—this fund which they collectively produce—ground rents—because it is just and right.

And if this system of taxation could be carried out throughout the United States, it would break the back of all those monopolies which are now eating out the heart of our republic.

"The soil lies fallow—the woods grow rank;
Yet idle the poor man stands!
For millions of hands want acres—
While millions of acres want hands!"

The deep ruts on School street are being filled with crushed stone. If any street needs paving, this street certainly does.

There are not many more attractive show-windows in Boston than that of D. E. Wadsworth & Co., in the Greenleaf block, Quincy.

The new bell for the Swedish Lutheran church arrived this morning and is being placed in position today. It was photographed this noon.

Mr. Amos T. Poole, a former resident of Quincy is visiting his sister, Mrs. Hosea B. Ellis of Gay street. His home is now at Wilkesbarre, Penn.

The corresponding secretary of the Quincy Granite Cutters Union says, "so far as can be learned there are not many granite cutters in the city out of employment."

T. Gurney appeared out Tuesday in a handsome new delivery wagon. The running part is painted yellow and the body lake, while on the sides in large letters is the name T. Gurney.

The family of Rev. E. W. Virgin of West Quincy, left Wednesday for Lake View, South Framingham, to remain during the Chautauqua assembly, afterwards going to Shelburne Falls and Dedham.

The big granite stone on the sidewalk that has tripped up people so long, and been dangerous evenings at the corner, of Coddington and Spear streets, has been cut away. Thanks to those who did it.

Mrs. L. A. Horton has returned from a visit to Baltimore and Washington. She was accompanied home by her nephew, Horton S. Smith of the Maryland Law University, who will spend his vacation in Quincy.

A special car conveyed the sodality and altar boys of St. Mary's church to Quincy Point this morning and the steamer City of Quincy made a special trip to Nantasket conveying the party. Rev. A. F. Roche chaperoned the excursionists.

A grand concert and dance for the benefit of Thomas Keenan of Hose 1, Quincy Fire Department, was held Wednesday evening at Lovell's grove, and a very successful affair it was, as something over $200 was netted. Previous to dancing there was a vaudeville entertainment. Dancing followed until midnight.

The milk wagon of W. E. Marcey of this city was accidently overturned this morning in front of Durgin & Merrill's block, by the driver turning too sharp a corner. The occupants were thrown to the ground but uninjured. The horse, a good quiet animal, did not run, and fortunately but little damage was done. A few quarts of the lacteal fluid was lost, by being spilt on the ground.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Westly Peach entertained an unusual and notable gathering Wednesday evening at dinner, the guests being Rev. John Pollock of Glascow, Scotland; Rev. James Mursell of Derby, England; Miss Mary Hubbard of Ashtabula, Ohio; Mr. Walter Lindberg, a student of singing from Sweden; and Mr. Pirozzini a student of the Y. M. C. A., from Rome. Rev's. Mr. Pollock and Mursell remained over night and left town this morning.

The Epworth League connected with the Atlantic M. E. church held a lawn party and Bohemian fete, Wednesday from 4 to 10 o'clock on the ground near the residence of Mrs. James Burr. Bohemian booths were arranged about the grounds and ice cream, confectionery, lemonade, etc., were on sale. From 6 to 8 o'clock a clam chowder was served by the young men of Atlantic. Good music was furnished by Young's brass band.

Mr. John G. Faxon of Fitchburg, one of our Quincy boys who has made a success in journalism, has just moved into his new residence which he has built in that city. The house is located in a fashionable part of the city on the highland, over looking old Fitchburg, and is a handsome structure both outside and interiorily. Mr. Faxon's connection with various newspapers, is extensive and important, and from the beginning his business life has been one of progress and success.

Serious Bicycle Accident.

Miss Florence E. Bates of the Milton Hill House, Milton, was seriously injured Wednesday at Dorchester. She was riding a bicycle when she came into collision with a wagon driven by G. B. Crown. Miss Bates was thrown to the ground and it is thought the wheels of the wagon passed over her head as she sustained a multiple fracture of the skull. She was removed to the City Hospital.

The Tyranny of Etiquette.

It is impossible to read even the least dogmatic books on etiquette without being oppressed with the conviction that a heavy and binding addition has been made to the code of morals in the by-laws which have to do with visiting cards, invitations, conventional phrases and other minor but vigorous formulas. It has been reiterated by writers on these subjects that not a single rule of etiquette is arbitrary, but that all prove their reason in the very nature of things, and that those who disregard them simply show their own lack of insight and incapacity to appreciate genuine refinement.

While this is all very well for society people pure and simple or those who have other definite and absorbing work in life compliance with all the thousand and one trifling points of etiquette is an utter impossibility. The question then becomes, Shall such persons be excluded from society or be allowed to enter it on their own terms? Society might be conducted as to make of it a charming and delightful recreation instead of a tyrannical business, and those who see this clearly can do much toward making it so.—Philadelphia Press.

The Electric Candle.

The electric candle is in great request in England for the lighting and decoration of dining and other tables. An ingenious device for lighting the candles is provided by placing small pads under the tablecloth, and taking the current from them by means of two pin points in the base of the candlestick. The candles of course are extinguished on being taken from the table and are relighted when they are replaced in the proper position. They are so arranged that the bulb and the glass imitation of a wax candle can be removed, when the candlestick can be used for an ordinary candle. When used with shades of colored silk, the electric candle makes one of the prettiest additions to a dinner table that is possible to imagine.—Machinist.

Kind Offer.

Impoliteness may sometimes perhaps be answered properly with impertinence. A struggling author went to an editor with a manuscript.

"Oh," exclaimed the editor, "don't bother me now. I've other fish to fry."

"Well, I'll fry your fish for you," said the author, "while you read my manuscript."

So the editor had to read it.—Youth's Companion.

As Usual.

Mr. Epsom Downes (seated beside a stranger in a street car)—What time is it by your watch, please?

Stranger—I don't know.

Mr. Epsom—But you just looked at it.

Stranger—Yes. I only wanted to see if it was still there.—London Tit-Bits.

Memory is the primary and fundamental power without which there could be no other intellectual operation. —Johnson.

The Chickahominy had its designation from an Indian word, Chik-a-mawhony, "the place of turkeys."

☞ At the approaching Bay State Fair in Worcester an especial effort is to be made to have the dairy exhibit one that will be typical of what is best of the dairy interests of all parts of Massachusetts. It will be the first attempt in the history of the State to have a complete display of State dairy products. The best butter makers of this vicinity should be found on the list of exhibitors. Mr. George M. Whitaker, editor of the New England Farmer and acting executive officer of the State Dairy Bureau, has been appointed superintendent of this department. A list of premiums and full particulars can be obtained on application to him.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Sunset In the City.

Above the town a monstrous wheel is turning,
With glowing spokes of red,
Low in the west its fiery axle burning,
And, lost amid the spaces overhead,
A vague white moth, the moon, is fluttering.

Above the town an azure sea is flowing,
'Mid long peninsulas of shining sand;
From opal pearl the moon is growing,
Dropped like a shell upon the changing strand.

Within the town the streets grow strange and haunted,
And dark against the western lakes of green
The buildings change to temples, and unwonted
Shadows and sounds creep in where day has been.

Within the town the lamps of sin are flaring,
Poor foolish men that know not what ye are!
Tired traffic still upon his feet is faring—
Two lovers meet and kiss and watch a star.

Porter Family Reunion.

DANVERS, Mass., July 18.—The first reunion of the descendants of John Porter, who settled here in 1614, was held yesterday. Rev. Horace Porter, Brooklyn; General H. L. Porter, Concord; F. M. Ray, Portland, Me., and others, delivered addresses.

Injured While Stealing a Ride.

BOSTON, July 18.—Roy Mulfort, aged 11 years, tried to steal a ride on a freight train. A brakeman yelled at him, and Mulfort, in getting off the cars, fell under the wheels and had his right leg cut off at the knee and the left at the ankle.

Cause of Fire Unknown.

REVERE, Mass, July 18.—The large plant of the Columbia Lithia Water company, in this town, was almost totally destroyed by fire last night. The fire originated from some cause unknown. The loss will reach $30,000.

Not Going to Wed.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—The report from England of the engagement of Miss Consuela Vanderbilt, daughter of Mrs. Alva S. Vanderbilt, to the Duke of Marlborough, is denied here by good authority.

Tides In the Atmosphere.

Distinct tides in the atmosphere, corresponding to those of the sea and produced twice daily by lunar attraction, have been traced by M. Bouquet de la Grye in the barometric records of stations removed from powerful local disturbances. The recorded observations of Brest, St. Helena, Cape Horn, Batavia and Singapore give positive evidence of a regular ebb and flow according to the moon's position. The effect is slight, but measurable, the greatest atmospheric tide at Brest being shown by a movement of one-quarter of an inch in a water barometer, which is equivalent to about one-fiftieth of an inch in the mercury barometer. The tide seems to bear about the same ratio to the weight of the atmosphere that the sea tide bears to the depth of the ocean.

Three Books.

A leading literary light in one of the best known woman's colleges says that there are just three books that everybody should know by heart—"The Arabian Nights," "Alice In Wonderland" and "Mother Goose." "A thorough knowledge of those masterpieces," she says, "will do more toward cultivating the imagination than any other process that I know of. And I regard imagination as the most important of all mental faculties." This is in direct and significant opposition to the ideas held by many parents and teachers that fairy tales are injurious reading for the young.—New York Sun.

IS BEYOND RECOVERY.

Death of Stambuloff the Question of but a Few Hours.

Ferdinand Denies Being Implicated In the Plot.

The Feeling of Russia as Expressed In Her Leading Newspapers.

SOFIA, July 18.—It is doubtful whether ex-Premier Stambuloff will survive until tomorrow. Hope has been abandoned of his recovery.

Stefan Nicolof Stambuloff is a true Bulgar, for, despite his Slavic name, there is little Slavic blood in his veins; he is a Turanian, and has ever hated the Slavs as have his Hungarian kinsmen. His very face proclaims his blood; it is strikingly like that of a Chinaman. A short, stout man, with a round face, a black mustache and small, gray eyes—such in personal appearance is the man now hovering between life and death in Sofia, guarded with tiger-like fierceness by his wife.

What Bulgaria is today is due almost solely to the valor and wisdom and indomitable will of this young statesman. For years he has held the whole Russian empire at bay, single handed. The other powers of Europe have sympathized with him, but have given him no practical support. Open attack and secret intrigue he has alike baffled. Assassination he has hitherto defied, though it has often been tried against him.

He has resisted Russian aggression; he has beaten Servia in the field and Greece in the courts; he has made Bulgaria a nation and created a national public spirit, and he has, at 42 years of age, placed himself worthily in rank among the leading statesmen of Europe. Not only has he done all this, but he, too, would have made his sovereign's throne secure had Ferdinand submitted to his dictation.

FERDINAND AND MARIE.

Ferdinand has apparently no gratitude for the man who put him on the Bulgarian throne, and who made him the husband of Princess Marie Louise of Parma. Stambuloff failed to secure recognition for Ferdinand from the triple alliance, and the prince promptly turned him out of office and attempted a rapprochement with Russia.

Ever since Stambuloff's resignation in May of last year, he and those who continue to be known as his supporters have been marked out for persecution by the Bulgarian government.

Sympathy From Ferdinand.

CARLSBAD, July 18.—Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria telegraphed to Mme. Stambuloff yesterday as follows: "The fearful news of the outrage to which your husband has fallen a victim has filled me with the deepest indignation, and I cannot rest without expressing to the wife of him who, for many years, was my fellow worker, the horror that the awful crime has aroused in me, and also the keen and entire sympathy with which I share her terrible sorrow."

The Frankfurter Zeitung publishes an interview which its representative had with Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria at Carlsbad. The prince repudiated the charge that he or the Bulgarian government were aware of the intended attack upon M. Stambuloff, or that they incited the plotters. Since the resignation of the government, he said, he had urged M. Stambuloff to go abroad and he had refused. The government had then attached him and warned him not to visit certain places without an armed escort.

How Russians Feel.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 18.—The Novoe Vremya, referring to the attempt to assassinate ex-Premier Stambuloff of Bulgaria, expresses the opinion that the government of Prince Ferdinand may have played with the life of M. Stambuloff in bringing him to trial. In any case, The Novoe Vremya adds, it was a barbarous deed, and revolts not only the friends but the foes of the ex-premier.

The Novosti, commenting upon the same subject, remarks: The removal of M. Stambuloff was needed by those to whom the present circumstances were most dangerous.

The Svift sees the hand of God in the coincidence that he was struck down at the moment when the Bulgarian deputation was at St. Petersburg begging oblivion for the evil wrought by him.

Reservoir Broke.

NORWICH, Conn., July 18. — Meadow Brook reservoir, a supplementary reservoir, containing 50,000,000 gallons of water, was emptied yesterday afternoon by the breaking of the bulkheads. The water inundated many acres of farm land, destroying crops and sweeping cut hay into the Yantic river. It will be several weeks before the dam can be repaired. No water famine is feared.

Boy Still Missing.

TORONTO, July 18.—A further search of the premises where the bodies of the two Pitzel children were found will be made in hopes of finding the missing boy Howard, aged 9, although the detectives are satisfied that he was murdered and cremated at Detroit.

Wife Murder at New York.

A FINANCIAL SENSATION.

Securities For Over $12,000,000 Alleged to Have Been Fraudulently Transferred.

CHICAGO, July 18.—John Brookes and George D. Bullen, assignees of Potter, Lovell & Co. of Boston, yesterday filed a bill of discovery against the firm of J. V. Farwell & Co. of this city, asking that the firm be compelled to account for $12,840,000 of securities, which, it is alleged, were fraudulently transferred on the eve of the assignment of Potter, Lovell & Co., in August, 1890.

Potter, Lovell & Co. were stockbrokers, and at the time of their failure they had assets of $2,000,000 and liabilities of $4,000,000. A few days before the failure, it is alleged in the bill, securities valued at $5,000,000 were taken from the firm and secreted. Potter, Lovell & Co. did a brokerage business with Farwell & Co., and John V. Farwell was a stockholder in the firm of Potter, Lovell & Co., from Jan. 1 to Aug. 27, 1890. It is alleged that before the failure the firm fraudulently appropriated $500,000 of other people's money and pledged $500,000 more. It is claimed that the Farwells were cognizant of the transactions. It is also alleged that the transfer of a large number of securities was made to the firm of Farwell & Co.

The securities said to have been taken are: Five notes of C. W. Clement, trustee, $50,000 each—$250,000; 1400 shares of stock in Worcester street works, $140,000; 750 first mortgage bonds Gogebic Development company, $750,000; 5000 shares stock in same, $125,000; 240 first mortgage bonds Brazos River Channel and Dock company, $240,000; 750 bonds Gogebic Development company, $750,000; 3,378,000 shares in same, $9,460,000; 11,125 bonds Gogebic Development company, $1,125,000. The suit was filed in the United States court.

Liberal Rout Complete.

LONDON, July 18.—The result of yesterday's polling leaves the different parties in the following condition: Conservatives, 230; Liberal-Unionists, 39. Totals of Unionists, 269; Liberals, 65; McCarthyites, 28; Parnellites, 6; Labor, 2. Total of opposition, 101. The Unionist wave yesterday swept with greater force than ever over Great Britain. With fewer polls, the Unionists gained 14 seats, while the Liberals did not gain a single seat, and they, in the bulk of cases, had a hard fight to retain their seats, their majorities being again generally reduced. The Liberals were almost wiped out in London. Out of 15 contests in the metropolis they lost 6 seats. Out of 62 members from the metropolis, 53 are Unionists and 8 Liberals.

Didn't Talk About the Presidency.

SYRACUSE, July 18.—Congressman Poole returned home from Old Forge last night. Speaking of the report that General Harrison had told him that he would not be a candidate for the presidency, he said: "I can't imagine how the report got abroad. I had a long talk with General Harrison about coming to speak at the Grand Army reunion at the state fair. He said positively that he would not come. We spoke about any number of other matters, but the presidency was never mentioned. I took care not to broach the subject. General Harrison said nothing to me about the presidency."

Michigan Mine Disaster.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., July 18.—Nine miners are imprisoned in a room in the first level of the Pewable mine, and the chances are that some of them will be taken out dead. An immense cave-in of rock and timber occurred on the first level just as the men were quitting work, and it is feared that some of them were caught and crushed to death. Some of the men are alive, communication having been established by hammering on the pipe which supplies the room with air.

A Loophole For Holmes.

TORONTO, July 18.—Advices from Philadelphia state that H. H. Holmes can prevent his being tried for murder before a Canadian jury. He intends to plead guilty to a charge of murdering Howard Pitzel in Detroit. There is no capital punishment in Michigan, and Holmes' sentence in that state would prevent his being extradited to stand trial on the charge of murdering the Pitzel children in Toronto. By this means he might escape the gallows.

To Make Navigation Safer.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—Bids for the removal of the ledge at the south end of Rose island, known as Spindle rock, on which last year the steamer Plymouth of the Fall River line grounded, were opened here yesterday. There were two bids, one from James S. Rogers of Plattsburg, N. Y., $10.57 per cubic yard; the other from Rogers & Fitzgerald, of the same place, at $10.87 per cubic yard. The plan is to give a depth of at least eight feet at mean low water.

Located In Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Arthur Newsan was arrested yesterday at his residence in Brooklyn on a warrant charging him with being a fugitive from justice, and with having committed the crimes of forgery and embezzlement while he was a magistrate on the island of Trinidad. He is accused of having embezzled $250,000. Newsan was committed by Commissioner Shields to await the arrival of the evidence and affidavits from Trinidad.

Work of Incendiaries.

ROCHESTER, July 18. — The parochial school connected with the Church of the Holy Cross, at Charlotte, was burned shortly after midnight. The janitor, John Cronin, and his sister Nora, both of whom are in the employ of Rev. John M. Fitzgerald, are charged with setting the fire.

American Coal Bonds Sent Abroad.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The Lehigh Valley Coal company has placed, through Brown, Shipley & Co. of London, $6,000,000 5 per cent bonds guaranteed by the Lehigh Valley Railroad company. The price is said to be 105.

Burned to Death.

Thief Robbed Fall River Church of Everything but the Organ.

Enterprising Jew Had Just Started Housekeeping.

Wanted to Furnish His Humble Home at the Expense of Methodists.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 19.—Policemen made an important haul of stolen goods yesterday afternoon, and are now on the trail of the thief, who is supposed to be a Hebrew called Dubitskly, alias Sam Harris.

Friday night the Methodist church at Myrick's was entered and everything movable taken except the organ. That was left near the door, where it had been rolled preparatory to taking it with the other goods. The robbery was discovered the following night when the choir assembled to rehearse for Sabbath singing.

Detective Seaver traced the thief to this city about noon, and local detectives went in search of him, accompanied by one of the deacons of the church. At 14 Oregon street they located a Hebrew family, and just as soon as the deacon cast his eyes around the tenement he Saw the Missing Goods.

Carpets that had done service in the aisles and chancels were tacked down doing regular service on the floor. Parts of the pulpit and organ were being used as household ornaments. Cushions taken from church pews were serving as mattresses in the bedroom and the church clock was firmly fastened to the tenement wall, ticking out the hours for the household.

The police learned that the man they are searching for was married about three weeks ago. They say he told his wife he was a dealer in second-hand articles, also a general trader.

The other members of the household were greatly surprised to find that the goods had been stolen, and gladly assisted the police in taking them up and bundling them into the wagon.

They are now at the central police station, and the officers say they expect to find their man soon.

HER 250TH BIRTHDAY

Celebrated by Manchester in a Manner Becoming Her Dignity.

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 19.—The 250th anniversary of Manchester was observed with great eclat. Brightly colored flags and bunting covered the buildings and the word "Welcome" was seen on every side. Near the railroad station were two Corinthian columns surmounted by a large gilt globe and gay banners and streamers. The schoolhouses were covered with flags, and private residences were richly decorated.

The celebration began Wednesday night with the lighting of an immense bonfire. The harbor and town were lit up for miles and the numerous craft lying at anchorage were decorated with colored lights.

The official celebration began at sunrise yesterday by the ringing of bells and the firing of guns. At 8 o'clock, at the Arena, a band concert was given, in which 500 school children, dressed in red, white and blue, assisted by singing patriotic songs.

The feature of the morning was the representation of the landing of Governor Winthrop and party in 1645. At 9:30 o'clock the Arabella was seen coming up the harbor and was greeted with a salute by the Waltham battery. Then assembled at the landing place 150 persons dressed in Indian costumes, who received the party. Governor Winthrop was impersonated by R. H. Dana, and the party was conducted to the Arena, where the pipe of peace was smoked and a war dance given.

Then the principal exercises of the day began, with prayer by Rev. F. A. Fate of the Congregational church, followed by an address by Henry C. Leach, chairman. "The Star Spangled Banner," sung by the school children, preceded an oration by Lieutenant Governor Wolcott, who represented Governor Greenhalge, who was unable to be present.

"America" was sung by the school children," and concerts by the band followed. At 1 o'clock a banquet was served in the town hall.

At 3 o'clock began a beautiful floral and historical parade, which included many handsomely decorated floats and carriages, representatives of the Society of the Colonial Wars, coaches bearing the Winthrop party, a representation of the Boston Tea Party, and barges with the school children.

Prizes were given for the best decorated floats. The day's celebration ended with a band concert on the Common and a display of fireworks last evening.

Beaten With Clubbed Rifle.

NEW HAVEN, July 19.—Joseph Colombe is a woodchopper in Bethany. Tuesday night, in a drunken and jealous rage, he attacked his wife, Alice, with a clubbed rifle, and beat her in a frightful manner. He then dragged her to an upper room in his house, where she lay until morning, unattended. The unfortunate woman was brought to this city in a grocery wagon. Coroner Mix took the woman's antemortem statement yesterday, and she died at 7:45 last evening. Bethany people say that there have been many brutal scenes at the Colombe household since the couple, with their 8-year-old child, have been living there.

A Family Feud.

WOLFBORO, N. H., July 19.—Joseph Pike, the octogenarian of Pike Crossing, Brookfield, who was placed under arrest, charged with assault to kill, was given a hearing yesterday afternoon, and placed under personal recognizance. The principal complainant against Pike is his nephew, John Pike, chairman of the board of selectmen of Brookfield, and the old man claims that the young selectman is persecuting him because of a family feud dating back nearly 20 years.

Gosling in a Cage.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 19. — Paul Gosling, who has terrorized the women of Newtown for several months past, was brought here yesterday and locked in the county jail. He was accustomed to patrol the town nights in his stocking feet, insulting women and peering through windows. It was with great difficulty that he was captured. Gosling was bound over to appear for trial before the September term of the superior court.

Protected by Police.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 19.—All the freight on the New York and Norwich Transportation company's wharf is being handled by a gang of Italians, brought here from New York. Two regular men were discharged, and the men refused to work unless the discharged men were taken back. The company would not do this, and the men were paid off. A force of police officers is on duty at the wharf.

ANOTHER SIDE TO IT.

Poole's Stories Concerning Harrison Appear to Be Inconsistent.

Didn't Want Newspaper Men to Hear the News.

Parties Who Are Posted on the Matter Refuse to Be Interviewed.

SYRACUSE, July 19.—That General Harrison made the statement attributed to him in the dispatches of Thursday cannot be denied truthfully by the parties to the conversation. The language he used was given verbatim, and was told to at least seven persons whose names are known to the Syracuse Post correspondent.

In his denial, Major Poole says he did not tell anyone that General Harrison had said that he would not be a candidate for the presidency. As a matter of fact, Major Poole, after he and his friends had boarded the steamer Zip on their way to the Forge House from Dodd's camp, called them around him and confided to them the result of the interview he and Joseph I. Sayles had with General Harrison.

Major Poole told the party that General Harrison told him (Poole) that the trip to Syracuse would not be taken during state fair week and for the Grand Army men not to expect him to be present. After telling them this, Major Poole told them what General Harrison had said about the presidency. He also told them not to state the conversation to any newspaper men. He laid particular stress upon this.

When Major Poole reached the Forge House, he was asked if politics had been discussed on his visit to General Harrison. He replied that there was no reference made to anything that partook of the nature of politics.

Sayles Is Silent.

Joseph I. Sayles was called upon yesterday afternoon by The Post correspondent in relation to his interview with General Harrison. "Have you anything to say for publication regarding the public statement about General Harrison and the presidency?" he was asked.

"I have nothing whatever to say," was Mr. Sayles' answer.

"Was the language attributed to General Harrison correctly reported?"

"I will not answer any questions regarding my visit to Dodd's camp."

All efforts to have Mr. Sayles talk for publication about the interview he and Major Poole had with General Harrison were fruitless.

The Post reporter rode to Dodd's camp last evening. General Harrison was reading his mail. He greeted the reporter cordially and inquired as to what was the nature of the call. "What, if anything, have you to say, general, about the story published this morning?" he was asked.

"I have nothing to say about the story," answered the general, pleasantly, but firmly.

"Will you not deny or affirm the truth of the Poole interview?"

"I will not."

General Harrison said that all efforts to have him talk through a newspaper on anything of a political nature would prove in vain. "I must be left alone, so far as that subject is concerned, while I am here," said he.

Ferdinand's Expressions of Grief.

CARLSBAD, July 19.—When informed of the death of M. Stambuloff, Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria telegraphed to the Bulgarian statesman's widow, saying: "Filled with indignation and sorrow, and only desirous in the presence of this terrible event of remembering the eminent qualities of him who rendered such memorable services to Bulgaria, I once more join my most profound and sorrowful condolences with your tears, and pray God to support you in this fearful trial and grant you the consolation of the thought that history will preserve in eternal memory the patriot whom an abominable outrage has torn from the affections of his friends."

Canadian Cabinet Safe.

OTTAWA, July 19.—The debate in the house of commons on McCarthy's amendment regarding the Manitoba school question ended at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Laurier announced that he would vote against the amendment which opposed remedial legislation, because he did not desire to see political parties divided into two political camps. The question was then put, and only Mr. McCarthy and Colonel O'Brien rose to the call for a division. The speaker declared the amendment lost, and the subject was disposed of in this abrupt manner.

An Important Decision.

WHEELING, July 19.—Judge Goff handed down a decision yesterday declaring unconstitutional the law passed recently by West Virginia's legislature, imposing a license of $500 a year on retail dealers in cigarets and cigaret paper. The law virtually killed the cigaret business in this state, as persons could only buy in wholesale lots. The law was tested by the American Tobacco company (the trust), with the above result.

The Marshal "Dusted."

HAVANA, July 19.—While Marshal de Campos was marching from Manzanillo to Bayamo, accompanied by General Santocildez and an escort of 200 troops, the insurgents attacked his column, killing General Santocildez and two officers. There were also other Spanish casualties. De Campos, with the remainder of his force, broke through the insurgents and reached Bayamo.

A Bad Smashup.

PEORIA, Ills., July 19.—A rear-end collision occurred between a passenger train and a freight near here yesterday. The rear coach of the passenger train was telescoped and 21 freight cars thrown from the track. Miss Martha Wright was instantly killed. A half dozen persons sustained severe wounds, but all will recover.

To Suffer Buchanan's Fate.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Maria Barbari, who was convicted of murder, for the killing of her lover, Domenico Cataldo, was sentenced to be executed by electricity during the week beginning Aug. 19.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

HOW WOULD it do for Quincy to return Brookline tit for tat? Brookline objected to a county expenditure at Quincy for a court house; now why should not Quincy object to a county road in Brookline to cost $19,000 or more. A hearing was given Thursday at Brookline.

CONVENTIONS OF all kinds are a grand thing for any city. They bring people to the city and it is generally a gala season for citizens as well as visitors. Quincy should entertain more, and when conventions are held in Boston encourage pilgrimages to our famous granite quarries and places of historical interest. The Michigan Marble and Granite Dealers, who will arrive in Quincy Aug. 27, will also visit the monumental centres of Vermont, Barre and Rutland. It is important that these dealers should enjoy themselves in this city; that they should have even a better time than at the other places visited. They have secured half rates on the railroads and a large number of dealers have arranged to attend. Many will bring work doubtless, and if contracts are not let while here it is hoped Quincy may obtain a larger proportion in the future.

They will be here two days and there should be no dull moments. During a recent visit of the Massachusetts editors in Nova Scotia, one of the most pleasant features of the trip were the carriage rides which were given by the citizens in their private carriages at each of the places visited. The hospitality was appreciated and the excursionists saw everything of interest. In Quincy and vicinity there are some drives which cannot be surpassed. If in addition to this one or two private receptions are given it will supplement the programme of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' association and a good opinion of Quincy will be formed by the visitors.

Too Much of a Hurry.

Some man whose name is at present unknown is to be disappointed when he returns from Boston tonight for instead of riding home on his wheel he will have to walk. Just before the 6.11 train for Boston this morning, the gentleman rode to the depot and leaving his wheel standing against the platform rushed across the track and took the train, at the same time asking the baggage master to put it away until he came out. As soon as the train had gone the baggage man went for the wheel but in the mean time it had been stolen. The matter was immediately reported to the chief of police but as the make or number of the wheel is not known or the owners name nothing can be done until he returns.

Worthy Couple Surprised.

At 32 Union street the residence, of Mr. and Mrs. Sangster Troup, there was gathered together on Wednesday evening about seventy-five friends and acquaintances to surprise the couple, it being the twenty first anniversary of their marriage. After the party had taken possession, Mr. Alexander Souter complimented the couple on having reached the twenty-first milestone, and hoped they would be spared to see many more. He very appropriately presented them with a handsome parlor lamp to light their path. Mr. and Mrs. Troup feelingly acknowledged the present, after which a few social hours were enjoyed in song and dance.

A Memento of Visit.

The visit of Robert G. Shaw Post to Paul Revere Post, during the Grand Army convention in Boston is pleasantly remembered. The veterans took quite a fancy to Quincy granite, and carried home many polished chips. Paul Revere Post thought they should have a better specimen of our granite, and have prepared a suitably inscribed block which Past Commander J. D. Williams has been delegated to present. The inscription reads: "From Paul Revere Post 88, Quincy, Mass., to Robert G. Shaw Post, New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y." The gavel accompanying the block is from an apple tree grown in this city and made by Mr. Richard Newcomb. Mr. Williams leaves Saturday morning and will make the presentation that evening.

—It is estimated that 3000 visited the camp of the cadets at Hingham on Thursday.

—The Hull Corinthian yacht club will have an open race for knockabouts next Tuesday afternoon.

GOOD INVESTMENT.

The Quincy Real Estate Company Make Another Purchase.

The William Panton property situated on the westerly side of Hancock street has been purchased by the Quincy Real Estate and Trust company, which is the same company that owns the Greenleaf block.

For the present no changes will be made in any of the buildings situated on the property although the new owners are considering plans for the development of the property.

One of the syndicate informed the LEDGER this week that while as yet nothing had been done the company stood ready to erect a block of any kind upon the property for anybody who wanted it for business or other purposes.

This is one of the most valuable estate in Quincy, situated as it is upon the main thoroughfare of the city, and another large block is among the possibilities of the near future.

The price paid is said to have been about $25,000.

MILTON.

The rails of the Quincy & Boston street railway are laid as far as McKay's blacksmith shop and the ties are in position for the balance of the way. John Graham is furnishing the granite for the reserved space, and as it is of excellent quality a good job will be accomplished. Owing to the non-arrival of the posts and rails, some delay is necessary but it is now thought that the road will be running by the first of the month and then East Milton people will awaken from their long sleep and paint the village red. Just what form the celebration will take is not definitely decided as yet but it is said three bands will be engaged and quantities of powder burned and there will probably be a feast for the inner man that will make one's mouth water. The whole affair may wind up with a dance at Ellsworth hall. These are only the outlines but a meeting is to be called at an early date and a definite programme decided upon.

The Baptist and Congregational societies united in a picnic at Downer Landing Thursday and that everybody might go the grocery stores closed up for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connell are being congratulated upon the arrival of a little daughter.

Frank Quimby, clerk at Quimby's drug store, is spending his vacation in Maine.

Charles Green has found it necessary to add another horse to his business.

The Alarm Last Night.

The alarm from Box 49 at 10.12 Thursday night was rung in for a fire in the old house owned by E. V. Trask on West street. One side of the house is occupied by Philip Leahy and the other is unoccupied, and it was in the unoccupied part that the fire occured.

Special officer McKay discovered the fire as he was on his way home and gave the alarm, although the services of the department were not needed as the fire had made but little headway and the loss will not be over $5.

The fire was evidently of incendiary origin as it was under the sink, and the old rags that were burning were thoroughly saturated with kerosene oil.

This is the second time an attempt has been made to burn this same building by the use of kerosene oil, the first being a few months ago.

Band Concert at Braintree.

The Columbus band of Quincy gave an excellent concert in Storrs square, Braintree, last evening.

The affair drew a large crowd of people from many of the towns connected by the electrics, and all the roads, particularly the Quincy road, did a big business.

The music was furnished by the Quincy road, and the band stand, fitted upon a snow scraping car, was brought from that place.

The square was packed with people and the concert continued till 10 o'clock.

It is understood that these concerts will be given at regular times during the summer.—Observer.

One Round for Test.

The two new fire alarm boxes for Norfolk Downs are expected to arrive any day and will immediately be placed in position. They will be numbered 151 and 152. Number 151 will be located on the corner of Billings street and Rawson road and number 152 on the corner of Billings and Beach streets. When they are cut into the circuit one round will be pulled in from each for a test.

Weymouth Physician Dead.

Dr. Edwin Mayberry, a well known physician of East Weymouth, died Thursday night the result of an apoplectic shock. Dr. Mayberry has resided in East Weymouth for the past ten years and enjoyed a large practice. He was 65 years of age and leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter. Two of his sons are physicians and one a lawyer.

Rum Did It.

Judge Humphrey has filed his report of the inquest over the remains of John F. O'Leary, killed on the railroad near the School street bridge. He finds "little reason to doubt that his death should be added to the uncounted millions who have died as victims of intemperance."

The household goods of Mrs. Ann Tough at South Quincy will be sold at auction tomorrow afternoon by H. L. Kincaide & Co.

SUPERB FIELDING

But Boston's Battery Was Not Quite Up to That of Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Almost from the beginning it was what might be called a pitchers' battle, although both men were batted hard enough. It was the superb fielding of both sides that kept the score down as low as it is, for time and again apparently safe hits would be knocked down and turned into put-outs. Nash made one phenomenal stop at third and Bobby Lowe had any number of them at second.

Bad For Japs.

HONG KONG, July 19.—The Japanese are abandoning the sea expedition to the southern part of the island of Formosa because the monsoon makes landing impossible. They must march 200 miles inland, despite the rainy season and floods. The army at Tamsui is awaiting re-enforcements from Japan. Fever and dysentery are rife. The Japanese vanguard at Tuk-Cham has been repeatedly attacked, its convoys surprised and its outposts harassed. Out of 33 Japanese attacked at Tokoham only four escaped, the rest having been killed, or committed suicide, fearing torture.

Disastrous Storm In Illinois.

PEORIA, Ills., July 19.—Another strong windstorm swept this section yesterday afternoon and evening. The storm was most severe at Pelin, unroofing buildings and blowings barns and trees over. The roof was blown off the postoffice block and the mails soaked. Frank Rees' grocery store was flooded. At Tivoli, J. Compler was struck by lightning, and killed. Last night a deluge passed over Peoria, flooding everything. Several washouts are reported.

Peace In Sight.

[Copyrighted 1895.]

LIMA, July 19.—Bolivia has consented to modify her demands so far as it regards a salute of her flag by Peru, which demand Peru declined to entertain. Peru has already admitted the justice of Bolivia's demands for damages for outrages committed on the frontier by the Cacerist forces during the recent civil war. It is believed that a basis of peaceful adjustment is thus arrived at.

Due to Negligence.

NEWARK, N. J., July 19.—Two men were killed, two fatally injured and three seriously injured by the caving-in of a sewer trench in Harrison yesterday afternoon. Owing to an accident that occurred at the same place last week the contractors had been notified by the police to have the earth properly shored up. It is claimed that this was not done, with the result of the cave-in yesterday.

Won't Die Just Yet.

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Isaac L. Edwards was not executed last night. Governor McKinley has granted a certain party, whose name is not made public, 60 days to show that certain testimony under which Edwards was convicted, was perjury. He killed Mrs. Sarah Sellers, a married woman, because she rejected his attentions.

No New Records.

SARATOGA, July 19.—The regatta of the National Association of Amatuer Oarsmen was concluded yesterday afternoon. No records were made, so the one made by the Wachusett eight stands alone for the meeting. The people across the border were wofully left.

Crisis at Colon.

COLON, July 19.—Troops are guarding the railroad property here, and more are on their way from Panama, acting as escort to 100 laborers, who are to take the place of strikers. The situation is serious, and apprehensions are felt of an outbreak.

Turks Feel Angry.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 19. — Although the newspapers here are prohibited from making any reference to the murder of M. Stambuloff, the people are wildly indignant and are not sparing in their censure of the police and government of Bulgaria.

Treasury Officials Not Worried.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The treasury yesterday lost $232,183 in gold, leaving the reserve $106,807,905. The treasury officials have absolute confidence in the ability and determination of the syndicate to protect the treasury.

Convention of Young Baptists.

BALTIMORE, July 18.—The fifth international convention of the Baptist Young People's union began here yesterday. The opening address was made by President John H. Chapman of Chicago.

QUINCY BREVITIES

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

The street department have made a great improvement on Goddard street.

The steam roller is at work on Willard street, which is being put in first class condition.

The Columbus band will give a concert at the junction of School and Franklin streets, tonight.

Mr. I. O. Jones of Edgewater, Ill., made a short visit with Aubrey R. Keith of River street, this week.

Mr. George Hinkley and family of Atlantic go to Taunton Saturday for a two weeks' vacation.

West Quincy people are pleased to know that an electric striker is to be placed on the bell on Hose 3 house.

Mr. Newell O. Parker and family of Belmont street start Saturday for Alexandria, N. H., for three weeks' vacation.

Cities and towns must wait until about the middle of August for their census returns, when all will be given out at once.

Mrs. D. A. Bruce of Atlantic sailed on the steamer "Olivette" Tuesday, for a vacation trip to Charlottetown, P. E. I., via Halifax.

Mr. John F. Suckling, formerly principal of the Willard school, is in town today. He has just returned from the National Educational convention at Denver, Col.

The new bell on the Swedish Lutheran church is in position, and has rung at intervals today for test. It is loud and musical and easily distinguished from other bells.

Past Grands Jacobs and Souther and John W. Nash are also members of semi-centennial committee of Mount Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F. The committee meet this evening.

A. L Baker, real estate agent of Wollaston, has sold for N. G. Nickerson the apartment house on Central avenue to A. P. Messer of Roxbury, and also five lots of land for the same party located on Central avenue and Taylor street.

During the summer vacation (until September 1st) the Sunday School library of the Wollaston Unitarian church is to be open for the delivery of books from 5.30 to 6.30 P. M. every Sunday. Free use of the books is offered not only to members of the school and church but to all residents of Wollaston.

The ladies of the Methodist Episcopal church, Wollaston, will give their annual lawn party to the children of the Sunday School on Wednesday afternoon and evening next, July 24. It will be held on Everett street opposite the residence of Mrs. Stiles, commencing at 3 P. M. The parents of the children and all friends of the Sunday School are cordially invited. Refreshments will be served with ice cream and lemonade.

How To Bake.

Facts are stubborn, but it's a fact that there's more dissatisfaction with life and its living by those who are unsuccessful in cooking and the people who are compelled to endure its results, than with anything else we know of. Its not to be wondered at, but here's a way out of the difficulty. Don't blame the cook, it's not her fault; own a GLENWOOD Range, the greatest baker on earth. IN SECOND DEGREE.

Verdict In Case of John Collins, Who Killed Frederick Ohl.

TRENTON, N. J., July 19.—The jury in the case of John Collins, accused of the murder of Frederick P. Ohl, the Princeton student, came in at 11.45 o'clock last night with a verdict of murder in the second degree.

FRED P. OHL.

Justice Gummore deferred sentence. The penalty is from 5 to 20 years at hard labor in state prison. The whole day was consumed by counsel in summing up. Judge Chauncey H. Breasley and Senator William D. Daly spoke for the prisoner, and asked for a verdict of acquittal. They said the testimony showed that the killing of Ohl had been done by Collins in self-defense, and there could be no middle line such as a verdict of manslaughter or murder in the second degree. W. H. Apgar and Prosecutor Stockton, for the state, asked for a verdict of murder in the first degree.

PARLIAMENT FIGURES.

Admirers of John Morley Vent Their Spite on His Opponents.

LONDON, July 19.—The tallings, so far as returns have been received, leaves the state of the parties as follows: Conservatives, 258; Liberal-Unionists, 47. Totals of Unionists, 305; Liberals, 73; McCarthyites, 57; Parnellites, 6; Labor, 2. Totals of opposition, 138. The Conservatives, with 11 seats won yesterday, have now secured a net gain of 55 seats, giving a majority of 82 in the new house of commons. What returns have been received from the counties indicate that they are following the lead of the boroughs, and there is every prospect that the government will have a majority of at least 100. The Unionists have gained three seats in Wales.

Among those re-elected were Sir H. C. Bannerman, secretary of state for war in Lord Rosebery's cabinet, the resolution to reduce whose salary precipitated the downfall of the government; T. P. O'Connor, Baron H. De Worms and W. H. Long.

There were riotous scenes in Newcastle last night. Crowds disappointed at the rejection of John Morley paraded the streets and stoned the windows of the houses of prominent Unionists and Conservative newspapers. The mob also attacked persons wearing Unionist favors. The police were obliged to charge repeatedly and to use their clubs.

Sovereign's Latest.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Times today prints the outlines of a manifesto to be issued by General Master Workman Sovereign of the Knights of Labor for the boycott of all national banks. It will be addressed to the Knights of Labor, the Farmers' Alliance, the People's party, Reform club and kindred societies, reciting "the wrongs of the toiling masses, and their sufferings at the hands of the money-making powers," and calls for a boycott on national banks' notes in all dealings with individuals. It is to go into effect Sept. 1.

Holmes Has a Friend.

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—A French Canadian, stoutly built, and with short, black whiskers, called yesterday at the office of W. A. Shoemaker, Holmes' counsel. It was stated that the stranger had arrived here from Toronto. He said that he had been with Holmes in nearly all the latter's business ventures, and he would swear that Holmes reached Toronto and gave the Pitzel children to a man named Hatch, and that this was the last that he or Holmes had seen of them. He says that a complete alibi can be proved for Holmes.

Deputies Wanted to Fight.

BRUSSELS, July 19.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday during the discussion of the new education bill, Premier Burlet said that he pitied parents who allowed their children to "wallow in the slough of atheism." This remark brought forth a torrent of invectives from the Socialists against the ministers and insulting expressions passed between them and the bench. Violence was only averted by the hurried adjournment of the session.

Lynched by a Mob.

SCRANTON, Miss., July 19.—Andrew Thomas, colored, who recently criminally assaulted Mrs. Vice, aged 76, near Moss Point, was lynched yesterday. The details of his crime were shockingly brutal. Thomas was arrested some days ago at Mobile, but was kept there to allow the excitement to subside. The prisoner was brought out to Scranton, where he was taken from the officers by a mob and lynched.

Arms For Insurgents.

KINGSTON, July 19.—Open boats laden with arms left several creeks for Gabina Point. The contents of these were transshipped to open boats from the Cuban coast in the open sea, which made back to the Cuban coast with their supply of war material.

Turning Out In Force.

ISHPEMING, Mich., July 19.—The miners' strike presents no material change. Daily meetings are being held at the park between here and Negaunee. Five thousand men were present at yesterday's demonstration.

The Coming Naval Show.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The vessels of the North Atlantic station will assemble at Newport, R. I., not later than Aug. 3, when it is expected that Admiral Bunce will begin his cruise and maneuvers.

Insurgents Gaining Ground.

KUSTENDJI, Roumania, July 19.—The whole of the Malesh district of Macedonia, north of Strumnitza, is in the hands of insurgents. The bridges across the river Struma have been demolished.

DREAMLAND.

Where sighs the whispering linden
To summer's lightest breeze,
Where tuneful birds make music
Unseen 'mid shady trees—
How sweet awhile to linger
Beside some babbling stream,
And lulled by its soft murmur
To fall asleep and dream!

What strange fantastic pictures
Pass mirrored o'er the brain
As youth forgets its troubles
And age grows young again!
The past, no more remembered,
Makes way for what shall be,
And scenes of future gladness
Are all the dreamers see.

Ah, would these idle fancies
Might sometimes prove them true
Nor fade away to nothing
And vanish from the view!
Fond thought! But cease repining.
Perchance 'tis happier thus
To leave unsolved life's riddle
Nor ask what waits for us.

—New Budget.

A DEAD SHOT.

They called him Tex in lieu of any reliable information as to his proper patronymic, and he bobbed up in that miscellaneous assortment of humanity that flocked to Leadville in the first flush of the silver excitement. Tex was an Apollo of the plains, a mere boy, with long yellow curls, blue eyes and a woman's complexion and with a frame that towered six feet in his stockings. He had been a member of an immigrant train in his tenderer years, which the Indians had attacked and wiped out of existence. Tex had been adopted by the tribe and had spent some years in this savage society, until General McHenry, commanding regular troops, one day swooped down on the camp and seized Tex and restored him to civilization. And then Tex became a cowboy. That was his history down to the time that he went to Leadville and became a familiar figure about the gambling houses.

Everybody, with the possible exception of the parson and a few women and children in camp, in those days wooed the fickle goddess of fortune in roulette or at faro, poker and even keno, and Tex's occupation as a professional gambler did not lower his social standing by one degree. As a matter of fact, Tex was a great favorite. He was a big, kind hearted boy, with a quiet manner and good natured smile, but, withal, a man—a man, too, capable of being aroused at times and in that condition one of the most dangerous men in the west.

One day Tex sat down in The Gold Room, a popular resort on Chestnut street, to a little game of poker. The stakes were high, and Tex was steadily losing. When he discovered that his partner was playing with a double deck Tex put his hand on the jack pot and called the other a cur. That party whipped out a six shooter, but lay dead in his tracks with a bullet hole through his heart before he could bring his pistol to a level. Tex was such an expert with his gun!

Bret Harte relates that the gamblers in Tuttle's grocery calmly continued their game the day that French Pete and Kanaka Joe shot each other to death over the bar in the front room. The game in The Gold Room on this occasion must have been less absorbing in interest, for the crowd made a rush for Tex, who calmly turned around at the door and quietly advised his pursuers to resume their peaceful occupations at the table if they did not want to fill a common grave over on the other side of Capitol hill. And very wisely the crowd acted on Tex's advice. And so the matter apparently blew over without any serious annoyance to the young man, who continued to walk the streets in his leisurely way, obviously none the worse in conscience for having assisted in the premature taking off of a dishonest gambler. How many men Tex in his short but eventful career had killed nobody knew, but his bearing on this occasion indicated that he was no novice. He was greeted respectfully by passers, and he smiled as benevolently and kindly upon those he cared to notice as though the process of shooting a man through the heart was an accepted act of ethical propriety.

And nothing more would have come of it if people had not begun to twit Town Marshal O'Connor on his failure to do his duty. The marshal had no hankering after Tex's society, no vaulting ambition to arrest him. Tex had been somewhat informal in his administration of justice. He might have waited for his opponent to shoot first, and then allowed the regularly elected justice of the peace to try the case afterward, but Tex, in his youthful inexperience and very vague acquaintance with the proprieties of civilization, had not stopped to think of that. A cold deck and a suggestive movement toward the seat of war on the part of an adversary had always been his signal for prompt action, and his triggerless six shooter had on such occasions always been the arbiter of justice, from which no appeal lay. The merciless twitting to which O'Connor was subjected had made it necessary for him to do something to maintain the dignity of the law.

When Tex that evening walked into The Gold Room, O'Connor was there. They saw each other at a glance. O'Connor leisurely walked toward Tex, and the boy fastened his keen eyes upon him as though he would read his thoughts.

"Tex," said the marshal, "you've killed Skinner, and you know what I've got to do with you."

"Arrest me?" said Tex quietly. The conversation was conducted in subdued tones. "Don't try it," continued Tex. "I like you, and I haven't got a thing against you. I don't want to kill you, O'Connor. Now you go about your business and leave me alone. When the grand jury meets you'll find me right here in The Gold Room, and I'll go with you and stand trial, but I won't be arrested."

"But, Tex," said the marshal, "I've got to do my duty."

"And I've got to do mine," said Tex. "I done it this morning when I drilled a hole through Skinny, and I'll do it whenever a man puts a hand on me. I ain't spoiling for a fight, specially with you, O'Connor, and if you see your duty make sure that it is to let me alone. Now go away and don't trouble yourself any more about me."

Tex turned to go away, but in turning he saw the marshal draw his pistol. There was a quick, sharp report, a puff of smoke, and O'Connor lay writhing on the floor in his blood.

Again the large gambling room was in a state of commotion. Tables were upturned, and loud voices could be distinguished above the din, shouting: "Kill him!" "Shoot him!" There was a general rush in the direction where Tex had stood, but the boy had disappeared.

Then it was that Leadville experienced a moral revulsion. When men could no longer sit down to a beguiling game of stud poker or watch the cards as they were silently slipped from the case by the nimble fingers of the faro dealer without being disturbed by the crack of pistols and the accompanying acts of violence and bloodshed it was time to make a few examples and readjust the moral standard of the community.

How much greater was the necessity when, as on this occasion, men made free with the executive hand of justice in the person of the marshal, whose only offense had been that of trying to cage a flagrant violator of the peace and maintain the dignity of the law, even what little there was of it. But Tex could nowhere be found.

Sheriff Tucker began to take the case in hand. He and his deputies scoured the town from one end to the other. They visited all of Tex's resorts and calling places, but none had seen him after the shooting. At last Tucker heard that he had left town on horseback. He was probably far over the divide by this time, but Tucker was not the sort of man to be easily discouraged. He and a deputy, whose aim was as accurate as his own, and whose courage was something to be banked on in all emergencies, started in pursuit. They had better horses than the animal Tex was riding, and they were soon on the boy's trail.

Then began one of the hottest pursuits that was ever known. By daylight they were in sight of the fugitive, catching a faroff glimpse of him as he waved his sombrero at them just as he slipped over the crest of a range of hills. Both parties had changed horses several times. At one place Tex had traded his broken down broncho for a buggy horse, paying the difference that the owner asked without haggling about the price. Then he had traded the buggy horse for a Ute pony that would try to run up a hill as fast as he ran down, and whose spirit nothing could conquer but death. Once they were perceptibly gaining on him and tried a few shots that fell short.

Just as they thought they were going to close in on him and were putting their horses to their best Tex waved his sombrero over his head, standing erect in the saddle, and gave such an unearthly yell that the poor pony was frightened into a convulsive effort that carried him beyond the range of vision of Tucker and his man. Yet on they pressed, around the shoulder of a hill, and there they saw their man—at their mercy.

His broncho had broken his neck stumbling over a bowlder. Tex had been thrown down, but was too expert a rider not to find his feet. His revolver had been hurled down a bank and was beyond reach. His pursuers were upon him, and the business end of two revolvers were ominously directed against his breast.

Tex made a bounding leap down the bank. "Crack, crack!" spoke two revolvers, but the bullets missed. The next instant Tex had got possession of his revolver, but the leap had broken his wrist, and the sheriff and his man had the drop on him.

"Tex," shouted Tucker, "throw up your hands! We've got you."

"Shoot, d—n you, shoot!"

He tried to level his own gun, but his wrist was limp, and before he could change it to his left hand there was an almost simultaneous report of two pistols, and a pair of bullets had passed into his heart. Tex fell heavily on his side, and as the sheriff and his deputy saw that they had done their work well they watched him.

"Take the pot!" gasped Tex, and died.—Washington Post.

Inconsistent Teeth.

The inconsistent teeth are small and even, often brilliantly white, but widely separated. Each tooth has a well defined space between it and its neighbor. Usually in men a small, straight nose and weak chin are seen with these teeth. The lips may be well formed, but will frequently be thin, and the mouth, in smiling, forms an oblique line, showing the glittering white teeth. The possessor is by nature treacherous, inconsistent in his affections, will turn on a woman or attack a weaker man. He will never meet a man of his own size in an encounter and will stab in the dark or work through a third party. Henry Irving makes his mouth up after this type for his wonderful Mephisto and accentuates the cruelty of its lines by the wicked arch to his eyebrows.—Kansas City Times.

Practicing.

Ten little troublesome fingers,
Ten little finger nails,
Pattering on the piano,
Scattering over the scales,
Clicking and clacking and clattering,
Each in the other one's way.
What trying and sighing and crying
To teach little children to play!

To play? I call it working,
When ten little fingers like mine
Are bumping and clumping and thumping,
And never will fall into line.
They fumble and tumble and stumble;
They trip, and they skip, and they hop,
And just when the music is gayest
They come to an obstinate stop.

Frank Timins, the Petaluma pot hunter, had the floor, and the crowd breathlessly awaited a thrilling story of the chase.

"You want a story of the chase, eh?" repeated Timins. "Well, I'll tell you about the greatest bit of chasin I ever did in my life. I wuz out huntin one day fer quail with my ole muzzle loadin shotgun, when three quail jumped up out of a bush right ahead of me. One flew to the right, one to the left and the other straight ahead, but I got 'em all three."

"Killed three quail going in different directions with a muzzle loading shotgun?" repeated one of his listeners incredulously.

"Yep; that's what I done."

"Your gun must have had three barrels then."

"Nop; only two."

"How did you do it?"

"Well, I killed the one that went to the right with the right barrel; then, quick as a flash, I killed the one that went to the left with the other barrel; then I took after the one that went straight ahead and knocked the stuffin out of it with the ramrod."

"I wouldn't believe that if I told it myself," declared one of the assemblage.

"Huh! That ain't nothin. I killed six quail with one barrel once, and they wuz all flyin in different directions."

"Run 'em all down?"

"Nop; never moved out o' my tracks. When they all started out o' the same bunch of grass, I held the gun away over to the right, and as it went off I swep' it aroun to the left. The result was that I slung shot in every direction, same as you can sling water outen a pan, and a little of the shot ketched ev'ry one."—San Francisco Post.

DEATH OF STAMBULOFF

Means That Bulgaria Has Lost Her Greatest Statesman.

Was Always a Most Bitter Enemy of Russia.

Plots, Counterplots and Hairbreadth Escapes During His Career.

SOFIA, July 19.—Premier Stambuloff, who was assassinated in the street on Monday, died yesterday morning from the terrible wounds he received at the hands of his assailants.

It has fallen to the lot of but few men to be so loved and so hated as Stefan Nicolof Stambuloff, and to have won such world-wide renown at the age of 42. He was born in Tirnova in 1853. His family wished him to lead an ecclesiastical career, and he was sent to the great seminary at Odessa to study theology. The uprising in Bosnia and Herzogovina, which was the forerunner of the great conflict of 1877, occurred soon after young Stambuloff began his studies, and he at once ran away from the seminary to join in the coming fray.

Stambuloff's first object was to start an insurrectionary movement in Bulgaria, and his associates were forced to seek refuge in Bucharest. There they continued their plottings, and when the war of 1877-78 between Russia and Turkey opened, Stambuloff joined the Russian army as a volunteer. Thus since his 17th year he has been the hero of plots and counterplots, of daring adventures and of hairbreadth escapes.

Some of Stambuloff's comrades died as Bulgarian volunteers in the war. Some have been sent into exile with the sign-manual of their quondam friend and comrade, Stambuloff, upon the warrant of their banishment. Some have been broken in heart and spirit by the bastinado administered by Stambuloff's order; some by long imprisonment in the black mosque. Others have been shot for treason by his order. Of all the band Stambuloff alone survived.

Stambuloff Alone Survived.

M. Stambuloff became, after the election of Alexander I as Prince of Bulgaria, with M. Karaveloff, one of the chiefs of the Liberal party. In 1884, when the latter resigned the presidency of the Sobranje to form a ministry, M. Stambuloff was elected president of the assembly. He remained two years in this position; and when the conspiracy against Prince Alexander was exposed at Sofia, Aug. 21, 1886, he formed a counter government against the revolutionary government of M. Zankoff, which was overturned at the end of that day.

Prince Alexander intended to return to Bulgaria, and M. Stambuloff was charged with the conduct of a deputation to meet him at Rustchuk. Prince Alexander, believing that he was compelled to abdicate on account of the hostile attitude of Russia, MM. Stambuloff, Karaveloff and Moutkouroff were named regents on Sept. 7. From that moment M. Stambuloff has not ceased to play the chief part in the direction of affairs in Bulgaria, and the destiny of the principality appeared to rest upon his shoulders.

From the instant of his accession to power he has distinguished himself by his constant opposition to the meddling of Russia in the questions of the domestic politics of Bulgaria and by his repeated attempts toward securing his father-land's

Independence From Turkey.

Many of the chief statesmen of Bulgaria have paid the price of their opposition to Stambuloff by their death. Probably the most notorious conspiracy was that of Major Panitza, discovered in February, 1890. The long trial that followed resulted in the condemnation of Major Panitza to death, and he was shot on June 20, despite the efforts of almost the whole of Europe.

The year following, the assassination of M. Beltcheff by a murderer who wished to kill M. Stambuloff himself (March 27, 1891), gave place to a trial productive of many startling incidents and ending in bloodshed again. There were implicated in this affair many of the principal men of the country.

It terminated in the condemnation to death of four of the accused, and in the sentencing of M. Karaveloff to five years' imprisonment. Six others of the accused received lighter sentences.

Throughout the whole of Europe indignant protestations went up against the result of this trial, but Stambuloff was not to be moved by threat or persuasion, and the quadruple execution took place eight days after the sentence, on July 26.

In spite of the fact that these executions at one time threatened to embroil the whole of Europe in war, M. Stambuloff continued his course of at every possible opportunity, and of provoking the wrath of all countries in sympathy with her. Under a trivial pretext he brought about the expulsion of a French correspondent and refused all reparation to the French minister of foreign affairs, who therefore suspended all relations with the Bulgarian government. This was on Dec. 13, 1891.

The cabinet of M. Stambuloff shortly afterward defied Turkey about a question of tribute. His next move, made possible by the patronage of England and of Austria, was to have the Bulgarian loans admitted to the official quotations on the bourses of London and Vienna. He then caused the sobranje to vote a pension for life to ex-Prince Alexander I as a souvenir of the victory of Olivnitza.

A last act, a triumph of politics, was the marriage of Prince Ferdinand with Princess Marie Louise of Parma. This was solemnized on April 20, 1893, at the Villa Pianore, her father the Duke of Parma's residence, near Viarregio. On this occasion Stambuloff recommenced, without success, his attempts to get the powers to recognize the independence of Bulgaria. The wedding was hardly over when he compelled the sobranje, on account of the religion of the new princess, to vote for a revision of the constitution, which held that the successor to the Bulgarian throne must be a member of the Greek faith.

The methods M. Stambuloff used to squelch the clergy on this occasion again aroused the Russian wrath, and called forth a significant admonition through the St. Petersburg Messenger, the organ of the Russian government. Stambuloff further fostered the idea of Bulgarian independence, which it was his his life work to achieve, by having the remains of Prince Alexander interred in Bulgarian soil.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 21. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—A clean life.—Ps. cxix, 9-16. (A temperance topic.)

The question of the Psalmist in the first verse of the topical reference, "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way?" implies that the way or the life is unclean. This is in the unregenerate state the case. We are born in sin. The natural heart is sinful and corrupt, for "it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." An unclean life is the necessary consequence of an unclean heart, as an impure stream must follow an impure fountain.

The importance of a pure, holy, honest, upright life cannot be estimated. It is the one thing above all others that should be desired and earnestly sought after. Nothing will compensate us for a loss of it. It is of inestimable value even from the standpoint of this present life, not to consider the fact of its tremendous importance in view of the fact that nothing unclean can enter into the kingdom of heaven. If a clean life is of so much importance, we may well ask, How may we have clean lives? This question is particularly applicable to the young, for then it is that the character of the life is formed, and then it is easier, too, if mistakes have been made to rectify them and to make the life clean.

The Psalmist here lays down the only true rule or principle for a clean life—namely, that we take heed to the word of God, that we square our lives by God's word, that we live in accordance with it. God's word is the only true solution of the problem of a true life. It transcends all human philosophy and ethics of men in that it applies the ax at the root of the tree, demanding that first of all the heart, the inward life must be clean. The Bible solution is regeneration—change of heart—rather than reformation, simply a change in the form of life. The logic of this standard is apparent to all. You can no more make a clean man by changing his form of life than you can cure a consumptive by putting on him a new suit of clothes. Given a clean heart and a clean life necessarily follows; without the first, the second is impossible.

To be effective in cleansing the life God's word must be laid up in the heart. It must be studied and meditated upon, and it must be practiced in the daily life. Let us devote more time to God's word that we may keep the heart pure and the life clean.

Bible Readings.—Lev. xi, 45; xx, 7, 8; Deut. vi, 17, 18; Ps. xvi, 11; xxiv, 3, 4; xxxvii, 31; li, 10; cxix, 19-24; Prov. iv, 25, 26; Isa. xxxiii, 14-16; xxxv, 8; Math. xxiii, 25, 26; John xv, 3, 4; Gal. v, 19-21; Eph. vi, 10-18; Phil. iv, 8, 9; Col. iii, 5, 6; I Tim. iv, 8; v, 22; Heb. xii, 13, 14; I John iii, 2-4; Rev. xxi, 27.

FABLE OF THE THREE CHURCHES.

How the Good Angel Christian Endeavor Brought Them Together.

Once upon a time—a long, long while ago, before the Christian Endeavor movement—there were three churches, built side by side. Tall board fences parted them the one from the other. Each was conspicuously placarded, the one with "We," the second with "Us," and the third with "Our," thus signifying to all beholders that the churches belonged to the denominations then known as Weists, Usites and Ourians.

But the churches were empty. So the Weist preacher stood in front of his church urging folks to come in, constantly proclaiming, "We are the people!" And the Usite preacher stood in front of his church, continually crying, "Come to Us!" And the Ourian preacher stood in front of his church, ceaselessly reiterating, "Ours only!" And in the pauses of these calls they shook their fists at one another.

All this, remember, was long, long ago, before the Christian Endeavor movement.

Now and then a man would stop, attracted by the noise, would look perplexed from the Weist to the Usite, and from the Usite to the Ourian, then shrug his shoulders and pass on his way. So the churches remained empty.

But one glad day Christian Endeavor came along—a beautiful, strong angel, with the most loving eyes and the most eager, outstretched hands—and he drew these three men to himself, and they held a little prayer meeting all together in one of the churches, it does not matter which. As they came out of that meeting, they all went to work and pulled down the high board fences. Then they tore off the three signs, "We," "Us" and "Our." Then all three took up their old positions, with Christian Endeavor, on the sidewalk in front of their churches and began to invite the people in. And the Weist cried, "Christ is the Saviour!" And the Usite cried, "Come to Christ!" And the Ourian cried, "Christ only!" And every once in awhile they held another prayer meeting in one of the churches, turn about.

And you should have seen the people flocking in! Some to this church, some to that, according to their individual preference, but all to Christ. And often the crowds were so large that they had to go forth and hold a union outdoor service in the square in front. And so the three churches flourish to this day. —Caleb Cobweb in Golden Rule.

His Love Sustains.

The Rev. E. L. Clark, D. D., in connection with an impressive Good Friday service at Boston, offered a most uplifting prayer. One sentence was, "When we enter our Gethsemane and God Himself seems lost, may the thought and love of Thy dear Son sustain and steady us."

With Jesus.

With Jesus, yes, with Jesus—
Are any words so blest?
With Jesus—everlasting joy
And everlasting rest!
With Jesus—all the empty heart
Filled with His perfect love.
With Jesus—perfect peace below
And perfect bliss above!

SWITHIN BROS.,
Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

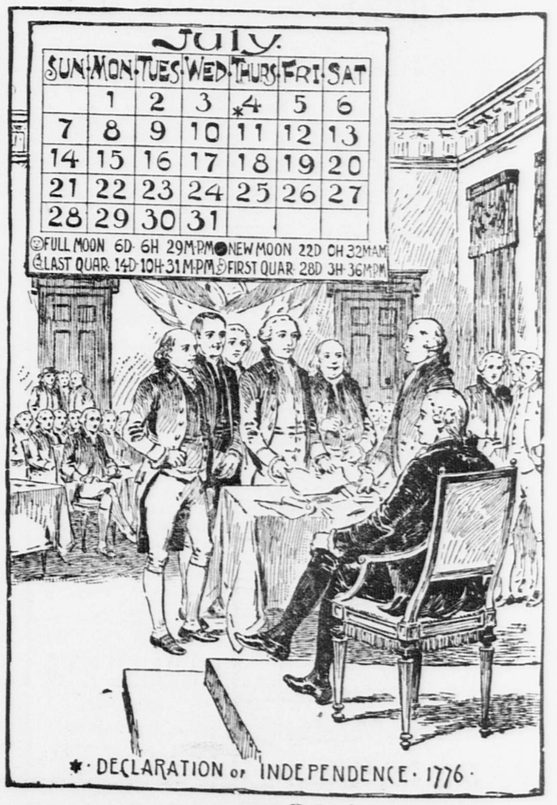

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

BOND CASE REVIVED.

Alleged Forgery Promises to Furnish a Fresh Sensation.

The Defendant Determined to Fight the Case.

What Interested Parties Have to Say Regarding the Pending Lawsuit.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 20.—The little town of Newton, N. H., is again stirred up over those famous alleged forged bonds. Suit has been brought against the town by H. J. Johnson of Haverhill, who holds a $500 bond against the town, which he presented for payment when it became due last April, and upon which the town treasurer, Dr. J. F. Axtell, refused payment on the ground that the bond was not genuine, as two of the gentlemen whose names were on it felt confident that the signatures were forged.

It was expected that some legal proceedings would be taken against the town to recover the amount of the bond which it refused to pay, but as the months slipped by and nothing was heard of it the matter quieted down.

It was reopened again, however, quite unexpectedly on Thursday when the high sheriff of Rockingham county, George W. Weston, made his appearance in town, calling upon John Rowell, one of the selectmen, and serving a summons for the town to appear before the supreme court next October to be held at Portsmouth.

H. J. Johnson, through his attorney, Arthur O. Fuller, brings suit to recover the amount of the $500 and interest on the last coupon, also damages to the amount of $1000. The sheriff also served notice for Lawyer Johnson that he would take depositions at his office on Sept. 11. Sheriff Weston also summoned Harvey N. Gould to appear and tell what he knew in regard to the bonds.

Mr. Gould Expresses Surprise.

Harvey N. Gould when asked if he had heard that the town had been sued, seemed very much surprised, and replied that he had heard nothing and did not think that it would be. He was asked in regard to being summoned by Sheriff Weston, and he professed to know nothing about it whatever.

Chairman Henry Nichols was also interviewed. He said he did not think the town would pay the bond without a big fight. There was very little doubt but that the bond was forged, as Mr. Wilder and Mr. Peaslee were both sure that they had never signed the bond which Mr. Johnson presented. Mr. Nichols said they had plenty of time to get ready, and he thought they might take some depositions before the court set, and present them.

He called it pretty rough for the town to be called upon to go to all this expense over what there was little doubt was a forged bond. They had paid up the $20,000 bonds issued, with the interest, and there could not have been any extra bonds without some one having known about them. In regard to who could have issued the bonds, Mr. Nichols would have little to say, but if the court should decide in their favor, things would be made very warm for some parties there in town. The best of counsel will be employed by the town, and the case will be fought to the end.

Vermont Merchant Missing.

PINE POINT, Me., July 20.—J. J. Whalen, aged 35, a hardware dealer of Burlington, Vt., who was spending the summer with his family here, mysterlously disappeared Thursday. He went to the station intending to take the train for Old Orchard, but was not seen at the station or Old Ordhard. Residents have thoroughly searched the neighborhood, but no trace of him was found. Having over $100 about him he may have been robbed, and possibly murdered. He was strictly temperate and in good health.

Steamer's Owners Must Settle.

BOSTON, July 20.—Judge Nelson has ordered a decree, in the case of Hendry et al., owners of the schooner Golden Rule, vs. the steamer Chattahoochee, for libellants for one-half the value of their vessel and the full value of her cargo, with the usual right to recoup. The suit was brought because of a collision July 29, 1894, south of Nantucket Shoals. The Golden Rule, which was bound for Boston with a $16,000 cargo, was sunk. She is alleged to have been worth $16,000.

Ready For Knights Templars.

BOSTON, July 20.—The 26th triennial conclave of the grand encampment of Knights Templars of the United States of America, which convenes in this city Aug. 27, will draw hither thousands of sir knights. For their reception and entertainment a committee, under the chairmanship of Samuel C. Lawrence, grand commander, has been at work almost from the very hour the grand encampment accepted the invitation extended at Detroit by the representatives of the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Wilkinson Will Probated.

BOSTON, July 20.—The will of Martha W. Wilkinson, widow of Arthur Wilkinson of Cambridge, has been filed in the Middlesex probate court. About $80,000 are left in private bequests and over $50,000 for public bequests. The wife of Rev. Edward Abbott of Cambridge and Arthur Wilkinson Dunning of Los Angeles are her nearest of kin. Mr. Dunning has been left $50,000, to be held in trust until he is 35 years old, the income to be paid him until he attains that age.

Pierce's Property Attached.

NASHUA, N. H., July 20.—The Indian Head National bank has attached all the property in sight in Hillsboro belonging to Frank H. Pierce of Vancouver, B. C. Frank A. McKean, the bank's defaulting cashier, recently sent papers here from British Columbia in an endeavor to cancel the notes of Pierce held by the bank. This was the first actual information receive from McKean since his flight.

Dangers of the Deep.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 20.—Captain Wharton of schooner Virginia, just in from the banks, reports the loss by drowning July 4 of Arthur Cosby, aged 24, while hauling trawls. Captain Flecker, of schooner Henry W. Stanley, from the banks, reports the loss of two of her crew in the fog July 8. They were John Benson, 22, a native of Sweden, and Carl Sandstrom, 24, of Finland.

Marion Cleveland.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 20.—The name of the third daughter to President and Mrs. Cleveland was officially announced yesterday by Secretary Thurber. It is Marion, the sweet name of the beautiful town that stretches far out into Buzzard's Bay and the town where the president and his wife passed several months prior to their selection of Gray Gables for a summer residence.

Result Not Satisfactory.

PROVIDENCE, July 20.—The increase in wages granted the operatives of the Atlantic mills went into effect yesterday. The overseers personally informed each operative what his or her increase would be. The result is not satisfactory to the operatives. They say it is an equalization and not an increase, and only the poorest paid will get the benefit.

Strikers to Resume Work.

PROVIDENCE, July 20.—The strike at the Geneva mills was declared off at a meeting of the strikers yesterday. It was voted to go to work after conference with Mr. Ullman, owner of the mill. He agreed to take back as many of the strikers as could be accommodated, but declined to discharge the 10 weavers working there.

Increased Loan Favored.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 20.—The matter of increasing the loan for a new armory from $100,000 to $125,000 was the subject of a lively hearing before the city council last night. There was unanimous opposition to the site selected in the park land and in favor of an increased loan to secure a more central location.

Claims to Be a Student.

BOSTON, July 20.—Harry G. Green, a lad of 16 years, who claims to be a student at the University of Pennsylvania, and to live in Harrisburg, is under arrest here for swindling hotels of this city out of board. The proprietors of the Brunswick, Copley Square, Thorndike and American are among the victims.

Defender's Sail Mystery.

PROVIDENCE, July 20.—Conditions are very quiet around Infantry hall where the Defender's sails are being made. Workmen are seen going into the building, so work has probably begun, the sailcloth having all arrived. Greater secrecy is maintained than during the construction of the hull at Bristol.

McAllister at the Head.

THE WEIRS, N. H., July 20.—The annual meeting of the directors of the State Baptist Grove Meeting association was held yesterday, when these officers were elected: President, W. C. McAllister; vice president, F. A. Hawley; secretary, Rev. D. C. Easton; treasurer, Rev. Woodman Bradbury.

Victim of Ericsson Explosion.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 20.—John Strinsky, the most severely burned of the engineer crew of the torpedo boat Ericsson, died last night. William Merwin, the most severely burned next to Strinsky, is still in a precarious condition, with recovery doubtful. The other men are doing well.

Alleged Thieves Arrested.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 20. — Frank Roberts, formerly a brakeman in the railroad yard here, has been arrested for alleged breaking into freight cars and stealing articles therefrom. Wallace McLellan, conductor of the yard shifter, has also been arrested.

Grant's Annuity Settled.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 20.—In the case of W. S. Grant vs. W. W. Bradstreet et al. of Gardiner, the court hands down the decision that Bradstreet must pay Grant $1000 yearly, which Bradstreet promised his millionaire brother, Peter, now deceased, he would do.

Schooner In Luck.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 20.—Schooner Josie M. Caldwell brought here yesterday $1000 worth of canned lobsters, picked up adrift off Beaver Light, N. S. They were part of the cargo of the schooner Valorous, run down by the steamer Louisburg.

Header May Prove Fatal.

LOWELL, Mass., July 20.—Roffle Coram, 8 years old, while coasting on his bicycle yesterday, took a header and was picked up unconscious. At midnight he had not regained consciousness, and his recovery is doubtful.

Spinners Accept Terms.

LOWELL, Mass., July 20. — The mule spinners at a meeting last night voted to accept the increase in wages announced in notices posted in all the mills. It will be about 6 per cent and general in effect.

Vote Not to Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 20. — The slasher tenders at their meeting last night voted to reconsider action whereby they voted to strike. It was then voted definitely not to strike.

Buffalo Wants 1896 Republican Convention.

BUFFALO, July 20.—Under the chairmanship of the editor of The Evening News, representative Republican citizens began the preliminary work as a committee to secure the national Republican convention for this city in 1896.

Wind Storm In Minchigan.

ST. CLAIR, Mich., July 20.—A terrific storm of wind struck here yesterday with hurricane velocity. Several yachts are said to have been overturned in the river, and two children were crushed to death under a falling chimney.

Defy the Authorities.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 20.—Miners employed at Cerro Delero, to the number of 200, yesterday rose in revolt against their employers, fortified themselves and are now defying the authorities.

IDENTIFIED BY MOTHER

Remains Unearthed at Toronto Those of the Pitzel Children.

More Evidence Against Murderer Holmes.

Another Ghastly Find by Chicago Detectives Fixes More Crime Against Him.

TORONTO, July 20. — Mrs. Pitzel has identified the bodies of the two children found Monday night last in the cellar of St. Vincent street as those of her girls, Alice and Nellie. The latter she identified by her hair and the former by a peculiarity of the upper front teeth. Mrs. Pitzel broke down completely and sobbed and cried throughout the trying ordeal. Detectives Geyer of Philadelphia and Cuddy of the local staff and the doctors were perfectly satisfied with the identification.

The case which the Canadian authorities now have against Holmes is very complete, and many here believe that the prisoner will certainly be extradited.

The inquest on the body of Alice, the eldest girl, was resumed at the police court last night, and after several witnesses had been examined, was adjourned for a week.

More Evidence Against Holmes.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Another appalling crime will be laid at the door of H. H. Holmes, the notorious insurance windler, and the alleged murderer of the Pitzels. That Minnie Williams of Fort Worth met her death at the hands of Holmes there is scarcely a doubt. That she died in this city in a violent manner has been proven almost conclusively.

Late last night the police found in a stove in the three story brick building at 701 Sixty-third street, which was built by Holmes, and in which both he and the Williams girl lived, a quantity of charred bones, buttons known to have been on a dress owned by Minnie Williams and a partly melted portion of a watch chain, which was positively identified as having been the property of the girl.

The chain was instantly recognized by C. F. Davis, who occupies a portion of the store formerly used by Holmes when he was in the drug business, as one he had seen Miss Williams wear, and which he had on two separate occasions repaired for her. Davis also claimed to recognize the buttons as those he had seen on a dress worn by Miss Williams.

The ghastly discovery was made late last night by a force of detectives working under the command of Inspector Fitzpatrick, and who had all day been at work searching the building from cellar to garret. The floors were taken up in parts, the wall were sounded and the big iron vault carefully inspected. The walls of the vault were found to be heavily packed with asbestos, which the police believe was placed there for the purpose of deadening sound.

What the Search Revealed.

The search of the house was undertaken by the police, who yesterday received a communication from the Philadelphia authorities. The building was carefully gone over, and the dummy elevator which ran from the top floor of the building, where Holmes had his office, to the basement without exit on the intervening floors, was tried and worked in every possible manner.

On the top floor, in the room which was used by Holmes as an office, stood an immense stove, fully eight feet high and three feet in diameter, with a door sufficiently large to admit of the admission of a human body into the interior. This stove had in the former examinations been entirely overlooked.

Inspector Fitzpatrick opened the door and poked carelessly among the debris with his cane. Almost the first thing he turned up was a human bone, badly charred. He hastily jointed it out and found that it was, beyond all question, a human rib of an adult. The contents of the stove were then taken out. All of the ashes and debris removed from the stove were carefully preserved and taken to the police station, where a more careful examination will made of them.

The police are now of the opinion that not only Minnie Williams, but her younger sister Anna, and the boy Howard Pitzel met death in this house. They will renew the search of the house, beginning with the basement, which will be carefully dug up. They are of the opinion that they will find either the body of Anna Williams or that of Howard Pitzel before they have concluded their work.

Bank Officials in Trouble.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 20.—Information was laid last evening against Sir Robert Thorburn, Hon. A. W. Harvey, Walter P. Grieve and W. J. S. Donnelly, directors, and C. S. Pinsent, manager of the Union bank, which went down in the financial crisis last winter, charging them with presenting a false statement of the affairs of the bank for the year ending May, 1895. The proceeding has created a great sensation here.

Woods Badly Beaten.

MONTREAL, July 20.—In the battle between Steve O'Donnell and Billy Woods of Denver, Woods was nearly knocked out in the fifth round by a blow in the stomach, and throughout the remainder of the 15 rounds Woods was completely at O'Donnell's mercy. At the end of the final round, Woods was unconscious and was dragged out of the ring.

American Schooner Seized.

ST. ANDREW'S, N. B., July 20.—American schooner E. A. Lambert was seized here by a customs detective. The offense alleged is landing goods without permit. Arrangements are being made to raise the amount of the fine by parties interested.

Blue Hill Predictions.

Sa	Su	Mo	Tu	W	Th	Fri	Sa
20	21	22	23	24	25	26	27

During the coming week the warmest days will probably be from the 23d to the 25th, and the coolest, the 21st and 26th. The week will probably average warmer than normal. Showers are most probable on the night of the 20th, and on the 23d; possibly also on the afternoon of the 25th. The week will probably be dryer, and more sunny than the past two weeks. The 26th promises to be clear and cool, probably the coolest of the week.—Norfolk County Gazette.

Old Rivalry Continues.

John T. Cavanagh has accepted the challenge of Charles F. Bache, owner of Harbinger, to sail Beatrice a series of races under the measurement rules and regulations now used in our open races. One race to be sailed to windward and return, one over a triangular course, the third to be agreed upon; the time limit to be the same as used in all open regattas, 3 1-2 hours. He suggests that Emma C., Ida J. and Reynard enter this race and sail for a purse of $500.

THE SOCIAL REALM.

Ladies' Day of Quincy Yacht Club the Event of Week.

The Quincy Yacht club observed Ladies' day Monday afternoon, and all the members and their ladies made the club house lively. The sailing breeze was a little stiff, but that did not prevent most of the ladies from enjoying a sail. The gowns were of every color, white duck or duck trimmings being the favorite and the ladies looked very natty and pretty. In fact no ladies' day in the other clubs along the shore can make a more charming showing. Space will not allow us to mention all the gowns and it is almost impossible to pick out the prettiest. Many changed their yachting suits for the fluffy muslins and soft silks for the hop in the evening. The whole affair was one of the most enjoyable and best managed ladies' day ever given by the club.

Councilman and Mrs. E. H. Sprague of Wollaston leave today for a trip to Montreal.

It will be a surprise to people to learn that Rev. Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston, assistant pastor Berkeley Temple, has resigned his position as associate pastor, the resignation to take effect Oct. 1. Mr. Tobey's greatest work outside of his immediate pastoral duties has been done in connection with the Floating Hospital. His reason for leaving the Temple are that the work has grown to an extent beyond his present physical ability to manage in connection with the large pastoral duties demanded of him at Berkeley Temple. An extended vacation becomes absolutely necessary.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

A number of Quincy people participated in the excursion to Nantucket Friday.

County Treasurer Smith negotiated a loan of $60,000 at 2 1-2 per cent this week.

Observer Clayton of Blue Hill predicts that the coming week will be dryer and more sunny.

Mr. Henry E. Rich, a well known young man of Payne street, died today of consumption in his 38th year.

The last session of Norfolk county probate court previous to September will be held at Hyde Park next Wednesday.

A party of Quincy gentlemen are going to try the fish at North Easton next Tuesday. Fish will probably be plenty when they return.

It was the West Quincy band which gave the concert at the junction of School and Franklin streets last evening, attracting quite a number of people.

The two hotels of the city have become quite popular with bicyclists who are touring on their wheels and every day sees the names of some of them on the register.

The Sunday morning service at the Point church will be of especial interest to the Christian Endeavor, as the sermon will be designed especially for the Christian Endeavor and their friends.

Timothy E. Finn, a stone cutter of Blue Hill, Me., who was rendered blind by a blast at Green Island, is in town soliciting aid for an operation. He comes from Rockport, where a goodly sum was collected.

Officers Ferguson and Bradley commence their vacations today. Officer Canavan takes Officer Ferguson's place in the Centre, Officer Murray goes to West Quincy and Officer Newcomb to Brewers corner.

Mr. Theophilus King is entertaining a party of about forty young men at the beach this afternoon. They are members of the Young Peoples Society of Christian Endeavor. The hay rack ride to and fro was much enjoyed.

"The Evangelization of Italy" will be the subject of an address Sunday afternoon at 3.30 in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. The speaker will be Mr. Agide Pirazzini, of Rome, Italy, who will tell the story of his own remarkable conversion.

The Finlanders of this city are to have a grand time tonight when two of their people are to be united in marriage. The ceremony will be performed at "The Rail" after which an adjournment will be made to Foresters' Hall where a dance will be held.

A band concert was given in Mattapan on the evening of July 11 by the Atlantic band. The playing was very fine and it drew one of the largest audiences that Mattapan has ever seen. The electric cars from all points were crowded. There were also fireworks and illumination of the river at the dam.—Hyde Park Times.

A. O. H. PICNIC.

A Large Gathering Today at Lovell's Grove.

The annual picnic of Division 5, A. O. H., is being held at Lovell's grove today and a large crowd is in attendance. This morning the Division formed on Water street and shortly after 10 o'clock headed by the National band marched nearly 100 strong to West Quincy and thence to the centre where cars were taken for the grove.

The programme consists of a series of sports for which prizes will be given the winners. One of the events that will attract attention will be the game of ball between the Quincys and South Quincys for a purse of $50 and a hot game may be expected.

Dancing will be in order in the Pavilion from 1 to 8 o'clock.

Think of This. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only true blood purifier preeminently in the public eye today. It cures disease when all others fail, because it makes pure blood.

Hood's Pills cure jaundice, billiousness, sick headache, constipation and all liver ills.

☞ The largest room in the world is the room for improvement. We can see no room for improvement in Taylor's Anti-Headache Powders, for they beat any other powder now before the public. They are guaranteed absolutely harmless and will cure any headache in a few minutes. And being a purely vegetable compound, they can be taken as often as desired. At L. J. Pastor, Ph. G., 27 School street, Quincy. tf

THE NEW BELL.

It Will be Rung Tonight and Dedicatory Services Held.

As has been previously announced in the LEDGER the new bell on the Swedish Lutheran church on Granite street will be dedicated today. The church has been very prettily decorated for the occasion which will be a memorable one to the church people.

The exercises will be held between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock and will, briefly stated, consist of speaking by the pastor and others, singing, and music by the Swedish band. The bell will be rung for the first time and the whole will end with a supper.

The work was begun some time ago by two auxilliary societies of the church, to raise the necessary funds, but when Henry H. Faxon, Esq., heard of the effort, he generously volunteered to give the necessary $350. It was afterwards learned that this sum would procure a bell of about the same weight as the one on the Congregational church, which weighs 1794 pounds, and is in the key of F sharp. The bell on the First church weighs 3077 pounds and is in the key of D. Mr. Faxon added $50 to the $350 and a bell weighing 2267 in E was was secured.

The bell will be rung for the services on Sunday, and after a new plan for Quincy. For the morning service at 10.30 it will ring at 10 for five minutes; at 10.15 for four minutes and at 10.30 for three minutes. For the evening service at 7.30 it will ring at 7 and 7.30.

The more bells the merrier, and we congratulate the young society. Many older churches are without bells.

Monday's LEDGER will contain a full report of the dedication together with the inscription on the bell and a brief history of the struggle for existence of this church up to the present time, and every Swedish resident of the city should secure a copy to save as a memorial of the occasion.

Lovell's Grove Improved.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

We are pleased to note the grand success attending the new management of Lovell's grove. A party of us from East Weymouth visited the delightful spot and were surprised to see how much the place had improved. We found strict order prevailed, and there was none of the rough element by which the place was formerly run, as no liquors of the kind to demoralize were allowed on the premises. The boating and bathing facilities are wonderfully improved, and bowling is enjoyed on alleys second to none in or out of Boston. The new dance hall seems to be appreciated under the direction of Mr. Daley, and also the cafe presided over by Mr. Rose. The new management should meet with the success they so richly deserve.

Scrofula Bunches

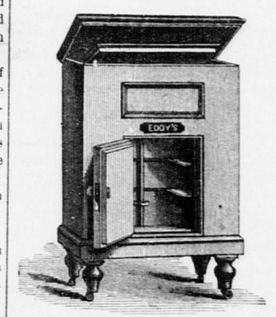

Formed on my neck and humor broke out on my face. Sores came on my forehead and caused me much suffering. I took my doctor's prescriptions for the blood and other troubles, without much benefit. The scrofula not improving I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla upon the recommendation of my friends, and it has effected a permanent cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla has also given me strength and renewed health. I gladly recommend it as an effective blood medicine." MISS CARRIE M. WELLS, Sanbornton, N. H. P. O. address, Laconia.

FINE GRANITE WORK.
Memorial to the Late C. H. Hardwick —Granite Chips.
There are many handsome memorial at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, but there are few that will attract more attention than the sarcophagus monument erected on the Hardwick lot in the new part this week by C. H. Hardwick & Co. It is a massive structure and is of Hardwick's best Quincy granite and was cut at that firm's works in this city.
It consists of three bases, a die, plinth and cap. The bottom base is of fine cut work beveled and is 8-01x5-4. The second and third bases are beveled and are polished on four sides.
On the four corners of the die are highly polished columns with carved capitals, and on the front in a panel is the name "Hardwick" in raised polished old English letters. The four sides of the plinth are exquisitively carved and are very handsome, while the four sides of the cap are polished and the top is fine cut work. On the front there is a flight of three steps cut from one block of granite the balustrade being polished. Besides the monument itself four handsome markers have been placed on the lot.
The quantity of rough Westerly stock in the yards of Malanti Bros., is evidence that they are doing some business.
Few are the cutting sheds one enters now-a-days that the buzz of the pneumatic tools is not heard.
The Craig & Richards Granite Co. have a large number of finished Quincy granite monuments set up in their yard.
When the western men visit Quincy next month they will have the opportunity to see many handsome monuments that are now being cut but will be completed at that time.
The quarry railroad has passed the experimental point and has proved that the projectors were wise in building the road. They are shipping large quantities of rough stock every day, which will result in cleaning off a large quantity of grout which has been accummulating for years, and will also clear off the poor stock from the top of the numerous quarries.
The Lyons Granite Co. has also proved a success and they are turning out a large amount of work. They have recently declared their first dividend of $2 per share.

Stolen Team Recovered.
Monday a young man hired a team at Hall's stable but failed to return. The matter was reported to Chief of Police Hayden who detailed Inspector McKay on the case, who became convinced that the team was in Boston. A warrant was issued and Friday the team was recovered in a stable at Roxbury where it had been put up. The parents of the young man are trying to settle the matter out of court.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Poor Playing and Favorable Umpiring Win a Game For Boston.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Captain Nash's men easily turned the tables on "Pop" Anson, winning a rattling good game by a score of 5 to 3. It will take none of the credit away from the visitors when it is stated that good fortune, better known as luck, was all with the Bostons, and that Umpires Galvin and Jevne made at least four decisions in their favor that were big factors in the run-getting.

CHAPMAN RE-ELECTED

At the Young People's Baptist Convention at Baltimore---Milwaukee Honored.

BALTIMORE, July 20.—The proceedings of the second day of the Baptist Young People's convention began with six prayer meetings in various parts of the city. The mammoth tent at Druid Hill park was fairly well filled yesterday, and the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. L. O. Dawson of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The past year has been marked by gratifying improvements in all departments of this great organization. The Christian culture courses were strongly commended by the report, and every union was urged to take up these courses of study.

The nominating committee in its report recommended the re-election of President John H. Chapman. Mr. Chapman made a stirring address of thanks to the convention and the nominating committee for the honor it and they had conferred upon him. The only change in the list of vice presidents was the substitution of Philip F. Botzong of New Jersey for Frank Harveyfield of New York. Rev. H. W. Reed of Waukegon, Ills., succeeds A. M. Brinckle of Philadelphia as recording secretary. Frank Moody of Milwaukee and Rev. F. L. Wilkins, D.D., of Chicago, were renominated as treasurer and general secretary, respectively. The executive committee was also renominated.

The charms of Providence were set forth and its claims for the convention next year was backed up by all New England.

The board of managers nominated for the term ending 1898 included E. B. Boynton, Connecticut; Rev. J. B. Ilsley, Maine; A. W. Hand, New Hampshire; Rev. J. V. Osterhoul, Rhode Island.

The nominating committee's report was adopted, thus electing the entire ticket named by it.

At 1 o'clock this morning the board of managers voted to hold the international convention in Milwaukee in 1896 and in Brooklyn in 1897.

Postponement of Peace Congress Announced.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood has received a cable from the president of the International Peace association announcing that the peace conference which was to have been held Aug. 16 at Scheningven has been postponed until next spring. The parliamentary peace congress, composed of members of parliament, will be held at Brussels, Aug. 18.

Arrested For Stambuloff's Assassination.

SOFIA, July 20.—Three of the associates of Major Panitiza, who was executed for conspiracy at the order of the late ex-Premier Stambuloff, were arrested yesterday—one as the assassin of Stambuloff and the others as accomplices. Three gens d'armes have been dismissed from the force and will be tried for connection with the murder.

MILLIONS OF BIBLES.

The Work of the American Bible Society For the Past Year.

The seventy-ninth annual report of the American Bible society, which covers the work of that organization in printing and circulating the Scriptures during the past year, has just been published. The society has distributed more volumes in China during the year than in any preceding year since it began its operations there. In Japan, too, the Bible committee has been able to accomplish a great deal of work among the soldiers of the Japanese army. More than 1,500,000 Bibles, Testaments and integral portions of the Bible were printed by the society within the year, and over 1,000,000 of them were printed on the presses in the Bible House, New York, and more than 500,000 were printed in foreign lands. Through purchases of additional volumes the total number printed and procured by the society amounted to 1,958,674 copies. Of these 947,103 volumes were issued from the Bible House and 634,025 in foreign lands. Of the volumes issued from the Bible house 101,196 copies were sent to foreign lands and are not counted among the issues in foreign countries.

Of the issues of 947,103 volumes from the Bible House 845,907 have been for the home supply. On account of the falling off of the receipts the society was compelled to restrict its colportage work to a considerable extent. Only 27 colporteurs have been employed for the whole or a part of the year in 12 states and two territories. The colporteurs visited 71,073 families and found 12,634 without the Scriptures. The number of families visited by the American Bible society and its auxiliaries was 516,798, of which 119,244 were found to be without the Scriptures. Destitute families were supplied to the number of 34,299, and individuals in addition to the number of 19,982.

SUSAN'S LAST DITCH.

How the Woman Suffragists Have Taken the Bull by the Horns.

Susan B. Anthony has assumed a position that is truly advanced. At a large gathering of equal suffrage women in Topeka, she drafted and had passed a resolution setting forth that, as the men of Kansas had refused to permit women to vote, it was the duty of every self respecting woman in the state to fold her hands and refuse to help any moral, religious or charitable reform until the adjective "male" is stricken from the constitution.

This resolution, which received a unanimous vote, will do more, if carried out conscientiously, than anything woman has yet done to liberate her sex from the irksome duties that appertain to a moral, religious or charitable life. Susan, to put it plainly, has taken the suffrage bull by the horns. When a woman puts her foot down and says distinctly that if she cannot have her own way, then she will not bother about such things as moral, religious or charitable obligations, you may know, as the old saying is, that she doesn't care whether school keeps or not.

Viewed calmly, this is a straight cut to complete emancipation. The spectacle of 100,000 resolute Kansas women with their hands folded, stubbornly refusing to do unto others as they would be done by and dismissing all interest in their immortal souls to "get square" with man, is one to make the saints squirm and the devil chuckle.

Susan B. Anthony is a tireless fighter, and she appears to have taken to the last ditch.—New York World.

New Sort of Poker.

A new variation of poker has sprung up. It deals out the entire pack in equal numbers to all players. If five are playing, for example, each will get ten cards at the start. If seven are playing, each get seven, the three cards left over being put aside. Then, instead of drawing, each player discards as he likes from his hand so that he shall have five cards to play with, making the best hand possible out of those dealt him. Hands are apt to run high in this sort of game. It is called Peculiar.

A poker in which six cards were dealt, discards and draws being so regulated that only five cards constituted the final hand, has been known for some time, but this is a further development of that idea. It is said to have originated along the shores of Long Island.—New York Sun.

An Educated Spider.

Athens, Ga., has an educated spider which has aroused considerable interest. He wove a web on the lot of Mrs. Elizabeth Moon on Hickory street that has been the subject of study on the part of all who have seen it. The web is of a dark color, and across the center is a silvery strip resembling writing very much, not very unlike the chirography of lawyers and great men. A close examination of the writing revealed nearly every letter of the alphabet perfectly formed. The superstitious regard it as containing some kind of a message. The old spider who executed such an ingenious piece of work is nowhere to be found.—Atlanta Constitution.

Pear Tree Fruited With Apples.

A pear tree hanging full of apples is a freak of nature located on the old Dunklinson farm, two miles north of Saylor Spring, Ills. The farm is occupied by Captain George Elliott, who discovered the tree loaded with green apples a few days ago. This tree has borne pears of a fine quality for eight years in succession. People are coming from the surrounding country and towns to view this phenomena. Captain George Elliott and Police Judge Frank Van Houten vouch for the tree being pear and its now being fruited with apples. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

That Bicycle Face.

The weary look on the faces of bicyclers has been accounted for at last. They are pneumatically tired.—Boston Herald.

TODAY'S COURT.

James D. Taber of the Monatiquot house at North Weymouth was arraigned for cruelty to a dog.

Redman McNeil testified that on the day in question, July 16, a dog attached to a cart in which were two children stopped in front of Taber's place. Taber's dog ran out and began fighting the dog. Mr. Taber ran out and separated the dogs and then broke a chair over the dog. Witness then rushed in and pushed Mr. Taber away. The dog attached to the cart could not get away.

Several other witnesses to the affair told practically the same story.

Mr. Taber testified that he heard the dogs fighting and ran out, taking a pine chair with him as he went. He struck his own dog at which he left. The other dog then made several savage springs at him and he struck at him with the chair. He meant to hit him but did not and the chair was broken by coming in contact with the ground.

The court found Taber guilty and imposed a fine of $10.

William Walker was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until next Saturday.

John J. Crowley was arraigned for peddling without a license at Randolph and was fined $10.

Spelling Kitten.

A dear little girl
With her brain in a whirl,
Was asked the word "kitten" to spell.
"K double i t
T-e-n," said she,
And thought she had done very well.
"Has kitten two i's?"
And the teacher's surprise
With mirth and patience was bent.
"My kitten has two,"
Said Majory Lou.
And she looked as she felt—quite content.

The Director's Fee.

Nearly all the great financial concerns here pay the directors who attend board meetings $10 for each sitting, not counting lunch and cigars. Some men in this way pick up all the way from $5,000 to $10,000 a year, they being of the directory of several institutions or corporations. A bank president whose services are in demand as a director is authority for the statement that the fee is paid in gold and is given to the director the moment he enters the board room. And directors don't always direct at that.—New York Letter.

The Public's Own Fault.

THE BUSINESS REVIEW.

Conditions Considered Favorable to Activity In Trade Circles.

Canada's Crop Outlook Somewhat Discouraging.

Lower Prices For Corn and Wheat---How It Fares With the Industrials.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Bradstreet's today says: All the previously reported favorable industrial and commercial features are continued this week, the endurance of the revival in demand for iron and steel, the further advances in prices of the same and additional increases of wages of industrial employes being the most significant.

Notwithstanding the midsummer quiet in some lines of general trade, the volume of general business throughout the country is largely in excess of that of one year ago.

Grasshoppers and lack of rain have injured the crops in the province of Quebec, and in western Ontario the outlook is so unfavorable in some localities that cattle have been turned into wheat and hay fields.

General trade at Montreal is only fair, and requests for renewals have increased. Fears as to the consequences of the banking embarrassment there have subsided in large part. The general trade prospect there, as at Quebec city, is not as bright as it was 10 days ago. Business is quiet at Toronto, with a moderate improvement in demand, based on general crop prospects and the demand for wool from the United States. The outlook is favorable at Halifax, and fair at Prince Edward Island. Drought and forest fires have added to the disaster in Newfoundland, but the fishing season in that colony is said to have been uncommonly good.

What Dun & Co. Have to Say.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The week's news is not entirely encouraging, but is all the more natural because there are signs of midsummer dullness.

Wheat prospects are not quite so good as last week, but still there are lower prices, as corn and cotton have been lowered. The exports of gold and the less favorable treasury returns for July are not unexpected and mean nothing as to coming business. There is perceptible decrease in the demand for most manufactured products, and the actual distribution to consumers naturally lessen in midsummer. Much of the recent buying was to anticipate a rise in prices, and such purchases fell off when prices have risen.

There are still numerous advances in wages, but strikes grow more numerous and important. In part because business was usually large in the first half of July a quite tone meets reasonable expectations.

The future turns on crops and the markets reflect a prevailing belief that the crops are to be fair. Stocks carried over are such that a yield of 7,000,000 bales cotton and 420,000,000 bushels wheat would meet all needs, but lower prices prophesy larger yields, and of corn probably the largest on record. Wheat has declined 2 cents for September, corn 1½ cents and cotton ¼ cent for spot.

To some extent industries are awaiting the crop outcome, as usual in July, but reports of more works going into operation express faith in the fall demand, for a time of reaction after the heavy purchases of the past two months was inevitable. Orders have so accumulated in iron products that some works forego the usual summer rest, and eastern furnaces, soon to begin blast, will add about 5000 tons weekly to the production. Yet the week has been in new business the dullest since the rise in prices began, as many hesitate to buy after so great an advance. A few quotations have advanced—gray forge and eastern bar—while bessemer pig is a shade weaker at Pittsburg, but the average of all prices is 1 per cent higher for the week and 28.3 per cent higher than Feb. 1.

Minor metals are stronger, with sales of 4,000,000 pounds copper up to 11 cents for lake, and tin is firm in spite of a large visible supply.

Changes In New York's Police Force.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The reorganization of the detective bureau was begun yesterday when the police board adopted resolutions making Stephen O'Brien an acting captain and reducing detectives to the rank of patrolmen. A number of patrolmen were ordered to report to the chief of police for assignment to detective duty. The board reinstated Police Captain Devery and Wardman Glennon on the order of the court of common pleas, but it is probable that they will be suspended again immediately.

Pan-American Congress Poorly Attended.

TORONTO, July 20.—The attendance at the Pan-American congress is not up to expectations. Yesterday's session was opened by Henry Wade Rogers, who read a paper on "Christianity and Education." Charles R. Skinner read a paper on "The Debt America Owes to the Public Schools." Rev. D. N. Beach of Cambridge, Mass., finished the morning session with an essay on "Municipal Reform."

Hollister to Succeed Mitchell.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Martin N. Hollister has been appointed fire marshal, to succeed James Mitchell, removed. Michael O'Sullivan was appointed deputy fire marshal. The position is a new one and takes the place of the first and second assistant fire marshals, whose offices have been abolished.

Conservatives Adding to Their Ranks---Rider Haggard Attacked While Electioneering.

LONDON, July 20.—The total returns thus far received show the election of 270 Conservatives, 48 Liberal-Unionists, 88 Liberals, 43 anti-Parnellites and 6 Parnellites. The net gains of the Conservatives are now 53. The Liberal-Unionists have gained 16 seats, the Liberals 18, the anti-Parnellites 2 and the Parnellites 3.

RIDER HAGGARD.

H. Rider Haggard, the author, who is standing in the Conservative interest for East Norfolk, has made his election tour in a four-horse drag, and has been roughly treated, mud and stones being thrown in some cases. Near Ladham, one of the party, Miss Hartcup, had her head cut by a flying missile. At Statham the party was obliged to take refuge in a hotel, which was besieged. The police were dispatched to the rescue.

A WASHINGTON SENSATION.

Cabinet Officers Hold a Session at the Capitol. Purport of the Meeting a Secret.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Yesterday, for the first time in many years, there was a midsummer cabinet meeting held here in the absence of the president. Secretary of State Olney apparently came to Washington from Falmouth, Mass., for the express purpose, for he arrived yesterday noon and left this city this morning.

Secretary Olney called at the war department soon after his arrival at the state department to talk with Secretary Lamont. The latter was absent at the time, and he failed to attend the cabinet meeting, which was held later, although an effort was made to summon him by telephone. Secretary Herbert next received a visit from the secretary of state, and about 4 o'clock the pair walked over to the state department and were closeted in the office of Secretary Olney. Here they were joined in the course of a half hour by Secretary Carlisle and Attorney General Harmon, who had been called by telephone into the conference.

This lasted for fully two hours and from time to time Assistant Secretary Adee, who has been acting as secretary of state during the absence of Secretary Olney, was called into the room to advise the cabinet as to some point under discussion.

One theory is that the Mora claim was before the cabinet, in the shape of some proposition from the Spanish government for its settlement, that perhaps involved the element of long time, and consequently justified some hesitation before it could be disposed of. Another idea broached was that there was an ugly question as to fulfillment of our neutrality obligations toward Spain that had caused the sudden assemblage of the cabinet officers.

Bolivian Rioters' Work.

[Copyrighted, 1895.]

LIMA, July 20.—The modification of Bolivia's demand upon Peru for a salute of her flag, as intimated yesterday, consisted in an agreement to submit this portion of the demand to arbitration. This proposal seemed to indicate a peaceful settlement of the dispute between the two countries. But today's news from Bolivia seems to threaten further complications. The latest information received here from La Paz is that a mob of rioters tore down the arms from the Peruvian legation and stoned the Peruvian minister. The government is awaiting reliable details of the trouble before deciding what steps to take.

Floated Worthless Bonds.

PARIS, July 20.—Two Americans, named Wing and Dwight, have been arrested here on a charge of selling valueless bonds of the Rock Island, Peoria and St. Louis railroad. Wing has been in trouble here before, having been arrested some time since for borrowing money on these bonds. He was released a fortnight ago on bail, and has been rearrested on complaint of many purchasers of the bonds, who find no sale for their shares, the value of which they allege to have been misrepresented to them.

Seeking Pardon For Murderess.

SING SING, July 20.—Maria Barberi, the young condemned Italian woman, will not be placed in the death house, where six condemned murderers are now awiting execution. Warden Sage has engaged a matron to attend to the wants of the condemned woman. Her friends began yesterday to take active steps to arrest the sentence and obtain from Governor Morton a full pardon.

Sovereign's Poor Judgment.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—At the treasury department it was said that the plan of Mr. Sovereign of the Knights of Labor of boycotting national bank notes, if carried out, would prove more harmful than beneficial to the labor interests of the country, as it would contract the currency to the extent of $211,000,000 without injuring the national banks.

Colon's Strike Still On.

COLON, July 20.—The strike of dock laborers continues, and the ships' crews are discharging the cargoes of vessels in port. The government is using every precaution to protect American interest during the continuance of the trouble.

Won In Short Order.

BALTIMORE, July 20.—At the Riverside club last night Young Corbett knocked out "Shadow" Maber in the seventh round. Tommy West of Chicago also put Chris Johnson of Baltimore out.

DEATH IN AN INSTANT.

Four Men Run Down by a Fitchburg Express Train.

Attempted to Cross Track In a Carriage.

Scene of the Catastrophe a Dangerous Spot Near Williamstown.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 22.—The "Dugaway," a place two miles west of this town, was the scene of a terrible grade crossing accident yesterday afternoon. Four men were instantly killed and two others escaped death by the merest chance.

The party was returning from a drive to Pownal, Vt., and had stopped a few feet from the crossing to allow an east bound freight to pass. Passenger train 157, Engineer Weatherby, west bound, came thundering down the other track, but was hidden from the fated party by the freight.

The carriage was directly across the tracks when the engine struck it. Prindle and White had just time to jump, thereby saving their lives. The other men, with the carriage and one of the horses attached, were hurled into the air and came down in an indescribable heap. Dudley was the only who breathed after the accident, and he expired after a few brief gasps. The others lay as they fell, among the broken and twisted remnants of the carriage in which they had been driving. The mangled carcass of the horse lay a little to one side, while beside and still attached to it by the harness stood its mate, uninjured.

Did Not Heed Danger Signals.

The team drove to within a few feet of the crossing and stopped to allow freight to pass. White jumped out of the wagon and attempted to board the train, but fell. Just then the freight engine began to give short whistles.

Prindle, who has worked on the railroad, knew that was a danger signal and warned his companions against proceeding until both tracks were clear. They laughed at him, however, and no sooner had the caboose of the freight passed than they whipped up their horses to cross the tracks.

Prindle was alarmed and begged the men to stop. They continued on their way, but no sooner had they gained the tracks than the passenger train, which had been hidden from their view by the freight cars, dashed into them. There was a short, blood-curdling cry, a terrific crash, and four men were hurled to death.

It was the worst accident that has occurred in this vicinity in many years, and both Pownal and Williamstown were greatly excited over it.

Railroad Not to Blame.

It appears that absolutely no blame attaches to the railroad company. William Blake, who resides within a stone's throw of the accident, and who heard the crash, is positive that the engineer of the passenger train whistled at the proper distance from the crossing.

Prindle distinctly remembers the warning whistles, while the other survivor could not be found this evening, and nothing could be learned at Williamstown concerning the families of the dead men.

Prindle's escape from death was remarkable. He lost both feet in a railroad accident some time ago, and how he jumped from the wagon to safety is a mystery.

He appeared dazed when interviewed, and could scarcely realize the terrible fatality, but he told his story in a straightforward manner, and it agreed with that of other witnesses.

As soon as possible the train was stopped and several people rushed to the scene. The bodies were taken out from among the wreckage, and borne to the baggage car and thence to the Pownal (Vt.) station, half a mile beyond. Later they were taken in charge by Undertaker Comisky of North Adams, and removed to that place.

It is stated that both engineers whistled and rang the bell at the proper distance from the crossing, but that these signals were either not heard or were disregarded by the men in the carriage.

Trying to Save a Murderer.

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—Lawyer Pierce, counsel for Lawrence Keegan, convicted of the murder of Emily Chambers, Feb. 5, this year, has filed a petition for a new trial, setting forth that the verdict was against the evidence; that new evidence had been discovered tending to show Keegan innocent, and that the court erred in its rulings to which exceptions were taken. The hearing will not take place until the October term of the appellate court.

Electric Company Assigns.

BOSTON, July 22.—The W. S. Hill Electric company of 133 Oliver street have made an assignment for $20,000 to F. A. Wyman. Mr. Wyman says the company is doing a good business, and will continue either here or in New York. The assignment was caused by the refusal of a Boston bank to carry notes amounting to $8000 any longer. The liabilities and assets have not been ascertained.

Death of a Boston Banker.

MALDEN, Mass., July 22.—William L. Lovell, a well-known Boston banker, died at his residence here. He was born in Fitchburg in 1839, and for many years was with Bradstreet's agency, He was also at one time connected with the Potter, Lovell company, brokers. He had a business acquaintance throughout the United States. His death was due to a complication of diseases.

The Richard K. Fox Spoken.

BOSTON, July 22.—Captain Waite of the steamer Barrowmore, at this port from London, reports on July 15, when in lat. 42.40 N., long. 55.20 W., passed the yacht Richard K. Fox, which is being sailed across the ocean from New York to Queenstown. Young Captain McCallum reported everything all well. The yacht was making fairly good progress.

Another Ericsson Victim.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 22.—The second fatality resulting from the accident on the torpedo boat Ericsson occurred yesterday, when David Cody died. Of the other men injured, Austin Williams and William Merwin are considered in a precarious condition, and Joseph Hamilton, the fifth victim, seems to be the only one likely to recover.

Crushed to Death.

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—William Greenwood, engineer at Crescent park, was killed yesterday while repairing a toboggan at that place. While working upon the chain suddenly righted itself, precipitating one of the cars down the incline, crushing in Greenwood's skull and breast.

Bernard Mitchell, 23 years old, was found yesterday on the railroad track near the Ashland street bridge, Boston, with both legs cut off and one arm broken.

Suing For a Flower.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., July 22.—A lawsuit over a flower is reported from Kenoza Lake, Sullivan county. Carrie Bauer and Charles Heidt, each lay claim to a plant which has decorated the graves of both families in the cemetery at that place. There has been a constant transfer of the flower from one grave to the other until, finally, Heidt took it home, and Miss Bauer sued him for its removal, claiming damages to the amount of $10. The trial comes off before Justice A. B. Marsh on July 24.

Ferdinand's Fears.

BERLIN, July 22.—Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria continues to remain at Carlsbad. He is constantly guarded by a large suite among whom are a number of Russian secret police. He tells his adherents almost daily that it is his intention to start for Sofia immediately, but he does not start. He says the same thing to the visitors he receives at his house, the villa Theresa, in the English quarter. The villa's gardens and park are alive with Russian and Bulgarian detectives.

Ohio Brewery Agent In Luck.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 22.—James McCoy, agent at Wellston for the local breweries, is in receipt of word from Scotland that he, with others in the United States, is heir to a fortune of $15,000,000 in South Africa, left by William McKay, who operated an extensive diamond mine. The heirs are arranging to secure the inheritance through the consul at Cape Town.

President Cleveland Assailed.

AUSTIN, July 22.—The silver meeting called for Saturday by ex-Governor Hogg, ex-Treasurer Bluerberrick and others to elect delegates to the fourth ward silver convention had only 70 persons present, half of whom were Populists. Governor Hogg made a speech denouncing Cleveland and Carlisle, and said their action in selling bonds was perfidious.

Her Fate In the Balance.

SING SING, July 22.—The prison officials here, for obvious reasons, will not express their opinions as to whether Governor Morton will interfere in the case of Maria Barberi, now under sentence of death for the murder of Domenico Cataldo, but it is known that they have told intimate friends that it is almost certain that she will not be executed.

FLED WITH THE FUNDS.

Willimantic Savings Bank Treasurer Plays the Scoundrel's Part.

The Institution Left Practically Insolvent.

A Receiver to Be Appointed For the Ill-Fated Bank to Protect Creditors.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 22.—Bank Commissioner Crofut announces that from discoveries made since his examination of the Dime Savings bank a week ago, the institution is insolvent by at least $30,000, and that he sees nothing to be done but to close the bank. John Walden, who for 15 years was cashier of the bank and who resigned last Wednesday at the request of the corporators, has disappeared.

The general cash book and the daily balance book cannot be found, and the real estate book is badly mutilated. The time lock of the safe has run down and the key is gone. An officer has been placed in charge of the bank. The Dime Savings bank has been having a hard struggle ever since the recent failure of the First National bank through the defalcations of Cashier Risley. The bank commissioners have been in charge of the Dime Savings bank, and it was hoped both by the officials and corporators that plans might be perfected for the continuance of the institution. To this end a 90 days' notice from depositors wishing to withdraw was announced and a 16 per cent scale.

Last Wednesday the corporators met to perfect plans for the reorganization before the first of the 90 days' notice should expire on July 22. At this meeting the resignation of Cashier Walden was requested, and it was at once presented and accepted. Another meeting was called for Friday, at which time it was voted to increase the board of corporators by eight, and a final meeting for the election of officers was appointed for today. Meanwhile, Commissioner Crofut had appealed to the supreme court for an injunction to prevent a run on the bank when the notices come due today.

Finances In Bad Shape.

This application was refused, and it at once became apparent that a receiver must be asked for. Commissioner Crofut at once came here to begin a final examination of the affairs of the bank, when to his astonishment he found a shortage of more than $12,000, recorded loans of a doubtful nature aggregating $20,000 and the books missing and mutilated, barring further investigation. To add to the difficulty, it was found that the safe could not be opened, the time lock having been permitted to run down, and no key could be found to wind it again.

In view of these complications Commissioner Crofut decided to at once declare the bank insolvent, and the corporators will be called together at 9 o'clock today to hear the report of the commissioner, whose discoveries have all been made since an examination made July 11.

These gentlemen are appalled at the disclosures, and they refuse to say anything before having heard the report of the commissioners. Considerable excitement prevails, for the story has spread with the greatest rapidity.

Concerning the missing cashier there is much talk. He had been cashier for 15 years, and up to a short time ago was considered perfectly sound. At that time the corporators of the bank became dissatisfied, and the feeling culminated last Friday in the request for his resignation. He left town on Friday morning, but informed his wife that he would be back for supper. Since that time nothing has been seen of him about here, and his present location is a mystery.

Masquerading In Male Attire.

NEW YORK, July 22.—In the detention rooms at Ellis island is Mrs. Mystrom, who, until a few days ago, was supposed to be a man. She arrived here on the steamship New York. She took passage in the steerage, dressed like a man, shaved and smoked. When the ship's surgeon began to vaccinate the steerage passengers she refused to bare her arms. Finally, she said she was running away from a brutal husband. She may be returned to Europe.

Industrial Boom On.

PITTSBURG, July 22.—Pittsburg's industrial boom has reached such proportions that the big iron and steel-producing plants, with their heretofore unequaled capacity, are unable to meet the demand. The flood of orders upon billet manufacturers is so great that during the past week local buyers were compelled to go to Philadelphia for their supplies.

A Sad Affliction.

LONDON, July 22.—A report has been circulated for several days that Prince Edward, the only child of the Duke and Duchess of York, and the heir to the throne of Great Britain, is deaf and dumb. It has been impossible to ascertain the source of the report, but there is no doubt that it is in a circle fairly near the court.

Shot Down In Cold Blood.

HELENA, Ark., July 22.—The inhabitants of this city are excited over the assassination of County Jailer Dennis, who was called to the jail door and shot down without a word of warning. Harvey Weeden, former assistant, and a negro are in jail, awaiting an examination before the grand jury, which is investigating the murder.

Fatal Gas Explosion.

HALIFAX, July 22.—An accumulation of gas in the blast furnace of the Londonderry iron mines last night caused the furnace to kick, lifting the top off. Flames burst out fiercely. Three men who were on the top of the furnace feeding it were injured, one of them so severely that he died.

Mackerel are running in.

Mr. Arthur Keith of Wollaston is in Greenfield, N. H.

Mr. James C. Bates and family of Wollaston are at Norwell for a fortnight.

Capt. Hunt took out a fishing party of Quincy gentlemen Sunday in the steam yacht Get.

Miss Cora Wellington of Wollaston has been confined to the house since Friday with malaria.

Mr. Wm. E. Howard of Wollaston returned on Saturday last from a visit to North Easton.

They say it wasn't hot yesterday, but that general humidity was great. It was certainly oppressive.

Sunday was a great day for the electric cars. All were pressed into service and thousands enjoyed a ride.

The thunder shower early this morning was among the heaviest of the season. It was accompanied by a good rain.

The West Quincy base ball club was defeated Saturday on the home grounds by the Charlestowns; score 19 to 16.

Miss Winnifred F. Howard of Wollaston has returned from a visit to Mr. and Lester Ely of Bergen Point, N. J.

Co. K goes to camp tonight. The recent rains will tend to make it more endurable. It however promises to be hot and sultry.

Auctioneer Johnson sold the estate of John A. Avery on Sumner street at auction Saturday to Cornelius Moynihan for $1,505.

Harvey Quimby of East Milton made good time in the ten-mile bicycle tournament at Everett Saturday, 29 minutes, 12 seconds.

Auctioneer Kincaide will sell on August 5th the estates of John and Frederick Schatzl consisting of three dwelling houses two stables and 62,568 square feet of land.

Joseph C. Morse, Jr., is a chip of the old block. He is spending a portion of his vacation at Kennebunkport, Me. Last Friday he went fishing and pulled in over 200 pounds of cod.

The Steamer City of Quincy was not large enough to carry all who desired to take the 2 P. M. trip Sunday. Every boat went down crowded. The 5 30 boat from the beach filled eleven cars on its arrival—all but three coming to Quincy.

The steam yacht, Philomena, whose anchorage is off Quincy Point is as trim a craft as one would desire. Last week Mr. Amory with his daughter Miss Anna Amory and Miss Codman, cruised to Bar Harbor. Almost daily when at Seven Oaks, Mr. Amory steams to Nahant to see his mother.

On Wednesday, July 10, G. Silas Archer left Massillon, O., on his wheel for Portland, Me. Mr. Archer arrived in Quincy, Sunday and, registered at the Hancock house where he had dinner and then started to complete his trip. He was in good condition and reports having had a pleasant trip thus far.

The representatives of the "Granite City" made a good showing in the handicap golf tournament of crack players at Manchester on Saturday. All three were entered in class C and Mr. Robert B. Porter won. Mr. James F. Harlow was fourth and Mr. Paul R. Blackmur tenth in a class of twenty-one.

The three days fair of the Sunday school of the Swedish Lutheran church, at Plumer's hall, came to a successful end Saturday night. During the fair many of the articles on sale were disposed of and a good sum will be realized. One of the most taking features of the fair was the museum of rare articles. Mrs. Sevein Walline had charge of the children, and to her, much of the success of the fair was due.

LUTHERANS HAPPY.

Remarks of Pastor and H. H. Faxon at New Bell Dedication.

Saturday was a memorable day to the Swedish people of this city, for it saw the practical completion of its house of worship by the addition of a handsome church bell, the gift of our townsman Henry H. Faxon, Esq.

H. H. FAXON.

From 6 to 8 o'clock the formal dedication took place. The interior and exterior of the edifice were prettily trimmed with flowers, flags and bunting and over the top step leading to the church was a large arch of flags.

The exercises were simple yet none the less interesting.

At 6.30, for the first time, the bell was rung and its silvery notes were heard echoing over the rock bound hills of our city.

Rev. John T. Johnson presided over the exercises and in the course of his remarks said:

I never did speak in the language of this country before, but on this occasion I cannot keep quiet. I must speak, even if my speech be broken, and the reason is, that I see among us that liberal gentleman, who is our friend. Yes, more than our friend, because he has done alone, what this congregation could not have done for many coming years. There is no need of pronouncing his name; everybody knows that it is Mr. Henry H. Faxon. Giving this bell, he has added to his many gifts to our church, and he is not afraid—I know it—he is not afraid of being poor by this, his precious gift. He does not think that it is lost, what is given of a good heart. No! it is not lost! I am sure that you, my countrywomen and countrymen, as long as you hear the sound of this harmonious churchcaller, you never will forget that the sound you hear comes from a gift of Mr. Henry H. Faxon. And when the bell rings the praise of God it rings the praise of Mr. Faxon too, and our thanks to him.

By this time the veteran apostle of temperance had arrived and after being taken over the church and having had his palate tickled with ice cream he made one of his characteristic speeches which was received with frequent applause.

Mr. Faxon Said,

Mr. Chairman and Friends: Whenever I have passed your beautiful house of worship the thought has often come to me that a donation was due to the efforts of the noble men and women who, by their pluck and perseverance have erected this rockbound monument of their faith; a house built upon a rock and not on sand.

Realizing the necessity for some means of calling your flock together, the appropriateness of presenting you with this silver-tongued messenger of peace and good will became apparent to me. Let its lusty notes peal forth, that you may be heard afar off.

I am prompted to remind you, that whoever may be your pastor he will be largely responsible for the upbuilding of your parish.

Now a word of caution: Do not engage a preacher who has chronic dyspepsia, because it is practically impossible for anyone to draw inspiration from an impaired digestion.

I have a great deal of sympathy for a poor preacher, on account of the many disadvantages under which he labors.

I remarked to a prominent minister, a few days ago, that it was a sin for him to exchange pulpits with an ordinary clergyman. My reasons for making this assertion were that both parishes were dissatisfied. The parish represented by the talented preacher, complained at their loss and the parish with the dull minister were equally dissatisfied because their pastor did not exchange oftener.

I trust that your pastor will bear in mind that pure politics are just as essential as pure religion; because the men who are false to official trust cannot be true Christians, or to quote a trite old saying: "No man can serve two masters."

The Swedish band was in attendance, and added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion by rendering numerous selections.

Ice cream and refreshments were served.

The affair was in charge of Mr. W. R. Lofgren, who was the builder of the church, and was a complete success.

Mr. Lofgren had a number of photographs of the bell, and disposed of over sixty and took orders for nearly as many more.

The bell, as has been previously stated, weighs 2,260 pounds. On one side is the following:

PRESENTED BY HENRY H. FAXON,
1895.

"And the rain descended, and floods came and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock."

While on the reverse side of the bell was the following:

Members of the Church Council when this church was erected: Carl O. Young, Charles F. Carlson, August Weeden, Joseph F. Johnson, Fritz Swanson, W. R. Lofgren, Andrew Nelson, John Hellquest.

W. R. LOFGREN, BUILDER.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

This verse was in the Swedish language.

A brief history of the struggle of this church for existence would not be out of place.

The Swedish Lutheran church—which is the high church of Sweden,—in this city dates back to 1889, when a few of the Swedish residents of this city met at the residence of Mr. C. F. Carlson, on Granite street, where the preliminary steps were taken. Other meetings followed and the society was organized with thirty-seven members. The first meeting was held in Faxon hall, services being conducted by Rev. C. F. Johanson of Campello. Meetings were held here for a short time, and the early seed planted at the meetings held with Mr. Carlson began to grow, and from Faxon hall the society moved to the chapel of Christ's church.

A call was extended to Dr. C. O Young, then a senior of the Augustan college and Theological seminary of Rock Island, Ill. The call was accepted and in June of the same year Dr. Young preached his first sermon. Two weeks later Plumer's hall was hired, where the society held services until its present edifice was completed.

The lot was eventually purchased on Granite street and work on the foundation commenced, the members of the society and the Swedish people generally, working a day at a time until the foundation was completed.

Up to this time the money had been contributed in small sums by the Swedish people, but as it was accumulating slowly Dr. Young went among the American friends to raise funds and Mr. Henry H. Faxon started the paper with $100. Others followed among them being Charles F. Adams, John Q. Adams and Dr. William Everett, and the fund grew and the church was completed at a cost of about $8,000.

Dr. Young remained with the church for five years when having seen his fond hopes realized he resigned his pastorate, and taking an affectionate farewell of his people, he returned to his native country.

Dr. Young was succeeded by Rev. John T. Johnson who still preaches the word of God to these people.

Cannons Made of Stone.

The most wonderful cannons on records are described by Brydone, whose travels in Sicily and Malta won well-deserved renown towards the end of the last century. Many facts and stories he recounts that seem strangely old-world to us, though the date is little more than a hundred years ago, so grandly did the French Revolution transform Europe.

Malta was full of wonders more or less droll while the Knights held it. But nothing equaled the stone guns. Everybody knows that the fortifications were cut out of the solid rock, but Brydone was right in saying that a kind of ordinance used to defend them was unknown to all the world besides.

As we understand his description, the Knights left a grand block of stone where they hollowed out an embrasure in the cliff, which afterwards they shaped and bored in the form of a gigantic motar. These engines contained a whole barrel of gunpowder. That shoveled in, they plugged it with a great piece of wood, fitted exactly to the bore, as wadding, and loaded up with cannon balls, shells and other deadly materials.

About fifty of these remarkable guns commanded the spot which a hostile ship was most likely to approach. "The mouths of some are six feet wide, and they are able to throw ten thousand pounds weight of balls or stones." The range is not stated, but the falling projectiles covered an area of over 300 square yards.—Stone.

WHOLESALE ARREST

Four Liquor Sellers Scooped in at Lovell's Grove.

There have been rumors of late that parties were selling liquor at Lovell's grove and Officer Ora C. Oakman determined to put a stop to it if possible and he has been successful as far as the capture of four of the illegal venders is concerned.

Saturday there was a large picnic at the grove and Officer Oakman soon discovered that they were being supplied with liquor. He also discovered that the source of supply came from a row boat near the shore.

He watched the boat and soon had their method down fine. The method was to send a man on shore with his pockets full of bottles to sell. Having sold out his supply he would return to the boat which would come to the shore and give him another supply.

Having ascertained this much the officer pressed a boy into service who purchased a pint of the liquid paying 25 cents for it. His next move was to capture the whole gang and their supply. He watched for his opportunity and when the boat again approached the shore the officer waded out to it and arrested the whole party.

One of them endeavored to escape by jumping into the water, but Officer Oakman did not mind that, for he jumped after him and being the better swimmer of the two had no difficulty in catching him.

The four men were then taken ashore, and with the contents of the boat, which proved to be twenty-two quart bottles of some kind of liquor, were transported to Quincy and locked up.

They gave their names as Dan Horgan, John Hart, John Lyons and Jerry Sullivan.

Horgan and Lyons claim to belong in Weymouth, Sullivan in Dorchester and Hart in New York.

They were arraigned in court this morning.

IN THE CHURCHES.

Many Candidates for Holy Communion at St. John's Church.

The High altar of St. John's church was prettily decorated Sunday and the following children of the Sunday School received their first holy communion. Mass was celebrated by Father Francis. After the ceremony the participants were photographed in the church yard by Mr. Bussell.

John Dunlay, John Dailey, John Donovan, William Carey, Robert Sullivan, Alexander Pucci, George Provost, Bernard Clare, John McAuliffe, Patrick Gilraine, Timothy Donovan, John Gillis, John Gilrane, Joseph Harris, Michael Ryan, Thomas Murphy, Henry McGee, Edward Desmond, John Meaney, William Moriarty, John Meany, William Sullivan, James Forrest, John Crotty, Emile Vendret, Napoleon Martell, William Hayes, Gilbert Bonni, Frank Collins, James Kirby, John McDonnell, Timothy Moriarty, Edward Larkin, Andrew Driscoll, Thomas Relly, Edward Kelliher, George Du Bois, Louis Maney, William Griffin, Joseph Harkins, Katherine Wiggins, Mary Dinegan, Isabel McDonnell, Caroline Picard, Rosaline Lorando, Elizabeth Fostello, Monica Clare, Sarah Doran, Helen Welch, Lena McConarty, Emma Kelly, Ellen Desmond, Mary Bovin, Juliette Vendret, Mary Provost, Josephine Provost, Monora Connors, Catherine Walsh, Charlotte Harris, Etta Barry, Juliette Restelli, Mary Macalini, Mary Byron.

At the church of the Sacred Heart, Atlantic, Sunday, the following received first communion at the 10 o'clock mass, Rev. J. P. Cuffe officiating: Alice Sullivan, Mary Radley, Josephine Golding, Annie Gahan, Annie Igo, Josephine Nelson, Lillie Slavin, Louisa Halloran, Bella Murphy, Thomas Radley, John Curley, Charles Miller, John Kane, John Walsh, Daniel Golding, Frank Martin, Timothy Sullivan, Edward Clifford, Patrick Murphy.

In the First Presbyterian church Sunday evening there was a large congregation which followed with closest attention the address of Mr. Pirazzini, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Rome, Italy. The speaker gave an account of his conversion from Romanism through the reading of the Bible, and then spoke of the evangelization of Italy. Some of his facts were very striking. In a population of 32,000,000 only 2,000,000 are faithful followers of the Pope. The masses of the people are patriots, and take their stand with the King, who is excommunicated. There are over 60,000 Protestant church members in Italy, and many more who are Protestant in faith. In the city of Rome there are thirty-nine Protestant churches, and the fortieth is in course of erection. The interior of the Presbyterian church still wears the beautiful decoration of the Christian Endeavor colors which was made in honor of the late Convention.

INSURGENTS DEFEATED.

Details of the Battle Fought on July 11---Many Killed on Both Sides.

HAVANA, July 22.—Further details are constantly coming to light concerning the action between the insurgents and the column of Marshal Martinez de Campos, between Manzanillo and Bayamo, on July 11. The more that is known of the action the more it is seen that the captain general and his forces were in a position of extreme peril, and that it was only by the personal leadership and military skill of Marshal de Campos himself that the day was saved and made an especially glorious action for the Spanish army.

De Campos then took command. Sabana Perulejo, with 2000 of the insurgent cavalry, charged upon the Spanish forces. De Campos made a great and heroic defense against the fierce attack. He ordered mules and horses killed, and with them and with the baggage of the troops he formed barricades to obstruct the insurgent cavalry charges. The latter were not able to resist the firing of the Mauser rifles in the hands of the Spaniards, and commenced to waver.

Campos' military experience admonished him to take advantage of this weakness, and he immediately charged with the cavalry, while the infantry attacked with bayonets and routed the insurgents, who divided into bands and dispersed.

He then made his way to Bayamo, where he was enthusiastically received. The troops lost, besides General Santocildes, 13 officers dead and wounded and 70 soldiers dead and about 100 wounded. The insurgents lost 500 dead or wounded. Brigadier Rabi, Colonel Machado and Major Moncada were killed. Among the wounded were Captain Ramirez and two chiefs of a lower grade.

BAPTISTS AT BALTIMORE.

Brilliant Close of a Successful Session---Distinguished Divines Take Part.

BALTIMORE, July 22.—The service of the last day of the fifth annual international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of American was particularly impressive. The general prayer and praise service was led by Rev. W. B. Riley. The topic was "Faith Inspired Living."

In the afternoon there was a second prayer and praise service, Rev. B. F. Lovett being the leader. At the close of the beautiful exercises Joshua Lovering was invited to preside, and he presented Rev. Rev. F. H. Kerfott, D.D., of Louisville., who delivered an address—"The Saloon and the Present Crisis in Good Government." This was followed by the convention sermon, which was preached by Rev. P. S. Henson, D.D. During the afternoon service in the great tent there was a junior rally in the Fuller Memorial Baptist church, conducted by Boston W. Smith.

The evening service of prayer and praise was attended by a great congregation, and was led by Rev. G. E. McKeever of New London, Conn. John Garland Pollard of Richmond was called to the chair, and in a few words introduced Rev. J. W. Conley of St. Paul, who spoke the sentiments of appreciation of the convention to the Baptists and citizens of Baltimore. The committee on enrollment made proclamation that the total registry of B. Y. P. U. at present was 6559.

John H. Chapman, the president of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, was presented by Mr. Pollard, and for salutation was received with a wild waving of handkerchiefs. President Chapman then delivered the annual address.

Crazed Over Donnelly's Cryptogram.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 22.—John D. Birmingham, Sr., a well-known newspaper man of this city, and proprietor of The Home Makers' Journal, has gone insane on the subject of Ignatius Donnelly's Shakespearian cryptogram. Mr. Birmingham a few days ago declared that he had made discoveries that would cause those of Ignatius Donnelly to pale into insignificance. He produced combinations of key words which he said contained a confession by Bacon that he had killed Shakespeare in order to prevent the latter from revealing the secret that Bacon was in a conspiracy to assassinate the royal family.

Changes In Naval Architecture.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Superimposed turrets, 13-inch guns and the raising of the armor belt higher than has been done in plans heretofore pursued are to be the main features of the proposed battleships, according to the decision announced by Secretary Herbert. The secretary decided upon the two-storied turrets and the heavy calibered guns, and referred the other point to the board of construction. There are other points—notably concerning the weight to be allowed steam machinery—which will be settled by the board.

Troops Sent In Search.

DENVER, July 22.—It is feared here that a party of Princeton students have fallen into the hands of the Bannock Indians. Nearly two weeks ago the students forming the geological expedition went through Union Pass, and since that time telegrams have been received here for them without finding any means of delivery. The students were on their way to National park, and were due on their return trip about the end of July. Troops are out in search of the missing party.

Looking Toward Organization.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The credit men of the New York firms who desire the establishment of a permanent organization for the purpose of extending the mercantile credit system and securing the enactment of laws affecting assignments and the rights of creditors will hold a meeting at the Broadway Central hotel tomorrow. A call has been issued inviting representatives of firms in other cities to be present.

Red-Mouthed Socialists Rampant.

BRUSSELS, July 22.—The king, with Princess Clementine, was on his way, driving, to open the exhibition in the suburb of St. Gilles yesterday, when a number of Socialists ran after the carriage, shouting: "Down with the new school bill." Copies of a manifesto against the measure were thrown into the carriage. The men were dispersed by the police.

No Lives Lost.

BRUEX, Bohemia, July 22.—Owing to an unaccountable subsidence of the soil, 12 houses have been so completely engulfed here that they have entirely disappeared from view. The inhabitants were warned in time to escape. A large portion of the town is threatened with a similar disaster.

Uprising of the Dugans.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—The Dugans of the district of Sining-Fu have revolted against the Chinese and besieged and captured the town of Suan-Houten, where they found that the Chinese governor and his family had committed suicide.

THE A. O. H. PICNIC.

Quincys Win at Base Ball and O'Connells at Hurling.

The annual picnic of Division 5 A. O. H. held a picnic at Lovell's grove, Saturday, was largely attended.

The Division formed in front of its hall in the morning and headed by the National band they marched to West Quincy where delegations were received from Division 17 of Roxbury and 26 of Neponset. The march was then continued to the centre where cars were taken for the grove. During the day there was a series of sports which resulted as follows:

Three standing jumps—Baker first, 40 feet; Ryan second, 38 feet. Prizes $3 and $2.

Running broad jump,—Walsh first, 19 feet 10 inches; Baker second, 18 feet 4 inches. Prizes $3 and $2.

Running high jump,—Baker first, 6 feet. Walsh second, 5 feet. Prizes $3 and $2.

Then came the base ball game between the Quincys and South Quincys for a purse of $50, which was won by the Quincys. Score 19 to 4.

The hurling match between the O'Connells of Quincy and Boyle O'Reillys of Waltham, for a purse of $50, was won by the O'Connells, who entertained the defeated team at a banquet in the evening at Hancock hall.

The prize dance for prizes of $3 and $2 were won by Miss Murphy and Mrs. Madden.

Everything passed off quietly, a good time was enjoyed, and the Division came out ahead financially.

DEAF MUTES MARRIED.

The Ceremony Solemnized by a Deaf Mute Minister.

Mrs. Isabella Thom and Mr. William L. S. Kemp, both of Quincy, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the residence of Mr. Robert Docharty, No. 42 Sidney street, Cambridgeport, on the evening of July 20th. The bride and groom are both deaf mutes, and the company were most all deaf mutes.

Rev. Philo. W. Packard, of Salem, the well-known deaf mute missionary, performed the interesting ceremony in the voiceless language of the deaf. The responses of the married couple were made without the sound of voice. The deaf mute minister, however officiated as a justice of peace, and has married a large number of deaf mute couples during his ministry. In the voiceless language of pantomime aided by the speaking hand and eyes the ceremony was very impressive and pathetic.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to the wedding supper, and the happy couple took the train for Quincy, where the groom has steady employment as a stone cutter.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Biggest Sunday of the Season at the Sea Shore.

Sunday was an unusually hot day and thousands flocked to the shore in the hopes of finding it cooler. At Houghs Neck there was the largest crowd of any Sunday this year, but as they were scattered all along the shore it was hard to estimate the number there. Many of the cottagers entertained friends who were down for the day and all of the hotels and restaurants were kept busy supplying the hungry crowd.

The electrics took down thousands, it being necessary to double up the service.

Besides these, hundreds went down on their wheels but it was a noticeable fact that the riders did not attempt any scorching but rode slowly and let the sun do all the scorching, and it did it in good shape for that was no name for it. There were also many who went down in carriages and everything helped to swell the crowd which was however very orderly.

Sunday a lady from East Dedham visited Houghs Neck and went in bathing, leaving her clothing in a bath house. In the clothing there was $40 in money and three life insurance policies tied in a handkerchief, which was sewed in the clothing. After she had come out of the water and clothed herself, she found that the stitches had been cut and the money and policies gone.

FOUR OPEN RACES.

Three by Hull Yacht Club and Grand Final by Quincy.

The Hull Yacht club has three open races this week for all yachts under 37 feet. They will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon at 1.30, and liberal prizes are offered in each class.

As previously noted the Quincy club will hold a grand open race on Saturday and being the fourth successive day of racing among the crack yachts of Boston harbor, it should be the most exciting of the season.

Popular Excursion to Newport.

On Wednesday, July 24th, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will run a special excursion train from Quincy, Braintree and other stations to Newport and return, for which round trip tickets will be sold at very low rates. Returning, the train will leave Newport at 6 P. M. Everyone is sure to find at Newport something to interest and enjoy, the beautiful walks and drives, including also rides on the electric cars, the beaches and numerous points of historic interest, combining to make the place one of the most popular and attractive to all visitors. This is fully attested by the thousands of persons who have made the trip the present season.

ALL KINDS OF MONEY.

UNITED STATES TREASURY EXHIBIT AT THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

Curious Old Bonds and Notes—England's Check For Damages Done by the Alabama—Rare Old Colonial Notes—An Interesting Array.

Register J. Fount Tillman of the United States treasury will send from his bureau to the Atlanta exposition one of the most interesting and attractive exhibits to be furnished for that occasion by the United States government. The exhibit—then rather incomplete in some of its details—attracted widespread attention at the Columbian exposition in Chicago.

Since then many new features have been added until now it forms the most complete collection of all issues of money of this government in existence. It is not only valuable to those interested in the financial history of this country, but it serves as well to illustrate the great and rapid advance made in the art of engraving. The first attempts to engrave notes were crude and rough, while the later efforts are the beautiful works of art with which every one is familiar.

The exhibit contains specimens of treasury issues of every form, made on account of the various loans, since the foundation of the government, grouped and arranged in chronological order. Added to this is a full and well preserved collection of colonial money, which is valuable as well as interesting. The government was compelled to purchase this collection by piecemeal from various persons who were holding the money as souvenirs, and a good price was paid for the necessary pieces to complete the collection. One of the features of the exhibit is the continental money. All the issues of the 13 original states are represented, embracing all dates, denominations and conditions of payment. The exhibit includes continental money, colonial money, specimens of the issues of the late Confederate States, both currency and bonds; United States bonds, United States currency, national bank notes, bills of broken wildcat banks in active operation before the civil war, and the check which England made out in favor of this country for depredations committed by the steamer Alabama on the commerce of the United States.

The earliest issue of bonds, then known as "loan office certificates," as shown in the exhibit, was made in 1776 on account of the first loan this government negotiated with France. Then follow in order of date specimens of bonds issued to replenish the treasury from time to time during the progress of the Revolutionary and civil wars down to the present time, the last loan being that of 1895, redeemable in 1925. As shown by the specimens, the earliest coupon bonds were issued in 1842. It was then that this government adopted the two forms of bonds, now so popular, the coupon and registered. The specimens of the bonds, notes, fractional currency and other evidences of debt under all acts of congress issued on account of the heavy loans entailed by the civil war form a fine and historic collection of the reminders of those stirring times.

The "loan office certificates" are probably as interesting as any other feature of this collection. Many have the interest figured out on the edge of the note, showing that the holders had puzzled their heads to find out what Uncle Sam owed them. On one of the colonial notes, issued in 1774, are inscribed the words, "To counterfeit is death." Some severe penalty was necessary, for any ordinary schoolboy with a quill pen could have reproduced the note exactly, so crude and rough was its execution. Among the bonds are found a great number of District of Columbia notes of indebtedness, issued for all sorts of purposes. The bonds of the large 4 per cent loan of the late war times have a place in the exhibit, and they take up quite a good deal of space. They are both coupon and registered bonds, the highest denomination of the former being $1,000, and that of the latter being $50,000. The $50,000 registered bond is the largest ever issued by this government. No coupon bond is issued with a higher denomination than $1,000. The last loan, that of 1895-1925, is a 4 per cent one, and the bonds are beautiful works of art. They are made in the shape of a United States flag, with the coupons taking the place of the stripes, and one of these bonds takes up the entire space on a single leaf of the exhibit.

The check which England paid to this country on account of the Alabama claims is a gold certificate and is made out in the sum of $15,500,000. On the back it is indorsed by many names, the most prominent of which are those of Edward Thornton, then the English minister to this country; Hamilton Fish, secretary of state, and William A. Richardson, secretary of the treasury.

The collection is mounted on two separate columns, each 7 feet high. Thirty-two frames are swung on hinges to these columns, and in these frames the notes are mounted. They are well arranged and are lettered and grouped in an artistic manner.—Washington Star.

Bismarck on Women.

Here is what Prince Bismarck said to a deputation of Silesian ladies on May 13:

"I always regret that so little influence in politics is allowed to the better half of the human race. I do not expect ladies to deliver speeches in parliament, but I believe that the results of our elections would be more national and more satisfactory if they were more under female influence than now. Honest German women, wives and mothers, do not appear in public as socialists, and I therefore believe that female sympathy with our political institutions is a much stronger bulwark against social democracy than our revolution bill would have been if it had been passed."—Review of Reviews.

TODAY'S COURT.

John McCarthy, Frank Morales, Albert Winslow and Frank Peary were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy, and were released.

Patrick Missett of Braintree was fined $10 for drunkenness.

William Dreane was fined $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Daniel Bressnihan of Weymouth was arraigned for the illegal sale of liquor to George Fisher at Lovell's grove. He was found guilty and fined $55.

Daniel Horgan, John Lyons and Jerry Sullivan were arraigned for the illegal keeping of intoxicating liquor at Weymouth. Cases continued until Tuesday morning.

HOW AN ADVERTISEMENT
SAVED A WOMAN'S LIFE.
[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

"For four years I suffered with female troubles. I was so bad that I was compelled to have assistance from the bed to the chair. I tried all the doctors and the medicines that I thought would help me.
"One day, while looking over the paper, I saw the advertisement of your Vegetable Compound. I thought I would try it. I did so, and found relief. I was in bed when I first began to take the Compound. After taking four bottles, I was able to be up and walk around, and now I am doing my housework. Many thanks to Mrs. Pinkham for her wonderful Compound. It saved my life."—MRS. HATTIE MADAUS, 184 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

To One Shortly to Die.

From all the rest I single out you, having a message for you.

You are to die. Let others tell you what they please, I cannot prevaricate.

I am exact and merciless, but I love you. There is no escape for you.

Softly I lay my right hand upon you. You just feel it.

I do not argue, I bend my head close and half envelop it.

I sit quietly by: I remain faithful;

I am more than nurse—more than parent and neighbor.

I absolve you from all except yourself, spiritual, bodily. That is eternal. You yourself will surely escape.

The corpse you will leave will be but excrementitious.

The sun bursts through in unlooked for directions!

Strong thoughts fill you, and confidence; you smile!

You forget you are sick, as I forget you are sick;

You do not see the medicines; you do not mind the weeping friends. I am with you.

I exclude others from you; there is nothing to be commiserated.

I do not commiserate; I congratulate you.

SCORES OF LIVES LOST.

A Passenger Steamer Sunk In Collision Off Italy's Coast.

Many of the Victims Were Asleep In Their Beds.

Affair to Be Thoroughly Investigated by the Italian Government.

GENOA, July 22.—The Italian steamers Ortigia and Maria P collided off Isla Del Pinto, at the entrance of the Gulf of Spezzia, yesterday. The latter sank and 148 passengers were drowned.

The Maria P was bound from Naples to La Plate. There was a crew of 17, and the passengers numbered 173. She was calling here en route to her destination. She was entering the Gulf of Genoa when she met the Ortigia, outward bound. They only noticed each other when a collision was inevitable.

The bow of the Ortigia crashed into the starboard side of the Maria P The water rushed in through the hole, and the Maria P sank in three minutes.

The majority of the passengers were asleep at the time of the accident, and had no time to escape after the alarm was given. They were engulfed with the vessel. The Ortigia rescued 14 of the crew and 28 of the passengers of the Maria P.

Other steamers have been dispatched to the scene of the disaster, and are now searching for further survivors.

At the conclusion of the sitting of the chamber yesterday at Rome the minister of marine announced the news of the disaster in the midst of a profound sensation, adding that an officer, a seaman and a stoker, and 144 passengers of the Maria P. had perished. The Ortigia had 25 passengers on board.

Saw the Danger Too Late to Prevent It.

The sky was overcast at the time of the accident, and there was little sea. Both captains were asleep, and Third Officer Revello was on watch on the Ortigia and Second Officer D'Angelo was on watch on the Maria P. The Ortigia was going at the rate of 11 miles an hour, and the Maria P at the rate of eight miles. Both vessels saw the lights of the other and continued on their proper roads till the mistake was made, it is not established by whom, which brought the Maria P broadside toward the Ortigia. Third Officer Revello of the Ortigia saw the danger and ordered the engines reversed. But the order came too late. The Ortigia struck the Maria P, making an enormous gap in her side.

All the boats of the Ortigia were lowered, and the crews rescued all they could of the survivors. The latter, for the most part, remain in such a state of terror since the rescue that they are unable to give a single detail of the disaster. Captain Ferrara, who was saved, said that he was sleeping in his cabin when he was awakened by cries and shouts and a great noise. He rushed upon deck and saw the Ortigia backing off, while his own ship was sinking. Seeing that all was lost, he jumped into the sea, where he was picked up by the Ortigia's boats.

A Passenger's Account of the Disaster.

A passenger named Balena, a jeweler, was on board with his wife and three young children. He said that he had not turned in when the collision occurred. He seized two of the children and his wife caught up the third and they ran upon deck and jumped into the sea. The children weighed him down and he sank after a hard struggle. When he came to the surface his children had disappeared. His wife had managed to cling to a piece of wreckage till the Ortigia's boat saved her. They lost everything. Second Officer D'Angelo of the Maria P, who was on watch on that ship when she was struck by the Ortigia, was drowned.

Among the saved is a child, 8 years old, who is the only survivor of a family of seven who went down with the ill-fated ship. Two of the Maria P's seamen were injured. An inquiry into the catastrophe has been opened.

Looking After Filibusterers.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Orders have been issued to the revenue cutters Morrill and Winona to proceed at once to Key West. The orders include directions to keep a sharp lookout against Cuban filibustering expeditions. The McLane is already at Key West, and the orders to the other two cutters to re-enforce her, it is believed, were issued as a result of the cabinet conference.

Review's Caustic Comment.

LONDON, July 22.—The alleged interview with United States Ambassador Eustis, published by the Paris Figaro, is still attracting attention. The Saturday Review says of it that it showed braggadocio first, then confidence and total forgetfulness. Whether it was the bourbon or the Irish brand, The Review remarks, evidently it was too strong for the ambassador.

Notorious London Club Raided.

LONDON, July 22.—A public raid was made upon the Palace club, a notorious resort, on Thursday. A hundred men and women, all in evening dress, were captured. Among them were a United States senator, a congressman, a prominent law official of an eastern state and an American police official. All, save the proprietor and servants, were released.

Magee Shouts For McKinley.

PITTSBURG, July 22.—C. L. Magee, who is fighting Quay for the leadership of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, has announced himself in favor of McKinley for president. Quay declared himself for McKinley or Reed. Magee says: "I am for McKinley for the reason that the people of this state seem to want him."

Crew Were Saved.

HALIFAX, July 22.—The three-masted schooner Gypsum Prince, bound for Cape Breton from New York, with a cargo of plaster, went ashore near Westport, and will be a total loss. Her crew of seven men were saved. The vessel was owned at Windsor.

Four "Tourists" Killed.

PETERSBURG, Va., July 22.—Four tramps, who were stealing a ride, were killed in a freight train wreck which occurred on the Atlantic Coast line at Pleasant Hill. Twelve cars were piled upon one another and traffic was interfered with.

Luscombe Not Guilty.

MILWAUKEE, July 22.—The jury in the case of Robert Luscombe, ex-city attorney, on trial for the murder of Emil Sanger, rendered a verdict of not guilty. Emil Sanger was a brother of Walter C. Sanger, the bicyclist.

LOOKS BAD FOR HOLMES.

Another Murder May Be Laid at This Notorious Criminal's Door.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Another important discovery was made in the search in the old store in which human bones were said to have been found. While examining this store the police found several shoe buttons and the charred portion of a woman's shoe with several shreds of cloth and portions of a "hook and eye."

The examination of the large ash grate of Holmes' stove resulted in another startling discovery, when two charred bones, resembling human ribs, were found among the refuse. The bones were badly burned, and were handled with great care to prevent their breaking.

A local paper says: To the long list of murders and other crimes directly traced to the archfiend, H. H. Holmes, must now be added the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. I. L. Connor and her 12-year-old daughter, with a reasonable certainty that they may have been disposed of in the same manner in which the rest of his victims met their death.

Mrs. Connor and her child were last seen in the company of Holmes in this city in 1893. Since then all trace of them have been lost, and the shrewdest of detectives, who, at the instigation of the woman's family have been working on the case, are now of the opinion that the finding of their bodies is the only possible solution of the mystery. There are circumstances which, while at first seemingly susceptible of explanation, now point in the direction of another double murder.

A Tennessee "Picnic."

GALLATIN, Tenn., July 22.—West Dixon of this place carried his wife to a picnic yesterday, and soon a fuss arose about her, which was soon quieted. Dixon and his wife took a seat in a wagon, and as William Davidson, a man some 60 years of age, was passing by, Dixon drew his pistol and shot him through the head, killing him on the spot. Dixon and his wife then broke into a run, and a crowd of Davidson's friends started in pursuit. Dixon fell mortally wounded. His wife was shot twice, being fatally wounded.

Destructive Fire In the Windy City.

CHICAGO, July 22.—The fire which started in the building occupied by the National Linseed Oil company and the Wright & Lawther Oil and Lead works yesterday was one of the most destructive which the Chicago fire department has had to contend in many months. The main building was totally destroyed, and the loss will reach $400,000 on stocks and machinery. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

Harrison's Patriotic Utterances.

OLD FORGE, N. Y., July 22.—General Harrison, when called upon by a committee having in charge a flag-pole raising at this place next Saturday, made the following reply: "I am heartily in sympathy with the object. I not only believe that the American flag should be hoisted on top of every schoolhouse and on every public place, but it should be planted in the heart of every American citizen."

SWITHIN BROS.,
Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

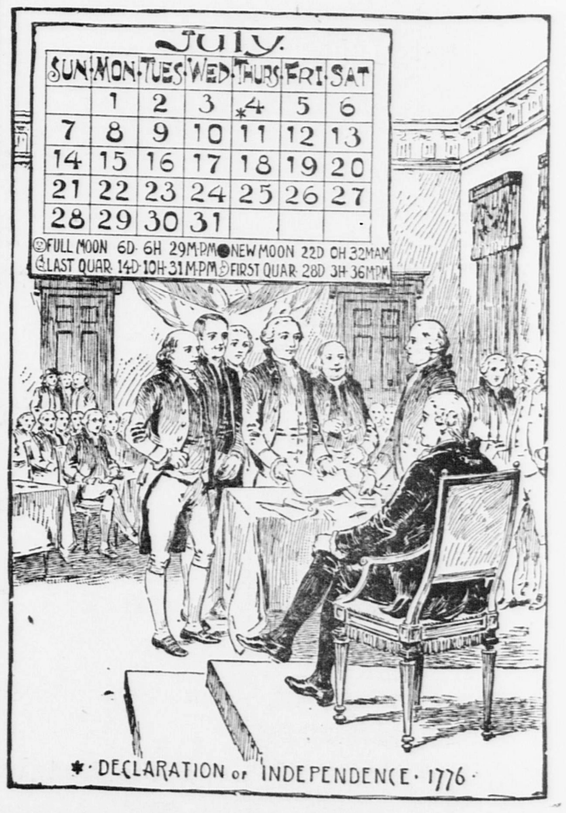

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

BOOKS ARE MUTILATED

And Will Delay Settlement of the Willimantic Bank Troubles.

Total Shortage Will Amount to $26,900.

Whereabouts of Cashier Walden Still a Matter of Speculation.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 23. — The doors of the Dime Savings bank remained closed yesterday at its usual hour for opening. A slip of paper was tacked on the door with the words: "Bank closed for examination." The depositors stood around, making anything but pleasant remarks about the missing cashier.

The books of the bank that are not missing are so badly mutilated that an expert will have to go through them in order to get any definite statement as to the true condition of the bank. The police as yet have no clew as to Walden's whereabouts.

It is not known who is surety on Walden's bond, as it cannot be found. It is supposed that his brother, Henry Walden of New York city, and the late Cashier Risley are on his bond, but as Risley is dead, and his brother has no property in this state, it is worthless.

The bank vaults were opened yesterday, and the exact shortage found to be $26,900, as follows: Railroad bonds, $11,000; Clark mortgage, $6500; money procured to pay depositors, $5000; cash short for some time, $4400. The mortgage is one given in part payment of the land upon which Walden's new house stands.

The incorporators of the bank met yesterday afternoon and elected ex-Bank Commissioner E. A. Buck, president; John Scott, vice president; E. Harlow Holmes, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Buck declined to serve, and Sheriff C. B. Pomeroy was chosen in his stead.

Where Is Walden?

Speculation at to Cashier Walden's whereabouts are rife, and a rumor was widely circulated that he was in town, and had been seen in the vicinity of the bank, but this could not be verified. State Attorney Hunter, in an interview, said that two detectives were at work on the case, but had, so far, found only slight clews on which to work. Mr. Hunter will apply for a receiver, and George E. Stiles is mentioned for the appointment.

Walden is believed to have sailed from New York for Australia on Saturday. Assistant Superintendent Hine of the Pinkerton detective agency is investigating his departure.

A bond for $10,000 as Walden's security was unearthed, but it is thought to be worthless, as the maker of it, William Walden of New York, brother of the missing man, is said to own no real estate.

Commissioner Crofut's Statement.

Commissioner Crowfut makes the following statement: "Since a week ago last Thursday, when I examined the books, I find missing a mortgage note of $6500 and five $100 railroad bonds. There is also a deficit of $4400 cash.

"On July 17 the treasurer drew a check on himself for $1000. I find that the general ledger, cash book and daily balance book are missing since my previous examination. Some of the records of the real estate book have been mutilated, to apparently cover up the withdrawal of the $6500 mortgage notes.

"I have been unable to learn of the treasurer or his whereabouts, in order to get an explanation. Assuming that the bank was in a solvent condition upon the examination of retiring Bank Commissioner Buck of this city, after the 16 per cent scale had been ordered, leaving no surplus, the above $11,000 makes the bank insolvent today.

"Furthermore, after looking over the personal loans, in conjunction with parties who are familiar with the makers, I think, perhaps, it would be the proper thing to call about $20,000 of these loans doubtful, making thereby the bank insolvent by about $30,000.

"In justice to all depositors, I can see no other course for the directors to pursue than to close the doors of the bank to all demands of depositors, and await legal proceedings."

HELD HIGH OFFICE.

Death of Hon. A. H. Rice, One of Boston's Staunchest Merchants.

BOSTON, July 23.—Ex-Governor Alexander H. Rice died at the Langwood, Melrose, yesterday afternoon. The ex-governor had been in poor health for some time. About a week or 10 days ago he experienced a slight shock of paralysis—the third from which he had suffered. Since then his condition has fluctuated.

Alexander Hamilton Rice was born in Newton, Aug. 30, 1818. He graduated from Union college in 1844, from which institution he received the degree of A.M. and received the degree of LL.D. from Harvard university in 1876.

He entered business life in the house of Wilkins, Carter & Co., paper manufacturers, and continued in the same line during life, being later a member of the firm of Rice, Kendall & Co.

Mr. Rice was mayor of Boston in 1856-57 and '58; was a member of the national house of representatives from 1859 to 1867 and governor of Massachusetts from 1876 to 1879. He was also connected in an official way with many historical and educational institutions.

Fell Forty Feet.

BOSTON, July 23.—A carpenter known only as "Scotty," who was working on the roof of 812 Tremont street, slipped and fell 40 feet to the sidewalk, fracturing his skull. He died shortly afterward. He had been employed only a few days, and none of his fellow workmen knew his name or address.

Bought By Maine Firm.

ROCHESTER, N. H., July 23.—At the meeting of the Rochester Enterprise Association last night the shoe factory formerly operated by Manufacturer Breed of Lynn was sold to Perkins, Jones & Co. of Springvale, Me., for $10,000. The firm will start the manufacture of shoes at once.

A Faithful Canine.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 23. — George Barton's house was struck by lightning and set on fire. The dwelling was totally destroyed. The family would have been cremated but for the dog, which aroused them just in time to escape.

Bishop Clark Very Low.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 23. — Bishop Thomas M. Clark of Rhode Island, who is here for the summer, is seriously sick He has been incapacitated for nearly a year, and after having been a patient at a sanitarium in Boston for some time, was brought here from Providence in June, in the hope that the change would benefit him. His recovery now is hardly looked for. He is 83 years of age.

Portland Priest Dead.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 23. — Rev. Cornelius J. O'Callaghan of Portland, Me., died at the residence of his brother in this city yesterday. He was born in Ireland in 1832, and was ordained at St. John's seminary, Fordham, N. Y., in 1860, and had been in Maine ever since.

Circus Man Was a Slugger.

EPPING, N. H., July 23.—A circus employe known as Wild Horse Jack got into an altercation with Nicholas Glynn, a musician, during which the former struck Glynn on the head with a coupling pin. Glynn was taken to a Manchester hospital, while his assailant was locked up.

Says $1200 Was Stolen.

BOSTON, July 23.—Patrick McManus, 50 years old, who resides in Brockton, reported at station 3 last night that someone had stolen $1200 from him in Boston yesterday afternoon or evening. McManus was under the influence of liquor when he made his report to the police.

Thinning Out.

NAHANT, Mass., July 23.—The 16th annual reunion of the Eleventh Massachusetts Veteran association (Fighting Joe Hooker's regiment) was held here yesterday. There were 12 deaths during the past year. It was voted to hold the next meeting at Lowell.

Drawing the Line.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 23.—All the weavers of the Salts Textile company, numbering 150, struck yesterday because the company refused to discharge two Austrians whom they employed last week. The majority of the strikers are Englishmen.

Five Years In Jail.

GREENFIELD, Mass., July 23.—Albert L. Stebbins, ex-tax collector of Deerfield, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Maynard to five years in the county jail. His friends restored to the town $7000 of the missing $7500 embezzled.

Burned to Death.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 23.—Philomine LeBlanc, 26 years old, was burned to death last night by lighting a fire with kerosene. Her son, aged 4 years, was also badly burned about the head and body.

Cleaned Out by Fire.

BIDDEFORD, Me., July 23.—The carriage manufactory of Campbell Bros. was gutted by fire last night, entailing a total loss of $3000.

Help Piling In.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 23.—The Hamilton mills started up all their departments yesterday with an increased amount of help.

New England Briefs.

A little boy was killed by a train at West Lynn, Mass.

James Drury, aged 40, of Gilbertville, Mass., fell from a bridge in Orange and was probably fatally injured.

The case of Preston Baker, the Charlemont (Mass.) miller, for bribery, was settled by payment of a $400 fine.

A large attendance honored the unveiling of the portrait of Medford's (Mass.) first mayor, General S. C. Lawrence, at Medford.

At Pittsfield, Mass., Patrick Kirby was placed on trial for manslaughter in causing the death of James Fitzgerald a year ago last January.

Rev. D. E. Eddy of Brooklyn, who was seized with a severe sickness while preaching at Cottage City, Mass., Sunday, is again able to be about.

The torpedo boat Cushing left Newport, R. I., for Fisher's island, where the New York naval reserve officers will board her for torpedo instruction.

Thomas Hill, head farmer at St. Paul's school, Concord, N. H., died from the effects of injuries accidentally received in a collision while bicycling recently.

The will of Stephen J. Young of Portland, Me., leaves his residence and an annuity of $6000 to his wife, and his entire estate in trust, to terminate at Mrs. Young's death.

The Second Rhode Island volunteers and battery A Veteran association held their annual reunion and banquet in Woonsocket. John G. McKay was chosen president.

Received No Inheritance.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Lord Sholto Douglass denies that his wife has received news of an inheritance of £500,000 from the estate of her father, James Mooney, a Canadian tailor. As a matter of fact, her father is working for a sewing machine company here. Lady Douglass has received from her father-in-law a present of money.

An Early Protest.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The secretary of the treasury has received a letter protesting against the proposed bull fight at the Atlanta exposition, and asking the secretary to prevent the importation of the bulls and refusing admission to the toreadors. It is the opinion that the government will not interfere in the matter.

Under Water.

PUEBLO, Colo., July 23.—Reports from White Water, N. M., are that a great portion of the business portion of that place was destroyed by a flood, but, so far as can be learned, no lives were lost. Telegraph wires are down, and all the news is obtained from corriers.

A CHARGE OF MURDER

Will Be Preferred Against Holmes In the Connor Case.

Chicago Building Run on "Slaughter House" Plan.

Web Appears to Be Drawing Tighter About the Suspect.

CHICAGO, July 23.—H. H. Holmes will be charged with the crime of murder in this city. A warrant for his arrest on that charge will be sworn out by A. Minier, nephew of Julia L. Connor, of Muscatine, Ia. Holmes will be charged in the warrant with having murdered Mrs. Connor some time between Aug. 1 and Nov. 1, 1892. The warrant will be placed in the hands of Inspector Fitzpatrick by Mr. Minier, and, while it cannot be served at the present time, it will be acted upon the instant that Holmes is freed from the charges pending against him in Philadelphia.

Bones and articles of clothing were turned up in the basement of Holmes' house yesterday. Some of them were from the butcher shop, but others of the bones resembled those of a human foot. In a chest, holding secret belongings of Holmes, the police yesterday found a vest identified as one long worn by Holmes, upon which were dark stains, resembling blood. In a box were found a linen shirt and other articles of underwear. The shirt had the initials "G. B. D.," worked in red letters.

The box was found under the floor and was covered over with a layer of firebrick. In the cellar, near where the bones were found, a woman's shoe was turned up with evidence of fire on the bottom of the sole.

As the earth where these articles were found was not removed in laying the foundations of the house, no reason for their burial can be assigned by the police

Except to Hide Murder.

Close by is the bottom of the shaft, which made quick connection between the top of the house and the basement, while just over the spot is the blind stairway which leads into the third floor by a trap door, placed under a stationary bathtub.

A meeting of the detectives engaged in the examination of the house was held last night, and they announced that, in their opinion, the house had been constructed for the purpose of deliberate slaughter. More care than ever will now be exercised in searching the premises.

Mrs. B. F. Pitzel is back in Chicago, and she is now ready to tell all she knows regarding the operations of Holmes as an insurance swindler. She made important statements regarding the swindles and the measures to carry them out, but says that she was kept in ignorance that any of them entailed murder.

Rare Souvenirs.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The approaching pilgrimage of Apollo commandery of this city to the triennial conclave of Knights Templars at Boston will be attended by somewhat unusual circumstances. The ladies who will accompany the party will receive a souvenir consisting of olive branches brought from the Mount of Olives, and cypress branches from the Garden of Gethsemane, which will be united in a tasteful manner.

Durant's Trial Begun.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—The trial of William H. T. Durant for the murder of Blanche Lamont in Emanuel Baptist church last April, began yesterday. Upon its conclusion he will be tried for the murder of Minnie Williams, committed in the same edifice. Durant's incarceration has made him paler, but he is stouter. During the proceedings yesterday he displayed no feelings and but little interest.

Enmity Carried Beyond the Grave.

SOFIA, July 23.—The grave of Stambuloff is guarded by police, owing to threats which have been made to disinter the remains. The feeling here and in the large towns is one of disgust and dejection at the crime. The crown lawyers are actively prosecuting an inquiry, but complain that they are not receiving the necessary co-operation of the police.

Will Strike Later On.

PITTSBURG, July 23.—The miners of the Pittsburg district met in conference here yesterday to discuss the mining situation. The prospects of a successful strike and the abolition of the company store were discussed, but no action was taken. It was learned that preparations are being made for a strike to take place early in the fall.

Parliament Adjourns.

OTTAWA, July 23.—The Canadian parliament was prorogued yesterday afternoon after a three months' session. Lord Aberdeen delivered the usual address from the throne, reviewing the legislation passed. The all-important Manitoba school question was but briefly mentioned, action on it being postponed until next session.

May Sail Friday.

GLASGOW, July 23. — Lord Dunraven's yacht, Valkyrie III, left the shipyard of the Hendersons, her builders, yesterday afternoon, to be docked, so that she can have her bottom cleaned. This will occupy two days, and on Thursday her compasses will be adjusted. It is likely that she will sail for New York on Friday.

All For a Dime.

BALTIMORE, July 23. — Walter Emily of Washington was murdered last evening on the Philadelphia road, near Orangeville by William Wiley, a tramp. Emily had reproached Wiley for keeping 10 cents given him to buy beer. The latter whipped out a knife and stabbed Emily five times.

Professor Babington Dead.

LONDON, July 23.—Professor Charles C. Babington, professor of botany at Cambridge university, died at Cambridge. He was born in 1808. Professor Babington was a well-known naturalist and had published numerous botanical works.

A team from each company had reported early in the morning and at 1 o'clock the State shoot begun. Company K made a better showing than usual, scoring 365 out of a possible 500, and came within one of winning a prize.

Company F, Capt. Clement, won the State trophy for the best company team by a score of 405; Company L, Capt. Locke, won first regimental prize, score 404; Company G, second regimental prize, score of 395; Company I won the third regimental prize, score 387.

Company K came next with a total of 365, but 40 behind the leaders; the individual scores being; Lieut. Kincaide, 31; Sergt. Cahill, 41; Sergt. Whitney, 42; Corporal Higgins, 30; Corporal McGrath, 40; Musician Quill, 30; Private Lowe, 38; Private Jone, 35; Private Bent, 27; Private Phillips 39. Total 365.

The other totals were: Company B, 353; Company E, 351; Company C, 350, Company M, 305, Company A, 269; Company H, 247; Company D, 153.

The rifle teams suffered very much from the heat at the range.

The regular tour of duty commenced at noon today and Lieut. Kincaide of Company K is one of the officers of the guard.

Deadly Watering Carts.

Boston bicyclists don't seem to appreciate watered streets. The Monday Record said:

"The run to Nantasket has always been a popular one during the summer months. The route lies through Quincy, Quincy Point, North Weymouth, Hingham, to the beach. The roads yesterday were not in the best of condition especially from the city until Quincy had been left behind. The deadly watering cart had got in its work of destruction of wheelmen's patience and the going was miserable. From Quincy to the beach the roads were in fair condition with the exception of the clouds of dust that followed in the wake of every team and bike."

They don't seem to like it wet or dry, for they complain of clouds of dust in other towns, and they don't seem to think much of their machines when they term them "bikes."

The Sunday School of Christ's church are enjoying the day at Seven Oaks, William Amory's beautiful estate.

☞ The largest room in the world is the room for improvement. We can see no room for improvement in Taylor's Anti-Headache Powders, for they beat any other powder now before the public. They are guaranteed absolutely harmless and will cure any headache in a few minutes. And being a purely vegetable compound, they can be taken as often as desired. At L. J. Pastor, Ph. Furniture, Carpetings.

Most everyone uses Furniture of some sort, the laws of nature demand it. But it isn't everyone that knows just where to buy the kind that's neat, attractive, serviceable, and best of all where prices are low to begin with and economical to end with. Here's a store with a feeling for all mankind, selling everything you need in your house at prices that are lower than the lowest priced Furniture store in the State. Inspection solicited.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

The City Council will not meet this week or next.

L. T. Gurney has gone to Maine on his vacation.

Mrs. Lorendy Thayer was granted a pension this week.

Miss Jilbert, clerk at the street railway office, is enjoying a vacation.

H. H. Faxon's list shows that there are a good many houses to let in the city.

A party of Boston gentlemen are occupying Disbrow's cottage on Appleton street.

Robert McLane, clerk at George W. Jones, has gone to Vermont on his vacation.

Miss S. Ayer, who has been in the hospital for some weeks, has returned home.

Mrs. Easton is quite seriously ill at the residence of James Gay on Atlantic street.

Archie Shea, clerk at Timberlake & Small's, has gone to Bar Harbor on a two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Cleaves and family of Milton Lower Mills have taken a house on Beach street, Norfolk Downs.

Henry M. Faxon and family have moved to their residence on President's hill near the City Hospital.

The Union base ball club of West Quincy go to Holbrook Saturday to play the Holbrook Reds.

The Sunday School of the Atlantic Memorial church hold its annual picnic at Lovell's Grove, Wednesday.

Timberlake & Small have fallen into line, and will commence this week to close their store Wednesdays at 12 30.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear was in court this morning, having nearly recovered from his recent illness.

Master Ralph Winslow was thrown from his bicycle at Houghs Neck, Monday, and quite seriously injured about the head.

The fence recently removed in front of the Webb estate at the corner of School and Hancock streets is being replaced by a curbing.

Ex-Governor Alexander H. Rice, who died Monday, was president of the board of trustees of the National Sailors' Home at Quincy.

The estate of the late William Curtis on Union street has been sold by Charles H. Johnson, real estate agent, to Mr. George Phillips for $2300.

The Xaviers will cross bats with the West Quincys on the Hall street grounds on Saturday, and the South Bostons will be there the following Saturday.

The Assessors are making good progress on their books and expect to announce the result of their labors earlier than usual. Five or more cities have already reported.

Miss Marion Mitchell entertained a few of her young friends Saturday at her parents' residence on Quincy street, the occasion being her third birthday anniversary.

Rev. and Mrs. H. Evan Cotton will be in town Thursday, stopping over on their way to Kennebunkport, Me. They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Osborne of Bigelow street.

John Wilder, Harry Wilder and Frank Coe, the three Atlantic bicyclists who started some eight days ago for New York, returned home Sunday evening. They scored 632 miles on the trip and report a grand good time.

At the regular meeting of Mt. Joy R. B. P., No. 21, held in Orangemen's hall on Monday evening, the Royal Mark degree was conferred on two candidates, and the Apron and Royal Blue degree on three candidates. Seven applications were received for membership.

The ball game at West Quincy on Saturday was awarded to the home nine on the eighth inning, score 16 to 15. In the ninth the Charlestowns made 4 runs, and the home nine were at the bat with one run and no outs, when the visitors were obliged to leave to catch a train.

The little bird store of Mr. Frank French on Savil street near the grain store, where it has stood for the past eleven years, has got to give way to the march of improvment and will be moved to Canal street near the store of E. E. Hall & Co. Mr. John Cashman will do the moving.

Mr. Faxon, in his new enthusiasm, ought not to overlook that Quincy policeman who raided a floating gin-mill Saturday night and captured four men. That man deserves a big silver medal with H. F.'s picture on one side; also a couple of those 16-bladed knives that have made the name of Faxon famous. Don't fail us at this juncture, Mr. Faxon!—Record.

The special excursion to Newport tomorrow via the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, should be well patronized, the rates having been made very low for the occasion. Special train leaves Quincy at 9 30 A. M., and Braintree at 9 35, On the return, special train will leave Newport at 6.00 P. M. Don't miss this opportunity.

Important Sale.

It is seldom that land on Adams street is offered for sale and therefore the auction of the estate of the late Charlotte Carr on Thursday of next week, advertised today, should command attention. It is in a good neighborhood and will be handy to the new railroad station to be established. At the same time and place a grand opportunity will be offered to secure at auction some very antique furniture, belonging to one of Quincy's oldest families.

Hotels in Demand.

Over one hundred western granite men are expected here in August, but as yet no arrangement has been made with the local hotels to accommodate them but should be made at once. The Knights Templars are trying to engage all the spare rooms at The Greenleaf for five days of the same week, and unless some arrangement is made very soon, there will be a hustle to find rooms for the visiting granite men.

The following were the fees paid the trial justices of Norfolk County during the quarter just closed: Charles B. Darling, Walpole, $14; Thomas H. Wakefield, Dedham, $425.50; Rufus G. Fairbank, Caryville, $244; Samuel Warner, Wrentham, $174.30: Orestes T. Doe, Franklin, $168; C. Emery Washburn, Wellesley, $45.90; John C. Lane, Norwood, $76, and Emery Grover, Needham, $103.32.

BY A GOOD MARGIN.

Defender Handily Beat the Vigilant in a Prettily Sailed Race.

NEW YORK, July 23.—If there was any doubt of the Defender's superiority over the Vigilant after Saturday's race it was dispelled yesterday. The new aspirant for the international championship ran away from the old champion on every leg and defeated her handily over the 30-mile course by 9m. 17s.

Defender won on Saturday, and she won again yesterday, and by 9m. 50s. unofficial time. Defender started 40 seconds in advance of Vigilant, and she finished yesterday afternoon over the 30 mile triangular course in the elapsed time of 4h. 19m. 50s. Vigilant's elapsed time is 4h. 29m. Thus the boats have had a windward and a beating contest, and they have had the triangular course, which afforded them two reaches and one practically windward run.

The data furnished thus to the cup committee may not determine one or the other of the boats as a result of these races to be the choice for the autumn contests. The results of Saturday and of yesterday are, however, before them, and it is problematical whether any further trial races of the Vigilant or of any other boats will be had against Defender.

Teams Got Tangled.

DECATUR, Ind., July 23.—Word was received here from Monroe that Miss Mary Elsey was dying. William and Thomas Elsey started in separate buggies with their wives to see their dying sister. A few miles from this city a young man and lady who were out driving attempted to pass both the Elseys, and, in almost an instant, the three rigs were crossed together. Mr. and Mrs. William Elsey, Mrs. Thomas Elsey and Miss Myers were fatally hurt. The dying sister of the two brothers is calling for them, but is kept in ignorance of their fate.

Moving Along.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 23.—The directors of the Union bank were arrested yesterday, but were at once admitted to bail. The bail fixed in the case of Directors Thorburn, Harvey, Grieve and Donnelly were two sureties in $18,000 each, and the principal in $36,000. Manager Pinsent was bailed on his own bond of $18,000 and two sureties of $9000 each. The Telegram accused the directors of appropriating between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 to their private accounts, and marvels at the delay in taking steps to vindicate the ends of justice.

Brutality of Election Mobs.

LONDON, July 23.—The Standard this morning prints a letter headed: "An American View of the Election," signed by "Jonathan." He says that he has read with amazement and disgust the formidable list of assaults upon women published daily and has not known which to admire most—the dastardly brutality of the Radicals, who commit them, or the cowardly supineness of the reactionaries, who allow them to be made. He concludes: "In America, thank God, such things would be impossible."

Cuban Turmoil.

HAVANA, July 23.—Yellow fever and dysentery are causing great mortality among the Spanish troops. While the troops are garrisoned at the principal towns, the rebels have complete control of the country. According to insurgent accounts, 200 Spaniards were killed in the recent fight near Bayamo. Only seven others, mounted upon good horses, including Marshal Martinez de Campos, escaped. General Campos was wounded.

Flooding Resorted To.

ANGELS CAMP, Cal., July 23. — The Urica mine, which has been yielding $500,000 worth of gold every month, is on fire. An ineffectual attempt was made to smother the fire with steam, and flooding has been resorted to. It will require 18,000,000 gallons to reach the fire. This will occupy 90 hours. It will take at least three weeks to pump the water out again. The loss will be at least $250,000.

Trouble May Follow.

CHEYENNE, Wy., July 23.—Governor Richards has received advices that some 40 young Bannock bucks are in the vicinity of Halls Fork. The Indians have a big horse herd with them and are inducing the Utes to visit them, ostensibly to trade horses. There are no squaws with their band, and it is believed that their real object is to have a sun dance, if the Utes join them.

Murder and Robbery.

NEW ORLEANS, July 23.—Steamer Breakwater, from Guatemala, brings news of the murder, on July 16, of P. G. D. Brooks, an American, chief clerk and cashier of several steamship companies. Brooks was found, lying face downward, in front of an open vault. A large amount of money had been stolen. He was 32 years old, and a native of Tennessee.

Princeton Students Safe.

NEWARK, N. J., July 23.—The Princeton student geological exploring party has not been massacred by Indians. A letter received here from Al. P. Dennis, dated Dubois, Wy., July 13, says the party on that date passed 30 miles to the north of the scene of war. All of the party were safe, the letter says.

Election Figures.

LONDON, July 23.—The pollings thus far returned leave the state of the parties as follows: Conservatives, 298; Liberal-Unionists, 55. Total of Unionists, 353. Liberals, 114; McCarthyites, 54; Parnellites, 7; Labor, 2. Total of opposition, 177. The government now has a majority of 108.

Life In Kentucky.

OWENSBORO, Ky., July 23.—At a negro church supper at Berk City a quarrel resulted in a fight, in which pistols and clubs were used. Jim Davis and Shelby Hayden, who tried to break up the meeting, were killed by Burt McFarland.

A Coalition Cabinet.

STOCKHOLM, July 23.—King Oscar summoned M. Thorne, a Norwegian ex-minister and a Conservative, and asked him to undertake the formation of a coalition cabinet. M. Thorne consented to make the attempt.

Bonds Made Worthless.

LOS ANGELES, July 23.—Judge Ross has declared the Wright irrigation law unconstitutional. The decision invalidates $50,000,000 of bonds of irrigation districts in which confirmation proceedings have been taken.

Smith's Fast Time.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The Century Road club of America has allowed the following record, made by A. E. Smith of Chicago: 500 miles, 2 days 22 hours 15 minutes, May 4-7, American record.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

HOUGHS NECK CHAPEL.

Services Held Every Sunday—Entertainment to be Given.

The services began at the Union chapel at Houghs Neck on Sunday July 7th, and were conducted by the Rev. Walter Russell Breed, rector of Episcopal church, Quincy, who kindly brought the choir boys and organist of his church to assist at the service which is a most impressive one and gave entire satisfaction to those present.

The following Sabbath the people were addressed by the Rev. Preston Gurney of Wollaston who most earnestly preached encouragement to the Christian Endeavor, and most encoursgingly spoke to those who are struggling for the promotion of the gospel here.

All these services have been well attended especially that of last Sabbath being unusually large notwithstanding the heat of the day. The sermon was by the Rev. Mr. Hardy, pastor of the Congregational church of Quincy and repaid his hearers who gained many important and impressive truths not soon to be forgotten.

The trustees are to be congratulated for their efforts in securing these regular services by the different clergyman who come so as to give all denominations an opportunity to worship according to his or her belief, and at the same time draw all into one family to worship and glorify the Father of the children of all mankind.

Some of the visitors at Houghs Neck becoming interested in the wellfare of this little chapel, through the influence of the trustees, have consented to lend their assistance by giving to the residents a musical and literary entertainment at the Chapel on Monday evening next for the purpose of reducing a small indebtedness now resting upon the same, the programme will consist of musical and vocal productions and also readings. It is hoped as many as can will show their encouragement to those who are striving for a worthy object. It is expected that some of Boston's talent will add strength to the programme which ought to insure success.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Colgan of Quincy was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Thomas McLaughlin of Weymouth was arraigned for assault on Martin Hennessy. The defendant was discharged.

The continued case of Eugene M. Moran of Weymouth for the illegal keeping of intoxicating liquor came up this morning when he was fined $50 and sentenced to 3 months in jail. Appealed.

The continued cases against Dan Horgan, Jerry Sullivan and John Lyons for keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell at Weymouth, came up this morning when they were fined $50 each.

Church Improvement.

Work has begun on the interior improvements of the Centre Congregational church. The carpets have been taken up and will be replaced with new ones. W. R. Lofgren is at wore erecting stagings and Theodore Gullickson & Son will do the decorating. The work will require about six weeks, and meanwhile services will be held in he chapel.

August Magazines.

The complete novel in the August issue of Lippincott's, "Little Lady Lee," by Mrs. H. Lovett Cameron, narrates the vicissitudes of a faithful heart which found its true mate after its owner, obeying the customs of English high life and match-making fathers, had lost her freedom. "A Friend to the Devil," by Maurice Thompson, is an amusing story of Georgia superstitions.

The first of Anthony Hope's new series of Zenda stories, in McClure's Magazine for August, reciting a heroic love passage between the beautiful Princess Osra and brave Stephen the Smith, is most charming. "The girl was young, and the dream was sweet, and the story is in full accord with these attractive conditions. The new Jungle story by Kipling is also notable.

The midsummer number of Jenness Miller Monthly is beautifully illustrated. It contains the beginning of a novelette. There is a clever short story, and a poem, "By the Mill," through the rhythm of which runs the cool drip and splash of the water—an essentially midsummer poem. There are pictures and galore, and some very beautiful ones, notably those reproduced from the admirable etchings of Benjamin Lander, the well known New York artist.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

THAT DEADLY FLUID.

AN ELECTRIC GUN THAT IS NOISELESS AND SMOKELESS.

Will Throw Projectiles Rapidly and With Great Force—Is Light, Economical and Claimed to Be Nonexplosive—Invention of a Springfield (O.) Electrician.

From an electrical exchange the following facts concerning an invention which the inventor thinks will revolutionize the making of modern war ordnance are obtained. It is by Alvaro S. Krotz, an electrician of Springfield, O. He is chief engineer of the Springfield Street Railway company.

The results of this invention are a noiseless but deadly weapon as destructive and terrible as the most powerful of modern cannon. The agent which the inventor has employed in place of powder, gun cotton or dynamite is an electric current, and the results of experiments made recently were held to be as satisfactory as if these agencies had been used.

Three years ago Mr. Krotz was granted a patent on an electric regulator, which has been in use in the street railway power house ever since. Three months ago a second patent was granted for an improvement on this regulator, and about this time Mr. Krotz was possessed with the idea that he could use his regulating device in throwing projectiles. He went to work and made several experiments. Recently the gun was tested secretly and proved a success beyond expectations.

The gun was simply a brass cylinder open at both ends. Around this tube, which was 5 feet long and 2½ feet thick, with a smooth one inch bore, entire length, the electric current was so arranged that bullets were made temporary magnets, arranged with positive and negative poles or lines parallel with the length of the tube. The balls or bullets were attracted by the lines of force after them, giving the projectiles ever increasing impetus as they passed along the tube or gun.

Mr. Krotz says that the "special advantages of the gun are that it cannot explode; that it may be made very light weight in proportion to its capacity for throwing projectiles; that it is economic in expense and operation; that the limit of the number of balls it will throw within a given time is the number of balls that can be got to its breach consecutively in a given time. I estimate that a five foot gun under 500 volt, 100 ampere current, will throw a one pound ball 1,000 feet with a striking force of 100 pounds. The lines of force resultant from the current act upon the molecular magnetism in the projectile in one direction only, turning each individual molecule in the same direction, where the lines of force are of opposite polarity, traveling ahead of the projectile as it passes through the gun. The bullets are thrown forward in much the same way as the armature of an electric motor is made to revolve on its axis."

A Libel on Some Good People.

Advertising schemes are as numerous and bold as the ways of the heathen Chinee are dark and his tricks are vain. Some of the advertisers are ready to serve the devil in the guise of the saint. A Washington street saloon keeper, located not far from Boyleston street, had the audacity yesterday to display the sign, "Christian Endeavor Punch." A passing policeman was filled with righteous wrath such as only Boston policemen can feel. Entering the saloon, he said:

"You'll have to take that sign in."

"I guess not," said the saloon keeper. "There ain't no law compelling me to."

"That's all right," answered the officer, "but I guess you had better take it in," with a note of stern suggestiveness in his voice.

"What for?" again demanded the saloon keeper.

"Well, you may have some trouble next year in getting your license," replied the officer quietly. "If you haven't any idea of decency, perhaps the commissioners will teach you."—Boston Record.

Overcome by the Death Sentence.

One of the most sensational scenes ever witnessed in a courtroom occurred at Jasper, Fla., recently, when Judge White sentenced a man named Jones to death for murder. Jones was put on trial Friday morning, and a verdict of guilty was returned Saturday morning. The man seemed dazed by the verdict, and when called to stand up for sentence arose mechanically.

Jones apparently did not take any interest in the proceedings till near the close. Then he leaned forward and listened intently. As the words "hang by the neck until dead" were uttered by Judge White Jones fell to the floor, apparently as dead as if a bullet had entered his heart. For a long while he was thought dead, but he was finally partly revived.—Florida Times-Union.

Reed Seeks Seclusion.

Thomas Brackett Reed of Portland has just purchased the pretty summer residence of William Hooper at Grand Beach, Me. The cottage is situated on the sea wall and is of no particular architectural design. It is next to the elegant summer residence of J. B. Hamblin, the Portland "Lumber King," and is one of the most desirable locations on the beach. Nearly all the people who summer there come from Portland, and all have beautiful homes. Peace and quietness prevail, and none of the gay throngs that patrol the beach at Old Orchard is seen.—New York World.

Pike's Peak Eleven Hundred Feet Higher.

It is believed that the work of the government surveying party will disclose an error in the reckoning made from the old Kansas Pacific survey of the elevation of Colorado Springs, Colo., and that the altitude of Pike's peak will be proved to be 15,647½, a gain of over 1,100 feet.—Kansas City Journal.

LABOR IN FRANCE.

Strikes of 1894 and the Attempts to End Them by Arbitration.

The French bureau of labor has recently made a report of the strike statistics of that country in 1894. There were 391 strikes, in which 54,576 workmen took direct part, and by which 4,468 others were thrown into idleness, so that in all 1,062,480 days of work were lost. The year before there were 634 strikes, involving 170,123 men. In 1892 there were 261 strikes, and in the year 1891, 267.

Of the strikes of 1894, 55 per cent grew out of questions of wages. The workmen were successful in 21 per cent of the strikes, which concerned 25 per cent of all the strikers. Strikes involving 45½ per cent of the workmen failed, and 33 per cent of the strikes were partly successful. There were 101 appeals to the comparatively new law of arbitration. Eight of these appeals, seven by the workingmen and one by the employers, were made at the very outset of the strikes before work was actually stopped, and 93 appeals were made after strikes had already been declared. The number of appeals to the law of arbitration by workingmen was 51. Employers made the appeal four times, and employers and employed together twice, while the judge having jurisdiction intervened 44 times. Employers refused arbitration in 24 cases and the workingmen in 16 cases. After arbitration had been refused the workingmen in two cases gave up their demands without actually having quit work. A strike was declared once, 21 strikes were continued and five were ended by the defeat of the workingmen, who abandoned their demands. Of 22 strikes begun or continued after arbitration was refused six succeeded, seven were compromised and nine were defeated. In 64 other conflicts 65 committees of conciliation were constituted, two in the case of one strike.

A CITY IN THE SEA.

Ruins of a Large Town Discovered at the Depth of Eighty Feet.

The city authorities at Rovigno, on the peninsula of Istria, in the Adriatic sea, have discovered, a little south of the peninsula, the ruins of a large town at the bottom of the sea. It had been observed for years that fishermen's nets were sometimes entangled in what appeared to be masses of masonry, of which fragments were brought up from the sea bed. Then a diver declared that he had seen walls and streets below the water, and so the authorities of Rovigno decided to investigate. They sent down a diver, who, at the depth of 80 feet, found himself surrounded at the bottom of the sea by ruined walls.

Continuing his explorations, he traced the line of walls and was able to distinguish how the streets were laid out. He did not see any doors or windows, for they were hidden by masses of seaweed and incrustations. He traced the masonry for a distance of 100 feet, and there he had to stop, for his diving cord did not permit him to go farther. He had proved beyond a doubt that he had found the ruins of a once inhabited town, which, through some catastrophe, had been covered by the sea. It is probable that these are the ruins of the lost town of Cissa, upon the island of that name, mentioned by Pliny the elder.—New York Sun.

Big Demand For Alarms.

Patents for alarms are in great variety in the patent office at Washington. One of them is set off by escaping gas. Another is designed as a safeguard for Mr. Hayseed. His effort to blow out the gas tilts a delifcately balanced electrode, closing the circuit and giving notice in the office of the hotel. An alarm in the office of a cemetery gives notification of any attempt to rob a grave. There are several devices for connecting railway tracks with wires so that no train can enter a block while another train is on it. One of these stops the entering locomotive, shuts off its steam automatically and spills sand on the track.

A new application of electricity is for a jail cell, the walls of which are composed wholly of bars, giving as much light and ventilation as possible. The bars are of hollow pipes, carrying heat in winter, and are connected with a battery. If the prisoner saws through one of them, the circuit is broken and an alarm sounds.—New York World.

An Indiana Boiling Well.

At the home of Adam Lortz, near Columbus, Ind., is a boiling well. The well was drilled, and when at a depth of about 40 feet a stone was struck which was flinty in construction and hard to penetrate. When 10 feet more had been drilled, water was reached. The drilling was continued for some feet beyond, when a rumbling sound set in. The water in this well is of excellent quality, and so loud is its boiling and bubbling that it can be heard 100 feet away. Mr. Lortz finds the temperature of the water to be about 243 degrees. By throwing the light into the well, by means of mirrors, the water presents the appearance of a boiling pool.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Sherman Not a Candidate.

No; I am not a candidate for the presidency, and if all the people of the United States should join together and offer it to me I would not accept the position. I am too old. No man of 72 has the right to undertake the work and responsibility which come to the chief executive of the United States. It is a position of wear and tear, and it should have a younger man.—Senator Sherman in Interview For New York Herald.

Curious Use For a Husband.

A curious use for a husband is reported from Clerkenwell, near London, where a Mr. Lamb and his wife keep a small shop. For 14 years the firm has avoided paying taxes by the wife's sending the husband to jail to serve out the legal time for unpaid taxes, while she remains at the store attending to business.—New York World.

FIELD OF THE FLAG.

Hawaii's Star Would Make Old Glory Shine In Symmetry.

The 44 stars now in the field of the American flag present a very jagged appearance. There does not seem to be any way to arrange them in equal rows. All sorts of forms and arrangements have been adopted by flagmakers. Perhaps some uniform plan of placing the stars would be settled upon if it were not that every one expects the number will shortly be increased.

No change can be made, however, until 1896, as the law requires that additional stars shall be added only on the Fourth of July succeeding the admission of new states. In all probability Utah and New Mexico will be admitted next winter, which will increase the stars in the field to 46. But even then there will be almost the same irregularity, though the field will be more nearly filled up and will appear less jagged than now.

Forty-eight stars could be arranged so as to present a perfectly regular appearance, and it is not improbable that that number may be reached before long. Oklahoma, a booming territory, is asking admission, and Arizona has long had pretensions to statehood.

With the admission of those four organized territories the national domain will be exhausted unless the Indian country is to be absorbed or admitted as an Indian state. There is, of course, Alaska, but that region can hardly be considered as a possible state. It might be added to our extreme northwestern state, or even to California, as there is no constitutional obstacle to this.

An ideal number of stars for arrangement in the field of the flag would be 49. Up, down and diagonally there would be rows of seven, the mystic number.

It is quite possible that there may be 49 states before the end of the century. The civilized Indians in the Indian Territory may ask and obtain admission, or the American colonies in the Hawaiian Islands may come in. It is true that they are now maintaining an independent republic, but they constantly avow their purpose to ask admission to the Union.—San Francisco Chronicle.

REVOLUTION IN SURGERY.

Promised Through the Discovery of a Philadelphia Physician.

Dr. J. H. McClelland of Pittsburg, in describing a discovery which, it is said, will revolutionize the administration of anæsthetics—the discovery of Dr. H. L. Northrup of Philadelphia—says:

"The administration of oxygen with chloroform marks an advance in the history of anæsthesion second only to the discovery of anæsthetics itself.

"It consists simply of forcing oxygen gently through a small body of chloroform. The apparatus consists of an ordinary chloroform inhaler such as Krohne & Geseman's of London preferred, or a Junker. Instead, however, of forcing air through the chloroform bottle with a bulb, as ordinarily done, a tube is substituted, which is connected with a cylinder of oxygen. This is turned on fast or slow to suit the necessities of the case. It is perfectly agreeable to the patient, and there is no strangling, seldom nausea during or after the operation, and the pulse steadily gets stronger. Under almost any circumstances the heart action is strengthened and respiration becomes more regular."—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Innocent Poker.

Poker playing for money has been considered one of those forms of amusement with which the law may justly interfere, but Chief Justice Beatty of the supreme court of California says in a recent decision: "Poker playing for money, however objectionable in fact, is in the eyes of the law as innocent as chess or any game played for recreation, and its votaries and the places where it is played are not criminal." On with the jackpot; let joy be unconfined!—Boston Herald.

They Deserve It.

Laura Press, 9 years old, and Ida Pfeiffer, 13 years old, pupils of Professor Mayer at the North Side natatorium, accomplished a great feat for girls of their years the other morning. Without stopping they paddled for two hours around the big tank, covering more than two miles each. The girls claim the championship of the city.—Chicago Times-Herald.

In Love's Domain.

The old familiar plains—
The summer meadows and the reckless rills,
The tinkling tenor of the silver rain—
The twilight calling of the whippoorwills.

And the same sad, sweet flowers
Loved of the bees, the wind blown vines—the same
Soft village bells that chimed the evening hours,
The blue skies bending and the stars aflame.

The silver poplars stand
With shimmering leaves. The morning glories peep
In the old window where they kissed your hand,
Curl shadowed in the mystery of sleep.

All things are as of old
Save one thing, dear—the presence sweet of you.
There is no little hand for me to hold—
No lips of crimson and no eyes of blue.

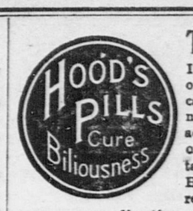

And so I come again
To the remembered beauty of the place.
I hear the blossoms tapping at the pane,
But hear no more thy step or see thy face.

Like one who in a dream
Walks forth and treads familiar paths I go.
The broad light wakes me. Field and flower and stream,
With beauty and with music, make me know.

I call to you. I call
And listen for an answer, but I hear
Only the dripping of the dews that fall—
Melodious voices echoing through the air.

And thy voice still! O love!
And art thou gone forever? Shall I see
Only the sad sun in the heavens above—
Only the star, the bird, the flower, the tree?

Return! The world is lone,
The flowers are fading, and the stars above
Pale in life's storms, and in the dark I moan
And wander, weary for a woman's love.
—Frank L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

The Ruined Cathedral at Macao, China.

Remnants of what have once been mighty walls,
Of tessellated halls,
Where trod
The myriad ministers and worshipers of God,
Of golden portals and immortal spires
And altars lit by ever burning fires,
What are you now, stones sacred and sublime,
But a loose page torn from the book of time?

Never again shall nave and transept hear the strain
Of the "Magnificat's" glad refrain,
Nor rise upon the evening breeze
The vespers' spirit melodies.
Where once they rose in air
The pagan tomtoms blare,
And in the place of Latin prayer and song
Are heard the heathen cymbal and the gong.

Thy halls are filled with specters shadowy gray
By night and day.
The Jesuit father general, sweet and sad,
The deathless poet of the Lusiad,
Bishops and brothers, princes, padres, peers,
Soldiers in armor, merchants, buccaneers
Throng every spot,
Contrasting what has been with what is not.

Yet, O cathedral, though thy days are fled
And thou art but a phantom from the dead,
Thy work shall live until the final day
And grow alway,
In wiser measures than the past has wrought,
In better manners, nobler laws and thought.
The years to come thine epitaph shall find
In the new race of godlike humankind.

Soap Bubbles.

M. Izarn has communicated to the Academy of Sciences a new method for obtaining soap bubbles lasting a much longer time than those obtained from the soap water generally used. He has recourse to a resinous soap made by the following formula: Pulverize together 10 grams of pure rosin and 10 parts of carbonate of potash; add 100 parts of water and boil until complete solution. We obtain in this way a thick solution which may be kept in stock to be diluted for use with from four to five times its volume of water. It can be kept indefinitely even when exposed to the air. The bubbles produced are very persistent and consequently can be made useful in the study of phenomena relating to thin laminæ and in making photographs in which soap bubbles play a part.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Hay and Grain Doing Better Than Was Generally Expected.

More Rain Is Needed In Some Localities.

Field Crops In General Reported to Be In Flourishing Condition.

BOSTON, July 23.—The New England weather bureau, in co-operation with the board of agriculture, issues the following bulletin for the week ending July 23.

Better weather for making hay has prevailed in most sections of New England during the last part of the week, especially, and it has been improved to its fullest extent. On lowlands and rich meadows the crop is of good quality, and heavier than was expected. Much grain has been cut and is of good quality. Field and garden crops are all pushing ahead fast, with fine prospect. The rainy, cloudy weather has blighted potatoes to some extent in Rhode Island, while in Vermont the ground is getting very dry, and more rain is needed for all crops. Tobacco is making splendid growth.

Rain Needed.

The weather for the first part of the week in Maine was cloudy and threatening, but the last half has been more favorable, and a good deal of hay has been put in first-class condition; the uplands are mostly cut, and work is in progress on lowlands. Correspondents vary as to the amount that will be gathered, but very few expect an average yield. Corn is pushing forward rapidly, and potatoes look well generally, but in many sections more rain is needed for the best growth of all hoed crops. Pastures and cut fields are turning brown in places. The new potatoes that have come into the markets are very good. Correspondents report that the horn fly is putting in its appearance in considerable numbers.

Horn Fly Appears.

Much partly dried hay has been badly injured in New Hampshire this week, and the work of securing the crop is progressing slowly. The showers of the morning of the 22nd in southern sections have done a good deal of good to crops, but in sections where they did not reach, rain is needed. Feed is short in southwest sections, while correspondents in Grafton, Cheshire and Belknap counties report that wells and springs are very low and drying up fast. Grain is filling well, but has been lodged badly. Corn was somewhat at a standstill the first of the week, but is growing fast now. Potatoes need more sun and more rain. Peas and peaches are a failure in parts of Merrimack county. Blueberries are scarce in most places, but blackberries promise a good crop with favorable weather.

Good Haying Weather.

Better hay weather has prevailed in Vermont again the past week than in the other northern states, and it has been improved to its fullest extent. Some farmers are through haying and report a light crop; but others state that grass is still growing, and that meadows are very heavy and of unusually good quality. A number report that the hay crop is much better than was expected earlier in the season. There has been a general lack of rainfall here, and the ground is getting very dry, affecting crops on light soil. Most crops look well and are growing fast. Oats bid fair to be heavier than usual. A correspondent in Washington county reports grasshoppers thicker than he ever before saw them at this time of year; they are working on grain some.

Generally Favorable.

There has been more sunshine in western Massachusetts this week than in eastern, and the weather has been improved in getting in the hay crop. In Hampden county grass is growing fast and ripening slowly, but generally uplands are overripe, and every hour of sunshine is utilized. A fear is expressed that in their anxiety to get the hay under cover without damage from rain much is not cured properly. In most sections of this state there has been plenty of rain for present needs, and the temperature and soil conditions have been very favorable for all vegetable growth. Tobacco has been pushed ahead unusually fast by the sunshine and moist weather. Corn continues its heavy growth, and is setting ears well. Grain is heavy and has filled well. In eastern counties apples are dropping badly, but in western they are hanging on the trees well. A larger crop is indicated in the latter district than in the east. Most orchards have made a heavy growth of wood so far this season. The drought seemed to affect the early berries of all kinds, but later ones are showing well. Peaches and grapes generally look promising.

Potatoes Not Thriving.

Potatoes are being badly affected in Rhode Island by the moist weather and lack of sunshine. In Washington county they have blighted a good deal, and in Providence county some localities show the disease. Considerable hay has been secured in good condition, but much remains to be cut. Pasturage is good. Most field crops are growing fast, though more sunshine is needed. The berry crop is reported poor and scarce.

Water Is Low.

The favorable weather of the last part of the week has been improved in Connecticut in securing hay and early grain in good condition. There has been little damage from rains this week. Lowlands and rich meadows are turning out a good crop, but uplands, as has been reported a number of times, are light everywhere. Oats are turning, with apparently well-filled heads, and of heavy straw. The rye is mostly cut, with a very good crop. Potatoes are reported as never looking better, though they would be improved in places in Litchfield county with more rain. Pears are looking well, with the early varieties nearly ready for market. Early apples are ripening, with a good yield in some orchards, while in others there will be a light crop of the early and late varieties. Reports on the condition of the apple crop throughout New England are very favorable. Blackberries are ripening and are generally plenty and good. Other small fruits are about the average. Onions show some signs of blight in Fairfield county. Wells and streams are low.

The Quebec Railway Horror.

QUEBEC, June 23.—The inquest on the bodies of the victims of the Grand Trunk railroad disaster at Craig's Road station, through which 14 lives were lost, closed at Levis yesterday afternoon. Ludger Perrault, hotel keeper at Arthabaska station, testified that Engineer McLeod purchased a can of ale at his bar when the ill-fated train passed that station on the night of the wreck. McLeod had the reputation of being a sober, competent man; but, on this occasion, the supposition is that the ale made him drowsy, and he thus missed his signals.

An Uneasy Feeling.

COLON, July 23.—A report has reached here that a revolution has broken out in three of the departments. News was received from Colombia early in June of a fresh outbreak near Barranquilla, which was said to be due to forces marched into Colombian territory from Venezuela. The success of General Alfaro's revolutionary movement in Ecuador has been expected to reawaken the revolutionary spirit in Colombia.

Richardson Is Collector.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The president has appointed Frank C. Richardson collector of customs at Gloucester, Mass. Richardson is a politician residing near that port, but not within the city. An effort was made some time ago to prevent his appointment by the circulation of a report that he had spoken disrespectfully of President Cleveland and the administration, but he was able to disprove the charge.

Double Tragedy at Chicago.

POCATELLO, Ida., July 23.—There is no truth in the sensational reports sent out from here regarding the outbreak of Indians, and no demonstrations have been made, such as the Indians always make before hostilities are commenced. There is no excitement in Pocatello, and no trouble is anticipated.

Fighting Anticipated.

BERLIN, July 23.—A dispatch from Tangier reports that the situation near Saffi, where a German was murdered, is extremely critical. The town is besieged with rebellious Bedoun tribes. The governor has distributed rifles among the European residents.

Farmers' Afflictions.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23.—Specials to The Journal confirm the reports of smut on wheat in the northern part of the Red River valley. Smut is also found in scattering fields of barley and oats. The condition is reported as not serious as yet.

A Dangerous Locality.

COLON, July 23.—The strike of wharf and ship laborers here is extending to the colored mechanics and to the laborers at Panama. Considerable anxiety prevails, as the situation is critical.

AFFAIRS IN A TANGLE.

Lack of Systematic Bookkeeping In Willimantic Dime Bank.

Some New Light Thrown on Queer Transactions

Which Threaten to Involve Prominent Men In the Town.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 24.—It is now asserted that the Dime bank was insolvent months ago. On July 1, last, E. A. Buck's term of office as bank commissioner expired. He declared the bank solvent at the time. Commissioner Crofut's latest examinations disprove this statement. Mr. Buck was elected president of the bank Monday afternoon. He was confronted with these facts by State's Attorney Hunter, and immediately resigned.

The bank's bookkeeping has been of the loosest character. No interest whatever has been paid on many notes, and thousands of dollars in unsecured personal notes have just been discovered. Among these are two $1000 notes of Mr. Buck's son, William. The $10,000 in bonds missing are those of the Staten Island Railroad company.

It has come out that Walden did actually advance $16,000 of the bank's money for the purchase of the Morrison Machine company estate by Attorney Thomas J. Kelly. Mr. Kelly appeared at a meeting of the directors yesterday and explained that he acted as Mr. Walden's agent in selling machinery to Sutton & Bain of Allentown, Pa., assuming that it was for the benefit of the bank. This was the machinery for which Walden paid $4400 of the bank's money. The directors appointed a committee to collect the money due on this.

W. G. Morrison of the Morrison Machine company has been missing since Sunday. It is supposed that as soon as Morrison learned of Walden's departure he Left For Parts Unknown.

E. B. Sumner and Thomas J. Kelly left last night for Allentown to look after the machinery transaction.

It was stated last night that several sensational arrests would probably be made during the next 24 hours.

The missing treasurer and his father had built up an extensive fire insurance agency. Representatives of several of the companies from New York and Boston were in town yesterday examining their accounts.

Their insurance books are in as bad condition nearly as the books of the bank. It is supposed that most of the missing money was invested in the Morrison Machine company.

It has been learned that $10,000 of Staten Island railroad bonds, which were in the bank at the examination made June 15, were missing at the examination on July 11, and have not been seen since.

The directors will meet again this evening, and it is probable that C. B. Pomeroy and John Scott, the newly elected president and vice president, will resign.

Hand In Hand.

AYER, Mass., July 24.—Thirty-one clergymen, representing six distinct religious denominations, met in the town hall yesterday and formed a ministerial union to be known as the United Religious association. The meeting was somewhat unusual in its character, in that both Protestant and Catholic met on a common footing to discuss the great questions of religious affiliation, and the spirit of the day's proceedings was permeated with good fellowship and brotherly love. It was certainly an epoch in the religious history of New England.

Moving Again.

LOWELL, Mass., July 24.—The council deadlock, which has been stubbornly maintained since inauguration day, with one exception, went to pieces last night by Councilman Delehanty (Dem.) joining the Republicans, which enabled them to pass an order for a joint convention in order to displace the city treasurer and city clerk, but the convention is suspended by reason of a notice of reconsideration of the vote. Attempts were made to elect other city officers, and James E. Dacey was chosen superintendent of streets.

Shot a Friend.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 24.—Royce Coffran, aged 19 years, called at Mrs. Samuel Hadley's house on a visit, and to refresh him Mrs. Hadley went into an adjoining room to get some milk. Coffran and Robert Hadley were talking about hunting, and the former took down a gun, which was hanging on the wall, for the purpose of examining. The gun was loaded, and by the accidental discharge, the bullet went through a partition, and then into Mrs. Hadley's body, causing almost instant death.

Traced by Police.

LYNN, Mass., July 24.—Police Marshal Wells yesterday received a telegram from the New York police stating that they had a man named Bernard under arrest on suspicion of having stolen a lot of silk and valuable laces which were supposed to have been shipped to this city. An investigation resulted in finding several parcels containing silk dresses, sealskin sacks, fur hats and a quantity of lace and embroidering at a house on Broad street. The goods were shipped to New York for identification.

Posse Searched For Her.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 24. — While gathering ferns on South Mountain, Miss Mary Adams became lost. A searching party was organized and about 6 o'clock the young woman returned home. She had come across some cows and waited for them to start for home, when she followed them. She was considerably frightened by her experience. Owing to the prominent social standing of the family, the affair caused considerable excitement.

Investigators Get to Work.

PROVIDENCE, July 24.—The committee appointed by the legislature to investigate the management of the State College of Agriculture held its first meeting last night in secret session. The college in question is for the education of the sons of poor families; but, it is claimed, it would be cheaper to send the students to the best colleges in the country and have them educated there.

Caught by Revolving Shaft.

MANSFIELD, Mass., July 24.—Alfred I. Morse, an employe at Spaulding's jewelry factory in this place, was caught by his clothing on the main shaft, and, after making two revolutions, striking violently against the ceiling and an adjacent beam, was precipitated to the floor with nothing on but his necktie, shoes and stockings. No bones were broken, although he was badly bruised.

The Natchaug Silk Failure.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 24.—In the superior court yesterday, James E. Hayden was appointed permanent receiver of the Natchaug Silk company. This company was mixed up in the affairs of the First National bank and failed in consequence. Among its liabilities are notes due the bank for nearly $300,000 cash advanced by Cashier Risley, now deceased.

Decision Reserved.

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 24.—A hearing on the final disposition of the National Water works (Kansas City) case, which involves over $3,000,000, and which has been before the courts for several years, was given before Justice Brewer of the supreme court of the United States here yesterday. Justice Brewer reserved his decision.

Yachtsmen Confident.

BOSTON, July 24.—After the showing of the Defender in the race against the Vigilant over the 30-mile triangle off Sandy Hook, in a breeze of not more than a dozen miles an hour, New England yachtsmen say that it is a foregone conclusion that the new Herreshoff boat will be selected to meet the Englishman, and that it is a wise choice.

Loss May Reach $100,000.

BOSTON, July 24.—Fire broke out in the basement of the building, 65 to 69 Summer street, occupied by Spitz Bros. & Mork, clothing merchants. The damage to the building is trifling, but the loss on the stock from smoke and water is estimated at between $80,000 and $100,000.

To Run by Electricity.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 24.—The railroad commissioners have ordered a hearing on petition of the Portland Extension Railroad company asking for an approval of the articles of association. The directors desire to build an electric railroad from West Brook to Gorham.

Queer Hiding Place.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 24.—Margaret O'Brien, aged 7, was playing "hide the bean," with a number of other children. She put the bean in her ear, and it worked itself into her head. A physician removed it, but the little girl died as a result of the operation.

May Prove a Drowning Case.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 24.—Edward Lewis of Pigeon Cove went out in his fishing boat at daylight yesterday. The boat, containing his hat, was afterward discovered drifting on the water. It is thought that he accidentally fell overboard.

Looks Like Incendiarism.

EXETER, N. H., July 24.—Fire broke out simultaneously in the cellar and in the attic of the residence of George F. Richards, and the house was practically consumed. The insurance companies have placed a keeper in the house.

Kirby Acquitted.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Sidney L. Frazer, a well-known stockbroker, has failed. The amount of his liabilities is not known. He is out of the city.

SETTLERS MOVING OUT

They Intend to Go Indian Hunting on Their Own Account.

Redskins Reported to Be In a Fighting Mood.

Disturbances Brought About by Violation of Game Laws.

MARKET LAKE, Ida., July 24. — A courier from the settlers in the Jackson Hole country, with a dispatch for Governor Richards, reports that the Indians have been joined by a large number of Lempi and Ute Indians, and that they have every pass in Jackson Hole guarded. Scouts from the settlers say the Indians are massing in large numbers and will no doubt offer a fight.

A prospector named Smith was ambushed by Indians, and was wounded in the breast. He claimed to have cleaned out the band, but scouts sent to confirm it, say they found evidences of only one Indian being wounded.

The settlers have brought their wives and children to Wilford, and intend to go Indian hunting and not wait for the redskins to attack them.

Many sensational reports have been sent out, but there has been no fighting on the part of the Indians. The Indians may yet be persuaded to return to their reservations without any more trouble.

Story of the Trouble.

It was last Wednesday that the report of the Bannock Indians taking to the warpath arrived at Washington, and excited apprehension for the settlers in northwestern Wyoming and the Princeton geological expedition in the same locality.

The news reached Washington in a telegram from Governor W. A. Richards of Wyoming, saying: "Have just received a telegram from officers in Marysdale, Wy., stating that nine Indians were arrested, one killed, and others escaped. Many Indians are reported here, threatening lives and property. Immediate action on your part is absolutely necessary." Governor Richards added that he had received other advices by mail representing the situation as serious, and asked the secretary to take immediate action for the protection of the settlers.

The war department telegraphed the dispatch to General Coppinger, commanding the department of the Pacific, and directed him to hold troops in readiness to move on the hostile redskins at a moment's notice. Commissioner of Indian Affairs Browning sent dispatches to the agents on the Bannock and Shoshone reservations to do all in their power to prevent further disturbances and return absent Indians to their reservations.

Further advices stated that the Indians who had congregated in Jackson's Hole had sent across the range of Green River for re-enforcements, and that it was believed they were intent on holding a sun dance. There were 300 Indians in Jackson's Hole, including 50 Shoshones from the Wyoming reservation. Governor Richards sent Adjutant General Stitzer from Cheyenne to Jackson's Hole to look into the situation and to call for troops if necessary. The governor also telegraphed to General Sheldon of the Wyoming National Guard to place his command under arms in readiness for a campaign against the Indians.

Started by Bannocks.

The trouble had its origin in the illegal killing of game by the Bannocks from Fort Hall. The Indian bureau in 1889 advised all its agents that complaints had been made that the Indians were accustomed to leave the reservation to hunt, and that they slaughtered game in violation of the laws. Some Indians have the right to leave the reservation to hunt, but it is held illegal to kill game not wanted for food. Quitting a reservation without permission, too, renders the Indians liable to arrest and prosecution.

The Bannocks in Fort Hall are notorious for their warlike spirit. They left the reservation in 1878 and crossed the southern part of Idaho on a murdering and plundering expedition. They were joined by other bands, and 2000 of them assembled in Stein's mountains. There they were attacked and scattered by the First cavalry, under Captain Barnard, and were defeated by the same command at Plot Rock.

General Miles was then in Yellowstone Park. He heard that a party of Bannocks were on the warpath, and taking a part of his escort, the Fifth infantry, he routed them after a decisive battle.

Will Not Die In the Electrical Chair.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The New York Herald says Maria Barberi will not die in the electrical chair. The Herald is in receipt of information from an authoritative source which justifies it in making this statement. The tremendous outburst of public feeling, calling upon the governor to exercise his authority to save Maria Barberi from the imposition of the death penalty, is assuming proportions that make it well nigh irresistible.

It Might Be Worse.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Consul General Vifquain, at Panama, cables that the troubles at Colon were a labor strike, which, so far, had been of a peaceable character. Officials of the state department believe that the troubles will not be of such a serious nature as earlier dispatches indicated.

The Spray at the Azores.

HORTA, Azores, July 24.—The Spray, sailing from Boston, a craft of only 13 tons, Slocum, master, has arrived here. She made the trip from Cape Sable in 18 days. All is well. She will proceed from here to Gibraltar.

Warlike Movements.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

A DISPATCH from Hartford, Conn., says that the N. Y., N. H. & H. will assume control of the N. Y. & N. E. Sept. 1 and that within one year the Consolidated, with all the branch lines and the property of the present New York & New England road, will be renamed the New England Railroad Co. The present name is too long and besides a misnomer, and a change will be welcome.

GLOUCESTER DID not believe in purchasing the plant of the water company in that city, and after a long fight it secured permission to erect an independent system. This act was accepted Tuesday by a vote of 1648 to 33, but it provides that the city shall purchase if within 30 days the company offers its plant to the city.

YOUNG LADIES TO HELP.

They Form Auxiliary to St. John's Society.

A largely attended meeting of the young ladies of the Quincy parish was held at St. John's hall, Tuesday evening, for the purpose of forming an auxiliary society to the St. John's. The interest shown presages well for the life and success of the new society. The election of officers was the only business at this meeting and the following were chosen:

President,—Miss E. C. Sheahan.
Vice President,—Miss Eleanore Roche.
Treasurer,—Miss Ellen O'Brien.
Recording Secretary,—Miss Julia Duffy.
Corresponding Secretary,—Miss Alice Gavin.
Visiting Committee,—Miss Nellie Flynn, Miss M. E. Walsh and Miss Frances Talbot.
Entertainment Committee,—Miss Kate Walsh, Miss Jane Griffin, Miss Jane Walsh, Miss Elizabeth Garrity, Miss Mary Bruce.

The executive committee, the first five officers, were charged with the making of a constitution and by-laws and will report at the meeting next Tuesday evening.

All Catholic young ladies of Quincy are eligible to membership and those not members are requested to attend the next meeting.

HORSE COW AND DOG

Cremated in the Fire at Atlantic Last Night.

The two rounds from Box 62 about nine o'clock Tuesday night were rung in for a fire in the small stable of John Hayes on Walnut street, Atlantic. In the stable at the time there was a horse, cow and bull dog, all of which were burned to death before they could be removed, as the fire had made considerable headway when discovered.

The department were early on the scene but as stated above the fire had made such headway it was impossible to save it.

The stable adjoining also took fire but that was saved although damaged to the extent of $75.

The Hayes' stable was valued at $150, the horse at $75 and the cow at $50. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. Hayes thinks it incendiary but the general impression is that it was due to carelessness.

WEDDED AT WOLLASTON.

Miss Ida H. Goodspeed Becomes Mrs. J. Arthur Sparrow.

There was a very pretty house wedding at Wollaston on Tuesday afternoon, the contracting parties being Mr. J. Arthur Sparrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Sparrow, and Miss Ida Hatch Goodspeed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot F. Goodspeed.

The ceremony was performed at four o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents on Highland avenue in the presence of only the relatives of the contracting parties, by the Rev. Preston Gurney, pastor of the First Baptist society. The service was beautiful in its simplicity.

The bride wore a dainty gown of white muslin and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The house was profusely decorated with cut flowers and palms. After the ceremony a lunch was served by Hendrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow left for a two weeks' tour. They will be at home Wednesdays after September 1, at 20 Highland avenue, Wollaston.

GROCERS' PICNIC.

Old Colony Association at Bass Point, Nahant, Today.

It is a holiday today throughout the Old Colony district for the grocers and their clerks. In all the towns except Quincy the stores are closed and at Bass Point, Nahant, employers and employes are having their annual picnic. A few Quincy grocers are with them, but the local association have their grocers' day August 8 and it is on that date that the holiday will be observed in Quincy.

The sports of the day begun at 11 A. M. and will continue until 4 o'clock, and the programme included: Standing high jump for clerks, 100 yard dash for proprietors, fat men's race, swimming match, ball game, boat race for proprietors, tub race for clerks, pig chase, and boat race for clerks.

The other attractions were the dinner, music by Naval Brigade band and dancing.

The Musical Feature.

The service at Houghs Neck Union Chapel was made very enjoyable last Sabbath by the able assistance of the following singers who led the congregation in singing the hymns, one of which deserves special mention, "Lead Kindly Light," wherein the voices blended most sweetly, Miss Lawton of Boston, soprano; Mrs. Hughs, of Fair Haven, Vt., contralto; Miss Comey, of Newton, alto; Mr. Farrer of Springfield, tenor, and Mr. H. W. French of Quincy, bass, with Miss Graves, of Williamsburg, Mass., as pianist. It seemed quite remarkable to find voices unaccustomed to one another to come together as harmoniously as those of which we mention. It is said that "in union there is strength," which seems manifest in everything thus far connected with the chapel, a most needed requisite at this pleasant summer retreat. The good work must and will go on under the energetic managment of such gentlemen as Mr. W. S. Williams and Mr. Tuckerman, who are untiring in their efforts to procure suitable worship for the residents, and visitors among us, who cannot fail to appreciate the same.

Rev. A. A. Miner's Will.

The late Rev. A. A. Miner of Boston left his property in trust to his widow to be disposed of by will at her death if she so desire. In the event of her not deciding to dispose of the property left in trust then these public bequests are to be made: $2000 each to the Second Universalist Society, Boston; Union Publishing House, Boston; Massachusetts Convention of Universalists; Goddard Seminary, Barre, Vt.; Dean Academy, Franklin; Westbrook Universalist Society. The residue of the estate under the same conditions is to go to Tufts College.

☞Don't go away for vacation until you have arranged for the DAILY LEDGER to be sent you by mail. It keeps you fully posted on all the news of Quincy and vicinity. Two cents a day, or fifty cents a month, in advance, covers all expense, including postage.

Rev. Francis A. Cunnningham has gone to St. Johns, N. B., for a two weeks' visit.

Burn & Cantfill have opened monumental designing rooms in the Adams building.

Mr. Lester M. Pratt and family have taken a cottage at North Weymouth beach for a few weeks.

Mr. L. E. Prince of Wollaston caught a large snapping turtle in Sachem's brook one day this week.

Mrs. T. H. Wason and son are at the Rosslyn cottage, at the South Framingham camp grounds.

Miss Anna Bartlett of Quincy is attending the New England assembly at South Framingham.

The Newman reading circle of Brockton will take the electrics to Quincy on Sunday and go to Nantasket.

Mrs. Eugene Sullivan is building a large house on Granite street, near the John Hancock school building.

Miss Lizzie McAuliffe, bookkeeper for J. F. Sheppard & Sons, is at Sunapee, N. H., on a two weeks' vacation.

William Everett is the Old South lecturer this afternoon, his subject being "Cambridge, the Puritan University."

The balance of the rails for the East Milton extension have arrived and the work will now be rushed to completion.

Miss Eva M. Brown and her mother are spending several weeks at George's Mills, near the charming Lake Sunapee, in N. H.

Commodore Pettengill has chartered the steam yacht Marie for the judges and press at the open race of the Quincy Yacht club Saturday.

Two carloads of children from the Atlantic Memorial church went through the city to Lovell's grove this morning for the annual picnic.

Dr. W. G Kendall was awarded first prize for gooseberries, English varieties, at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society exhibit last week.

The pretty sloop yacht Nina, owned by Charles G. Ryder of Whitman is an addition to the Quincy fleet. She has formerly sailed at Plymouth.

Warren S. Parker is building a house on the estate of the late George Saville on Saville avenue. It is reported that Rev. E. N. Hardy will occupy it.

The trustees of the Hospital have at last put a lower, straight fence in place of the poor, tumble down one that has so long been a menace to passers by at their cottage on Spear street.

William H. Collins and John S James have withdrawn from the granite firm of Collins, Spargo & Co. The business will be continued under the same name by Thomas Collins and William Spargo.

Just an even dozen from Quincy participated in the excursion to Newport today, among them being, J. Albert Simpson and William Robinson, of Milton; Mrs. Lapham and Fred Lapham, Mrs. H. E. Ricker, Mrs. Edwin Newcomb, Mrs. George W. Jones and Mr. James McGrath.

On Friday evening July 26, the Wollaston Cycle Club will observe their anniversary. At the club rooms there will be an entertainment after which will come refreshments. The club have hired a cottage at Bank Rock and have called a run there Saturday, July 27, at 2 o'clock, returning Sunday afternoon.

Our young friends and some older of both sexes are turning to Hull today. The open races are attracting our Quincy yachtsmen in numbers. Such a contrast as today brings from the stormy one at Savin Hill, ought to lead Quincy—perhaps, to capture a few prizes, especially among the plucky Faxons.

The annual picnic of Christ's church Sunday School took place Tuesday, when about two hundred of the school children and congregation went down in barges to Mr. Amory's at Braintree, where they played cricket, baseball, had races, boating and bathing and a very enjoyable time, returning home about half past five.

First of the Open Races.

The Hull Corinthian yacht club begun the series of five open races Tuesday, with a very successful contest among knockabouts. There were two classes which sailed a nine mile course around Harry's rocks, Jack-knife ledge spar and another spar at Strawberry hill, back to starting point. There were two classes and the order of finish was: La Chicka, Nabob, Hobo, Nike, Sally and Hullo; in the second, Romance, Cocheco, Polly, Redwing and Nocheta.

Today the first of the three open races of the Hull yacht club is being held, and on Saturday, the grand wind up, the Quincy open race.

BLACKER AND BLACKER

Grows the List of Accusations Piling Up Against Holmes.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Arthur Manier of this city took out a warrant yesterday afternoon for H. H. Holmes. The charge is murder, and Manier says he believes his aunt, Mrs. Julia Connors, was killed by Holmes between Aug. 1 and Nov. 1.

Mrs. Carrie Pitzel has made the direct statement that H. H. Holmes has accused Pat Quinlan, the present janitor of Holmes' "castle," of the murder of Howard Pitzel, her son. This is the boy whom Detective Geyer is now searching for in Detroit.

Accusations against Holmes, however, are piling up, and now it is promised that warrants charging him with the murder of the Williams sisters will also be sworn out.

Mrs. Pitzel's charge against Pat Quinlan came about in a singular manner. She arrived in Chicago on Sunday night last from Toronto. At that time she sent for Quinlan, and he went to 6063 Sangamon street, the residence of Eugene Haywood, to see her. While he was there Mrs. Pitzel told him that Holmes had told her in Philadelphia that he (Quinlan) had made away with her son. Quinlan talked with Mrs. Pitzel for half an hour, during which time she repeated the charge of Holmes that Quinlan had killed Howard Pitzel. Quinlan has made so many contradictory statements himself that his arrest is momentarily expected.

A White Metal District.

JACKSON CITY, Miss., July 24.—As a result of primaries held so far, it is evident that Senator McLaurin will be nominated for governor. McLaurin is a pronounced advocate of free coinage of silver, and is opposed by H. H. McCabe, an advocate of the single standard. There are five candidates for United States senator. Of these, Governor Stone is a gold man, and the remaining four are all strong silver men. Nearly every candidate so far nominated for the legislature is a free silver man, and almost every nominee from constable up is for the white metal.

Six New Gunboats.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—An advertisement was issued from the navy department yesterday calling for proposals for building six light-draft composite gunboats for the navy. The bids will be opened Oct. 1. These boats will be of about 1000 tons displacement, and will be built of wood below the waterline, fastened to steel frames, so that they may be coppered and thus fitted for protected cruising without docking. They are required to show 12 knots speed with a small forced draft.

Beer Cut a Figure.

QUEBEC, July 24.—The coroner's jury which investigated the cause of the Grand Trunk railway disaster at Craig's Road returned a verdict that the collision was due to the carelessness and incompetency of employes of the company. The jury recommended the application of the block system to the Grand Trunk and the examination of the employes for color-blindness, and regrets that Driver McLeod of Conductor McCabe's train supplied himself with a quart of beer at Athabaska station.

A Disastrous Explosion.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Three men were instantly killed and a fourth badly injured yesterday by a premature explosion of dynamite at the drainage canal. Over 100 men were at work close to the blast when the explosion occurred, and it is a wonder that the loss of life was not much greater. No cause is known for the explosion, as all the men were careful, and experienced in the handling of dynamite.

A Firebug's Confession.

KENOSHA, Wis., July 24. — Bernard Rosenow, arrested in connection with the burning of the plant of the Chicago Bedding company, has confessed that he applied the torch. He was to receive $300 for the job. He said one of the men now under arrest made him the offer, but he says he only received $50 after the job was done.

Turkey Becoming Scared.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 24.—It is reported that the council has decided to mobilize all the reserves along the whole seaboard of the empire and in all the European villayets. This measure, entailing great financial sacrifices, is only explained by the acute sense of the critical situation of affairs in several different seaports.

For a Finish Fight.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Davies and Vendig, representing the Florida Athletic club, met last night and completed arrangements for a fight to a finish between Billy Smith and Tommy Ryan. The fight will take place during the week of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at Dallas, and will be for a purse of $5000.

Saved by Women.

GALLIPOLIS, O., July 24.—David Atkins was strung up by the neck in Maple Shade, and would have died if some women had not cut him down. There was a general riot, and revolvers and knives were brought into play.

Gun Was Unsafe.

TOULON, July 24.—At a trial of guns at Bouvines, the breech was blown off one of the pieces, and a sailor was killed. Admiral Chateauminois, two officers and several men were wounded.

SOUTHER WILL CASE.

A Prompt Decision Given Concerning Curious Document.

The Boston Advertiser reports Judge Allen's decision in the supreme court Tuesday, in the case of H. O. Souther, executor, vs. J. S. Souther et al, which involved the meaning of the peculiar will of the late J. L Souther of Quincy. The will gave the residue of his estate equally among his four sons, but provided for the setting off against the share of each of them the indebtedness that should be found recorded in an account book kept by him.

This record of indebtedness, he stated in his will, should be conclusive, any son who contested was to be made content with the smallest sum that the law would give him.

The property for division is about $7000. The court says that the will makes the indebtedness of each son deductable from such son's share of the estate. Entries in the book referred to at the execution of the will are held to be conclusive of the indebtedness then existing. Entries made subsequent to said execution are not conclusive. The indebtedness of each son is to be shown by evidence starting with the amount shown by the book to be due at the execution of the will. The court does not decide whether interest is to be allowed on the indebtedness.

ROBBED THE MAILS.

A Norfolk Downs Man Arrested at Boston Office.

Boston papers report G. E Roberts of Norfolk Downs, for ten years employed as a clerk in the mailing department at the Boston post office, to have been arrested by Post Office Inspector Boynton last night. Roberts, whose duties were in connection with the foreign mail division, is accused of taking letters addressed to Boston and Newfoundland concerns from the racks in the foreign division.

Frequent complaints have been made to the post office department that letters mailed in this division did not reach their destination. Tuesday a test letter was prepared and placed in the mail of this division. A careful watch was kept upon this letter, with the result, it is alleged, that Roberts was seen to abstract it from the rack.

He was immediately escorted to the rooms of Inspector Boynton, where, upon being searched the accusing letter, with others intended for points in Newfoundland, were found in his possession. He was immediately placed under arrest, and locked up.

Roberts is 43 years of age, is married, and resides with his wife at Norfolk Downs. They have no children.

IN ONE INNING ONLY

Was There a Sign of Life in the Boston-St. Louis Game.

ST. LOUIS, July 23.—All through the game the Beaneaters hit Staley hard, and the Browns assisted them as much as possible by making generous run-productive errors at critical moments. The game was a dull one throughout, the only spark of life in it flickered in the last inning, when the locals jumped on Dolan and pounded out five hits for a total of four runs.

Story of a Bad Check.

NEW YORK, July 24.—James Ward, 24 years old, went aboard the steamer City of Hartford yesterday and engaged in conversation with J. A. Pawling of Springfield, Mass., who was a passenger. He talked to him for some time about Springfield people, and then asked Pawling if he could cash a check for him. He produced a check for $560 on the Chemical National bank, drawn to the order of J. J. Skewins & Co., and endorsed over to James F. Ward. Pawling was about to accommodate the stranger when a patrolman, who had noticed the two discussing the subject, arrested Ward. Pawling was very much surprised when the patrolman informed him that the check was worthless, as it had already been cashed and cancelled.

As It Should Be.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The following instructions have been given to all custodians of United States buildings under the control of the treasury department: The flag of the United States shall be hoisted over all buildings under the control of the treasury department during the hours of business and on Feb. 22, May 30 and July 4, from sunrise to sunset, except when stormy weather prevents its display. When either of the last three days falls on Sunday, the flag is to be displayed on the day that is observed locally. On May 30 the flag should be placed at half-mast.

In a Sorry Plight.

SILVER CITY, N. M., July 24.—This city presents a sad spectacle, caused by the most destructive flood ever known in this region. Hotels are badly wrecked, and in every part of the town houses are tumbling down. The approximate loss is $150,000. A number of bridges were washed away. It will be a week before trains can pass into town.

Even Up.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A clever contest occurred here last night between Johnny Van Heest of New York and Jerry Marshall (colored) of Australia. Twenty rounds were the advertised limit, but the referee allowed an additional round, and at its close both were in good condition, so the referee declared it a draw.

Stern Measures Needed.

JEDDAH, July 24.—A mob of 150 Bedouins made a determined attack yesterday upon a number of lighters in the harbor and plundered them of the most valuable goods on board. Seven sailors and nine negro stevedores were seriously wounded while attempting to protect the lighters.

An Ohio Deluge.

BLUE ASH, O., July 24.—The village of Brecon was badly damaged by a cloudburst. Cattle and sheep were drowned, many buildings were damaged and a barn totally destroyed. At Summitt a barn and two houses were wrecked. Damage to crops are reported from different counties.

Was Known Long Ago.

TORONTO, July 24.—The local authorities have been put in possession of a number of letters and documents which show that early in December of last year the authorities of Philadelphia were cognizant that Holmes had made away with the three Pitzel children.

Battling With Death.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Dr. Snelling, who was called to examine Jack Dempsey on the train during his recent trip from the east, has arrived here. He says the pugilist is dying of consumption, and only keeps himself alive by the use of stimulants.

A NIGHT'S VIGIL.

I determined to pass a night in "the chamber of horrors" at Mme. Tussand's, in Baker street. On an appointed evening I was conducted to the "chamber" by one of the officials and left alone.

And in what a situation! Imagine a long, vaulted chamber, shrouded in deep gloom, save that here and there an electric bulb lamp—technically known as a "panic lamp"—just sufficed to make the darkness visible. All around me were the counterfeit presentments of men and women whose crimes have shocked this or some past generation. The very sofa I was sitting upon, a common piece of furniture, covered with red chintz, had been used as a bed by Florence Dennis on the night before she met her death, and right opposite me, trim and neat and dapper, as he appeared in the dock at Southend, was the murderer James Canham Read. Then, as my eyes began to get used to the gloom, fresh shapes, hideous and sinister, began to reveal themselves. Burke, the Edinburgh strangler, and Hare, his accomplice; Franz Muller, who murdered Mr. Briggs in a railway carriage on the North London line in July, 1864; John Lee, the Babbicombe murderer, who survived three separate attempts to hang him, and who is now spending a lifetime in penal servitude; Mrs. Hermann, her black dress hidden by a long white sheet (put on at night to protect it from injury I was afterward informed). These, and many other infamous wretches, I could make out from my place of vantage.

But both ends of the long room were shrouded in darkness, and rising from my seat I started upon a tour of inspection. As I did so a neighboring church clock chimed the half hour. I listened with a feeling akin to thankfulness. The clear, mellow tones inspired me with courage. I felt, why I cannot say, a strange sense of companionship.

Almost the first object which attracted my attention was a small grated window, immediately opposite where I had been sitting. I crossed over and peered in, and found myself looking into the kitchen of Dinham Villa, and the open grave of Deeming's victims, the murderer himself standing, spade in hand, by the yawning hole. It was a fearsome sight—too awfully realistic for my nerves—and I hurried off to where a "panic light" shed a round blotch of white on the stone floor.

At 11 o'clock a watchman appeared on the scene, and very thankful I was to see him. "Eh, miss, but you are a plucky one," was his greeting. I laughed and said —what was quite true in the abstract—that there was nothing to inspire terror in a lot of wax figures. "Maybe, maybe," he returned with a shake of the head, "but I ha' seen strong, big men as wouldn't ha' staid down here all night, not for a £50 note." "Well, I am not getting anything like that," I answered. To which he made no reply, but walked away muttering something about "plenty o' pluck." At the foot of the flight of stone stairs which led to the upper regions he stopped and called to me that he would be back at midnight and every hour thereafter, a piece of information I was exceedingly grateful for.

But how long the hours seemed between those periodical visits. At first I consulted my watch every few minutes, but I had to discontinue this practice, as it made the time seem so much slower in passing. I could not, however, shut my ears to the chiming of a nearby church clock, and I found myself longing involuntarily for dawn and freedom.

Shortly before 1 o'clock I had a fine fright. I was sitting on the sofa previously mentioned, and, I fancy, must have dozed off, when I was startled nearly out of my wits by hearing a harsh voice exclaim: "Eh! Get out! Help! Murder! Help!" I started to my feet, every nerve in my body tingling. What had happened? Was some terrible tragedy being enacted in the silence and darkness of the night? There was a minute of absolute silence, and then again came the agonized cry: "Help! Murder! Help!" This was too much, and I incontinently fled toward the stairway, intent upon escaping to the upper air. Just at that moment, however, I heard the slow, measured tread of the watchman, and with his advent the mystery was explained. The voice proceeded from a parrot domiciled in one of the up stairs rooms. He must have been suddenly awakened out of a bad dream, and as promptly gone to sleep again, for I heard no more of him until just before I took my departure at 6 a. m.

My next interruption was of a more pleasurable kind. Exactly at 2 o'clock a bird began singing and kept it up for fully half an hour. I thought I had never heard such exquisite music. It flooded the whole building with melody, and for the time I forgot weariness and my grewsome surroundings. Then, as suddenly as it began, it ceased, and the silence and darkness seemed more oppressive than ever by contrast. I was very curious to know what manner of bird it could be that would thus sing in captivity during the hours of darkness, and when the watchman next put in appearance I asked him concerning the matter. He told me it was an Australian nightingale.

From 2:30, when the bird ceased singing, until 4, the silence was most profound. Not a sound reached me from the street outside. Only that, now and again, my ear caught the muffled tread of a watchman on duty in one of the up stairs rooms, I might have been in a tomb.

About 5 o'clock the sleeping city outside began to awaken, and my spirits rose perceptibly, especially as I knew that the hour of my release was at hand, and when at length the welcome chimes rang out and my vigil was ended I felt as light hearted as if the night had been spent in a ballroom with friends instead of in an underground dungeon amid the effigies of criminals.

Nevertheless I was pleased to breathe once more the fresh morning air and see around me the familiar sights and listen to the well known sounds of London life. The milkman on his rounds; the brisk, sharp step of the postman; the work girl hurrying to her day's toil—all seemed to take on a new and more vivid significance after my eight hours' immurement. Even the cabman who drove me home seemed more rubicund and jovial than the ordinary run of Jehus.

He doubtless wondered what on earth a young, well dressed woman was doing all alone by herself at that early hour. I could fancy how amazed he would look if I had told him that I had just come from spending a night in the chamber of horrors.—Amusing Journal.

CONSERVATIVE.

The First Use of the Word as an English Political Term.

Canning, and not Croker, was the first to use in English politics the word conservative in its present sense, and too long has Thackeray's "Mr. Wenham" (Disraeli's "Mr. Rigby") had the credit which belongs to a far more brilliant man. The general assumption has been that the term was earliest employed in The Quarterly Review for January, 1830 (No. 83, page 276), in an article which has been commonly said, but upon no specified authority, to have been written by Croker, but its true first use was five years and a half previously.

On June 8, 1824, a dinner was given to George Hibbert, the chairman of the West India Merchants of London, by the members of that body, and several of the leading ministers then serving under Lord Liverpool, the Tory premier, were present. In the course of the proceedings, says a contemporary account, "an observation which fell from Mr. Canning was that the spirit of the present government, as that of all governments ought to be, was essentially conservative."

This appeared in John Bull of June 13, 1824 (page 198), and the apt word was so obviously remarked that it was italicized. Years passed, and Canning had died before the word is again to be met in English politics, but on March 14, 1829, Charles Greville noted in his diary that "Herries told Hyde Villiers that their (the Tories') policy was conservative, that of the Whigs subversive, and that they never could act together."—"The Greville Memoirs," volume 1, part 1, page 192.

The word, employed by both Canning and Herries, was thus "in the air" before it was given in The Quarterly, and this accords with a statement made in the course of a correspondence on the "Etymology of the Word Conservative" which appeared in The Standard at the end of October, 1832, wherein it was said to have been first used in 1829, during the closing controversies upon Roman Catholic emancipation.—Notes and Queries.

INCAPABLE OF IMPERSONALITY.

An Alleged Failing That Has Deferred Woman's Emancipation.

The bond of fellowship which exists between man and man simply by virtue of a common sex is entirely absent between woman and woman. It is, in fact, replaced by a fundamental antagonism, a vague enmity which renders the general attitude of a feminine creature toward her kind essentially different from that of the male creature in identical relations. In individual cases this feeling is counteracted by affection or by sympathy, but apart from personal sentiment it remains, severing every living woman from the rest of her sex. To a great extent this arises from woman's incapacity for impersonal feeling or abstract emotion. In life's fray she fights either for her own hand or, more often, for some one man or woman whom she loves, but rarely for the welfare of her sex at large.

Were it not for this strange lack of humanity in her nature, the emancipation of woman would not have been so grievously retarded. If the few women who suffered aforetime under the restrictions which hedged in their liberty had been able to count on the sympathy and cooperation of all women, the time of their subjugation would have been enormously abbreviated. As it was, the first seekers after freedom met with more opposition from their own sex than they did from the other; nor, indeed, do they fare better today. Enormous changes in their social status were effected by an inconsiderable minority of women brave enough and logical enough to impress the male powers that be with the justice of their demands. But for their courage they received no sympathy and for their success not one word of thanks —nothing, in fact, but execration from the huge inert feminine mass in whose service their strength was spent.—Saturday Review.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Hutter.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Hutter, who recently died in Philadelphia, was widely known as the pioneer in many philanthropic movements in Pennsylvania. She was the widow of the Rev. Dr. E. W. Hutter, once editor of the Lancaster Intelligencer and afterward private secretary of President Buchanan and assistant secretary of state. During the war Mrs. Hutter frequently went to the front, rendering valuable service to the wounded and suffering. She took a conspicuous part in the great sanitary fair held in Philadelphia in 1861, acting as president of the committee of labor, income and revenue. She is credited with having raised $250,000 for the fair. She was the first woman to cross the line after the desperate three days' battle of Gettysburg. She went in a car provided by President Scott of the Pennsylvania railroad and by special permission of President Lincoln.—New York Tribune.

Wonderful Strength of the Beetle.

A noted entomologist who has been writing on the wonderful feats of strength as exhibited in the beetle family tells the following: "I selected a common black water beetle weighing 4.2 grains and found that he was able to carry a load of shot in a small bag, the whole weighing 8¼ ounces, or exactly 858 times the weight of the bug. If a man weighing 150 could carry as much accordingly he could shoulder a 45 ton locomotive and then chain a train of cars together and take the whole lot across the country at a five mile an hour gait."

When a man marries he fully intends to be No. 1 in the family, but often the full point drops out and he lapses into "no one."

Spain, Italy, Sweden, Hanover, Russia, Austria and Turkey receive daily weather reports from Paris and London.

Arabia was so called from its inhabitants, the Arabs.

Alexander H. Rice.

It seems fitting that in Quincy, where for about a quarter of a century Alexander H. Rice, who has just died, held a position as president of one of Boston's private charitable institutions, his death should call for a brief notice.

During a residence as matron of the National Sailors' Home for more than twenty of these years, we knew Gov. Rice as a very frequent visitor, and he also rarely ever failed to be present at the regular Trustees' meetings. It is not as the head of this institution that he shone brightest; it is as a gentleman of large and kind heart and truly sympathetic nature to those who were below him in the world's eyes, that he was at his best.

In deciding any questions relative to the welfare of the beneficiaries of the Institution, he always took the kindest, the most lenient side. He was as direct in his courtesy to the humblest dweller in the Home, as he was to any of the prominent gentlemen who with him, controlled it. His religious nature dictated kindness that the world knows not; and seldom does the light go out of a whiter public life, or of a life valued to those who knew him well, than died to the world, after the protracted, useful life of Alexander H. Rice.

A MOTHER'S DUTY
TOWARDS HER DAUGHTERS.
Suggestions Which Bear Repeating, as Their Importance is Immeasurable.
[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]
Only a few years ago even the medical profession scouted the idea that young girls could suffer from the misery of uterus troubles.
That form of disease, it was claimed, came only to married women.

When Lydia E. Pinkham first sent out the news of her great discovery, there was no lack of harsh speech from those whose practice and opinions she set at defiance.
But when young girls by the hundreds were absolutely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then the tongues of the traducers were stilled, and faith was allowed to live in the hearts of the people.
Young girls are subject to this trouble. It robs them of the buoyancy of youth. It makes all effort distasteful.
It causes retention and suppression of menses, leucorrhœa, severe headache, waxy complexion, depression, weakness, loss of appetite and interest.
Certainly mothers ought to know that these are all symptoms of the one cause of nearly all the suffering that comes to women; and to save their daughters ought to begin treatment at once.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the surest and most natural remedy for women ever compounded. It will accomplish its work with certainty.

Frost Flowers.

The frost sprite breathed on the window pane
And traced with an icicle keen,
And the flowers that sprung 'neath his magic touch
Were fairer than earth's, I ween.

He dipped his pen in a moonbeam chance,
That broke in a tremulous pool,
And caught the tine of a peeping star
To sharpen his glittering tool.

Like witchcraft sprung each leaf and fern,
And the lily's fragile grace;
There were delicate sprays, and buds half blown,
And a rose in a silver vase.

The flowers dreamed on the window pane,
And the midnight stars peeped through
While the artist brushed the petals frail
With a wash of crystal dew.

He hastened to give the finishing touch
And hid his name in the leaves.
Then over his shoulder threw a glance
And hung his pen from the eaves.

REBELS GAIN COURAGE.

Inspired With New Hopes by Recent Defeat of Spanish Troops.

Quiet "Missionary" Work Going on In Gotham.

Revolutionary Party Anxious to Aid Their Brethren In Cuba.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A dispatch from Havana says that since the news of the death of General Santocildes, on July 17, the authorities have had no news of General de Campos. The government fears that there is a general rising in the province of Matanzas.

The defeat of the Spanish troops when General Santocildes was killed has given an impetus to the revolution, and especially in the province of Santiago de Cuba, where the iron miners have joined the rebels.

I have seen a letter from General Maximo Gomez explaining his reasons for the proclamation forbidding work on the plantations for the supply of provisions to the town. He says that while Spain obtains sufficient revenue from Cuba to pay her soldiers, the officials will continue to rule. When the revenue ceases, they will retire. This practically means that the insurgents are prepared to ruin the whole country in order to force Spain's hand.

The owner of a large plantation near Puerto Principe, employing 900 men, applied to the troops for protection. The officer in command advised him to comply with the insurgents' order, whereupon he stopped all work.

Sympathy For Those "At Home."

It is an open secret here that preparations are being made for the sending out of an expedition to Cuba at the very earliest possible opportunity. At the last meeting of the revolutionary party in this city, General de Quesada publicly announced that he would assume command of the first expedition that started for the island.

For some time past owners of all classes of vessels have made overtures to the leaders of the revolutionists in New York, the majority offering their vessels for immediate sale. Some few had boats which they wished to charter for limited periods. Proposals of this kind have come from nearly every port along the Atlantic coast. It is said that considerable time has been spent by the Cubans having charge of the selection in examining the various vessels offered for sale in this and other ports.

It is generally understood that within the past day or two a suitable vessel has been selected and purchased by this committee. The leaders of the movement in this city declined to discuss the subject, but the Cuban patriots, who are not identified with the party as leaders, had all heard of the new purchase, and found it a fruitful theme for discussion. Few people discredit the story, and it is only natural that the leaders of the revolutionary party deny that such a purchase has been made.

The vessel is, according to all reports, an iron steamer, with a power of 15 knots an hour. Neither the name of the vessel, nor the port at which she is now lying, could be ascertained.

A well-dressed man, who declined to give his name and said that he was an American, speaking English only, entered the office of Enrique Trujillo, editor of El Porvenir, and announced that he had 100 men, drilled and armed, ready to start on a filibustering expedition to Cuba. He, himself, would command the force and defray the expense of transportation.

Trujillo explained that any such venture would be a violation of the neutrality laws. The man was insistent, and declared that he was bound to lead such an expedition, whether it suited the leaders in this city or not.

WHITTIER'S BOYHOOD.

The Quaker Poet Had but Scant Instruction In His Youth.

In his boyhood Whittier had scant instruction, for the district school was open only a few weeks in winter. He had but few books; there were scarcely 30 in the house. The one book he read and read again until he had it by heart almost was the Bible, and the Bible was always the book which exerted the strongest literary influence upon him. But when he was 14 a teacher came who lent him books of travel and opened a new world to him. It was this teacher who brought to the Whittiers one evening a volume of Burns and read aloud some of the poems, after explaining the Scottish dialect.

Whittier begged to borrow the book, which was almost the first poetry he had ever read. It was this volume of Burns which set Whittier to making verses himself, serving both as the inspiration and the model of his earlier poetic efforts. The Scottish poet, with his homely pictures of a life as bare and as hardy as that of New England then, first revealed to the American poet what poetry really was and how it might be made out of the actual facts of his own life.

That book of Burns' poems had an even stronger influence on Whittier than the odd volume of The Spectator which fell into the hands of Franklin had on the American author whose boyhood is most like Whittier's. Franklin also was born in a humble and hardworking family, doing early his share of the labor and having but a meager education, although always longing for learning. It is true that Irving and Cooper and Bryant did not graduate from college, but they could have done so had they persevered, and Emerson and Longfellow and Hawthorne did get as much of the higher education as was then possible in America. But neither Franklin nor Whittier ever had the chance; it was as much as they could do to pick up the merest elements of an education.—Professor Brander Matthews in St. Nicholas.

At the conclusion of his speech the audience gave Secretary Smith a unanimous vote of thanks.

A MAN'S LAUGH NEVER CHANGES.

How the Fact Was Illustrated by an Incident In Chicago.

If the Bertillion system of identification had a phonographic record of the laughs of criminals it would probably be as near perfect as an identification system can be. The fact that man comes into the world wailing has been regarded as a sort of prophecy of the truth that as a rule the sorrows of life outnumber the joys when all the returns are in, but an optimist might see an opposite significance in the fact that a man's laugh remains the same through all the changing years. When the cares of manhood succeed to the happy go lucky days of boyhood, this laugh of his may be called into use, as it were, very little, but when it is put into operation it is the same old laugh, and every boyhood friend would know it instantly.

An old soldier who fought through the war with Fred Hartwick, who drives a mail collector's wagon on the North Side, happened to be in Chicago for a week not long since. He heard that Mr. Hartwick was on its postmaster's staff and went to the federal building to find him. He took his station at a point past which all the carriers filed to report for duty, and as Hartwick came along some one pointed him out.

Without disclosing his own identity the veteran approached and began asking Hartwick if he remembered various incidents in the history of their regiment during the war. Of course he did and very soon fell into conversation, organizing a kind of campfire meeting between themselves. One member of the regiment was in business in New Orleans, another was in a bank down in the state, several were farming, one was the local manager for one of the big commercial agencies in one of the large cities, and so on.

Several times Hartwick asked his old companion at arms his name, but the latter only smiled and went on with the conversation. Finally, when it became necessary for them to separate, as Hartwick was obliged to go out on his run, the man laughed outright as he said:

"Well, Fred, I never thought you'd forget me after what we went through together."

"The minute he laughed," said Mr. Hartwick, in relating the incident, "I knew just who he was and all about him, but I hadn't seen him for 30 years, and he had changed so I couldn't have told him from Adam. His laugh had grown older, too, of course, but it was the same old laugh."—Chicago Tribune.

Rebuked by Hannibal Hamlin.

Mr. Hamlin was a true gentleman. Punctilious himself in the observance of all the requirements of gentlemanly intercourse, he was equally exacting of every courtesy due him from others. He permitted no man to be rude to him or to assume the attitude of a superior. On one occasion one of the able men and leaders of the senate, distinguished for a self conscious, lordly air in his department, in the change of seats which occurs once in two years in the senate chamber had gained a seat by the side of Mr. Hamlin and began at once to practice upon him those little exactions and annoyances which he had been accustomed to impose upon others. After a few days of yielding to these encroachments Mr. Hamlin turned and in a tone that did not require repetition, said, "Sir, if you expect to be treated like a gentleman, you must prove yourself one." There was never occasion afterward to repeat the admonition.—Henry L. Dawes in Century.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

One of the most important steps ever taken looking to the permanent establishment of peaceful relations between all the nations of the world, took place in Paris last week, when the chamber of deputies adopted a motion asking the government to negotiate a permanent arbitration treaty between France and the United States. Such a movement is to be most heartily commended, and its universal adoption in the not distant future will mark the abolition of war and its attendant horrors in the settlement of international differences.

Besides being convenient, it is economical, for the record of the meter is lessened by its use.—Somerville Journal.

ENERGETIC MEASURES

Resorted to In the Hope of Checking the Cuban Revolution.

Campos' Account of Troops' Recent Defeat.

Another American Vessel the Victim of Suspicious Spaniards.

HAVANA, July 25.—Some idea of the severity of the measures which the Spanish officials in Cuba have been obliged to adopt to check the spread of the revolution may be gathered from the following proclamation issued by the governor of the province of Santa Clara:

D. Augustin Lugue T. Coca, brigadier general, governor of the province of Santa Clara, to inhabitants of the same:

The savageness of those who apply the torch, who steal and murder under the cry of "Viva Cuba Libre," and to the propagators who disgrace the Cuban people, are recruiting partisans for the hordes commanded by incendiaries and highwaymen, compel me, with a most painful feeling, to adopt energetic measures which I frankly confess shall be carried to the extreme, if the noble war made by our valiant army is responded to by murder and pillage.

For the present, I decree the following edict:

Article 1—Every countryman, on entering or leaving the towns, shall be provided with his personal certificate and with evidence of his ownership of the horse he may be riding, and shall exhibit them to any agent of the government that might demand them.

Article 2—It is prohibited to travel in the country or in the outskirts of the towns from sunset to sunrise, with the understanding that the patrols and forces in operation will detain and put at my disposal all persons infringing this rule if not provided with the proper permit, which to said end shall be issued by the military chief of the demarkation of which they are residents.

Article 3—All permits to carry arms, which are not countersigned by the military governor's office, are null and void; residents in the country who are in possession of any kind of arms shall deposit them within the period of 10 days with the posts of the civil guard or detachments nearest to their abodes, the chiefs of which will issue a proper voucher.

Article 4—It is only for agricultural work that working "machetes" may be kept in their residences, but it is absolutely prohibited to carry the same outside of the respective landed property.

Article 5—Those infringing these orders, as well as the agitators of opinion and those who abet and harbor them, shall be indicted for the crime of rebellion, tried in accordance with the code of justice and punished with all the severity of the military laws.

Article 6—The municipal mayors and mayors of circumscriptions shall publish widely this edict, and the said authorities, as well as all civil and military authorities of this province, I hold responsible for its full and punctual observance.

Acting Captain-General Arderius, who is in command at Havana during the absence of General de Campos at the front, has just received from De Campos the following official account of

The Battle at Valenzuela:

VERGUITA, July 23.

To General Arderius, Havana—On the 12th I started from Manzanillo toward Verguita and Bayamo. At Manzanillo, previous to starting, I received information which proved to be misleading. But at Verguita I was informed that Maceo was in the neighborhood of Bayamo, at the head of large forces of insurgents. I had only 1500 men with me, but I did not think it honorable to retreat, and I also thought that the numbers of the enemy were exaggerated, and consequently proceeded on my march, and eventually met the enemy near Peralijos, about three leagues south of Bayamo.

My column was commanded by the unfortunate General Santocildes. When the latter was killed in action I took command. The battle was a hard-fought one. The field was most unfavorable for the operations of our troops. The enemy numbered three times more than we did; was well supplied with ammunition, and fought skillfully. We were surrounded by fire on four sides, and there were two moments of danger. The firing lasted five hours, in which our rear guard was engaged.

Our losses in killed are General Santocildes; his adjutant, Jose Sotomayor; Captain Emzbio Tomas and 25 soldiers, and our wounded were Lieutenant Colonel Jose Vaukero, Captain Luis Robles, First Lieutenant Francisco Sanchez Ortega, Captain Travest and 94 soldiers. I cannot ascertain the losses of the enemy, but it is said that they are over 500.

With the fatigue of the journey and the battle, one day of rest was not enough for the troops, and I desisted from going out of Bayamo. Besides, I had information that Jose Maceo had arrived on the following day with 1500 men, and that he was recruiting all the civilians. I had to organize a great deal at Bayamo, and had no ammunition to spare. I communicated with Holquin and Santiago de Cuba, directing that troops be sent to supply Bayamo with ammunition, and to so maneuver so as to be ready to engage the rebels if the latter would effect further fighting.

General Suarez Valdez arrived yesterday, the 21st, with 1400 men, and the day we left for Verguita.

General Lachambre was under fire yesterday at Brancaz, but the engagement was one of slight importance, and today he has gone to Bayamo over the same road that I followed the other day.

Tomorrow I go to Manzanillo. Forward this message to the minister of war. CAMPOS.

EXPLANATION IN ORDER.

Action of a Spanish Gunboat Which May Have Been Unwarranted.

DELAWARE BREAKWATER, July 25.—Captain Quick, of the American schooner Carrie A. Lane, upon his arrival here last night, had a tale to tell about a thrilling encounter in Cuban waters with a Spanish gunboat. Two shots were fired at the Lane by the man-of-war, and one of the schooner's crew narrowly escaped being killed by one of them. The vessel was made to heave to and give an account of herself before being allowed to proceed.

The schooner was off Cape Antonio, and making good time before a stiff breeze, when, on the 14th inst., she sighted a steamer flying the Spanish flag following her. Captain Quick, after an hour or so, noticed that the stranger was signaling him to stop. He could only make out that she looked like a large tugboat, such as is usually to be found in American seaports. While he was making up his mind what course to pursue, a puff of smoke curled up over the steamer's port bow, and a round shot whistled uncomfortably close to the schooner's mainmast, and plunged into the water on the lee quarter.

Captain Quick gave the order to haul in sail and bring the vessel to, and while this was being done one of the crew ran out on the bowsprit. As he stood there, the gun on the Spanish warship boomed again, this time coming so close to her that the sailman on the bowsprit felt the wind caused by its rapid flight.

The Lane soon came to a dead stop, and the gunboat drew up under her quarter, and four Spanish marines, under the command of a lieutenant, came aboard. They were fully armed, and their leader very civilly demanded to know from what port the Lane had sailed and whither she was bound. Captain Quick gave the required information and produced his clearance papers in proof of his assertions. No further search was made, and the vessel was permitted to continue on her course without further molestation.

Captain Quick says that he could not get the name of the gunboat. He adds that after the first shot was fired at the Lane, he caused the Stars and Stripes to be hoisted at the peak, but the only response the Spanish vessel made to this was a second shot. The gunboat did not hoist her colors until after the first shot was fired.

As soon as Captain Quick reached here, he wired to his agents in Philadelphia, and will await advices from them before determining upon what course to pursue in regard to what he considers an outrage.

A New York Mystery.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A complete identification was established last night of the body of a young girl that was found dead in a little clump of woods in the northern part of this city. It proved to be that of Lillie Low, the daughter of James Low, Jr., a retired merchant. She was 19 years of age, and was born in France. It was at first thought that the girl had committed suicide, but the result of the coroner's inquest gives reason to believe that the girl was murdered. She had left her father, owing, as she said, to his ill-treatment of her, and was boarding with a woman with whom they had formerly lived together.

England's New Cruiser.

LONDON, July 25.—The first class unarmored cruiser Powerful, sister ship to the Terrible, was launched at Barrow yesterday. The new cruiser will be far larger and of considerably greater displacement than any cruiser hitherto built. The Terrible is a first-class cruiser, built of steel and copper sheathed, her displacement being 14,200 tons, and her indicated horse power 25,000. Her length is 500 feet, her beam 71 feet, and her draft of water 27 feet. Her contract requirement for speed is 22 knots, and she has a coal capacity in her bunkers for 3000 tons, and she is deck-protected throughout.

Little Ones Cremated.

NORWICH, N. Y., July 25.—Fire broke out in the residence of Rev. W. H. Scudder, pastor of the Congregational church in this city, at about 9:30 o'clock last evening. Mr. Scudder was attending a meeting. Mrs. Scudder and one son are in Boston. There were two children burned—Mary and Clarine, aged about 6 and 9 years, respectively.

Isthmus Business Crippled.

COLON, July 25.—The strike of laborers continues. All the steamers at Panama are idle and all business is paralyzed. In a place such as this, where over 80 steamers arrive every month, this complete stoppage of business is a very serious matter to business men here, as well as to the Panama railroad.

Odds Against the Valkyrie.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A wager of $650 against $500 was made that the Defender would beat Valkyrie III in the cup series. The bet is supposed to have been made for W. K. Vanderbilt. There is a lot of money ready to be put up. The bookmakers want too big odds to suit the Defender men.

Famous Contractor Dead.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 25.—Robert B. Langdon, a railroad contractor and a prominent figure in the politics of Minnesota, died yesterday, aged 68. Langdon was a Vermont man. He had built 7000 miles of railway.

Centenarian Killed.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 25.—While walking on the railroad track, near Potsdam, Joseph Denny was struck by an engine and his left leg cut off. He lived but a short time. Denny was over 100 years old and very deaf.

TROOPS ON THE MOVE.

Will Try to Prevent Conflict Between Settlers and Indians.

Settlement Surrounded by Angry Redskins.

No Proof That Lives of Any White Persons Have Been Lost.

CHEYENNE, Wy., July 25.—The full orders telegraphed to General Coppinger from Washington are for him to issue the necessary orders for the movement of such a force of troops as he shall deem requisite for carrying out the request of the department of the interior to prevent conflict between the Indians and the white settlers, and to return the Indians to their proper reservations.

General Coppinger is instructed to proceed to the scene of the disturbance, and to personally direct the operations of the troops. He is also advised that if he should desire the use of troops from other departments on account of their closer proximity he shall indicate to the war department the special force desired.

The last mentioned instruction is given for the purpose of permitting General Coppinger to obtain troops from the department of the Colorado or the department of the Columbia, if considered necessary.

Governor Richards has been advised by General Coppinger that four troops of cavalry have been ordered from Fort Robinson, Neb., to proceed to the Jackson Hole country to protect the settlers. As it will require at least two or three days to reach Jackson Hole with these troops, a battle between whites and Indians may be fought before they can be of service.

Before They Can Be of Service.

Adjutant General Stitzer, of the state militia, wired yesterday morning from Market Lake, Ida., as follows: "I met an Indian captain of police at Teton Basin yesterday, with 35 horses, hurrying out with all possible speed. I saw him again at 11 o'clock last night. He says he cannot control the Indians, who will fight at noon today. There are in the Jackson Hole settlement 65 men capable of bearing arms, 35 women and 40 children. All of these are gathered at the settlement of Marysvale, situated between Gros Ventre and Little Gros Ventre rivers.

"It is possible re-enforcements from settlements east, on the headwaters of the Big Wind river, and from the Mormons to the south, have reached them in response to couriers sent out during the last week, asking for aid. It is estimated by the state authorities that no less than 200 Indians are surrounding the settlement. If the whites have sufficient ammunition, it is confidently expected they can stand off the Indians until the troops come to their aid."

No Settlers Killed.

A special from Pocatello, Ida., says: Indian Agent Teeter of the Fort Hall reservation left this city last night for the agency. He denies all sensational reports published to the effect that settlers are being killed. Mr. Teeter says not a single white man, woman or child has been killed, but that the Indians have warned the settlers that unless they are allowed to kill game unmolested there will be serious trouble. The whites are just as determined that no more elk shall be killed. Only six or eight Indians have been killed altogether, and Teeter says these will be avenged. Everything is quiet at Pocatello, and the Indians are lounging about as though nothing unusual was occurring. One old Indian remarked: "Me stay home and cut hay."

A special from Evanston, Wy., says: A band of 218 Utes passed 45 miles east of here Monday on the way to Jackson Hole. A courier just arrived reports that they had stolen 200 horses, which they were driving with them.

Cape Elizabethans Scared.

PORTLAND, Me., July 25.—Cape Elizabeth was greatly excited yesterday by the report that a wild cat, tiger or some other wild animal had been killing horses and cattle and chasing people about the farming district of the town all day. A large posse of citizens started off last night to hunt the beast down. Several people have had narrow escapes from the animal.

Squabbling Over Trinidad.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 25.—There is growing excitement in this city over the occupation of the island of Trinidad by the English. The government has dispatched two notes to the British legation of emphatic protest, quoting the order of the British admiralty of 1782, by virtue of which Trinidad was evacuated by the English and restored to Portugal.

Robbed a Bookmaker.

NEW YORK, July 25.—William Hueston, cashier for E. D. Burke, bookmaker, failed to appear at the Brighton race track yesterday, and it was found he had disappeared with $4500 of his employer's cash. He also left nearly $2000 in markers in the ring on his own account with other bookmakers. Detectives have been placed on his track.

Wanted In Gotham.

BOSTON, July 25.—Harry Camp had no sooner completed a six months' sentence in the house of correction yesterday than Boston officers again placed him under arrest and delivered him over to New York officers. Camp is wanted in New York for the alleged larceny of $15,000 worth of diamonds.

Head Crushed.

BOSTON, July 25.—James Curran, 25 years old, was instantly killed at South Boston last night. Curran attempted to jump upon a heavy wagon. He missed his hold and fell between the wheels, the rear wheel of the heavy truck passing over his head.

BIG RACE SATURDAY.

Fifty or More Boats Expected to Enter Q. Y. C. Open.

The Quincy Yacht Club's open regatta on Saturday will be a sight worth seeing. Up to date there have been 98 entries filed with the secretary of the congress of yacht clubs. If 50 per cent. of this number should sail in the Quincy Regatta it would make a formidable fleet.

The Winthrop Yacht club in a special circular, says "The steamer 'O. E. Lewis' has been engaged and will leave steamboat wharf at two o'clock, taking members and their friends with their ladies, for a harbor sail, and will view the Quincy Yacht Club's open race." The Winthrop club expects to entertain about 600 people on the steamer. They will not land but will lay off the Quincy Yacht club house.

During the race there will be a promenade concert by Peter's orchestra, four pieces, in the dance hall of the club house.

Capt. George D. Taylor has again placed the elegant steam yacht "Marie" at the disposal of Commodore Pettengill. The judges and members of the press will be entertained on her.

The judges will also have the steam launch "Get" to use as a tender.

HULL'S FIRST OPEN.

Quincy Boats Show Up Well in Large Fleet.

The yachting carnival at Hull opened auspiciously on Wednesday and will be continued this afternoon and tomorrow. Nearly fifty boats are contesting.

The crack boats from Quincy, the Swirl, the Rooster and the Spinx were in different classes and each put up a fine race, the last two heading their class. It was unfortunate for the Swirl that she had to sail in the second class among larger boats. The course was the same as that of the third class, and by corrected time she beat the Rooster over two minutes.

The first prizes were won on Wednesday by the Ashumet, Harbinger, Gleaner, Rex, Rooster, Hobo, Spinx and Katy Did.

The second prizes by the Salmon, Heroine, Satanic, Susie, Evadne, Nabob, Alpine, Cutty Sark.

Third prizes went to the Romance, Swirl, Cocheco, Sally, Fantasy and Princess.

The Beatrice might have had a second prize of $10 had she left the flag boat on the finish on the port.

The Opechee and Kayoshk were six and seven in the third class, and the Sunbeam five in the fourth class.

The Hull club hold another open race today and a third tomorrow, and the Quincy yacht club will continue the sport on Saturday.

Annual Spread.

Dr. W. G Kendall of Atlantic has issued his usual unique invitation for his annual entertainment of the boys at his home on Saturday. The invitation is in the form of a fanciful sketch from the clever pen of C. W. Reed, and represents a string of riders nearing a clam bake, while a festive lobster sits under a tree and waves a beer mug at them. This inscription heads it: "Clams being ripe, Dr. Kendall invites you to help pick them next Saturday, July 27, at 4 P. M. Come at 2 for a dip in the briny."

ANOTHER FISH STORY.

Exciting Experience of P. D. Q. Crew off Wollaston Beach.

Capt. Jack Bainbridge and Mate Judkins of the yacht "P. D. Q." of Wollaston had a lively time in Quincy bay on Wednesday afternoon. They were fishing just off what is known in the beach parlance as "Baker's cottage." Everything at the Wollaston beach is located as being "near Baker's cottage" or "back of Baker's cottage," but this took place "off Baker's cottage."

The captain and crew of the P. D. Q., were having an exciting time trying to coax on board a few sculpins, when Capt. Jack felt a bite, and a pretty decided one too. The line was hauled throw his fingers in a jiffy but the bold skipper held on to the end and called lustily to "Jud" to jump down from the quarter-deck and lead him a hand. Then the captain and crew of the P. D. Q. laid on to that line for all they were worth and hauled and hauled, when all of a sudden a huge fish darted out of the water and made for the yacht. The eyes of the captain and crew were as big as saucers. The skipper bold grabbed up a boat-hook and struck at the fish as he rushed towards their frail craft. After an exciting struggle in which all hands took part, the fish was finally subdued and hauled on board. It proved to be a large dog fish. It weighed 22 pounds and was placed on exhibition in the fish market.

W. E. Webster and family of East Jaffrey, N. H., is in the Snowflake cottage.

J. H. Turrell and family of Boston are in the Turrell cottage,

Considerable complaint is made of the deviltry that is nightly committed by a gang of hoodlums from Quincy and other places who come down to attend the dances. After the dance is over these fellows amuse themselves by breaking street lights and windows, tearing down signs and making kindling wood out of them, etc. There is no police protection and it is almost necessary for the residents to sit up every night and watch their property. If the city will not furnish an officer for night duty there is no doubt but many of the residents would be willing to serve as specials without pay.

All that is necessary is to take a few of the fellows into court and impose a heavy fine which would break up this sort of business.

—Returns show that the number of excursionists to Melville Garden this season exceeds that of former ones by thousands, which, in view of the fact that several harbor resorts have been extensive advertised and beautified and that transportation to them has been improved and the rates made popular is a creditable showing. —South Shore Press.

A Strange Tale.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., July 25. — In the county jail of Santa Cruz is confined William F. Barrett, who says he murdered Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams in Emanuel church last April. He gave himself up to the chief of police as a dangerous criminal Tuesday night. Yesterday he was discharged as a harmless lunatic. Then he went to the sheriff, to whom he confessed his guilt as perpetrator of the Emanuel church murders. To the district attorney he told a story that first sounded plausible, and when Barrett went into the details of the crimes, the inconsistencies of his statements convinced his auditors of his perfect innocence and complete insanity. Barrett says that he did not wish Durant to be hanged for his crime, and that he was sure he would eventually be found out. Barrett resembles Durant in personal appearance. He worked here as a waiter, but is periodically dissipated. He persists in his statements, despite cross-examination. He will be examined as to his sanity.

Exciting Street Episode.

BOSTON, July 25.—In a street fight here, Charles Reddick, a colored youth, was struck on the head. During the fight Reddick was pulled away and taken to his home by a relative, who afterward had John Keefe arrested. While preferring charges against Keefe in the police station some one rushed in and said there was a crazy man on Russell street. The police went to the scene and found Reddick rushing up and down the street, evidently crazy. A wound was found on his head, which had caused concussion of the brain. Keefe was accused of striking him with a jackplane, but he denied the accusation and stated that he struck Reddick with his fist after the latter had bitten him, without provocation. Keefe showed a badly lacerated hand in corroboration.

Thinks It Yellow Jack.

BROOKLYN, July 25.—Dr. M. C. McCarthy rushed into a police station last evening and announced that he had been called to attend Carl Petersen, a sailor, who was suffering from what the doctor believed to be yellow fever. Petersen was a deckhand on the Pacific Mail steamer City of Para, which arrived at this port yesterday from Colon. She passed quarantine yesterday and is discharging her cargo.

Corbett Hurt.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 25.—James J. Corbett met with an accident yesterday by falling from a bicycle, which will necessitate his abandoning his training for a fortnight. He received a badly wrenched shoulder, a bruised and badly swollen hip, and the loss of the skin from the ankle to the knee.

Further Election Figures.

LONDON, July 25.—The pollings for the parliamentary elections, so far as returned, leave the state of the parties as follows: Conservatives, 326; Liberal-Unionists, 60—total Unionists, 386. Liberals, 146; Parnellites, 10; McCarthyites, 59; Labor, 2—total opposition, 215. The net Conservative gain thus far is 81.

Wheat Jumped Up.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Wheat went up with a wild rush yesterday, almost 5 cents higher than Tuesday, at 72¼. The principal cause for the sensational advance was the very light movement of winter wheat, with higher foreign markets.

Fire In a Cathedral.

PORTLAND, Me., July 25.—Fire was discovered yesterday afternoon in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception. The blaze was extinguished with difficulty. It is thought to have been of incendiary origin.

Twenty Years In Prison.

TRENTON, July 25. — John S. Collins, who shot and killed Frederick Ohl, and who was found guilty of murder in the second degree, was sentenced yesterday to 20 years at hard labor in the state prison.

A Twenty-Four-Footer.

SANDWICH, Mass., July 25.—The first whale captured on this shore for many years was caught by the fishermen employed in the fishweir off Sandwich. The whale's length is about 24 feet.

Lumber Interests Threatened.

CINCINNATI, July 25.—Licking river is fast rising, and threatens great damage to coal and lumber interests that are caught unawares. Telegraphic communication has been interrupted.

AT FRAMINGHAM.

Notes from Fifth Regiment and Company K.

Company K had 56 men at camp Wednesday.

During the forenoon the Fifth regiment had a battalion and practice drill combined. The men were first shown the shelter tent ready pitched, and later on some were issued to the companies and the men taken to a proper part of the field, where they pitched tents, built fires and cooked coffee in good style. Col. Bancroft sampled the coffee and found it excellent. Company A was the only company that dug a trench around its tent, and should receive special mention for it. The afternoon was occupied by the usual routine.

Adjutant Ballard gave the Fifth sharp instruction at guard mounting. The formation was soldierly; the march past excellent. Capt. Locke of Company L was Officer of the Day; Lieut. Wade of G, Officer of the Guard.

There is much less sickness in camp this year, only five cases being reported among the 698 of the Fifth.

The Herald reports Lieut. Henry W. Sprague, with his signal men, to be keeping at work quite industriously, although with their poor instruments and meagre outfit there is not much encouragement for extra effort.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

IS WALDEN CRAZY?

His Peculiar Actions Cause Friends to Doubt His Sanity.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 25.—Further evidence in support of Mrs. Walden's theory that her husband is demented has come to light. Two people have been found who saw Walden late Thursday night and early Friday morning. The latter is known to have procured liquor at Young's hotel about 11 o'clock Thursday night. He was perspiring freely, and said he had been riding his wheel. Yet Walden was known not to be a drinking man. Friday morning, shortly before three o'clock, Dr. John Weldon was on his way to see a patient. He met Walden on his bicycle. Upon being questioned, Walden said: "I couldn't sleep, and I couldn't stay in the house, so I thought I'd ride." Soon after this Walden's bicycle was found in front of the Dime bank.

The key to the time lock of the bank's vault was found yesterday by the new cashier, E. H. Holmes.

A prolonged meeting of the new directors of the Dime bank was held last evening. On Saturday next occurs the hearing before Judge Shumway on State Attorney Hunter's application for an injunction to wind up the affairs of the bank. The discussion at last night's meeting was all in relation to what course should be pursued. It was finally decided to consult the wishes of the depositors on the matter, and a vote was taken to send out circulars to each of the 3000 depositors, asking their opinion in the matter. If the depositors want the bank to continue, the directors will oppose the granting of the injunction at Saturday's hearing.

Hypnotism Again.

PORTLAND, Me., July 25. — Suit was brought yesterday against Leonard C. Young and Miss Dora Moses by George B. Morrow for alleged alienation of Mrs. Morrow's affections, the amount of damages claimed being $20,000. Morrow is now in Boston. Miss Moses worked for Young, who is a clothing dealer here, and boarded with Mrs. Morrow. Morrow claims that through Miss Moses Young and his wife became acquainted, and that Miss Moses had undue influence over his wife and hypnotized her so that she fell in love with Young.

Drowned While Yachting.

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Me., July 25.—Herbert Withington of Boston was drowned off the mouth of Damariscotta river. Withington with friends, who were summering at Christmas Cove, Bristol, were sailing in a small catboat, which was struck by a sudden squall from the northwest and capsized. Withington was 24 years old, unmarried, recently started in the wholesale clothing business, and had just fallen heir to $50,000, bequeathed by his grandfather.

Again Off.

PROVIDENCE, July 25.—After being out of work 14 weeks, the striking operatives of the Geneva mills again declared the strike off yesterday afternoon, and sent a written guarantee of cessation of hostilities to Superintendent Ulman, on condition that Sweeney and McSweeney, who are under arrest for intimidation during the strike, shall not be prosecuted. The strikers also voted to revoke the title of non-union from the weave room of the mill.

No One Hurt.

NORTH SCITUATE, Mass., July 25.—Some one put an explosive under one corner of Conihasset hall, in this town, while an evangelical sermon was going on, and caused a panic among the 60 people in attendance at the services. The hall was damaged about $5 worth, but no one was injured, although one woman was so badly frightened that the services of a physician were necessary.

Boy Shot a Comrade.

BOSTON, July 25.—Four boys were out in a boat on the Charles river last night, when George Evans, aged 15, snatched up a gun to kill a bird. Just as he pulled the trigger, the gun slipped from his hands, and the bullet intended for the bird crashed through the skull of George Warren, aged 14. Warren died an hour afterward.

Bishop Confirmed.

BOSTON, July 25.—George R. Bishop of Athol was yesterday unanimously confirmed as railroad commissioner by the executive council. Before the council meeting members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers and the Order of Railroad Conductors opposed Bishop's confirmation.

Son Gets Only $100.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 25.—The will of the late Robert Sherman was admitted to probate yesterday afternoon. An appeal was taken by his son, Fred Sherman, who was bequeathed $100, all the rest of the estate being left to the widow and daughter. The estate is valued at $100,000.

Raided by Pickpockets.

MONTPELIER, Vt., July 25.—Pickpockets reaped a harvest in Montpelier yesterday at Buffalo Bill's show. J. C. Gleason was relieved of $65 and Rev. Joel Simonds lost $100. Several other cases are reported in which parties did not give their names.

Suspected of Murder.

BOSTON, June 25.—George Welch, aged 24, and John Coady, aged 19, were arrested early this morning on suspicion of having been implicated in the assault of John Rotchford, who died from having been struck on the head with a brick during a quarrel.

Fatally Beat His Wife.

NEW HAVEN, July 25.—Joseph Colombe, who so brutally beat his wife a week ago that death resulted, was given a hearing yesterday in Bethany. The murderer was bound over without bail to the October term of the superior court.

Shut Down.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 25. — The strike at the Salts Textile company's works has assumed large proportions. There being 350 men out, the mill shut down indefinitely yesterday.

New England Briefs.

Grist and saw mills at Topsham, Me., were burned.

Summer residents at Tiverton, R. I., captured 12 tramps.

An icehouse at West Dedham, Mass., was destroyed by fire.

Bernard Keating, aged 44, dropped dead of heart disease at New Haven.

John Varley, an Englishman, aged 70, was found dead in Taunton river at Fall River, Mass.

James Osgood was arrested at Portland, Me., and taken to Boston to answer to a charge of larceny.

A clock which had been in a Stoneham (Mass.) household for 50 years stopped at the very hour when its owner died.

NEVER TOO LATE.

It is too late. Ah, nothing is too late
Till the tired heart shall cease to palpitate.
Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles
Wrote his grand "Œdipus," and Simonides
Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers
When each had numbered more than fourscore years,
And Theoprastus at fourscore and ten
Had but begun his "Characters of Men."
Chaucer, at Woodstock with the nightingales,
At sixty wrote "The Canterbury Tales."
Goethe, at Weimar, toiling to the last,
Completed "Faust" when eighty years were past.
These are indeed exceptions, but they show
How far the gulf stream of our youth may flow
Into the arctic regions of our lives,
Where little else than life itself survives.

—Longfellow.

MY GENTLE FRIEND.

It was the winter of 1890. The new branch railroad into Phenix, A. T., had been running trains for two years, and invalids of the east were just beginning to learn that this metropolis of the southwestern desert land, with its dry air and abundant sunshine, afforded the finest winter climate on the continent. At the time I write the one train a day on the little branch railroad connecting with the main line of the Southern Pacific was well loaded every day, and the hotels and boarding houses were striving in every way to accommodate the influx of winter visitors.

As is usual in most new western towns, especially of the intermountain region, hotel accommodations were only mediocre, while the best restaurants were those connected with the big gambling houses.

For several days I had noticed a newcomer about the hotels and principal resorts of the town. His face had a strangely familiar look to me, yet I could not recall that I had ever seen it before. He was faultlessly dressed in clothes of the latest pattern, had a blond mustache, and but for his peculiar little gray eyes I should have pronounced him a very handsome man.

He seemed to be a total stranger, and as I would see him of an afternoon around the Commercial House, or in the evening watching the games in "The Capitol" or "The Palace" and never talking with any one, I mentally set him down as the son and heir of some wealthy family who had sought a winter home in the desert that he might return in the spring a "new man."

I suppose I had noticed him for about a week or ten days before either he or I had the temerity to address the other. I don't know now which of us spoke first, but anyway it came about in that free, open handed way of addressing a stranger which prevails in the south and west. I had been quail shooting that day, and returning rather late in the evening went down to The Palace restaurant for my dinner in my hunting suit rather than disturb the folks at home with getting me a late meal.

An old California comrade had been with me all day, and after ordering our dinner we went out to the bar to try one of Frank's cocktails. Frank, by the way (or Francois, I should call him, as he was French), was a comparative newcomer from New Orleans, and as a mixologist exceeded anything ever before seen in Arizona. At least so all the boys about town said, and the old Hassayampas re-echoed their sentiment with hearty "that's what!"

My comrade and I had disposed of the first concoction and were discussing the question of another of its same splendid quality when the stranger spoke of the superior excellence of Frank's mixtures. I don't know how it came about, but presently one or the other of us said in the most brotherly fashion, "Won't you join us?" to which the reply came, "The pleasure is mine!" and of course it wound up by the pleasure belonging to both of us before we again repaired to the dining room.

Our newly found acquaintance had ordered his dinner about the same time as my comrade and myself, so we all sat down to the same table. I felt rather honored at this attention of the stranger, for in all my observation of him I had never before noticed him talking with any other Phenecian. He had a voice as soft and smooth as a woman's, and as he talked his language indicated the polished graduate of Yale or Harvard, with a finish of European travel.

Now, thought I, I will learn something of this man, where he is from and who he is

As the meal progressed I had occasion to ask him to hand me the pepper. As he did so he commented upon the fact that most of the black pepper served on restaurant tables was not pepper at all, but a conglomeration of dried leaves and drugs, much cheaper than the genuine article. His talk was learned, even classical, using medical terms and formulas with the familiarity of a chemist. From that he drifted on to places to spend the winter and incidentally referred to the fact that the last three winters previous to this one he had spent on the Riviera.

A question about Nice and Monaco seemed to encourage him, and he went on with a glowing description of these famous resorts. "And, oh, what a glorious drive it is along the Corniche road," he continued, "with the never ending panorama of bay and sky with all their various tints and the magnificent mountain background! There is certainly nothing in America and, I believe, nothing in the world to equal it. Then San Reno and Bordighera are pretty little resorts, and the visitor makes a mistake who does not spend a portion of his time there."

"I suppose you have visited Genoa," I interrupted.

"Oh, yes, indeed," was the reply. "In fact I spent nearly three months last winter at Cannes and made the drive to Genoa several times with coaching parties. Too bad you have not splendid drives here. What with such drives as along La Riviera di Ponente, this wonderful dry air and beautiful winter sunshine, Arizona would soon become the greatest winter resort in the world."

In this strain he talked on, and I suppose we had been at the table nearly two hours when a messenger came in from my friend, the surgeon general, saying he had just been called on for an important surgical case and asking if I would not accompany him and administer the anæsthetic. My California comrade and myself voted our new found acquaintance a most charming man and a capital fellow generally, though afterward I remarked to myself that I had not as yet found out anything about where he came from or who he was.

Busy for the next few days, I thought but little more of this entertaining stranger. About a week later, however, I dropped into The Palace, just to see who was there, and the stranger, quiet and uncommunicative as usual, was watching the games, never standing over any one table for more than two or three minutes at a time. From here I stepped into The Capital, and Bert, the head man, not being busy, I began a conversation with him. Presently the well dressed stranger came in, and I noticed Bert's eyes take on a rather defiant flash as he watched him pass to the rear of the room.

"Bert, who is that man?" I asked. "I've seen him about for some time now, but he never seems to speak to any one. He must be some easterner here for the winter, isn't he?"

"Why, don't you know that fellow?" was the quick response. "He knows better than to speak to me. He's the blank of a blank who killed Jim Fallon in Prescott five years ago. Why, you remember his murder, don't you, general?"

"No; I don't recall it, Bert. That was when I was in Montana, and I reckon the trial and all took place before my return."

"Well, it was the most cowardly murder I ever knew, and if that duck had his deserts he'd have stretched hemp for it long ago. You knew Fallon, of course, who used to run a 'bank' in Tombstone, and after the flush days there he moved to Prescott?"

I nodded assent, and he went on: "This fellow, Jack Underhill, Thimble Jack, who was nothing but a low down 'tin horn' anyway, got full one night and raised such a disturbance at Fallon's table that he finally p and kicked him out of the house.

"Underhill was furious over this method of ejection, and for several days went around threatening that he was going to get even with Fallon. Some of Jim's friends told him he had better look out for Thimble Jack, as he was a treacherous cuss and would probably stab him in the back. But Fallon laughed at them, declaring that Ja was too big a coward to attack a chil let alone a man.

"So the matter run along for almost a week and nearly every one had forgotten about it, when one night about 10 o'clock, as Fallon was standing by the bar talking to some friends, this cowardly dog shot him in the back without the slightest warning. In the confusion he managed to get away and hid in the house of a frail woman. Talk of lynching was so strong the next day that he sneaked over to the sheriff's office and gave himself up. Fallon lingered along for three weeks before he died.

"When the trial came, this fellow's family or some of his friends, or some one in the east, put up the money for him, and he had half a dozen of the best criminal lawyers in the southwest defending him. For myself I always believed the jury was tampered with, too, for they only brought in a verdict of manslaughter and he simply got a sentence of five years, and what with good time he's out now.

"I hope you haven't spoken to him, for no self respecting white man like you ever wants to speak to such a cowardly dog as him."

And so this was my entertainer of a few evenings before. Then it dawned upon me why his face had always seemed familiar to me. As a territorial official I had often visited the penitentiary at Yuma, and here I had seen my friend of the Riviera, my friend the gambler.

—General Edward S. Gill in New York Recorder.

Puzzled.

"Say, mister, how long before the mail man'll be round yere?" was asked of Officer Barter yesterday by a very verdant hayseed who was toying with the lock attached to a United States mail box at Fifth and Morrison streets.

"Why? What do you want to know for?" inquired the officer in turn.

"'Cause I've got a letter yere that I want to get to my folks up the valley."

"Well, look at the card on the end of the box; that will inform you when he'll next call for the mail."

"I have, but I can't wait so long," responded Mr. Hayseed, "'cause my sister is up yonder street with our team. I've a great mind to break that goldurned lock to get my letter in, as I want my folks up the valley to know right off that we've got the measles up to our place."

When Officer Barter showed the verdant one how to drop his letter into the box without tampering with the lock Mr. Hayseed gave a long, low whistle, exclaiming:

"Goldurn me! Yere I've been waiting and hanging on two hours for that letter man to open the lock of that goldurned thing. Say, mister, when did they invent that newfangled machine?"—Portland (Me.) Telegram.

A Cheerful View.

Walter's mamma was very sick with rheumatism, and he was rubbing her arms when she said, "Walter, it is too bad that mamma is such a trouble to you."

Walter replied cheerfully, "Never mind, mamma; if you are only just alive we don't care how much you suffer."—Youth's Companion.

Red Suits the West.

Any color, so long as it's red,
Is the color that suits me best,
Though I will allow there is much to be said
For yellow and green and the rest,
But the feeble tints which some affect
In the things they make or buy
Have never—I say it with all respect—
Appealed to my critical eye.

There's that in red that warmeth the blood
And quickeneth a man within
And bringeth to speedy and perfect bud
The germs of original sin.
So, though I'm properly born and bred,
I'll own, with a certain zest,
That any color, so long as it's red,
Is the color that suits me best.

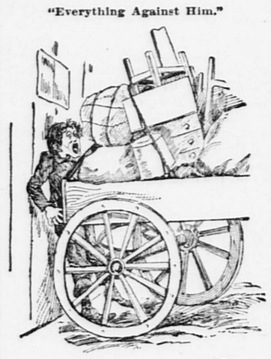

For where is a color that can compare
With the blush of a buxom lass?
Or where such warmth as of the hair
Of the genuine white horse class?
And, lo, reflected within this cup
Of cherry Bordeaux, I see
What inspiration girdeth me up—
Yes, red is the color for me!

Through acres and acres of art I've strayed
In Italy, Germany, France,
On many a picture a master has made
I've squandered a passing glance.
Marines I hate; Madonnas and
Those Dutch freaks I detest.
But the peerless daubs of my native land—
They're red, and I like them best.

'Tis little I care how folk deride.
I'm backed by the west at least,
And we are free to say that we can't abide
The tastes that obtain down east.
And we're mighty proud to have it said
That here in the versatile west
Most any color, so long as it's red,
Is the color that suits us best.

Book Bound In Gold and Silver.

The only gold and silver bound, diamond incrusted book in the world was lately enshrined in the holy Mohammedan city of Isnan-Ruza, Persia. The book is of course a copy of the Alkoran and is a gift from Abd-ur-Rahman, ameer of Afghanistan. The covers of this unique volume, the sides of which are 9½ by 4 inches, are of solid gold plates one-eighth of an inch in thickness, lined with silver sheets of the same thickness.

The centerpiece, as well as the corners, is a symbolic design wrought in diamonds, rubies and pearls. The center figure is a crescent with a star between its points, the whole design being composed of 109 small diamonds, 167 pearls and 122 rubies. The diamonds on each corner, which are almost hidden in their golden setting, and the orange colored lacquer with which they are fastened, are each worth about $5,000. The book itself is on parchment, entirely written by hand. It is valued at $125,000. There are said to have been over 100,000 visitors present in Isnan-Ruza the day the holy relic was enshrined.—St. Louis Republic.

BURIED IN A CELLAR.

Human Bones Unearthed In Holmes' Chicago Building.

Accused Man Shows No Signs of Weakening.

Toronto Authorities Ask For Extradition Papers In the Alice Pitzel Case.

CHICAGO, July 25.—What seemed beyond a doubt to be portions of a human skeleton were found yesterday in the basement of H. H. Holmes' building at Sixty-third street. The bones were viewed by a number of detectives and workmen, all of whom pronounced them portions of a human backbone and ribs. Chief of Police Badenoch said that the find apparently left little doubt that murder had been committed in the gloomy castle, and the coroner was notified to take charge of the ghastly discovery.

The supposed bones were found by one of the gang of laborers who for several days has been digging in the dark basement of Holmes' house, where various bits of evidence had been found that encouraged the police in their search for the remains of the missing Minnie Williams and her sister. The find was made at a depth of two feet, near a wall in the basement.

The bones were packed in damp earth, with which had been mixed quicklime. Several bones were found, and with them what resembled a bit of jaw with two teeth attached. A portion of a jacket with a large puff sleeve lay with the bones, and on the cloth was a bunch of hair.

Dr. Charles North, to whom the bones were submitted for examination, pronounced them portions of a human skeleton. The find was mysterious, as neither the skull nor any of the leg bones were found with the ribs and bits of vertebræ. A small vial, containing a peculiar looking fluid, was found with the skeleton, but its nature could not be determined with tests, and it was accordingly sent to a chemist for examination.

As the result of the finding of the skeleton, believed to be that of little Gertrude Connor, Chief Badenoch decided to hold Joseph D. Owens and Patrick Quinlan, the two janitors of the building, for further investigation. The chief of police came to the conclusion to hold the men after an examination which lasted nearly five hours. From their answers to questions, Chief Badenoch believes both men have guilty knowledge of the criminal operations of the man Holmes, and the finding of the bones now leaves no doubt that, in addition to his known swindling operations, Holmes is also guilty of murder in Chicago.

MAKES LIGHT OF IT.

Holmes Shows No Worriment Over Late News From Chicago.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—H. H. Holmes was visited in his cell yesterday by his counsel, William A. Shoemaker. For two hours or more, Holmes spoke freely of the bones and other fragments of human anatomy found in his "castle" in Chicago. After the interview, Mr. Shoemaker told the substance of his client's statements as follows:

"Holmes declared that the tuft of human hair found in the chimney could not have belonged to Minnie Williams, for the reason that the chimney was a new one, put in after the girl's disappearance. As to the bones, he said, they were not those of Gertrude Connor, Minnie Williams or any of the other persons whom he was charged with having murdered."

Mr. Shoemaker quoted Holmes as follows: "The police simply do not know what they're talking about when they say I murdered so many persons and buried their bones indiscriminately in every crook and corner I could find throughout the country. Quite a while ago I made a statement to the Philadelphia authorities that they were liable to find human bones in many different places all over the continent. I then frankly admitted that I had been engaged in an insurance swindle, which did not pan out. One of these was for a $40,000 policy, and had to be abandoned while in an embryonic state, because of suspicions.

"The idea was to have the bodies of a woman and boy found in their home, and afterward the corpse of a man with a bullet in his head, to make it appear a case of murder and suicide. I got bodies from a graveyard to represent the wife and son, but the alleged husband's body had not yet been procured when the insurance agents learned of the scheme, and the bodies had to be disposed of the best way I could, and I had them embalmed and put in trunks, which were sent to a cold storage warehouse. Before my preparations could be completed, however, the manager of the storage house notified me to take the trunks away or he would sell the contents. I did so, and the bodies were buried in separate places. Where they are the police must find out."

Holmes ridiculed the theory that the subterranean tank found in the Chicago establishment had been used for the secretion of his victims' corpses, and said it had served as nothing more harmful than a vat for illuminating oil used on the premises. The dumb waiter was accounted for by the fact that during the World's fair there had been a restaurant on one of the upper floors of the building.

In the transfer of properties between him and Minnie Williams, Holmes, added, in which he had secured the Fort Worth property, a note in the shape of a mortgage was given by Minnie Williams, and endorsed "Horace A. Williams," who was supposed to be her brother. She never had a brother, however, and the endorser was Holmes himself.

The Alice Pitzel Murder.

TORONTO, June 25.—The adjourned inquest on the body of Alice Pitzel was concluded last night. After 10 minutes, absence the jurors brought in a verdict against Holmes of murdering Alice Pitzel, in the city of Toronto, on or about Oct. 25, 1894. After the return of the verdict, the coroner made out a warrant for the arrest of Holmes. The warrant was placed in the hands of the attorney general this morning, and the necessary papers will be made out demanding Holmes' extradition.

Geyer's Theory.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—Detective Geyer says he is satisfied that Howard Pitzel was never taken away from here, and that Holmes followed his plan as in other cities—rented a house here in which he murdered the boy and buried him, probably under it. It is upon this theory that he will work here.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

Comptroller Eckels Remembers With Gratitude a Man Who Was Kind to Him.

"Cast thy bread upon the waters, and it shall return to thee after many days." It would appear in what follows that the bread returned in time for the second generation. Many years ago Comptroller Eckels was a small boy in Illinois. At this early age he had a taste for trade. His father was well to do, but the coming comptroller had a strong notion of making money for himself. The easiest avenue of commerce which opened to his young feet was the apple trade. He was but 8 years old at the time, and it was his wont to occasionally wend his way to a farmer of the neighborhood who had an unusually fine brand of apples and buy a basketful, and then sell them at a ripe advance over original cost.

In this way young Eckels amassed a boyish fortune. There was one thing which he always recalls to the credit of the farmer. It would seem that the old agriculturist had a warm place in his heart for boys, and he always gave young Eckels about twice as many apples for his money as the market naturally called for. In fact, he sold apples to young Eckels for about 30 cents on the dollar, and this low rate on fruit very much assisted the youthful merchant in money making.

This, as stated, was long ago. The old farmer has been dead these many years, but he has a son older than Comptroller Eckels, who is now practicing law in New York city. And a good lawyer he is—capable, thorough and honest, although not perhaps growing tremendously rich at his profession. When Eckels became comptroller of the currency, he was aware of the whereabouts and professional fortune of this son of the old farmer who had so favored him in the apple business.

In memory of the farmer's generosity Comptroller Eckels has seen to it that a great deal of the New York law business which had its emanation in his department has fallen into the hands of the son. It may be safely and conservatively said that as the direct result of the father's liberality the son in the last two years has made several thousand dollars and has been brought into a law practice which will swell his professional earnings for years to come. Bread on the waters in the guise of former apples, which might in the aggregate have cost the old farmer father a dollar, is today returning to the son to the extent of thousands of dollars.—Washington Star.

The Newspaper Men's Yell.

A gentleman who saw the boat race between Yale and Harvard at New London tells a story of the newspaper yell which was inaugurated by the representatives of the press who were present to report the event.

"There were fully 70 newspaper men present," said he. "They came from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and a great many other places. They were placed on the old press boat, the Manhanset, which has by long custom become known as the press boat. It is always given a good position, so the newspaper men can get a good view of the race.

"The whole face of the earth was covered with college men. They swarmed along the banks of the river, crowded in the boat and into every available inch of space until the earth was black with them. They kept up a deafening roar of college yells, each college sending up its yells in mighty tones. The earth shook with the wild medley of sound, and the newspaper men were deafened.

"'Boys, we are not in it,' said one of the newspaper men. 'Can't we do something to revenge ourselves on these howling Indians?'

"'Let's get a yell of our own,' said one.

"A bright young fellow from New York instantly set up the yell, which was instantly taken up and sent reverberating down the line:

"'Oysters, clams—raw, raw, raw—waiter!'

"Every newspaper man on the boat took up the yell. They shouted it out with wonderful heartiness and enthusiasm, drowning completely the shouts of the smaller groups of college men. Every time a group of collegians gave vent to their yell, the newspaper men would answer.

"The uniqueness of their yell caught the crowd, and in a few minutes hundreds of people were repeating it. In a short time it had spread over the entire gathering and became the yell of the day:

"'Oysters, clams—raw, raw, raw—waiter!'"—Atlanta Constitution.

Not Partial to Blonds.

It was at the hour when only night owls are out that two sun kissed daughters of the south, with ebonylike complexions, sat talking in one of the transverse seats of an elevated railroad car.

"Mistah Samuel Walter Brown," said one in a loud tone of voice, "awsked me as a spech'l favah fo' my comp'ny at de Brilliant Stars' cake walk next week. I awsked if he'd gi' me flow's, en when he said he couldn' 'fo'd it I said: 'Niggah, you get out! I doan' go to no cake walk 'thout flow's.'"

"Waal, I 'clar!" exclaimed the other as her eyes rolled about under their blinking lids. "Why, dat niggah made me promise to go to dat walk, en 'f I'd knowd he awsked yo' fust I'd 'fused 'im right thar en then.

"But," she added after a moment's silence, "he am goin to bring me flow's—a big bunch of yaller roses."

"Oh, you kin have 'im!" replied the first one, and her lips curled contemptuously. "I doan' like blon's anyway—blon's is deceitful."—New York Sun.

BAD "SPIKER" MURPHY

Plotted to Murder and Rob and Then Flee the Country.

Fellow Prisoner Was Let Into the Scheme.

One of Murphy's Enemies Plays a Prominent Part in the Drama.

PROVIDENCE, July 26.—Another attempt on the part of "Spiker" Murphy to break out of the state prison was discovered yesterday. Murphy is a most desperate villain, and is serving a life sentence for the murder of Waterman Irons. Ever since he was sentenced he has been plotting to get out.

He was with "Gentleman George" Elwood, the notorious masked burglar, when the latter set up the plot to kill the deputy warden and to effect a general jail delivery, and in which outbreak Elwood was shot to death.

On last Memorial day the prisoners were given the liberty of the yard and engaged in athletic sports. Murphy managed to communicate with John Heintz, whose time was soon to expire. He planned an escape, to take effect on Saturday night, Aug. 24, just as the guards were being changed.

Heintz was to go to the village nearby, procure a file, saw and some tar soap, and, standing upon a barrel, he was, from night to night, as best he could,

File the Bars

of one of the windows in the wing that Murphy's cell is in.

Murphy arranged to have a suit of clothes and a pistol brought to the wall, and then, when the guard was being changed, he was to rush to the window, push out the bars, which were to be held by a thread only, and was to jump to the grass, not five feet below.

Then they were to go to O'Donohue's store in Cranston and kill the old man, rob him and flee the country.

Heintz apparently agreed to carry out these plans, but neither he nor Murphy realized that George Elliott, who was standing nearby, heard what they were saying.

Elliott had it in for Murphy, and he knew that the time to thwart him would be when Heintz's sentence would expire. He notified Warden Viall on Wednesday, and yesterday, as Heintz came to the screen to be passed to the guard room before being liberated, he was searched, and, as had been expected, Heintz had just received from Murphy covering the whole job, even to a $75,000 robbery which he knew could be committed in England.

Written Instructions

Murphy had been watched every minute, yet he had managed to steal a piece of brown wrapping paper and to borrow a stub of a pencil from another life prisoner, and with them to write a long letter.

Murphy was brought to the guardroom, confronted with the note and his scheme to break out, rob and kill, and was again sent to solitary confinement.

The prison authorities realize that one of two things will surely happen, either Murphy will kill a guard or he must be killed to save the life of some officer, and orders have been given to shoot him down on the first provocation, and to shoot to kill.

BOSTONIANS ARE BUSY.

May Have Thirty-Five Thousand Knights Templars to Look After.

BOSTON, July 26.—Plans have already been drawn for several great observation stands for use during the parade of the Knights Templars, some with accommodations for 6000 persons. These stands will all be handsomely decorated.

Provision has also been made for the reception of 20,000 knights, and this will leave 200 commanderies still to be heard from. It is probable that there will be from 25,000 to 35,000 in the parade Aug. 27.

The first delegate to arrive at the conclave was Peter Ewing of Santiago, Chili, who came to town on Monday. Almost all the large commanderies will arrive on Aug. 25 and 26. The first of these will be the California commandery, which comes on the 24th. On the 25th five commanderies will arrive, as far as is now known.

The delegations will all be escorted to their quarters by sections of the Boston commandery, which, by the way, is the pioneer commandery of the organization, having been organized in 1802 at the famous Green Dragon. It has a world-wide reputation, and there is scarcely a place on the globe where a member of the Boston commandery would not be welcome.

An Almshouse Scandal.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 26.—The rumors about mismanagement of the city almshouse reached a climax last night when Alderman Allen demanded an investigation into the management of the institution. He stated that a delegation, of whom Alderman Allen was one, visited the almshouse yesterday. Among other things they found a semi-paralytic inmate lying on a filthy bed under a tree. They asked Superintendent Savage to loose the man's shirt. This was done and frightful sores were disclosed. Portions of the man's body were actually honeycombed with vermin. The demand for an immediate investigation was granted.

Public Prayers.

BOSTON, July 26.—Rev. Peter Thomas Stanford, an Evangelist from Birmingham, Eng., led an impromptu religious meeting yesterday on the streets of the negro section of Boston. As he was passing along he noticed a quartet of colored minstrels, and asked them to play a hymn. They did so, and soon the street was crowded with singing and praying Afro-Americans. A great crowd of sightseers evinced emotion at the earnestness of preacher and listeners.

Colored Girl and Pastor.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 26.—Miss Marion Jennings, a colored girl, yesterday instituted proceedings in bastady against Rev. S. H. Browne, pastor of the Third Baptist church, colored. The girl gave birth to the child last April, and the little one died a few weeks ago of cholera infantum. The church is disposed to stand by the pastor.

"Leave the Town."

ATTLEBORO, Mass., July 26.—Two weeks ago Rev. Henry Manchester waged war on unlicensed liquor dealers, 12 of whom were arrested and fined in the district court, paying fines to the amount of $1200. As a result Mr. Manchester's house last Wednesday evening was besieged by whitecaps. They met in the yard near the house, fired pistols and made violent outcries, daring Mr. Manchester to come out of the house. The gang went to Officer Merney's house near the Manchester place and threatened the occupants. Steve Hatton, a witness in liquor cases, has been told to leave town. George Thompson, a spotter, has received letters ordering him to leave town.

Four Persons Injured.

BANGOR, Me., July 26.—The first accident on the newly opened Bangor, Orono and Oldtown electric railroad occurred last evening. A car jumped the track at Academy hill and plunged into two telegraph poles with great force, breaking them off. The front part of the car was smashed, and Motorman McCluskey had a leg broken in several places. The car was about half filled with passengers, and three of them were injured.

Bad Man in Custody.

BOSTON, July 26.—A sneak thief, about 40 years old, and whose name is supposed to be Harry L. Brigham, entered a house in East Boston yesterday and stole an overcoat. He was discovered and chased until he was captured. He was identified as one of the most dangerous crooks in the state. He has a dozen aliases. Some of his more prominent ventures have been in Worcester, Lawrence and Boston.

In Disgrace.

LOWELL, Mass., July 26.—In an action brought by Lawyer B. D. O'Connell against Lawyer Charles Cowley for disbarment, Judge Bond yesterday suspended Cowley from practice for two years. The charges were concealment of evidence in a pension case and other unprofessional acts.

Offer Will Be Accepted.

ROCHESTER, N. H., July 26.—It is learned from an authoritative source that the Goodalls, the extensive plush manufacturers of Sanford, Me., have made an offer for the plant of the Norway Plains company here, which will be accepted. It is understood that the offer was for at least $118,000.

Going to See the President.

BOSTON, July 26.—Hon. Daniel S. Lamont, secretary of war, arrived in Boston last night, and registered at Hotel Vendome. He left the city for Buzzard's Bay this morning. It is conjectured that his visit to the president is in connection with the Indian troubles in Wyoming.

Big Sale of Timber.

SUNCOOK, N. H., July 26.—The largest sale of timber in central New Hampshire occurred yesterday afternoon on the late Squire Ela's homestead, five miles out, when $41,000 was paid out. The pine and oak are estimated at 10,000,000 feet sawing lumber, besides 20,000 cords of wood.

Of Good Old Puritan Stock.

MEDFIELD, Mass., July 26. — Funeral services were held today over the remains of Mrs. Abigail (Standish) Moore, formerly of Dead River, Me., where her father, Myles Standish—a lineal descendant of the Mayflower Pilgrim—was an extensive lumber dealer.

Passengers Escaped.

HOLMES' BIG FURNACE

May Have Been Used to Cremate the Bodies of His Victims.

Strong Belief That He Killed Julia Connor.

Mrs. Smythe Tells of an Incriminating Letter From Holmes.

CHICAGO, July 26.—The searchers in the Holmes castle yesterday found a shoulder bone which the detectives believe is part of an adult's body, and a socket bone, supposed to be part of the remains of a child. A portion of the dress was also found.

The remains of a furnace that was possibly used by Holmes as a crematory was unearthed in the cellar. Near it was a large heap of ashes, which are being sifted.

The man who built the furnace says that Holmes maintained great secrecy concerning its construction, and said it was to be used in his gas manufacturing experiments. As no attempt was ever made to make gas, this story was clearly a fabrication.

A. L. Jones, who purchased a drug store here from Holmes, is positive that Holmes is guilty of murdering the Williams sisters, and insists that he ended the life of Kate Durky, a young woman who was for a time his slave.

The girl had her life insured. Mr. Jones said: "Holmes was digging in that cellar day and night, and I now think he was burying the bodies of those he had slaughtered."

Mrs. Quinlan, wife of one of the former janitors of the Holmes building, yesterday stated that a young lady named Cigrand, who lived with Holmes just before the Williams girl, and who came to Chicago from Indiana, had mysteriously disappeared.

More proof was found that Julia L. Connor was made away with by H. H. Holmes. It was determined that she disappeared before June 9, 1892—an important factor in the search for her. As late as November, 1892, Holmes, as shown by the letters which have been found, was writing her parents as to her whereabouts, and stating that she had gone to St. Louis. But on June 5, 1892, he wrote to her brother-in-law, Ira Yantis, of 820 Wardobe avenue, Waukesha, Wis., giving him a fictitious address as to her whereabouts in St. Louis. Yantis wrote back to Holmes on June 9, and this letter was found yesterday.

Concerning Mrs. Connor.

DAVENPORT, Ia., July 26.—Tears came to Mrs. Smythe's eyes when she read a dispatch from Chicago last night stating a body had been found in the Holmes building which was supposed to be that of her grandchild, Pearl Connor. "The poor child," she sobbed. Then, picking up an evening paper, she exclaimed, as if she saw a gleam of hope in the printed lines, "Oh, it was only the bones they found, and how could they tell whether they found my grandchild or not?"

Mrs. Smythe has succeeded in finding the letters of H. H. Holmes to herself, written when he had slain or was plotting to kill Mrs. Julia L. Connor and her daughter Pearl. In the first letter, dated Oct. 13, 1892, Holmes invents a lawsuit in which his interests are involved, and wants Mrs. Connor as a witness, who, he said, would prove valuable to him. His connection with the law in Chicago was mostly with regard to judgments for small amounts, and yet he writes to Mrs. Smythe of a case in which $3000 depended upon her daughter's testimony. Possibly while disposing of his victim's body he wrote to Mrs. Smythe.

Holmes had never seen Mr. or Mrs. Smythe, yet he writes to the latter, and opens his letter with an inquiry. He asks a simple question: "Will you kindly communicate with Mrs. Connor, and say to her, for me, that it is absolutely necessary for us to hear from her with regard to the suit in which she is interested as a witness?"

This was the first intimation Mrs. Smythe had that her daughter had disappeared, and the first line she ever received from Holmes.

About the Toronto House.

TORONTO, July 26.—The statement of Mrs. Doyle of Chicago, that a relative of hers owned the house 16 St. Vincent street, where the remains of the Pitzel children were found, is not correct. Mrs. Nudell, who owns the property, says that her late husband and herself have owned the house for 20 years, and that no one has any interest in it except herself.

Trial Number One.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—District Attorney Graham decisively announces that H. H. Holmes will be tried in this city for the murder of Benjamin F. Pitzel. It is believed that the authorities have recently learned more important details of the crime, which insures the accused man's conviction.

On a Charge of Murder.

TORONTO, July 26.—Detective Caddy yesterday afternoon swore out two separate warrants, charging Holmes with the murder of the two Pitzel girls. The warrants were placed in the hands of Detective Inspector Stark, who at once took the necessary proceedings to have Holmes extradited.

Queensberry Granted a Receiving Order.

LONDON, July 26.—The bankruptcy court has granted a receiving order against the property of Oscar Wilde at the instance of the Marquis of Queensberry to enforce the payment of the latter's claim of £667 ($3385) for law costs incurred in the libel suit of Wilde vs. Queensberry.

Dr. Flower Vindicated.

CHICAGO, July 26.—The legal proceedings begun last winter against Dr. R. C. Flower of Boston have just been dismissed by the state attorney for want of evidence to sustain the charges made. It is understood that Dr. Flower will soon institute damage suits for illegal arrest.

Won't Interfere.

WASHINGTON, July 26. — The treasury department has declined to entertain the protest against the admission into this country of bulls and toreadors from Mexico for a bull-fighting exhibition at the Atlanta exposition.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Miss Bertie Turner of Crescent street has gone to South Framingham.

Harry Campbell of Copeland street has gone to Hallowell, Me., on a visit.

The Quincy & Boston street railway are having a number of new cars built.

The visiting granite men will be accompanied by their wives and daughters.

Arthur Burnham offers stock of the Quincy & Boston street railway for sale.

The branch of the Thomas Crane Library at Wollaston is at Loring's pharmacy.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Lincoln and Miss Lincoln of Wollaston are at Kennebunk, Me.

A party from Neponset made an excursion to Nantasket Thursday evening on the City of Quincy.

It is known who poisoned Mr. H. W. Battison's valuable setter. Boston detectives worked up the case.

When is the Hancock street railroad bridge at Atlantic to be widened? Some one is derelict of duty.

Mrs. William Davenport has returned from Hudson where she has been visiting for the past few weeks.

A party of young ladies from West Quincy went to Highland park, Avon, on their wheels Thursday.

A large number from Quincy took in the concert by the Columbus band at Braintree, Thursday evening.

Miss Lena O'Connell, for the past two years cashier at J. F. Merrill's, is seriously ill at her home on Granite street.

The family of Manager Dozier of the telephone exchange are expected to arrive in town from the south this week.

Some of the poles that are being erected on Willard street are liable to make the person crosseyed who looks at them.

Miss Alberta White of Hanover will be one of the new Quincy teachers at the opening of the fall term in September.

Frank Perry, one of the faithful employes of the street railway took his first vacation Thursday and went to Nantasket.

Miss Mamie Frye, one of the operators at the Quincy telephone exchange, goes to Old Orchard, Me., for a week's vacation.

The "dog fish" which Capt. Jack Brainbridge and crew of the yacht "P. D. Q." captured in Quincy Bay on Wednesday turns out to be a mackerel shark.

Mrs. Eliza S. Fowler, who will be remembered in Quincy as Miss Eliza S. Hobart, died in Stoughton this week, funeral service being held Thursday.

The people who live in the vicinity of Copeland and Crescent streets are treated to a band concert nearly every evening, as the West Quincy band meets for practice in Farnum's hall.

Rev. C. B. Elder, Pastor of Unitarian church in Keene N. H. will preach in First Universalist church, Quincy, Sunday morning, 10.30, July 28, in exchange with the pastor Rev. A. E. White.

A Boston furniture company's agent was in town Thursday covering every convenient fence and telephone pole with advertising signs. Some means should be adopted to prevent this disfiguring of property.

Pictorial History.

The Committee on Finance of the City Council gave a hearing at its meeting Thursday evening on the order appropriating $1,000 for the completion of the Memorial pictorial history of Quincy which was to have been published at the time of the centenial celebration. Ex-Mayor Charles H. Porter, W. G. A. Pattee, Joseph M. Sheahan, M. D., and W. G. Spear appeared for the Quincy Historical society and spoke in favor of the appropriation.

Wollaston Lawn Party.

The lawn party given by the Ladies' Society of the Methodist church to the children of the Sunday School and their parents and friends on Wednesday afternoon and evening called out a large number of the little people to enjoy the occasion. Many of the parents and friends were also present especially in the evening. Ice cream for the occasion was furnished by Henry H. Faxon, Esq.

ROOSTER AGAIN.

The Beatrice and Swirl Also Get First Prizes at Hull.

The second open race of the Hull club was held Thursday and was more exciting than the first. About the same number of yachts were entered but only two were able to win first honors again, the Rooster in the third and Katydid in the fifth classes. In all the other classes there was a new list of winners. The Handsel won in Class A on time allowance. The Beatrice won in the first class, the Harbinger having fouled the stakeboat.

First prizes were won by the Handsel, Beatrice, Satanic, Swirl, Nabob, Rooster, Alphine and Katydid.

Second prizes went to the Gleaner, Susie, La Chica, Evadne, Spinx and Primrose.

Third prizes were won by the Posy, Spinster, Kayoshk, Fantasy and Cutty Lark.

The Hull club hold another open race today, and the Quincy yacht club will continue the sport on Saturday.

Newspaper Comment.

The hero of the day was Rooster, and the Adams boys demonstrated that they own one of the greatest boats of her size Boston Harbor has ever seen.—Journal.

The Rooster, in the third class, sailed a remarkably fast race, her actual time being almost three minutes better than that of the Satanic, the winning boat in class B. The Evadne was second, with the Kayoshk a good third.—The Herald.

Harbinger spoiled a fine victory, but not as great as the day before, by very hoggish tactics at the finish, and she was justly ruled out for fouling the home flag boat.—Journal.

The Swirl caught a good chance and won in her class, while the Rooster again warmed the 18-to-21 foot cats. Her owners seem to have got her going at last in both light and breezy weather, and she is showing the speed that was expected of her.—Globe.

Satanic got back at Gleaner, but it is doubtful if she would have won but for a bit of foolish sailing on Gleaner's part just after the start.—Journal.

The story of the race of the third class boat centres around Rooster. She got away in the lead and held it all over the course. Rooster even beat Satanic's actual time over the same course, and stood up well in the stiff breeze at the latter part of the race, seemingly making better time than the rest in a blow.—Standard.

Swirl did herself proud in the heavy weather by defeating such an able heavy weather craft as Susie.—Journal.

I. O. O. F. ENTERTAINMENT.

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Wollaston Enjoy Themselves.

Odd Fellow's hall was crowded on Thursday evening with a brilliant audience, the occasion being an entertainment given under the auspices of the Carrie E Ruggles Rebekah Lodge and John Hancock Lodge, I. O. O. F.

The entertainment consisted of singing by the Clarendon Male quartette, Messrs. E E. Bullock, C. A. Phinney, J. H. Day and Jas. A. King; vocal duetts by little Lizzie Pippin and Hazel Hewins; piano duets by Freddie and Eddie Mitchell and recitations by Miss Abbie Mann. All of the numbers were enthusiastically encored.

After the entertainment ice cream and cake was served. The committee consisted of Mrs. John N. Emerson, Mrs. Ella L. Tapley, Miss Linton, Miss DeForest, Miss Bjorkman, Mr. Fred H. Coombs, Mr. E. L. Mitchell and Mr. E. E. Bullock.

Bell Number Two.

Mr. George F. Pinkham writes to the Record:

I noticed in one of your recent issues an article under the heading of "Gift of a Church Bell" dated Quincy, July 21, in which it is stated that "H. H. Faxon has assumed the new role of supplying churches with bells," and "that the first to be remembered by him in this way is the Swedish Lutheran church of Quincy," etc. Permit me to say that the above is wrong in two particulars, as Mr. Faxon has assumed no "new role in supplying churches with bells," and that the Swedish Lutheran church of Quincy is not "the first to be remembered by him in this way." For in 1872, when Wollaston Heights, a part of the then town of Quincy was in its infancy, Mr. Faxon very kindly gave to the First Baptist church of that place a splendid bell, which has ever since summoned the people of Wollaston to divine worship.

Dr. Everett's Big Sleeves.

Hon. Wm. Everett wore at his Old South lecture Wednesday afternoon the gown of a master of arts of the University of Cambridge. It is very peculiar in some respects, the sleeves being especially singular. They are long, square, with a semi-circular piece cut from the lower ends on the inside. The sleeves hang, and the arms protrude from circular holes at the upper part. Dr. Everett informed the ladies in the audience that the gown is made of real serge, and not from what is known as serge here.—Record.

Child Drowned in a Creek.

Matthew Casey, aged 5 years, son of Jeremiah Casey, 451 Neponset avenue, Neponset, was drowned yesterday afternoon in a small creek located in the rear of his home, having an outlet in the Neponset river. It is thought that the little fellow fell into the water while at play. The body was taken to the home of Mr. Casey.—Herald.

GOVERNOR'S DAY.

Many from Quincy at the Camp of Company K.

The work Thursday was in the form of extended order in the forenoon and in the afternoon regular drill without being in extended order. The dress parade by this regiment, says the Standard, was one of the very best ever seen on the field.

The 5th goes about its daily labors with much method. In its different appearances it is evident that a very careful oversight is kept of even the smallest points, and one thing is particularly noticeable—errors, wherever made, are at once corrected, and that is more than can be said of every organization.—Herald.

Today Gov. Greenhalge is in camp. The Commander-in-chief arrived at 4 P. M. Thursday and was received with a salute of 17 guns. The review this afternoon at 3 o'clock is the event of the week and many Quincy people are guests of Company K.

MILTON.

The Congregational church will be closed during the month of September.

William Clark, the LEDGER agent, has gone to New Hampshire for a brief visit.

S. M. Somes is building a new house on the corner of Sheldon street and Bryant avenue.

Rev. Hiram Vrooman, who is attending the Harvard summer school, will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church Sunday.

The barber shop has been moved to Rugby block.

William W. Robinson and J. Albert Simpson participated in the excursion to Newport Wednesday.

A playground is to be constructed on the East school lot and other improvements made. The grounds about the building are looking nicely, thanks to the good work of janitor Graham.

There will be a band concert at East Milton tonight.

Miss Emma Kemp of Halifax, N. S., is the guest of her uncle, Mr. Frank Kemp. Miss Kemp came on to attend the Christian Endeavor convention.

Rev. H. C. Vrooman is in Maryland.

John Muller, who is at the Quincy Hospital, is doing nicely and his friends hope to see him about again soon.

East Milton people are anxiously waiting for the street railway to be completed. It is now thought another week will see the cars running as the rails and poles have arrived and are being placed in position.

If the men at work on Granite avenue live long enough and the money holds out the street may be passable again.

Harry Bailey has a new wheel.

Mr. and Mrs. William Parsons are to occupy the house recently vacated by Charles Whittmore. The house is being thoroughly renovated and their many friends wish them many years of happiness in their new home.

An Old Map.

Mr. George W. Brown of Newtonville, a son of Capt. Foster Brown formerly of Quincy Point, has presented the Quincy Historical society with a map of the town of Quincy as it existed May 14, 1795, being a fac simile of the map furnished the state at that time. But two streets appear on the map, viz Hancock street and Scotch road and but two buildings, the meeting house and grist mill. The map is on exhibition in the window of Holden's jewelry store.

TODAY'S COURT.

Martin Ryan of Milton was fined $5 for drunkenness.

The liquors seized from Martin Flynn of Weymouth were forfeited.

☞ Don't go away for vacation until you have arranged for the DAILY LEDGER to be sent you by mail. It keeps you fully posted on all the news of Quincy and vicinity. Two cents a day, or fifty cents a month, in advance, covers all expense, including postage.

HOUGHS NECK AWAKE.

The Residents Want Cheaper Fares And Other Improvements.

At a meeting of the Houghs Neck Improvement association held at Pierce's dance hall on Thursday evening about 25 members were present Mr. John Cavanagh in the chair. The committee on railroad fares were instructed to make application to the railroad commissioners and see if a general reduction of fare on the Manet line of the Quincy & Boston street railroad cannot be effected.

It was also voted that an effort be made to induce as many as possible of the summer residents to move to the beach before the first of May, register and vote here. A number of those present signified their willingness to do so, and it is believed that 50 or 75 voters can be added to the registration lists in this ward. It appeared from the report of the secretary that over $8,000 will be collected in taxes from Houghs Neck during the current year, and less than as many hundred are annually expended in the section for all purposes. The residents of the beach are at last awakened to the injustice of these facts, and propose to use every effort to get some benefit from the large amount of taxes they are paying.

Scrofula, Salt Rheum

And All Other Blood Diseases—How They May Be Cured.

Speaking simply from what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done, not only once or twice, but in thousands of cases, we can honestly say that it is the best remedy for all diseases of the blood, whatever the cause.

By its peculiar Combination, Proportion and Process, it possesses positive medicinal merit Peculiar to Itself.

It has cured the most virulent cases of Scrofula and Salt Rheum, even when all other prescriptions and medicines have failed to do any good.

Blood poisoning, from whatever origin, yields to its powerful cleansing, purifying, vitalizing effect upon the blood. If you desire further particulars, write to us as below. Remember that Captain J. F. Cain is on an extensive cruise along the south shore to New York with a party of college men.

Returns for 438 dogs have been made to the town clerk; 188 from South Braintree, 166 from Braintree and 84 from East Braintree. These dogs must all be licensed by August first.

This evening the postponed installation of the Red Men will be held; D. D. G. S. Samuel Phinney and suite will conduct the installation. It was postponed from the twelfth of the month on account of Mr. Phinney's illness.

The following people enjoyed the excursion to Newport last Wednesday, Mrs. Hattie Hill, Miss Annie Hill, Mrs. Clark, Miss Addie Sampson, Charles Hill, Elias Holbrook, George Holbrook, John Cronin and John Gallivan. The train left Braintree at 9.40 and returned at about 8 P. M., all report a most enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. William Houston are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter last Thursday morning.

Mr. Josephus Sampson and Mr. A. J. Dyer attended the grocer's picnic at Bass Point Wednesday. Nearly all the grocery stores in town were closed.

The Baptist Sabbath School are expecting to have a day of enjoyment next week, (probably Tuesday.) They intend to picnic at Houghs Neck.

There will be a meeting of the members of the first parish in the chapel next Tuesday evening July thirtieth. Action will be taken in regard to enlarging the choir accommodation, and providing music.

Letters of administration were granted at Hyde Park Wednesday to E. H. Vinton on the estate of the late I. F. Vinton of Braintree. The inventory of the estate of L. H. Mann for $23,812 was also filed.

The members of the First Parish Sunday School were to have their picnic this week at Ponkapog Pond, put as not enough signified their intention of going the scheme was abandoned till later in the season.

Another band concert was given in Storrs Square last evening. The music was furnished as previously by the electric roads and each line did a big business. Several open cars were run up to the Square as a grand stand, and special cars brought the crowd along by hundreds. The peanut and pop-corn men had a good trade and there were two lively "scraps" among the spectators to keep up the noise.

The new 300-kilowalt generator recently purchased by the Braintree and Weymouth road was run for the first time yesterday.

There was some little delay at first and several trips of the cars were missed.

The Braintree and Weymouth road will probably assume control of the power house and let power to the Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook road.

—A farmer informs the Charlottetown, P. E. I., Patriot that an insect resembling an ant has appeared in his immense field of potatoes, and within a day or two has completely destroyed the potato bugs. The parasite eats the bug, leaving nothing but the shell, and seems to possess an insatiable appetite. The same insect was reported in another section of the island last year, and no bugs were left where this parasite had visited. This new exterminator would seem to be worth importing into the States free of duty.

—There were seventeen nationalities represented in the Y. P. S. C. E. convention in Boston.

SENSATION FLOPS.

Cashier Walden's Stealings Will Amount to Less Than $2000.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 26.—Ex-Bank Commissioner Buck furnishes a statement of the bank's assets and liabilities at the time of his last examination on June 15, the totals of which balance and show the bank to have been solvent at that time. Mr. Buck estimates Walden's defalcation at only about $1800.

According to Commissioner Crofut's statement, the bank is insolvent only to the extent of $880.96. This may be easily offset by paper charged off at first, but now found to be collectable.

Attorney E. B. Sumner reported the result of his journey to Allentown, Pa., to the directors last night. Arrangements have been made with Sutton & Baine of that city whereby over $3000 can be realized on the machinery purchased by Walden with $4440 of the bank's money, and sold to them at a great advance.

The great question awaiting answer is: Why is Walden absent? Twenty-five thousand dollars of worthless notes, given the Dime bank by the W. C. & A. B. Morrison company, now insolvent, have been found in the bank. Walden may have advanced this money, and, fearing the disclosure of his mistake, fled.

Killed Two Women.

BARBOURVILLE, Ky., July 26.—Rosa Gordon, the murderess, in a confession, implicates three men, who she claims held Mary Southerland and Melissa Brown, her victims, while she disembowelled them. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the alleged accomplices. The prisoner is a small, bright appearing girl about 19, with bright eyes and short curly hair, thickly clustered about her head.

Stallions Worth $30,000.

NEW YORK, July 26.—W. E. D. Stokes of this city has received a royal present from the Grand Duke Demitri, uncle of the reigning Czar of Russia. The present consists of two yearling stallions, which are said to be the pick of the imperial studs of Russia. One is a trotter and the other a runner. They are valued at $15,000 each.

More Election Figures.

LONDON, July 26.—Returns of pollings up to date leave the state of the parties as follows: Conservatives, 329; Liberal-Unionists, 65; total Unionists, 394. Liberals, 158; McCarthyites, 62; Parnellites, 10; Labor, 2; total opposition, 232. The net gains of the government party up to date number 82.

Taylor Brothers on Trial.

CARROLLTON, Mo., July 26.—The second trial of W. P. Taylor and George E. Taylor for the horrible murder of the Meeks family on the night of May 10, 1894, began here yesterday. There are 400 witnesses in the case, and they are about equally divided between the two sides.

Rev. Dr. Brooks' Will.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Rev. Dr. Arthur Brooks left personal property valued at $200,000. His will was filed yesterday. It appoints his wife, Elizabeth W. Brooks, and his brother, W. G. Brooks of Boston, executors. All of the testator's property is left to Mrs. Brooks.

On a Month's Cruise.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Secretary Herbert leaves Washington today on the Dolphin on a month's cruise along the northern coast, extending probably as far as Bar Harbor, Me. Assistant Secretary McAdoo will remain in charge of the navy department.

Turks Buying Revolvers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 26.—There has been a material fall in the funds, owing to reports of heavy fighting in Macedonia. A general uneasy feeling prevails in Constantinople. The Turks are buying revolvers and cartridges freely.

Another on the List.

NEW YORK, July 26.—"Joe" Vendig has received the signed agreement for the fight between Peter Maher and Steve O'Donnell, to take place at Dallas during the week of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons contest. The fight is now assured.

Bullet In His Head.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—Dr. Benjamin S. Mackie, a physician in the United States navy on waiting orders, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the head, at his home here. No cause has been assigned for the act.

Antipodean Elections.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., July 26.—The result of the general elections in New South Wales is as follows: Ministerialists, 61; Labor, supporting the ministry, 19. Government total, 80. Opposition, 44; Independent, 1.

Colored Hero Gone.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 26.—Benjamin Charlton, General Judson Kilpatrick's faithful colored bodyguard during the war, died yesterday. He twice saved General Kilpatrick's life during the rebellion.

Fine Schooner Launched.

BATH, Me., July 26.—A new four-masted schooner of 1200 tons was launched from the yard of G. G. Deering. She was christened the Lewis H. Goward. When ready for sea the schooner will cost $52,000.

Wall Street Brokers Dissolve.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The firm of Nesslage, Colgate & Co. of Wall street dissolved partnership yesterday. The firm dealt largely in silver bullion, and has been recently exporting gold to Europe.

An Unknown "Floater."

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 26.—The body of an unknown woman, about 40 years old, was found in the Charles river yesterday. It was well-dressed in black, and wore congress shoes with cloth tops.

Alleged Misappropriation.

NEW HAVEN, July 26.—Dr. Jeffe is under arrest, charged with fraud and conversion. It is alleged that he took $2000, the amount of an insurance policy on the life of Widow Ehleles' husband, and has kept it.

Back to Work.

TILTON, N. H., July 26.—The operatives of the Tilton mills, who struck two days ago for a 10 per cent increase in wages, returned to work yesterday, their demand having been granted.

Selected Their Stock.

NEW HAVEN, July 26.—Burglars entered Solomon Fry's pawn shop in the heart of the city and stole 25 watches and a dozen opera glasses.

Hearing Private.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 26.—The hearing in the Addicks divorce case is private. The commissioner will probably report in September.

HARVESTS OF HAIR.

GIRLS PART WITH THEIR CROWNING GLORY FOR A FEW CENTS.

Jewelry and Wigs Are Made of the Queerest of Crops—Information, Some of It of an Odd Character, From a Man Who Makes Things of Hair.

It was quite by chance that the writer of this article happened on a man who has spent his lifetime in the manipulation of human hair, transforming it into wigs, crowns, frizettes and all the other kinds of "false" hair and weaving it into watch chains, eyeglass guards, bracelets, as well as mounting it in lockets, rings, pins, earrings and brooches and working it up into all kinds of floral designs and emblems.

"A charming head of hair on a woman," he said, "is a thing of beauty and indeed a crowning glory, but to a hair worker it is of little value. Even the longest hair, before it has passed through the hands of the manufacturers, is well nigh worthless. The hair of a woman's head which is 30 inches in length, for example, would not be worth more than 60 cents.

"I remember a woman coming into my shop one night and offering to sell her hair. She said she was a seaman's wife, and not having heard from him for many months was in desperate straits for money. She wanted to know how much I would give her for her hair, which was of considerable length. I refused to cut it off. I wouldn't cut any woman's hair off. It is such a demoralizing, degrading thing to do, and the fact is emphasized when dire need is the cause of the sale. However, I was in a position to obtain her assistance until her husband came back.

"We get our finest descriptions of hair," continued the subject of this interview, "from France and Italy, whence come all shades of black and brown. France, again, Germany and Spain supply the market with brown, light flaxen and red hair. Gray hair, being found in every parcel, is described as universal.

"On the continent there are regular hair harvests. During the summer time you can see at every fair peddlers surrounded by girls with their beautiful hair nicely combed out standing in file waiting their turn. The peddler has in his hands a pair of shears, each girl bends her neck, a few snips, and the hair is off, tied into a whisp and thrown into a basket standing at the shearer's side. And how much do you think that the girls get for this? A few cents, a guady trinket or a bright silk handkerchief.

"Some peddlers travel from cottage to cottage plying their trade, and the same performance is gone through. An average head of hair weighs four ounces. When sufficient hair is accumulated, it is sold to the hair manufacturers, who submit it to a process of cleansing and sorting into various lengths and shades. It is then ready for the wigmakers, who buy it as they require it, paying at the rate of 20 cents or so per ounce for lengths of 10 inches to 12 inches to as many shillings as there are inches for lengths of 36 inches and upward. The greatest demand is for hair from 14 to 24 inches in length. The longest female hair on record is 72 inches."

The tycoon of Japan once confiscated the hair of a whole province and had it woven into a ship's hawser over a quarter of a mile long. Then he discovered that steel ropes were in existence, and now the cable, composed of the pigtails of the unfortunate Japs, reposes before the eyes of the curious in Bethnal Green museum.

The gentleman interviewed possesses a magnificent trophy of hair, in size some 3 feet long by 2 feet high, in the form of a basket of flowers, every leaf, every petal and every stem of which is composed of cunningly wrought hairs from the human head. How long it took to create it, it is impossible to say, but years unquestionably. He has other similar displays, mostly the work of himself or his son, though they pale into insignificance beside the monument of patience in question.

The working of hair into ornaments has gone out of vogue considerably of late years, but seafaring men even now are great lovers of this form of memento. Naturally their favorite designs assume the forms of anchors, compasses and other things nautical.

One day a gentleman came to the subject of this article and desired him in a most mysterious manner to weave some hair, which he gave him, into the form of a serpent. The head and tail were to be of gold, and the tail was to be fixed into the mouth. The serpent was to be in two coils and to encircle a golden heart pierced by a dagger. In order to thoroughly comprehend the design he had to be let into the secret, and this was the explanation which was offered:

The serpent was to represent the nature of a certain young lady to whom the hair belonged and who had jilted the gentleman in question. The golden heart was symbolic of his pure and worthy affection, and the dagger showed how deeply he had been wounded. The tail of the serpent being in its mouth indicated that in injuring her quondam lover she had also bitten herself. The jilted swain was most particular about the execution of the work, sent it back twice for alterations and finally refused to have it at all, perhaps discovering the bathos of his scheme.—Boston Post.

Caught Their Ears.

The new canon of Westminster was once terribly interrupted by the incessant coughing of his congregation. Whereon he suddenly paused in his sermon and interjected the remark, "Last night I was dining with the Prince of Wales." The effect was miraculous, and a deathly silence reigned as the preacher continued: "As a matter of fact, I was not dining with the Prince of Wales last night, but with my own family. I am glad, however, to find that I have at last secured your attention."

FIELDED FINELY.

Cleveland Knocked Out Boston to the Tune of Six to Four.

CLEVELAND, July 25.—The excellent fielding of the Clevelands saved them the game. Burkett made some astonishing catches in left field, and each of them at a time when it meant the loss of position for the Bostons.

"Died Game."

COLUMBUS, O., July 26.—William Taylor, colored, was executed early this morning, in the annex of the penitentiary, for the murder of Isaac Yoakam, an aged farmer of Franklin county. When Warden James read the death warrant to him, he laughed and chatted about it. On the scaffold, the murderer remained quiet while the officials adjusted the noose. He bade his attorney good-by, but made no statement.

War Plotting.

ROME, July 26.—Government officials here openly declare that war with Abyssinia has been decided upon. Il Corriere says that no doubt France and Russia are preparing to make their new alliance felt, and wish to have England and Italy engaged in Africa, while they would be free to carry out their plans in the Mediterranean and in the East.

No Love For British.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 26.—A hostile crowd made a demonstration of protest against the occupation of the island of Trinidad by the British, in front of the British consulate at Sao Paulo yesterday. The police patrols have been increased on account of similar demonstrations here.

The Birds and Bees.

I think the bees, the blessed bees,
Are better, wiser far than we.
The very wild birds in the trees
Are wiser, far, it seems to me,
For love and light and sun and air
Are theirs and not a bit of care.

What bird makes claim to all God's trees?
What bee makes claim to all God's flowers?
Behold their perfect harmonies,
Their common board, the common hours!
Say, why should man be less than these,
The happy birds, the hoarding bees?

Trees That Die When Men Live Near Them.

The deaths of nearly all the pine trees in Asbury Park give rise to an interesting question as to whether or not it is true that this tree is so wild by nature that it will not endure domestication. It is the breed of pine that grows in the sand close to the seashore of which this seems to be true. Asbury Park is built upon a former sea beach extending three miles inland to the edge of the great forest that reaches from Eatontown, back of Long Branch, to Cape May. This forest is called "The Pines," because of the preponderance of pine trees in it, the other trees that are plentiful there being mainly oaks of four varieties, with a few magnolias, tulips, sassafras and hickory trees and hollies and laurels.

The pines still flourish in the woods behind Asbury Park, but in the town a large fraction of the few that remain are sickly and dying. Thousands have died and been cut down since the tree embowered town was built in the woods a quarter of a century ago. The villagers say they die because it kills them to have human beings walk beside them. They say that even in the forest the pines that stand beside the footpaths are the first to die. Others credit their destruction in the village to the shaking of the earth by the heavy trolley cars and steam railway trains, and still others declare that manuring, watering and topsoiling the sandy ground is what has done the damage. The truth is yet to be determined, but certain it is that they are dying fast, and that already Asbury Park has lost most of its noblest ornaments.—New York Sun.

PREPARED TO FIGHT.

Settlers In Jackson's Hole Valley Are Storing Up Ammunition.

But Two Hundred Males In Bannock Tribe.

Living Within Treaty Rights but Against Laws of Wyoming.

POCATELLO, Ida., July 26.—News of a conflict with the Bannock Indians is expected every hour. Troops cannot reach the besieged settlers before Monday.

Additional evidence of the thorough manner in which both the settlers and Indians in Jackson's Hole valley are preparing for battle continues to arrive every day.

After careful inquiry, it is learned that there are 75 heads of families in Jackson's Hole valley. For two weeks, they have, with rare foresight, been preparing for the condition that now exists. In order to forestall the Indians, messengers were to buy up all the ammunition that could be obtained in that section of the country, and so well have they succeeded in laying in a good stock before the passes were watched by the red men, that they now have on hand about 100 rifles, and every settler equipped with 1000 rounds of ammunition.

The Tribe a Small One.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—According to data relative to the Bannock Indians obtained at the Indian bureau, the tribe now on the warpath in Idaho is not a large one. In the latest report of the commissioner of Indian affairs it is stated that the Bannocks number 441 souls, 219 males and 222 females.

It seems that the Bannocks were strictly within their treaty rights in killing game, although they violated the laws of Wyoming in doing so, and so gave opportunity to the lawless among the settlers to cause conflict with them.

The following clause of the treaty of July, 1868, whereby the Bannock Indians were located upon their present reservation, shows the right of the Indians to hunt in Wyoming:

The Indians herein named agree that they will make said reservation their permanent home, and they will make no permanent settlement elsewhere, but they shall have the right to hunt on the unoccupied lands of the United States so long as game may be found therein, and so long as peace subsists between the whites and Indians on the borders of the hunting districts.

To avoid conflict with the whites, the Indian bureau has made regulations governing the exercise of this treaty right which forbid the Indians hunting in districts frequented by the whites, and the policy of the Indian agents has been to persuade the Indians to use the privilege as little as possible. In the trouble between the Indians and settlers, the government, of course, under the treaty, sustains the Indians' right to hunt game, but requires their Return to the Reservation.

In 1866 the Bannocks broke away from governmental restraint and massacred many settlers before they were subjugated. In 1878 they again brought up their annual grievance of bad rations and poor hunting, and took the warpath. During the greater part of that year they robbed and murdered and pillaged, in spite of all efforts made to subdue them. It was not until General Miles came down from Fort Keogh with a large force, and killed a great many of them, that they were subdued.

That war cost the government considerably over $500,000, but the result seemed to be a salutary lesson for the Indians, for since that time they have kept rather quiet. There were about 1500 warriors in the field in that uprising, but over half of them belonged to the Cheyenne and Arapahoe tribes, who secretly sympathize with the outbreak.

At present it is doubtful if the entire tribe can muster more than 500 warriors at the outside. But if they have definitely decided to go on the warpath, it will be an easy matter for them to muster recruits from the various neighboring tribes. There is always a discontented element among the Crow and Sioux tribes

Ready to Fight.

In their last war the Bannocks used Stein's mountains for a stronghold, and under Chief Ten Days they made a stand against the government. From this point they were ousted by General Howard. Then they fought their way eastward along the Blue mountains, between Grand Ronde and Columbia valley. When driven from this locality, as a last resort they turned eastward into the Salmon mountains, and thence along Powder River mountains, to the crossing of Snake river. Here they killed herders, isolated farmers and small parties without hindrance.

From what can be learned, they are again in their old haunts and plying their old trade. The band probably does not number over 3000. Although the Shoshones, as a tribe, have never made war to any extent on the government, there are a great many young bucks who will undoubtedly join the Bannocks in any movement of consequence. The country is an exceedingly difficult one for military operations. It is heavily timbered and very mountainous.

In fact, a small force, if well-provisioned and with an unlimited supply of ammunition, could hold off the available government troops for six months without much trouble. In past wars, the movement of the hostile Indians has always been toward the Canadian border.

The present uprising will probably form no exception to the rule. Failing to reach the border, the Bannocks will accept defeat, as they have in the past, return to their reservations and be good Indians for another year.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 28. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Our Christian journey—helps and hindrances.—Math. vii, 13, 14; John xiv, 1-6.

This life has often been compared to a pilgrimage or a journey. In answer to Pharaoh's question concerning his age, Jacob said, "The days of the years of my pilgrimage are 130 years." Christ also spoke of the Christian's journey from earth to heaven in the same way where He said, "I am the way." The Christian's life resembles a journey in many particulars, not least of which is the fact that as on an important journey we are likely to meet some difficulties and obstacles, and some things that cheer and encourage us, so also it is in the Christian life. These hindrances and helps are to occupy our attention.

1. The Hindrances (Math. vii, 13, 14). These hindrances are here placed before us in a twofold light. The Christian journey is difficult to begin and to continue in, while, on the other hand, the opposite way is easy to enter and to follow. The first great hindrance to the Christian life is the fact that it is so much easier to travel the other way. "Wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat." It is easier to do wrong than to do right. It is easier to live a sinful life than a sinless one. Our natural desires, the influences of life about us all tend to draw us from God rather than to Him. Broad and wide and easy is the wrong way. The second hindrance lies in the fact that the Christian journey is hard to enter and to continue in. "Strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life." It is not always an easy thing to become a Christian. We must turn our backs upon what has been dear to us. The heart must be changed, the life must be transformed. It is even more difficult still to live the Christian life. The way is narrow. Only a few are traveling it. There are obstacles to be overcome; there are crosses to be borne; there are temptations to be resisted and trials and tribulations to be endured.

2. The Helps (John xiv, 1-6). All is not hindrance. We have help and all helps may be summed up in Christ. He is the way and by Him at last we may enter in. The Lord is our helper, the Lord strong and mighty, who in the darkest hour of affliction, in the moment of greatest difficulty, in the time of strongest temptation is able to sustain us. Lean upon Christ. Trust Him. Enter in by Him and all will be well.

Bible Readings.—Deut. xxxi, 6; Ps. xvi, 8; xxiii, 4; xxxiii, 20; xxxvii, 5; cxix, 5, 105; cxxi, 1; Isa. xxxv, 8; xliii, 2; Jer. l, 4, 5; Hos. xiii, 9; Math. iv, 1-11; xxviii, 19, 20; Mark ix, 24; xiii, 24-27; Luke xiii, 24; John xvi, 33; Acts xvi, 16, 17; Rom. viii, 35-39; I Cor. x, 13; I Thess. ii, 17, 18; Heb. iv, 14-16; I Pet. ii, 21; I John iv, 4; v, 4; Rev. ii, 7-10.

Growth of Endeavor In Ohio.

The Ohio Christian Endeavor union was organized April 15, 1887, in a convention held at Springfield, O. At this convention there were 38 delegates from outside the city. Eight years ago Ohio had about 135 societies, with a membership of perhaps 3,000. Now the state contains no less than 2,500 societies, with probably 100,000 members.—Golden Rule.

The Largest Union.

The Philadelphia union, with its 444 societies, is the largest in the world, says The Golden Rule. It counts on its rolls societies in two blind asylums, in rescue missions, in the almshouse, in the county jail, the Magdalene Home, the House of Refuge, and the Sunday Breakfast association. Surely here is a varied endeavor.

The Greatest of All.

He only is great of heart who floods the world with a great affection. He only is great of mind who stirs the world with great thoughts. He only is great of will who does something to shape the world to a great career, and he is greatest who does the most of all these things and does them best.—R. D. Hitchcock.

The Christian Test.

What does the world count a test of Christian discipleship? The answer is in the words of the Master Himself, "By this shall all men know that ye are My disciples, if ye have love one to another." This is our badge, our royal insignia, placed on our breasts by the King Himself.—William T. Ellis.

Christian Endeavor Gossip.

The Naval society of 27 members aboard the United States steamship Thetis are the only enlisted men who conduct regular Sunday services on a naval vessel. The services always close with the singing of "America" and the "Doxology."

The Cleveland Endeavorers have decided to erect 20 free drinking fountains in that city. A true good citizenship endeavor.

"Every Christian Endeavor society in Utah is a child of home missions," says The Home Mission Monthly.

The colored family servant of one of the members of the Highland Presbyterian Endeavor society of Louisville has been created an honorary member of the society.

A single sailor, converted early this year by the Floating Christian Endeavor work of the San Francisco societies, sailed for Tacoma on the British ship Glencona, and on the way, in spite of bitter opposition, won seven souls for his Master.

"Several of the Methodist societies are reorganizing as Epworth Leagues of Christian Endeavor. Down in these sea provinces (Nova Scotia) we have excellent fraternity, as is becoming, among the denominations. The Methodist pastors, as a rule, have no fear of their flocks losing their individuality." Thus speaks The Endeavor Herald.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

PREFERRED TO TRAMP.

Daniel Goodwin Made Very Poor Use of a Snug Fortune.

Now Compelled to End His Days In an Asylum.

Jails and Almshouses Were Always His Favorite Abiding Places.

SALEM, Mass., July 27.—Daniel Goodwin, a native of Peabody and one of the most noted tramps in this country, and who has probably been confined in more jails and almshouses during the past 10 years than any other living man, was yesterday sent to the Danvers insane asylum, having been adjudged insane.

Goodwin is worth a fortune variously estimated at between $20,000 and $30,000. His father died about 10 years ago and willed him $30,000, and since the day that the property came into his possession he has not worked. He prefers, he states, to tramp instead of enjoying the fortune which has been left him.

"I am going to enjoy life on first principles," he stated, when remonstrated with for his actions. "When the money is all gone I will go to work, and not before then. I like to tramp, and the company I meet on the road and in the jails and almshouses pleases me."

Goodwin has been in every state in the Union several times, and has visited nearly every place, city and town during His Ten Years of Tramp Life.

His statement to this effect is borne out by letters and telegrams to his guardian, Willard Spaulding, asking for remittances from his fortune.

Columns have been written in the newspapers relative to the actions of Goodwin. Shortly after he came into the money left by his father he began to drink, and would carelessly light cigars with bills, go into saloons and smash glassware and mirrors. When remonstrated with, he would ask the damage, and immediately pay for it. At times he carried about him $1000 in money.

Friends and relatives after a time asked that a guardian be appointed, and Levi Spaulding of Peabody was chosen, but at the decease of the latter, Willard Spaulding has been the guardian of Goodwin. Goodwin is now about 50 years of age, and is Completely Broken Down In Health.

For a long time nothing had been heard from him until he made his appearance in Peabody about a month ago, and secured $100, with which he wanted to go to Philadelphia and have an operation performed on his eyes. Whether or not he visited the hospital is not known, but the operation was not performed, and on Thursday he again returned, only to be arrested in Salem and sent to the asylum.

He is known among the tramps from one end of the country to the other as "Good."

Goodwin has relatives in Lynn, who will become possessed of what there is left of his fortune when he ends his existence.

Not a Case of Murder.

BOSTON, July 27.—The body of Alberta Stewart, a 14-year-old schoolgirl, who has been missing from her home since Tuesday night, was found floating in the Charles river yesterday. At first appearance it looked as if the child had been subjected to a criminal assault and afterward thrown into the water, and stories of murder were rife. After a searching investigation, however, the police regard it as a case of suicide, resulting from moroseness at a flogging given the girl by her sister, with whom she lived, for running away from home last Sunday.

To Fight Tuberculosis.

BOSTON, July 27.—The convention of representatives of various state cattle commissioners and boards of health effected a permanent organization yesterday, to be known as the tuberculosis commission of New England. It was resolved that the boards of cattle commissioners of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut agree that no animal shall be allowed entrance into any of the respective states without quarantine restrictions unless a certificate has been furnished by the party desiring to ship such cattle.

Stabbed Himself Fatally.

MERIDEN, Conn., July 27.—Frederick Gauthier, aged 30, quarreled with his wife, and to escape her husband's abuse the woman went to her mother's house. The man followed and made an attempt to stab his wife. Mrs. Gauthier's mother prevented this, and Barnaby Brunnelle and Gustavus Brunnelle came into the affray. Barnaby sustained three cuts, none of which will prove serious. Gustavus was also slightly cut. Gauthier then stabbed himself directly over the heart. Physicians pronounce the wound as fatal.

An Honorable Record.

EXETER, N. H., July 27.—Rev. James Pike, D.D., died at Newfield last night, aged 77 years. He had been prominent in military, civic and religious circles for 40 years. He had filled many pastorates in the Methodist church. He represented New Hampshire in the Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth congresses, and was colonel of the Sixteenth regiment of New Hampshire volunteers in 1862-63. His widow is the daughter of Rev. John Brodhead, one of the founders of New England Methodism.

May Have Another Wife.

NEW HAVEN, July 27.—The Bethany authorities have received from Mary Dupont of Holyoke, Mass., sister of Alice Colombe, who was killed by her husband last week, a statement that Colombe had a wife living when he contracted marriage with her unfortunate sister. She says, also, that Alice had charged her husband with bigamy, and that he had admitted everything. Mary Dupont believes that Colombe's first wife is now living in Fall River, Mass.

Steamer Kept Right On.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., July 27.—Schooner Addie G. Bryant, Captain Clay, from Philadelphia, with coal for Rockland, was sunk in collision with a Reading (Pa.) coal steamer off Pollock Rip. Captain Clay says that the weather was clear at the time, and that after the collision the steamer did not stop to ascertain either the amount of damage or to try to save lives. The captain and crew succeeded in making the lightship.

Citizens Endorse Investigation.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 27. — Excitement runs high here over the proposed investigation into the management of the almshouse, and the step is generally applauded by the citizens. Mayor Jewett and Alderman Allen say that the published stories do not begin to give a correct account of some of the transactions there. Witnesses have come forward and will testify at the investigation to acts of cruelty to inmates, putrid food, the eating of which made numbers of inmates sick, and to instances in which inmates were confined to solitary cells, with bread and water, for trival offenses.

An Old Jailbird.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 27.—Thomas E. Burns, who was arrested for the alleged swindling of firms in Boston and Cambridge, was yesterday held for the grand jury in $1500 bonds, and, not being able to furnish bondsmen, was committed to the house of correction. He has served two years in the South Boston house of correction and two years in the Dedham jail. He also has served two years in the East Cambridge house of correction.

Fraud Alleged.

MILFORD, Mass., July 27.—The case of Field vs. McClellan was tried here yesterday. This is a suit brought against Rev. Mr. McClellan for alleged fraud perpetrated by the Pennock Electric company of which McClellan was the head in selling stock. Field says he paid $5 a share for stock that was quoted at only $1 a share. The defendant was bound over for the grand jury.

A Sea Serpent Story.

SALEM, Mass., July 27. — When the steamer John Endicott arrived at Salem, yesterday, attached to its bow was a monster of ferocious appearance. With "feelers" or legs 13 feet long, it clung to the craft until near the wharf, when it released its hold and sunk in the harbor. The devil fish was struck by the steamer while off Marblehead harbor, and clung to the bow on the trip in.

Munificent Bequests.

BOSTON, July 27.—The will of Thomas O. H. P. Burnham, for many years a bookseller, has been filed and allowed in the Suffolk probate court. Nearly two-thirds of the entire estate of $602,562 will go to numerous charitable, municipal and educational organizations. The Massachusetts general hospital was made the residuary legatee, and has been paid $263,948.

Last of His Tribe.

HARTFORD, July 27. — James Bunn, known as the chief of the Shinnecock tribe of friendly Indians, died at Montauk. He was reputed to be over 90 years of age, and claimed to be the last full-blooded Indian of his tribe. Only about 30 half-breeds, male and female, survive the chief.

Fell From a Third Story Window.

BOSTON, July 27.—Wilfred W. Quince, the 2½-year-old child of Thomas Quince of 52 Border street, fell from a third-story window of the house yesterday afternoon, striking upon the ground. He sustained no serious injury.

Lasters Locked Out.

LYNN, Mass., July 27.—Lasters in the shoe factory of D. J. Richards were asked yesterday to accept a reduction of ½ cent a pair for lasting shoes, which proposition they instantly rejected. They were then discharged.

Colt Kicked Him.

LANCASTER, N. H., July 27.—S. D. Carleton, a farmer, living at Guildhall, Vt., was found dead in his barn. He was kicked by a colt he was harnessing. He was 70 years old.

Lasted Two Rounds.

BOSTON, July 27.—Johnny Butler of Lynn knocked out Jack O'Brien of Lewiston in two rounds last night. O'Brien was outclassed at almost every point.

New England Briefs.

Daniel McNeill was killed by a train at Somerville, Mass.

Presiding Elder C. J. North was found guilty of contempt of court at New Haven.

The Veteran Firemen's association of Concord, N. H., voted to become auxiliary to the active department.

Judge Bossom of Chelsea, Mass., reprimanded a witness who appeared before him in an intoxicated condition.

The Middlesex Mechanics' association of Lowell, Mass., voted to raise $30,000 for improvements, and to increase the annual dues to $20.

Judge Bascom of Leominster, Mass., fined Patrick J. Hennessey $100 for overdriving and otherwise abusing a horse so that it died.

The J. R. Cropley & Co. Shoe company of Reading, Mass., has leased a factory in Somersworth, N. H., for five years, and will move there at once.

A. C. Inman, night watchman for the Central Vermont railroad at White River Junction, Vt., and quartermaster of Lincoln post, Grand Army, is missing.

The remains of the woman drowned near King Philip boathouse, in Fall River, Mass., have been identified as those of Mrs. Mary Wilde, 63 years of age.

Dartmouth college has received $3000 by the death of Mrs. Nellie L. Guy of Franconia, N. H., as provided for in the will of her mother. The bequest is not given for any special end.

The Central Electric company of New Britain, Conn., has decided not to pay the tax of 2 per cent on gross receipts levied by the city, and will contest the constitutionality of the ordinance levying the tax.

Mayor Davenport of Marlboro, Mass., intends to serve out his term in that official capacity, notwithstanding his appointment to the secretaryship of the metropolitan water supply commission. His term as mayor expires early in January, 1896.

ALL ARE BUTCHERED.

Awful Fate of Unfortunate Whites In Jackson's Hole Settlement.

Redskins Not Yet Through With Their Work.

Expected to Carry It on All Down the Teton River Valley.

POCATELLO, Ida., July 27.—A courier who arrived at Market Lake last evening, reported that all the settlers in Jackson's Hole had been murdered by Indians and all the houses burned.

He could give no particulars of the massacre, but said that a companion had attempted to reach the scene of the trouble, and if he escaped the Indians he would undoubtedly reach Market Lake within 24 hours with details of the fight.

A courier just returned got far into Teton basin, which is the present point in danger of massacre, now that the Jackson's Hole citizens are all butchered. He reports that smoke of a large fire can be seen several miles south of Grand Teton in the direction of Jackson's Hole. There is no doubt that the redskins have fired every home and cabin, and by tonight they will be repeating their work this side of the Teton range in Teton basin, and, perhaps, after that, all down the Teton river valley in Idaho.

Two hundred Utes were seen to have gone north to join the Indians in Hoback basin early this week. Small parties of Lemhis have been slipping in daily across the Conant trail, something they have not ventured to do since the Yellowstone National park was enlarged in 1891.

News Believed to Be True.

OMAHA, July 27.—Union Pacific headquarters were notified last night by the company's superintendent at Pocatello, Ida., of the receipt of a telegram from the Union Pacific agent at Market Lake, to the effect that all Jackson's Hole settlers had been murdered by the Indians, their stock killed, and their homes burned. The agent declares that the information is perfectly reliable.

Knows a Secret.

LITTLE ROCK, July 27.—It was discovered at Fort Worth, Tex., a few days ago, that the Arkansas penitentiary holds a former pal of H. H. Holmes, and that he is in possession of valuable information. He is John V. Allen, and is serving a 15-year sentence in the Arkansas penitentiary for horse-stealing. Allen declines to give any information except to say that one of the Williams girls is dead.

Bulgaria to Russia.

BUCHAREST, July 27.—It is positively asserted that the Bulgarian deputation to St. Petersburg were instructed to propose to the Russian foreign minister that in return for the czar's recognition of Prince Ferdinand, Russia should have the full guidance of Bulgaria's foreign policy, and Prince Ferdinand's son Boris should embrace the Orthodox faith.

Will Be Solid For Reed.

NEW YORK, July 27. — Ex-Senator Cheney of New Hampshire is among the guests of the Fifth Avenue hotel. "New England," he said to a reporter, "will probably go into the next Republican convention solid for Reed. That is only my opinion, as there does not seem to have been any regular canvass made, but everything points that way."

Brazilians Getting Angry.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 27.—Protests against the landing of the direct Argentine cable on Trinidad island are already being made. Deputy Pechana's motion was adopted unanimously in the chamber yesterday, urging the government to face the British aggression with more energetic and spirited declarations on Brazil's disputed rights.

A Terrible Crime.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 27.—Nine small traders who were passing the night in the open air at Amorosiffka were murdered and robbed of 48,000 roubles by a man who joined them in the guise of a trader. The murderer was arrested and confessed that he had killed them after drugging them with morphia.

Indians Pacified.

MANAGUA, July 27.—The commission sent by President Zelaya to quiet the Indians of the Matagalpa district, who had become excited owing to the loss of their lands and forced compliance with the labor obligation, has been successful in its mission. The Indians are now at peace, and no further trouble is apprehended.

Four Lives Sacrificed.

OTTAWA, July 27.—A boating accident occurred at Aylmer last evening, resulting in the drowning of G. P. Brophy's three eldest sons and a 13-year-old son of Rev. Mr. Winfield. The fifth occupant of the boat was rescued in an exhausted condition.

Maine Schooner Damaged.

BALTIMORE, July 27.—Schooner Samuel Dilloway of Bath, Me., arrived from Kennebec with bowsprit and all her gear carried away by collision with an unknown steamer at 1 a. m., July 18, off the coast of Massachusetts.

Miss Anthony Fainted.

SANDUSKY, O., July 27.—After delivering an address at the Lakeside assembly, yesterday afternoon, Susan B. Anthony was seized with a fainting fit. She quickly recovered, and is now in good health and spirits.

Rioters Killed by Police.

VIENNA, July 27.—Riots occurred at an election at Magyasso, Hungary. Peasants stormed the town hall, and the gens d'armes fired upon the rioters. Four were killed, 20 wounded and 30 arrested.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Letter carriers Emer Baker and John Williams are enjoying their vacation.

There will be no services in the Universalist church during the month of August.

Officer Nicol goes on his vacation tonight and Officer Newcomb will take his place.

The Columbus band will give concerts at Lovell's grove Sunday afternoon and evening.

Albert Keating, D D G. D. and suite visited Randolph Lodge No. 524, K. of H., on Wednesday evening.

The Blue Hill chapel Sunday School of Readville, took their annual outing at Quincy Point, Thursday.

Miss Sophie Hegan of Superior City, Wis., is visiting her sister Mrs. F. Muer, she is on her way to P. E. Island to visit her parents.

Some means should be taken to put a stop to the young men who go in bathing without even a bathing suit on, in the brook near the bridge on Squantum street.

Chief Engineer Williams and Inspector Adams agree in the belief that the fire which destroyed the stable of John Hayes at Atlantic was due to accidental causes and not to an incendiary as some papers report it.

The Typographical Union of Boston will picnic at Lovell's grove today; Div. 20, A. O. H., of Boston on Sunday; and Mt. Washington lodge, A. O. U. W., on Monday. There are but few open dates for moonlights.

Mrs. Sarah Kincaide of Franklin street has been confined to the bed all the week as the result of an accident Sunday night. While alighting from an electric car the car started and she was thrown, and striking her head was unconscious some minutes. It was a serious fall.

Thomas N. Ferguson whose bicycle was stolen at the Quincy depot last week wishes to correct the report that he was in "too much of a hurry." He arrived at the station five or six minutes before the train, and took his wheel to the door of the baggage room, and the baggage master agreed to take care of it.

Workmen in the employ of the water department on West street had a fortunate escape yesterday from the consequences usually attending an unlooked-for discharge of a cartridge used for blasting purposes. The explosive laid in the trench and was supposed to have been spent, when it exploded.

NO WIND AT HULL.

But a Rooster Can Fly and Went Over the Course.

There was no wind yesterday for the third open race in the Hull carnival. A start was made but the conditions did not improve and the race was declared off.

The Rooster did not learn that the race was declared off and went over the course, and finished just four seconds before the expiration of the time limit, which was four hours.

Company K Home.

The second brigade broke camp at South Framingham this morning. The Fifth regiment took the train to Boston and paraded through South, Summer, High, Federal, Milk, Broad, State, Washington School and Beacon streets to the State House, where the command was dismissed.

In the parade at Framingham yesterday the Fifth had the right of the line. It also had 710 men, more than any of the other regiments.

It is thought that fully 6,000 people were at camp yesterday, a crowd which was kept back with difficulty.

☞ Don't go away for vacation until you have arranged for the DAILY LEDGER to be sent you by mail. It keeps you fully posted on all the news of Quincy and vicinity. Two cents a day, or fifty cents a month, in advance, covers all expense, including postage.

The president and directors of the Hingham waterworks had their annual dinner and outing at Nantasket Friday.

THE SOCIAL REALM.

The Personal Items of Greater Quincy Which Interest Many.

Rev. and Mrs. H. Evan Cotton met many of their old friends while in the city on Wednesday and Thursday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Osborne of Bigelow street. Many called to see them, and they in turn called on the aged and infirm. The private organ recital at Christ's church was to enable them to hear the new organ, and about 150 were present. Mr. and Mrs. Cotton are in good health and were en route to Kennebunkport, Me.

A BIG BLUFF.

Houghs Neck Would Scare Quincy Voters.

Expect to Have Balance of Power at Next Election.

No Real Grievance and No One Much Disturbed.

"Pays taxes to the amount of $8.000 and don't receive $800 a year"—that's what's the claim of Houghs Neck, is it? Have they stopped to compute how many years at these figures it will take to pay the indebtedness incurred in extending the water mains to the beach, and to pay their proportion of the cost of enlarging the water supply? These were the queries of a Quincy taxpayer upon reading the grievance ventilated at the meeting of the Houghs Neck Improvement Association.

It is the old cry of unjust taxation, but the second query of our friends shows that the claim may not be well grounded, even if the figures go undisputed.

What does Houghs Neck expect? Many towns would regard the introduction of water to be sufficient for one year. Few summer resorts isolated as Houghs Neck have public water, which also furnishes excellent fire protection. With the introduction of water a new hose wagon has been purchased and a fire company formed.

But what does the Improvement society want? The LEDGER cannot learn that it has petitioned the City Council for improvements. The city government cannot reduce the street railway fares.

The movement to increase the voting strength may be against the present mayor, or a big bluff, and in either case will not be regarded very seriously, for most of the summer residents have greater interest in their winter home where they have a voice in town meeting than they have in Houghs Neck.

If 50 or 75 voters could be added at Houghs Neck, they would not "cut much ice" in the election of councilmen in Ward One, but if cast solid against Mayor Hodges at the last election would have resulted in his defeat.

If the summer residents desire to become voters there will be no objection. The poll taxes and personal estate will help out and may be spent at the beach. Will John Cavanagh of Braintree be the first?

Summer residents generally go to the beach to rough it. They don't want or expect all modern conveniences. They desire a cheap outing, but this they cannot have with all the improvements, for improvements increase valuation and taxes.

The wants of Houghs Neck will always receive due consideration, but real estate men should not put up a big bluff to obtain them.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

A WIND WANTED.

All That Is Needed to Make Open Race a Success.

The open race of the Quincy Yacht Club this afternoon will without doubt be the largest race ever sailed in the waters of Quincy Bay, and the only thing needed now to make it a howling success is wind.

The indications this morning were that there would not be much wind, but several local yachtsmen seen are not at all discouraged, as they think there will be plenty of wind when the race starts.

Nearly one hundred boats have entered, including all of the crack boats of the harbor, and a larger part of them will probably put in an appearance.

The first, second and third classes will sail over a special course of ten miles and the other classes over the regular course of seven miles.

The first class will start at 2.30 and the other classes at intervals of five minutes each.

Commodore Pettengill has invited the Commodores of the local clubs in Boston harbor to officiate as judges, which together with those of the Quincy club will form a board of fifteen members.

The steam yacht Marie will be used by the judges and members of the press while the steam laucch Get will be used as a tender.

The ammusements of the ladies, who desire to witness the race, has also been looked after, and Peters orchestra will give a concert at the club house during the afternoon.

The afternoon indications are that there will be plenty of wind.

Liquid Poisons

Liquid remedies generally contain alcohol to prevent fermentation and promote false invigoration, and narcotics that deaden pain without removing it. In Kidney trouble, alcohol and opiates are poisons.

Buker's Kidney Pills contain no narcotics, mercury or alcohol; they are prepared from selected vegetable drugs which are known to be efficacious in the treatment of Kidney disorders. They are a specific for Backache and Kidney disease. A book for the asking. Druggists sell the pills for 50 cents.

Furniture, Carpetings.

Most everyone uses Furniture of some sort, the laws of nature demand it. But it isn't everyone that knows just where to buy the kind that's neat, attractive, serviceable, and best of all where prices are low to begin with and economical to end with. Here's a store with a feeling for all mankind, selling everything you need in your house at prices that are lower than the lowest priced Furniture store in the State. Inspection solicited.

SHED AND QUARRY.

Granite Business Has Developed South Quincy Wonderfully.

To one who lived in Quincy years ago, and returns here after an absence of a few years, the change that has taken place at South Quincy must be a surprise. Many will remember when that section of Quincy was but one broad, green field and the only building to be seen south of Water street was Spear's ice house, and here in this field the old active base ball teams were wont to meet on Saturday afternoons and contest with some neighboring nine on the diamond, and every summer some traveling circus would pitch its tents there and and rake in lots of quarters. But now nearly all of the available space is occupied. There are hundreds of pretty little homes of industrial workmen and dozens of stone sheds in which the owners of these homes find employment, and it can truly be said that Quincy does move.

The monumental designers of the city are all busy which means that there is work for some one to do.

Many of the granite firms have a number of monuments under way which will be on exhibition when the western men are here in August.

A few years ago the number of granite firms in Quincy could be counted by the fingers on the hands but now they number over one hundred.

McDonnell & Sons the old reliable firm is fairly busy. Their work can be seen in nearly every cemetery in the country.

A beautiful sarcophagus of Quincy granite has been erected in Forest Hills cemetery, by Mrs. Barber, over the graves of the late James K. Barber and his son, Clifton Nicholas Barber. The memorial is five feet six inches high, has a 4 by 6 base, and coat of arms, appropriate inscriptions and Masonic emblems.

Swithin Bros. say that while there is not a rush of business just at present, that they are busy and are turning out some handsome work.

Swingle & Falconer with their increased facilities are turning out some good work which they are shipping as fast as completed.

Thomas & Miller always have a good show yard and the present time is no exception, for monuments of many different granites are shown there.

The beautiful Hardwick sarcophagus monument at Mt. Wollaston cemetery is all completed and in position now. C. H. Hardwick & Co., from whose quarry the stock came, is one of the well known firms of Quincy who cater to the New England trade and whose stock and workmanship has no superior.

A company is being formed to open and work one of the new quarries just across the line in Milton.

The demand for marble monuments is not as great as it was a few years ago, for granite is being used almost entirely for memorials, yet McGrath Bros. are receiving some orders for marble work as well as granite.

Forty cars of granite was shipped from West Quincy Friday and the daily average thus far this month has been over thirty cars.

Fred Barnicoat has a grist of orders for statuary, and has a large force of men at work, and some very striking figures are being cut.

Craig & Richards have a yard full of finished monuments.

Blue Hill Predictions.

Sa	Su	Mo	Tu	W	Th	Fri	Sa
27	28	29	30	31	1	2	3

The coming week promises to average warm and dry. The coolest days will probably be from the 27th to the 29th, the warmest from the 30 to the 2d, perhaps very warm on the 31st and 1st. If showers occur they are most probable on the afternoon of the 28th, and between the afternoon of the 1st and afternoon of the 2d. Norfolk County Gazette.

TODAY'S COURT.

Earnest Borden, of Braintree, was sent to the House of Correction for thirty days for being a vagrant.

Frank N. Tower, of Weymouth, was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Moses T. Dyer, of Braintree, was fined $20 for cruelty to animals.

—Quite a number of our citizens have visited this week Black America, on Huntington avenue, Boston. This picturesque out-door spectacle of plantation life in the sunny south is very much enjoyed by thousands nightly. The great choral contingent of Black America in a novel and fascinating concert by freedmen is greatly admired. The "Cake walk" is another attractive feature.

—The oath that will grant engineers' licenses under the new law in this state has already decided that intoxication will be considered a sufficient cause for revoking a license. This makes the law a rather practical and effective temperance agency.

—One day recently a man was seen walking with a woman in Canton who was barefooted. The man said they had walked from New Haven and that the woman's shoes had given out so that they had to be thrown away.

If the man who ordered those cobble stones spread on Hancock street rode a bicycle he would have had a coat of fine gravel put on top of the stones. Being left uncovered they have been kicked all over the street and are a source of danger to bicycle riders.

—The tax rate of Weymouth will be $17.50.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Shows Business In General to Be In a Fairly Prosperous State.

NEW YORK, July 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: It is not the season for the tide of business to rise, but there is perceived scarcely any shrinkage, except that which comes naturally with midsummer heat.

The volume of new business is small, compared with recent months, but large enough to encourage more opening of long-closed works and more advances in returns to labor. Important strikes show that the advance is not enough for some, but seem not more threatening than a week ago. The small shipments of gold count for nothing, and money markets are undisturbed.

A graver cause of apprehension, if current reports were reliable, would be the injury to wheat, which has affected the markets more this week than at any other time since early in June, but, with reason or without, the reports are generally believed to be exaggerated, and the dispatches to Dun's reviewer are much more favorable.

Corn advanced about ¼ cent, but has since lost all the gain.

Cotton has remained unchanged at 7 cents.

The textile works have a better outlook, with larger demand, both for cotton and woolen goods, a shade advance in print cloths and in most bleached goods, and a more hopeful market for lightweight woolens, which, if scarcely advanced beyond last year's figures, are on the whole selling better.

Enormous sales of wool — 44,778,864 pounds in four weeks, against 29,220,750 in 1892—far exceed actual consumption, but reflect that prices will not decline, and the few changes this week have been upward. Scarcity of domestic wool in western markets is in part due to heavy speculative withdrawals.

The boot and shoe manufacture has before it orders for some weeks' work in most branches, though the new orders are at present very scanty. Shipments from the east in four weeks of July have been 371,389 cases, against 328,158 for the same weeks in '92.

Failures for the week were 202, against 249 last year, and 27 in Canada, against 39 last year.

Used Bogus Drafts.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Warrants were taken out yesterday for the arrest of Walter T. Swain on the charge of swindling. Swain was a member of the Peary expedition to the North pole. He turned up in Chicago about two week ago and devoted himself to a series of swindles, of which members of the Peary expediti n were the victims. His method was to obtain small sums on bogus drafts.

Murder Practically Endorsed.

LONDON, July 27.—The correspondent of The Standard at Constantinople comments upon the fact that the Bulgarian authorities have done nothing toward the arrest of the suspected instigators or the actual murderers of Stambuloff. "The whole tone of the government press," the correspondent goes on, "indicates satisfaction at the brutal murder."

Tramps Captured a Train.

ERIE, Pa., July 27.—At Ashtabula, O., a gang of 30 tramps boarded a passenger train on the Lake Shore road. As fast as they were ejected from one car they jumped into another. The passengers became intensely excited, and a force of police met the train. Only eight out of the 30 were captured.

On Double Murder Charge.

UNION, Mo., July 27.—Arthur Deustrow, the millionaire, who two years ago murdered in cold blood his wife and child, was brought to trial yesterday on the change of venue from St. Louis. Deustrow's defense will be alcoholic mania. Each side has between 60 and 80 witnesses summoned.

Prison Guard Killed.

FORT SMITH, Ark., July 27.—Cherokee Bill got his hands on another revolver yesterday, and used it in an attempt to liberate prisoners confined in murderers' row of the United States jail. His attempt was a bold one, and resulted in the killing of Larry Keating, the oldest guard of the force.

No Fault to Find.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—General Schofield returned to this city last night from his tour of inspection of army posts in the west and northwest and his trip to Alaska. The general is very much gratified at what he saw, and has nothing but words of commendation and praise for the army.

The Durant Trial.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—On the fourth day of the trial of Theodore Durant, the work of choosing a jury began in earnest. Slow progress was made. The number of women at the trial increases. Continual efforts are made by girls to lionize the defendant.

More Figures.

LONDON, July 27.—Pollings so far as returned show the following state of the parties: Conservatives, 336; Liberal-Unionists, 69. Total, Unionists, 405. Liberals, 165; McCarthyites, 63; Parnellites, 12; Labor, 2. Total opposition, 242.

Seventeen Killed.

HAVANA, July 27.—Lieutenant Colonel Tejada has routed a band of insurgents in the neighborhood of Santa Barbara, the insurgents losing 14 killed and 100 wounded. The Spanish loss is said to be three killed and seven wounded.

Bold Highwaymen.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 27.—Three masked men jumped Electric Motorman Lawrence's car last night, knocked him down, seriously wounding him. It occurred within a block of an electric light, with houses around.

Unruly Egyptians.

CAIRO, July 27.—At a funeral of a British soldier here, a mob of natives hooted and stoned a military detachment for half a mile and mobbed the chaplain. Great Britain will demand satisfaction.

Twelve Pilgrims Killed.

PARIS, July 27.—A train crowded with pilgrims returning from the shrine of St. Dauray was wrecked near St. Brieuc yesterday. Twelve persons were killed and 25 injured.

Near the President.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Assistant Secretary Hamlin left here today for Marion, Mass., his country home, where he will spend his summer vacation.

Cholera Scourge In Russia.

BERLIN, July 27.—Cholera is raging in Volhynia, Russia, especially near the Austrian frontier.

HOUGHS NECK.

An Exciting Contest at the Costello Alleys Last Night.

Taylor's wood butchers and Johnson's lumber handlers contested for supremacy at Costello's alleys at Houghs Neck Friday evening. Although the Johnsons were defeated they do not feel badly, as they claim that their opponents worked in a professional, but they are therefore looking for blood and satisfaction in the near future. Four strings were rolled, the score being as follows:

Taylors,	516	439	543	498	—1996
Johnsons,	499	509	468	496	—1972

Milton's New Superintendent.

The school committee of Milton have unanimously elected as superintendent of schools, in place of Mr. Charles H. Morse, who has accepted a call to Medford, Myron W. Richardson, lately of Brookline, Mass. Mr. Richardson was educated in Boston and Cambridge. He is a graduate of the Emerson Grammar school, of the class of 1877; of the English High school, class of 1880; Boston Latin school, class of 1882, and Harvard University, class of 1886. He took his degree, "summa cum laude," and is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa society. From 1886 to 1892 he was connected with the High school at Omaha, as a teacher of science; and from 1892 to 1894 he was principal of the High school at Lincoln, Neb. For the last year he has been principal of the William H. Lincoln (Grammar) school and Manual Training (High) school of Brookline, Mass., and has also had charge of the chemistry throughout the town. His work in Brookline has been spoken of in the highest terms by members of the school committee, and he brings unusually strong letters of recommendation from the west.—Norfolk County Gazette.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The association will give a reception this evening to the Italian young men of the city.

Mr. E. P. Ruggles of Milton will address the men's meeting Sunday at 3.30. Mr. Ruggles has recently graduated from the Y. M. C. A. training school, and will soon take charge of the gymnasium connected with the Iowa State University Association. He was a member of Stagg's famous foot ball team.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Prof. Prosper De Pietra Santa
Of Paris, Says:

As a large number of patients lack the necessary power to digest solid food, and would through the use of stimulants be merely excited and weakened, therefore, I regard it of immense value to the practitioner to bring to his aid a nutritious tonic and remedy like the Johann Hoff's Malt Extract, which will act not only as a tonic, but as a nutrient as well, and which is less exciting than wine as a stimulant.

Truth.

Strong is that land whose every son is true
To the clear flame of his integrity,
Strong any land, though armed guards be few,
Poor her defenses, weak her armament,
Whose sons no higher good than truth conceive,
But, each in his own sphere, remain unbent,
Unswerved from that which they at heart believe.
Mighty that nation, bless'd among the lands,
Whose sons think first of country, last of self;
Woe were a state where men stretch greedy hands,
Grasping for place, and palms that itch for pelf,
Whose senates have become a market place
Where laws are to the highest bidder sold,
Where only honesty secures disgrace
And honor has no measure save hard gold,
Where parties claim the people's sufferance
Not for their virtue, but for foe's misdeed,
Where public trusts from shame to shame advance
And faction vies with faction in its greed,
Where pledges are like balls which jugglers toss,
Where no abuse of place can pass belief,
Where patriotism means—profit and loss,
And one scarce knows a statesman from a thief.

—Arlo Bates.

A Fair Inference.

"How brilliant you will be when you die!"—Pick Me Up.

Police In Russia.

The Russian godovoy (policeman) is usually a very small policeman indeed. He makes up in deportment and dignity what he lacks in size. His countenance bears evidence of unbending severity; he is never seen to smile; he is minute, but majestic; dirty, but dignified.

His dress is a long kaftan, which the ignorant would unhesitatingly pronounce to be a dressing gown. A sword ornaments the left side, while his legs are incased in huge Wellington boots. On his head he wears a small military cap.

The policeman lives in his own little house, about the size of a moderately large dog kennel, one of which is planted at the corner of each principal thoroughfare. Here the little godovoy sleeps and eats his meals and disposes of the spare time upon his hands.—Buffalo Times.

Loved Her Horse.

Clement Scott, the London dramatic critic, says that he was once threatened with a libel suit for saying that a certain actress who caracoled on the stage on a seedy looking, circus bred quadruped "rode a horse with pink eyes." "Abuse me as much as you like," said the fair litigant, "but don't say that my horse has pink eyes."

Hudson Has a Hugger.

HUDSON, Mass., July 27.—On several nights of late, women and girls have been assaulted by some unknown man here. He is commonly referred to as "Jack, the Hugger," in consequence of the form which the assault commonly takes. All efforts for his capture have so far proven futile. He is lively with his legs, and has outrun some of the best sprinters in town.

Tried to Get Away.

LOWELL, Mass., July 27.—W. C. Lyons, who was indicted in Augusta, Me., for uttering a forged check, and who jumped his bail and came to this city, was arrested by Sheriff Cornish of Augusta yesterday afternoon. Lyons subsequently skipped back out of a rear door. A police officer overhauled him and locked him up.

Trying to Wriggle Out of It.

PROVIDENCE, July 27.—"Spiker" Murphy has confessed to writing the letter formulating the plot for a prison delivery, but tries to lay the blame on Eliot, who disclosed the facts to the authorities. Heintz, with whom it is claimed Murphy hatched the plot, says that he does not know Murphy.

THE CASTLE SECRETS.

Searchers Discover More Evidence of the Villainy of Holmes.

Counsel Shoemaker Makes Another Statement.

Efforts to Disprove Damaging Stories Concerning His Client.

CHICAGO, July 27. — Workmen at Holmes' morgue yesterday dug up a piece of bone, and Dr. Robinson says it is certainly a piece of human bone, but he cannot determine to what part of the anatomy it belongs. An old sponge was also found, and, as it is discolored, the police suspect that possibly it was once saturated with blood. A chemical analysis will be made.

One of the important finds made by the police yesterday in their search of the "Castle" was a bench covered with bloodstains. The bench was found in a deserted storeroom next to the apartment in which Pat Quinlan slept. The police were in doubt as to the nature of the stains and an analysis was made showing them to be blood.

Chief of Police Badenoch put Pat Quinlan and his wife through another severe examination yesterday. It is believed that the pair can give sensational evidence if they can be made to talk, and Quinlan will be kept under police guard.

IN BEHALF OF HOLMES.

Evidence Adduced at Chicago Picked to Pieces by Lawyer Shoemaker.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—Lawyer William A. Shoemaker, who represents H. H. Holmes, was shown the story from Chicago, to the effect that Janitor Quinlan was implicated in the case almost as deeply as the arch-conspirator; that Quinlan had kept a woman, whose first name was Lizzie, in the "Castle," and who had a sister working in the restaurant in the building; that a child was born and mysteriously disappeared, and that Quinlan's wife suddenly appearing on the scene, the girl, Lizzie, was hurried away, and is now thought to be in Omaha.

The story said, besides, that under instructions from Holmes in this city, Quinlan had destroyed all of the latter's papers, clothing and other articles which might aid the authorities in tracing his career, and that a confession was expected from Holmes involving Quinlan.

Shoemaker declared that the story was entirely new to him. So far as sending instructions to Quinlan was concerned, he said, Holmes, while in the city hall here, had been permitted to send and receive mail, but since his confinement in prison he cannot do so without the sanction of the prison officials, who read all letters.

"The public mind had better be disabused of the idea that Holmes will make a confession," continued the attorney. "He has told all he has to tell, and has nothing more to confess. He feels confident that he cannot be convicted of murder, and just as confident that when the time comes it will be proved that the bodies found were used in insurance schemes only. The Chicago people have no case at all, and have merely been cutting a ridiculous figure before the public.

"I know nothing of Holmes being tried here. The first official notice I would get would be an indictment, and, so far as I know, no steps in that direction have been taken."

District Attorney Graham also said that no decision had been reached regarding the place of trial.

"The only diary I know of," Mr. Shoemaker went on, "is in Holmes' possession. It was kept by his wife, Mrs. Howard, in her own handwriting, and she is mistaken when she says he left her for two days during the time the journal was kept in Toronto. He was never away from her a whole day or a single night.

"There is absolutely no truth in the story that Holmes is broken down. He is in very good spirits and is busy at present settling up his business affairs—turning his real estate into cash. Two weeks ago, George B. Chamberlain, a Chicago lawyer, spent several hours here on behalf of parties in that city who desire to purchase.

"These properties consist of farm lands, town lots and other properties in various parts of the country. He controls the 'Castle' block in Chicago, besides the $40,000 property in Fort Worth, Tex. I saw this block last fall when I was down there on this case. Holmes built this block, having obtained the ground by a trade of a Chicago property with Minnie Williams, who had inherited from her father.

"Holmes did know a Miss or Mrs Connor in Chicago—I don't know which, because I never talked with him much about this. Quinlan, I think, was janitor in the 'Castle' pretty much all the time Holmes was there. Quinlan's wife lived there in winter and went to a farm in summer.

"Holmes is anxious that Quinlan, as well as everybody else, should tell the truth in the case and conceal nothing. We expect Mrs. Howard to testify to the truth, regardless of where it lights, and if she does it will be in Holmes' favor.

"We are anxious to have her testify, rather than throw obstacles in the way, as has been said. I want it understood that he desires everybody to tell the truth."

"Is he setting the example?" was asked.

"Well I have never known him to deceive me in anything. He thinks, and so do I, that a true statement of all the facts at the trial will be of great assistance in proving his innocence."

A Story From Denver.

DENVER, July 27. — The unfortunate Minnie Williams and her sister, whom Holmes is accused of having murdered, came to Denver early in 1892 with their brother, who was in poor health. They took rooms at The Devonshire, an apartment house. Minnie, besides being apparently well educated, was an accomplished elocutionist. She appeared for three weeks on the stage of the old Fifteenth Street theater as a member of a stock company.

Those who know her affirm that her feeling for Holmes, whom she knew as Harry Gordon at that time, whatever it was, was no headlong infatuation for a romantic hero. The brother died in the latter part of the winter, and the sisters took the body home to Texas. The impression prevails among those here who knew the girl that she met Holmes in Chicago. He appeared in Denver some time after the World's fair, and told various friends of the girl that she had married, and had gone to India.

DOLAN'S DROP

Jumped on In a Rather Lively Fashion by the League Leaders.

CLEVELAND, July 26.—The local team looked upon Dolan as rather a hard man to defeat. He kept that slow drop over the plate much of the time, but for a wonder the Cleveland batters could meet it safely. The outfielders of the Boston team were leg-weary. They chased hits all over the grounds, and panted with the heat and exertion.

COVERS WIDE RANGE.

Platform Upon Which Populists Will Appeal to the Country.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., July 27.—State Secretary McParlin of the People's party state that the state convention will be held in Syracuse on Aug. 29, and will vote on the proposed platform for a union of the so-called Reform parties in this state, as will be done by the convention of the People's party on the same day in other states. This platform is as follows:

1. Resolved, That we demand direct legislation, the initiative and referendum in national, state and local matters; the imperative mandate and proportional representation.

2. That we demand that when any branch of legitimate business becomes a monopoly in the hands of a few against the interests of the many, that industry should be taken possession of, on just terms, by the municipality, the state or nation and administered by the people.

3. That we demand the election of president and vice president and of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and also of all civil officers as far as practicable.

4. That we demand equal suffrage, without distinction of sex.

5. That as the land is the rightful heritage of the people, we demand no tenure should hold without use and occupancy.

6. That we demand the prohibition of the liquor traffic for beverage purposes, and governmental control of the sale for medicinal, scientific and mechanical purposes.

7. That all money—paper, gold and silver—should be issued by the national government only, and made legal tender for all payments, public or private, on future contracts and in amounts adequate to the demands of business.

8. That we demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1.

Child Killed by Child.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 27.—On the farm of Ernest Lange, near this city, the body of Maggie Cragie, aged 14, was found with the top of her head blown off by a charge from a shotgun. Futile efforts had been made to remove the traces of blood in the upstairs room where she was killed and along the stairs where the body had been dragged down. Mrs. Lange's 8-year-old son Freddie confessed that he killed the girl by accident.

Whitney Will Run.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The Washington News, after investigating the statement that William C. Whitney is a candidate for president, published a column article, beginning: William C. Whitney will be a candidate for president before the next national convention. This is straight from inside sources. This is reliable and can be verified. This is authoritative.

Not Complimentary to Ferdinand.

SOFIA, July 27.—The Svoboda publishes a letter which Stambuloff wrote to Prince Ferdinand on July 6, complaining that former letters had been unanswered, requesting permission to leave the country and begging the prince to order the arrest of Haloss and Tufektchieff, the murderers of Belcheff, who were constantly hanging around his house.

Vaux Left a Will.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—It has been generally supposed that Richard Vaux, who died last March, left no will, but such a document has been found. After making a number of minor bequests, it leaves the residue of the estate, which is valued at about $150,000, to the widow for life, and at her death to be divided among the children.

Frustrated Irish Hopes.

DUBLIN, July 27.—The Irish Catholic, in an article on the political situation, says: The Rosebery fiasco has frustrated the hope of the Irish for the next six years. The decision of the Liberal cabinet to resign office was an unexampled piece of folly, and their electoral program was wholly unacceptable to the English people.

Fund Is Growing.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The General O. O. Howard roll of honor of the Congregational Home Missionary society, which originated June 5 by General Howard's payment of $100 toward the society's debt, and his invitation to 1400 other Congregationalists to give a similar amount, has yielded $13,600.

ON A MURDER THEORY.

Line on Which Police Are Working on the Stewart Case.

A Remarkable Absence of Tangible Clews.

Inspector Surprised at Statements of Dead Girl's Sister.

BOSTON, July 29.—The police continued their search for evidence in the little Alberta Stewart case all day yesterday, but with very little success. In fact, the case is becoming remarkable for its blindness. There have been very few clews worth considering, and the police have had absolutely nothing to work upon.

Nobody seems to have seen the little girl, with the pink and white dress, cone-shaped hat with large brim, and short hair. Although her appearance was so marked as to attract the attention of little Mary Long, nobody else seems to have noticed her after she left the corner of Grove and Revere streets. The police have done everything possible to trace her whereabouts from that time.

The work is still being conducted along the murder theory line, and that none of those who frequent the Charlesbank saw Alberta Tuesday evening. One man was found who says he saw her down there several times before that day, and that she was always alone. She liked to go down there, but had nobody to go with her, and the same is true of her visits to Boston Common.

Miss Maggie Stewart's recent statement occasioned considerable talk. It varied somewhat from that said to have been made by her to the reporters and the police. It is admitted, however, that she has been laboring under great excitement since her little sister's death.

"When I interrogated Miss Stewart Tuesday afternoon," said Inspector Dugan yesterday, "she seemed to be laboring under great excitement, and at times I thought she

Was On the Verge of Collapse.

She said nothing to me about a strap, and I did not ask her about one. When I asked her if she had chastised the child, she said she had at about 8 o'clock Monday morning. She said she had spanked her, and I naturally inferred that she had used her hand.

"She made her statement without hesitation. Mrs. Beattie was also frank in her statements, telling all about the chastisement Bertie said she had received and her attempt at suicide without apparently trying to hold back anything or qualify her statements on account of Miss Stewart being present. Miss Stewart herself did not seem to be surprised at anything Mrs. Beattie said about the treatment the girl received, and when making her own statement would turn to Mrs. Beattie to refresh her memory.

In view of this, it is thought strange that

Miss Stewart Should Deny

that she chastised her sister severely, or that she knew anything of Alberta's attempt at suicide, unless the excitement attending the death of her sister has been too much for her nerves.

The police will continue to make inquiries with the view of finding somebody who saw the girl, but up to a late hour last evening they had nothing definite to work on.

The body will be taken to Westchester, N. S. The funeral took place this morning. Robert Stewart, the youngest brother, has the old homstead there, and since the death of his father has worked the farm with considerable success. He is the only one of the family now at home.

A Whack at Hoar.

BOSTON, July 29.—In a prelude to his sermon last evening, Rev. James B. Brady, D.D., pastor of People's Temple, paid his respects to Senator Hoar for the latter's alleged attacks on the A. P. A. Among other things, Dr. Brady said: "Senator Hoar said that this movement is not to be taken seriously, but he doesn't know anything about it. Senator Hoar has a presidential bee buzzing in his bonnet. Benjamin Harrison is in favor of patriotic societies, and William McKinley is also in favor of patriotic societies, so Senator Hoar thinks that it will not do for three of them to be in favor of patriotic societies, and he throws out a bait for the Catholic vote. Senator Hoar has owed the A. P. A. a 'whipping' ever since last year for sending an A. P. A. to the state convention instead of sending him."

Death of a Connecticut Legislator.

WILTON, Conn., July 29.—Nathan M. Belden was found dead yesterday from apoplexy. Mr. Belden had represented Wilton in the state legislature for many years, had served as railroad commissioner and held several important offices in his town. His opinions in land values were particularly noted. In politics he had always been a stanch Republican.

Stabbed In the Neck.

TURNER'S FALLS, Mass., July 29.—Early yesterday morning an altercation took place between David Barry and John Sullivan, each about 30 years of age, in which the former received a perhaps fatal stab wound in the neck, alleged to have been inflicted with a pocketknife in the hands of the latter. Both men are said to have been drinking.

Investigating Grade Crossing Accident.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 29.—The preliminary investigation of the Dugaway grade crossing accident of July 21, in which four men were killed, opened Saturday before the Vermont railroad commissioners. The evidence appeared to show that the victims were careless.

Six Knife Wounds.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 29.—John Rice was stabbed by Jesse Pitman six times with a knife during a quarrel on the Old Colony steamer Pilgrim yesterday, inflicting serious but not necessarily fatal wounds. Both men are colored saloon attaches on the steamer.

Wages Voluntarily Increased.

PROVIDENCE, July 29.—A notice of 12½ per cent increase in wages, to take effect Aug. 1, has been posted at the Brayton foundry at River Point. The increase will be a restorative of a cutdown a year ago, and is voluntary on the part of the management.

Knights May Withdraw.

BOSTON, July 29.—The members of district assembly 30, Knights of Labor, the once famous banner district of the order, are in open revolt against the general executive board. The recent suspension of the district by the general executive for reinstating Martin J. Padden, who, it is claimed by district assembly 30, was suspended by the latter body on account of preferring charges against M. J. Bishop, was referred to the local assemblies for action in the matter. At a meeting held yesterday, 29 out of 21 locals attached to the district endorsed the action of district assembly 30 in reinstating Padden and voted to stand by the reinstatement. The action and tone of the meeting are taken as evidence that the locals in this state will no longer recognize the general executive board.

Sunday Drowning Accidents.

PROVIDENCE, July 29.—Alexander J. Chisholm, while bathing at Crescent Park yesterday, was seized with cramps and was drowned. George Thompson went to his rescue, when the drowning man clutched hold of him and pulled him under. Thompson was rescued unconscious, and it was only after considerable working over his life was saved.

BOSTON, July 29.—Jeremiah Sheehan, aged 27 years, living at 328 Federal street, this city, was seized with cramps while bathing yesterday, and was drowned, at the Mt. Washington avenue bridge.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 29.—Manuel Matthew Deoliveiva, a 16-year-old Portuguese, was drowned in Taunton river yesterday while bathing.

Conducted In Secret.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 29.—Contrary to expectation, the investigation into the management of the city almshouse is being held in secret session. Eight witnesses were before the committee on Saturday, but what testimony was given cannot be learned.

Collision Case Settled.

PORTLAND, Me., July 29.—The collision case of schooner Valorous against the steamer Louisburg is finished. Judge Webb found that both the schooner and the steamer were at fault and were both liable for damages to the owners of the cargo.

No More Cutting In Prices of Fish.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 29.—The dealers in cut fish have informally agreed to establish prices each week. For five years dealers have cut prices on fish, so that, while having a monoply of trade, Gloucester dealers have not made money.

Ground to Pieces.

BOSTON, July 29.—Freight handlers at the Boston and Albany freight sheds discovered the terribly mangled body of an unknown man in the rear of the train shed. No height or weight could be given, owing to his mangled condition.

Both Badly Bruised.

LYNN, Mass., July 29.—Patrick Clark and A. M. Thompson, while spurting on Glenmere track, came into collision. Clark received severe cuts on the head, requiring a number of stitches, and Thompson had his collar bone broken.

Injuries Resulted Fatally.

PORTLAND, Me., July 29.—Porter Heap died from blood poisoning after a sickness of a few days. In taking a flash-light photograph of a fancy dress ball at the Ottawa he burned his hand and blood poisoning ensued.

All Right, Elder!

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 29.—Elder Hiram Munger, one of the leading Second Adventists, in a sermon at the camp grounds yesterday, prophesied the end of the world will come in 1897, according to Scripture.

Apprentices Wanted.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 29.—The training ship Essex arrived here from New York yesterday. She will receive 60 apprentices here.

More Cheerful Report From Disturbed District.

Report of Massacre at Jackson's Hole Was Probably Unfounded.

KANSAS CITY, July 29.—L. A. Southern of Wardneck, Ida., is in the city. Speaking of the reports from Jackson's Hole, he pronounced them false, and charges that unreliable correspondents are responsible for them.

"The truth of the matter is, he said, "that cattle barons, with ranges in Wyoming and Idaho, are determined to secure the Bannock reservation for pasturage for their cattle. With this object in view, they have systematically and deliberately provoked the Indians for the past three years.

"If they can cause an uprising, they will strive to secure the Indians' removal to another district. Perhaps some settlers have been killed, but you will eventually learn that not one murder was done by the Lemhi or Bannock Indians. It is notorious among the people of Idaho and Wyoming that cattle barons in the Teton valley country have caused all the trouble in that section.

"These robberies are not entirely confined to stealing land and cattle from Indians. It is invariably the case that when a white man settles in that country under the homestead law, that in a few months the news will be sent around that he is a 'rustler' or cattle thief. The final outcome will be that his neighbors, all in the employ of the big cattle owners, will ride up and fill him full of lead. His claim is again opened for settlement and his small herd of cattle are lost in the countless herds of the cattle of the barons.

"You may think this is a wild story, but it is the story of hundreds of murdered settlers. My brother, Clarence L. Southern, was one of the recent victims. He was killed six weeks ago near Smith's Fork, about 25 miles from Fort Bridges. I am now on my was to Crary's Mills, N. Y., to break the news to his mother."

MORE PEACEFUL.

Reports From Disturbed District Are of Less Warlike Nature.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Dispatches received at army headquarters here yesterday from General Coppinger show that the force of cavalry ordered to Jackson's Hole, the scene of the Indian troubles, in Wyoming, is making its way there, and will probably reach the place by tomorrow night. In addition, other troops have been ordered to Market Lake from Fort Russell, so as to be in readiness for active work should their services be required. No mention is made of further trouble, and, with the known peaceable attitude of the Indians of Washakie and Duschesne reservations, the situation is regarded as very much simplified. General Coppinger's latest dispatch reads substantially as follows:

Major Chaffee's squadron of cavalry left Market Lake at 5 p. m., Saturday, and will probably reach Marysvale (near Jackson's Hole) on Little Grove Tree creek on Tuesday night. Constant communication between the two points (Marysvale and Market Lake) will be kept up by courier lines. Two Indians and the chiefs of the Shoshones and Bannocks from the Fort Hall reservation left Market Lake this (Saturday) morning to join Major Chaffee.

Another dispatch from General Coppinger states that the road to Marysvale, except 10 miles through Teton Pass, is reported as good. Five companies of the Eighth Infantry left Fort Russell Saturday afternoon, to be held at Market Lake as a reserve force.

The commanding officers of Fort Washakie, Wy., and Fort Duschesne, U. T., report that the Indians, on their respective reservations, are not involved in the hostile movement.

Agent Teter of the Fort Hall reservation is en route, with the department commander, to Marysvale. The companies of the Eighth Infantry will reach Market Lake today.

The statement that the Indians of the Washakie and Fort Duschesne reservations are not involved in the present movement is regarded by the officers of the army as very important. The Shoshones are under the direction of the agent of the former reservation, and the Utes under the latter, so that it is felt here that there will be no trouble experienced from them.

This condition of affairs, it is believed here, makes the situation much easier to handle, for with but one tribe of Indians to deal with, the uprising can be much more easily suppressed. There are now four troops of cavalry on their way to Marysvale, and five more will be at Market Lake today, which makes the available force all that it is hoped will be necessary to quell the disturbance.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

Many Entries in The Open Race.

A Squall Makes It More Exciting.

The Old Wildfire Surprises Them All in the Sixth.

The year 1895 will go down as one of the most successful in the history of the Quincy yacht club. Their races thus far have all been crowned with success, their ladies' day was all that could be asked and their open race Saturday could not have been more successful than it was.

There were a large number of entries and by far the larger part of those that had entered were present to compete for the prizes.

Besides those who participated in the race hundreds of people gathered on the piazzas of the club house and on the shore, who watched the race with interest. Many of these spectators were ladies and those at the club house were entertained with a promenade concert during the entire afternoon.

Riding at anchor a little way from the float was the steam yacht Marie, upon which were Commodore Pettengill, a number of the judges, friends and members of the press.

For half an hour previous to the race the trim yachts that were to participate in the race were knocking about in front of the club house and a very pretty sight they made.

Promptly at 2.15 the boom of the preparatory gun was heard and then there was hustling among the first-class boats for the best positions, each striving to cross the line first. The fifteen minutes had soon elapsed and all eyes were centered on the eight boats to start. The wind was from the southwest and seemed to be freshening rapidly, and it was evident that there would be no lack of wind.

Boom went the gun and away went the first class, the Beatrice crossing first, with the Emma C., Ida J., Harbinger, White Fawn, Whisper, Mudjekeewis, and Heroine close at her heels. The Beatrice held the lead to the Weymouth shore but before rounding Channel Rock bouy had given way to the Harbinger, Emma C., and Ida J. The Harbinger continued to retain her lead, and on the run to Downer Landing the Beatrice overhauled the two latter boats and finished second.

The second class boats to start were the Moondyne, Swirl, Savitar, Rex, Adolph and Posy, and they crossed the line in the above order. It was during the first mile that the Swirl carried away her runners and rather than lose her stick, skipper Faxon withdrew The race really was then between the Rex and Savitor. The latter boat finished first but lost to the Rex on time allowance. The Adolph protested the Moondyne for not rounding the bouy off Sheep Island.

There were but three boats in the third class, the Eleanor, Satanic and Romance, and in the above order they crossed the line. It was a close race between these boats and they held their same relative positions throughout the race although the Romance lost two men overboard while shaking out a reef and stopped to pick them up.

These three classes sailed over a special course of ten miles and the remaining classes over the regular No. 1 course.

The next class to get away was the fourth which comprised the Kayoshk, Opechee, Rooster, Arab and Joker, and in that order they crossed the line. The wind had now freshened considerable and they went away double reefed. The Kayoshk held the lead the first time round and crossed the line for the second leg first, with the Arab second and Rooster third. During the second leg the Rooster got in some good work and crossed the line first at the finish and received a salute from the ladies at the club house, but when the corrected time was figured out she had to give way to the Arab which was one second behind the Kayoshk in crossing. The Opechee did some good work but made a mistake at the start by crossing the line wrong which obliged her to come about and start over again.

The fifth class was made up of the Evadne, Alpine, Fantasy, Nachita and Vision, and they crossed in that order. In crossing the line the first time round the Alpine was first with the Fantasy second, Nachita third and Vision fourth. During the second time around the Evadne and Nachita withdrew, leaving the Alpine, Fantasy and Vision to complete the race.

The race in the sixth class was an interesting one for City Clerk Keith had the Wildfire out to celebrate her 21st birthday. Kit Cleverly handled the stick and the only Jim was at the sheet. Pitted against her was the Sunbeam, Imp and Sphinx, Arthur Keith's new boat, and it was in the above order that they crossed the line at the sound of the gun. The first time round the Wildfire still had the lead and the Sphinx had overhauled the Imp and Sunbeam, and in that position they finished, although the Sunbeam gets third place on time allowance.

The seventh class was for knockabouts, and Nike, La Chica, Nabob, Bessie Lee and Spinster were the starters. Upon crossing the line for the second leg, the Nabob had pulled up into first place with the La Chica second, while the Nike had dropped into third place and the Bessie Lee and Spinster had changed positions, and in these same positions they finished.

The squall was at its height and the water was covered with white caps when the gun for the eighth and last class was sounded, and the three little ones, Princess, Cutty Sark and Tantrum, had a hard time of it and it looked at one time as though one or more of them must be capsized. The Princess finally got away and was soon followed by the Cutty Sark but the Tantrum was delayed some minutes. At the crossing of the line the first time around the Tantrum had made up her loss and had a lead of nearly two and one-half minutes over the Princess and over six minutes lead of the Cutty Sark.

The prizes were $15, $10 and $5 in the first class; $15, $10 and $5 in the second; $15 and $10 in the third; $12, $8 and $5 in the fourth; $10 and $5 in the fifth; $10, $8 and $5 in the sixth; $10 and $5 in the seventh; and $7 and $5 in the eighth. THE THIRD TIME.

The Trask House on West Street Now Badly Gutted.

The alarm from Box 49 at 11.25 Sunday night called the department for the third time this year to a fire in the old house situated on West street owned by E. V. Trask.

This fire like the two previous fires was of incendiary origin and the party or parties were successful in practically destroying the building.

The first attempt was made last spring when a fire was started by the free use of kerosene oil in the centre of one of the rooms in the unoccupied part. It was however discovered and extinguished before much damage had been done.

The second attempt was made on the night of July 18, by saturating a lot of old rags with oil and throwing them under a sink in the unoccupied part, and setting fire to them.

This fire was discovered by special officer George McKay, who was on his way home. He gave the alarm and the department succeeded in extinguishing the fire with a loss of not over $5.

Up to this time part of the house was occupied by Phillip Leahy, who however moved out last week.

Sunday night the fire was started in the centre of the building from the outside.

When the department arrived the fire had made good headway and the nearest hydrant was at Larry place over 1500 feet away and water had to be forced up hill, which presented in a measure the department doing its usual good work. By the time the fire was extinguished the building was badly gutted but as the building was an old one the loss will not be over $500, which is fully covered by insurance.

Deputy Fire Inspector Adams, to whom the matter has been reported will make an investigation.

TAKEN TO COURT.

The Sea Shore Home Have Difficulty With Tenants.

An action of ejectment was heard before Judge Humphrey this morning, the parties in the case being the Sea Shore Home and Tomas F., and Mary F. Meany.

The defendants occupy the premises of the Sea Shore Home at Quincy Neck, and according to the testimony owed something like $380 for rent. On March 23, 1895, the parties entered into an agreement of purchase the terms being that $200 should be paid by May 15, 1895. At that time but $100 was paid on the note. The balance not being paid a notice of ejectment was issued.

The defence answer was that the plaintiff had no legal right to hold property, and that no notice to quit had been received, and that the agreement was still in force and that by the payment of the balance of the note the defendants could demand a deed, which they proposed to do.

Dr. Francis H. Brown, treasurer of the Sea Shore Home, testified as to the above transaction.

Case continued until Tuesday for judgment.

Company K's Regiment.

In its comments on the 2d brigade at camp last week the Herald says: The 5th regiment held the right of the brigade line, and set a pace that showed for itself before the command had been in camp over night. Particular attention was paid to the policing of the ground, and the orders to keep baggage down to the lowest point added greatly to the appearance of quarters. In its work, the command was conscientious, and the results were marked. The compliments which the regiment received for its superb appearance on the streets of Boston on Saturday from citizens generally, coupled with added compliments for its work on the field, should make officers and men feel that they labored to good purpose.

—The Institutes of Weymouth defeated the Warrens of Dorchester on Saturday 8 to 4.

STUART NOT WORRIED

Over Governor's Proclamation Forbidding Fighting In Texas.

AUSTIN, July 29.—Governor Culberson has issued a proclamation prohibitory of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight. He asserts that it is a flagrant defiance of law, and will bring disrepute upon, and foster a spirit of disobedience of, all law.

DAN A. STUART.
[President and treasurer of the Florida Athletic club.]

DALLAS, July 29.—A copy of the governor's proclamation was shown Dan A. Stuart of the Florida Athletic club. He smiled and said: "It is no more than I expected, and I do not care to discuss its 'whereases.' The glove contest will take place on Oct. 31, as originally announced and according to agreement. The attorney for the Florida Athletic club holds that after September, 1895, there will be no law on the statute books of Texas prohibiting glove contests."

HEBREWS' SUNDAY OFF.

Big Strike Inaugurated Because of a Disagreement with Contractors.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Hebrew clothing makers of this city yesterday, for the first time, observed the Christian Sunday. They were on strike. Trouble has been brewing between the tailors and the contractors for some time, and yesterday morning it culminated in a general strike of the workers.

It is claimed by the strikers that 13,000 workers have responded to the call of the United Brotherhood of Tailors, and that not only this city, but Brooklyn, Newark and Brownsville are affected. The number out in this city is set down at 9000.

The United Brotherhood of Tailors had hoped that a strike might be averted until September, when the agreement for the year between the workers and the contractors would expire and when work would naturally cease until a new agreement had been arrived at. The workers claim, however, that the contractors were not willing to wait, and that now when there is plenty of business they wished to force a strike. They say that the contractors broke through the agreement by refusing to pay their hands on the day specified, and that they—the better to ensure the success of their scheme to force a strike—locked out some hundreds of their employes.

The minimum wages demanded are: For operators, $15; basters, $13; pressers, $10; bushelers, $10; trimmers, $10; twisters, $9. They also insist that all members of the brotherhood out be reinstated and that representatives of the brotherhood have access to the shops to investigate grievances.

To Aid Insurgents.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—The Press says: By Tuesday or Wednesday of this week there will be in Cuban waters the largest expedition from this country that has yet left. It will be under the command of Colonel Enrique Collazo. Cuban sympathizers in this city play an important part in the expedition, as it was here that all the men enlisted for it, and all arms and ammunition were shipped. The ship is fitted out as a war vessel and able to cope or run away from any Spanish war vessel now cruising in Cuban waters. There is said to have been loaded from this city 3000 remington rifles and 50,000 pounds of ammunition. Everything was completed for sailing on Saturday night and the vessel is now believed to be on its way to Cuba.

A Great Deal.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The Carnegie wire nail mills at Beaver Falls, Pa., have been purchased by the Consolidated Steel and Wire company of this city. The purchase price is said to be in the neighborhood of $725,000. The present is said to be the first instance of the Carnegie company having sold a plant which bore its name.

Prompted by Jealousy.

CLEVELAND, July 29.—Emma Mitchell, a pretty mulatto girl, aged 16, was shot and fatally injured yesterday by James Lock, who at once turned the revolver upon himself and sent a bullet through his brain. Lock had been paying attention to the girl for some time. Jealousy prompted the crime.

Gallant Soldier Gone.

JAMAICA, L. I., July 29.—Colonel Alfred M. Wood, at one time mayor of Brooklyn and commander of the Fourteenth regiment when that regiment went to the front before the battle of Bull Run, died yesterday at his home in the village of Queens. He was born in Hempstead in 1826.

Long Overdue.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—The British bark Sokota left Liverpool for this port 170 days ago, and nothing has been heard of her for weeks. She was last spoken off the Horn by the Drumchiff vessel, which arrived in London several weeks ago. Much anxiety is felt for her safety.

The Macedonian War.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29.—The Macedonian insurgents, after a smart conflict with the Turkish troops, have captured the town of Menlik. The victors burned the telegraph station and the Turkish quarter.

Swift Vengeance.

MADERA, Cal., July 29.—Victor Adams, who shot and killed Justice Boker at O'Neil's last Thursday, was lynched by a mob of 60 men near the scene of the murder.

Insurgents Were Whipped.

HAVANA, July 29.—A force of Spaniards defeated insurgents at Mueve Villas. The insurgents' loss was 30 killed and wounded. The Spanish loss was one wounded.

The Quincy Churches.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Point church are contemplating a lawn social in the near future. The Junior society is flourishing, and increasing in numbers.

Rev. Preston Gurney of the Wollaston Baptist church preached from Math. 25:37, at the Baptist church Sunday morning. Mr. Gurney commences his vacation this week, and during his absence, the pulpit will be filled by ministers from Quincy and Boston.

Many compliments were heard at the Washington Street Congregational church, Sunday morning, on the tastily arranged flowers which adorned the altar and pulpit. The efficient flower committee is composed of Misses Thomas, Sampson and Newcomb. Mrs. Youtz presided at the organ in the absence of the organist, Mrs. Hood, who is taking her vacation.

At the Calvary Baptist church Rev. C. A. Parker preached from I Chronicles 29: 5. "And who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord." This text was in two parts. 1. Willing service. 2. The gracious reward. Our hearts belongs to Him who redeemed us on Calvary's cross. Our service then must be voluntary. God can only value our service by the love or motive that prompts it. And what a difference it makes to us if we are doing His will from a sense of duty or a spring of personal love. In the kingdoms of this world, subjects are forced into service, but in the service of God it must be free will offering. In material things it must be the same. "The poor widow gave her mite, all her living, and God knowing the heart blessed her far more than they who gave of their abundance for to be seen of men. Let us thank God for all the hard places in life so long as it strengthens our faith in Him who has said "So I am with you always even to the end."

INFORMATION WANTED.

A Veteran Who Is Anxious to Enter Public Service.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Will the LEDGER kindly oblige a veteran soldier of the late war, by giving information how to profit by an act of the Legislature which became a law of the State June 4, 1895, in regard to giving veteran soldiers employment in the public service. I am an honorably discharged soldier, having served six years in the United States Army, enlisting the first of March, 1862, and have shed blood in defence of this republic, this glorious republic.

I have made more than one application to the powers that be for work, but apparently to no avail. I believe I can prove beyond any and every doubt, that I am competent and capable to fill the position for which I ask, both physically, mentally and morally. I never have been convicted of any crime against the law, in this or any other State, in all my life. I am not an A. P. A., nor yet do I bow at any papal shrine. I am simply an American from away back, believe in American institutions, and am ready to defend the flag against all mob violence, or against the invasion of any foreign foe. I am not biased by any political party or religious creed, and am ready to take every man by the hand as brother should brother, providing, he is a law abiding citizen.

Will some kind reader of the LEDGER please to inform me how to approach those in authority that have the dealing out of the public patronage, so that I may procure employment and pay my just dues, and provide the necessities of life for my family, without going to the extreme of testing the new law.

Breitenstein has worked in more games than any pitcher.

Yerrick has not done the work in Portland that was expected.

The Bostons do not begin to be the rungetters they were last season.

High salary and bad arm are given as the causes of Slattery's release.

Terre Haute has two pitchers who rejoice in the names of Goar and Nops.

Collins accepted 127 chances out of 137 at third base in 26 games for the Louisvilles.

The Cincinnati Post calls Carey, Baltimore's new first baseman, a mittened marvel.

Last Tuesday Childs and McKean accepted 26 chances between them in a nine-inning game.

Indianapolis recently made nine home runs in a game with Minneapolis, and then could not win.

Hoy batted safely in 12 consecutive games prior to his lay-off, his percentage being .313 in those games.

The week day attendance at Louisville outside of Saturday, rarely reaches 1000, and is generally half that number or less.

Defeat For "Pacificator."

LONDON, July 29.—The Times has a dispatch from Havana which says: Accounts of the fight on the road between Manzanillo and Bayamo (in which General Santocildes was killed) which have been published hitherto were under censorship and are largely imaginary. The government admits that three officers and 70 men were killed. The general impression here is that De Campos met with a distinct reverse. All the mules and horses were killed by his order, so that he lost his baggage train. De Campos himself arrived at Bayamo on foot. The dead and wounded were left on the field. It is stated that De Campos went to Bayamo against the advice of the general commanding at Manzanillo.

A Japanese Horror.

KOBE, July 29.—An accident, in which over 100 soldiers perished, occurred on the railroad running from this place to Osaka. A train of 23 cars was conveying to this city 400 Japanese soldiers who were returning from China. As the train was running along the sea wall an immense sea leaped ouer the wall, separating the train and derailing the engine and 11 cars, which plunged off the wall into the bay. Most of the men in the derailed cars were drowned like rats in a trap.

Elder Himes Dead.

ELK POINT, S. D., July 29.—Elder Joshua V. Himes, the famous co-worker of William Miller, the founder of Adventism, is dead, at the age of 91. Mr. Himes was born in Rhode Island. The family were Episcopalians, but the boy became a member of the New England sect commonly called Christian Baptists, and for a number of years served as agent missionary. In 1879, however, Himes returned to the church of his youth, and has since remained with it.

About the Valkyrie.

LONDON, July 29.—Valkyrie III will be navigated by Captain Harrison of the Allan liner Corean, who was granted special leave for the purpose. Captain Cranfield and Captain Sycamore are both on board. Valkyrie III is provided with enough boats to accommodate 60 men. With the crew and 10 tons of stores on board, she did not show too much free board, but laid a very even keel, and looked every way seaworthy. It is expected that the voyage will occupy 20 days.

Three Lads Killed.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—John Gardner made a horrible find yesterday while walking on the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad near Riverdale Park. Lying in the ditch in one heap were the mangled bodies of three boys, ranging in age from 10 to 15. They had evidently been run down by a train. The bodies were identified as those of J. W. Brunson, Guy Brown and Charles Lynch. The bodies were mangled almost beyond recognition.

A Babe's Perilous Ride.

WATERVILLE, Me., July 29.—An engine on an express train struck Joseph Cary, aged 3 years, on the Front-street crossing, and the pilot carried him quite a distance. The child was uninjured.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Sunday Crowd Not as Large as a Week Ago.

There was another large crowd at Houghs Neck, Sunday, although not large as the previous Sunday. There were several large parties at Pierce's, and at Peck island there was a party of Boston liquor dealers and bar tenders, but everything was very quiet and orderly.

The weather and tide were just right for bathing and scores of men, women and children enjoyed a dip in the briny ocean, and their capers were watched with interest by those on shore, many of whom would doubtless have liked to change places with the bathers had they been given the opportunity.

Nearly every cottager kept open house and entertained relatives and friends, and everybody was happy and making the most of the beach weather which at best can last but a few weeks more, as the last week in August will see many of the cottagers, especially those who have children of school age, wending their way home.

CAPT. KENDALL'S SPREAD.

He Entertained His Bicycle Friends Royally on Saturday.

Of the many spreads which Dr. W. G. Kendall has tendered to his friends, that of Saturday last surpasses all. About 100 responded to his unique invitation and repaired to the beach for the dip and "clam picking." There was a clam chowder and all the fixings and an enjoyable afternoon was passed. In the evening an adjournment was made to the residence of Capt. Kendall on Atlantic street, and the festivities were continued with music, speaking and a general good time.

Dr. Kendall is captain of the Boston bicycle club and is one of the oldest bicycle riders in this country, with a record of over 100,000 miles on the wheel. It is his custom annually to entertain the boys, and they look forward with considerable pleasure to these outings, in which our friend Reod so ably assists.

PRETTY

AND ATTRACTIVE WOMEN.

Their Good Looks Not a Secret.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

No matter to what country she belongs, or whether she be black or white, as a woman she desires to look well.

Women know the influence of beauty on men; men rarely admire a beautiful invalid, but they do admire a woman in whom is blended good features and perfect health.

There is no secret about a woman's beauty; it all lies in the care she devotes to herself, to removing from her system all poisonous impurities, and keeping at bay those fearful female diseases.

The flashing eye, elastic step, and brilliant complexion are never companions of a womb trouble; only the distressed expression and aches, pains, blues, faintness, dizziness, bearing-down feeling, etc., keep it company.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removes female troubles promptly, and cleanses, invigorates, and consequently beautifies, the form of woman. Women, the world over, pay homage to it, and praise its discoverer. Your druggist sells more of it than all other female medicines.

Man and His Shoes.

How much a man is like his shoes!
For instance, both a sole may lose;
Both have been tanned; both are made tight
By cobblers; both get left and right;
Both need a mate to be complete,
And both are made to go on feet.
They both need heeling, oft are sold,
And both in time will turn to mold.
With shoes the last is first; with men
The first shall be the last. When
The shoes wear out, they're mended new;
When men wear out, they're men dead too.
They both are trod upon, and both
Will tread on others, nothing loath.
Both have their ties, and both incline,
When polished, in the world to shine,
And both peg out. Now, would you choose
To be a man or be his shoes?

Do not look for wrong and evil.
You will find them if you do.
As you measure for your neighbor,
He will measure back to you.
—Alice Cary.

SCARING A DOG.

An Experiment That Can Hardly Be Called a Howling Success.

Bill Jones of Happy Valley came into the office the other day and said he had found out a good way to scare a dog. He said he didn't see any sense in wanting to shoot a dog or be cruel to dumb brutes by poisoning 'em when there were ways enough to just scare 'em and in that keep 'em from biting you. He said, just to show his good faith before we printed the recipe in The News, we might go down street past Oldfeller's place and try his dog once. So we started out with him.

Jones took his umbrella, and as we walked along he showed us how the old thing worked. He asked us to walk just ahead, and he played we were in the position of the dog and wanted us to growl. When we made a noise, he rushed at us with the umbrella, opening and shutting it in rather a startling manner.

By and by we reached Oldfeller's place, but didn't see the dog. Then Jones growled like and shouted, "Sic 'em, Towser!" In about a second and a half Towser came flying around the fence corner, and Jones just had time to lower his umbrella when the charge was made. Towser made a rush like a trolley car half a block ahead of you. Jones parried and worked the slide on the umbrella handle. The next instant the dog had a mouthful of a $4 umbrella cover and two ribs out of the same. Jones expectorated a mouthful of tobacco juice in Towser's eye and then told him he could have the remainder of the water cover, his remarks all prefaced with adjectives never used in prayers.

We didn't return to the office together, and Jones said if we ever printed the recipe or made any mention of the experiment the A. O. U. W.'s would lose a couple of thousand on us and have a day off for a funeral.—Fairhaven News.

Caught In a Smashup.

LEWISTON, Me., July 29.—Miss Clara Michaud had her left shoulder badly injured and John Beals suffered from concussion of the brain as the result of a runaway and smashup here yesterday afternoon.

Dangerous Playground.

BOSTON, July 29.—Louis Goldman, 12 years old, of 26 Salem street, while flying a kite from the roof of his home, slipped and fell 40 feet, sustaining a fractured skull, from which he died soon afterward.

Speedy Tyler.

LYNN, Mass., July 29.—Tyler lowered the five-mile bicycle record on Glenmere grounds, in 11m. 29 4-5s., breaking the best previous record, made by Harry Wheeler of Brooklyn. of 12m. 13s.

DRAWING IN THE NET.

Pitzel Himself Is Also Thought to Have Been a Murderer.

Was Probably Implicated In Holmes' First Case.

Further Interesting Nubs of News From the Chicago End.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Inspector Fitzpatrick was yesterday put into possession of facts which weave closer the web of proof around H. H. Holmes, and adds another victim to the already long list. This information was furnished by Attorney George B. Chamberlain, general manager fo the Lafayette Mercantile agency.

This murder is shown to have been prior to or during 1891. B. F. Pitzel, who later fell a victim, was a participant in the murder of this man, and Attorney Chamberlain says is equally guilty with Holmes. The crime was committed in Chicago either in 1891 or early in 1892. Again the victim was traced to the Holmes building in Englewood. There it was, Mr. Chamberlain gives the impression, that the crime was committed.

The police do not think that his body has been found. The skeletons that were articulated were furnished a year or two years later. It is the belief that the body was dissected and cremated or buried deep in the quicklime in the bottom of the basement.

The name was kept from the public, the attorney says, to allow the police to work up further evidence. It is believed that this was the first victim of H. H. Holmes.

A Sensational Yarn.

A local paper yesterday announced the receipt of an anonymous letter, which says that Minnie Williams, Mrs. Connor, an unknown man and a little boy are living in Wabash avenue, somewhere between Forty-first and Fifty-second streets. The writer says he is a friend of Holmes, and that he knows Minnie Williams and Mrs. Connor well. He claims to have met them and been recognized by them last week. He says he would have given this information to the police, but he fears the treatment he would receive at their hands, and besides does not want newspaper notoriety. He also says Holmes will be able to produce Minnie Williams at the proper time.

Attorney Capps' Theory.

William Capps, the Fort Worth (Tex.) attorney who is here in behalf of the heirs of the Williams sisters, advances a rather startling theory, which, if found to be true, will add another victim to the long list of murders already credited to Holmes. According to Mr. Capps, Minnie R. Williams had a brother, named Horace A. Williams, in Denver. This young man either died suddenly or was killed in May or June, 1893, shortly before the supposed murder of the Williams sisters.

The manner of his death is not known to the attorney, but he says he has ascertained that the young man was insured for $2500, in favor of his sister Minnie. This fact Mr. Capps considers to be decidedly peculiar, as, he says, that it is not reasonable to suppose that Horace Williams would insure his life in favor of a sister who was already wealthy. He said that his investigation upon this point was incompleted, but from what he had learned, he was of the opinion that Holmes had first insured the young man and had then been instrumental in causing his death.

Time For a Halt.

LONDON, July 29.—The Vienna correspondent of the Chronicle says: According to the statement of the Roumanian minister at Constantinople, many of the insurgents arrested in Macedonia were found to be Russian officers. The porte intends to send the documents found in their possession to the powers as proof that the Macedonian uprising is due to Russian agents and money. The Chronicle has an editorial on the above information which regards affairs in the Balkans as menacing the peace of Europe. We see no way out of the trouble, the editorial says, except by summoning another congress, failing which we may expect atrocities in Macedonia and Alania.

Dr. Beecher Dead.

BROOKLYN, July 29.—Rev. Dr. Edward Beecher, brother of the late Henry Ward Beecher, died here yesterday morning. He was 92 years old, and spent the greater part of his life in the ministry. Dr. Beecher, who was older than his more famous brother, was born at Easthampton, L. I., on Aug. 27, 1803. Dr. Beecher leaves a widow and two sons, Rev. Frederick W. Beecher and Eugene F. Beecher, and an adopted daughter.

Steamer Reported Sunk.

MEMPHIS, July 29.—It is rumored here that the large steamer Belle Memphis, running between this city and St. Louis, sank last evening about 60 miles north of this city. Report has it further that 40 or more lives were lost. The rumor cannot be confirmed or denied, as every resource has been exhausted. There is no telegraph line along the river.

As Figured by Keep.

LONDON, July 29.—The Times prints, over the signature of Edward K. Keep, a long letter devoted to showing that the great majority of enlightened Americans are animated by feelings of friendliness and good will toward England, and that they oppose Irish home rule, and rejoice in the Unionists' victory.

Strike In Prospect.

CLEVELAND, July 29.—It is more than probable that the 1000 members of the Rolling Mill Workers' union, in this city, will strike for an increase of 12½ per cent in wages. The men have already made their demands, but it is believed that the manufacturers will refuse them.

Aged Sinner Lynched.

MERIDIAN, Miss., July 29.—Charles Burwell, aged 65, who, with his son, was implicated in the assault on Mr. and Mrs. Farmer, an aged couple, was lynched Saturday night. Burwell's son is in jail, and the mob will probably lynch him.

A Substantial Majority.

LONDON, July 29.—Only four returns are now required to complete the elections for the parliament of 1895. The government majority is 154, the largest any ministry has had for a century.

An Awful Record.

YOKOHAMA, July 29.—Since the outbreak of cholera in Japan, 9000 persons have been attacked with the disease, and over 5000 persons have died.

LIKE A RIDE ON AN EARTHQUAKE.

The Sensation Produced by an Elephant Running Away.

Nothing but a ride on an earthquake could be compared to the sensation of being run away with by an elephant. Nothing stops his wild rush, and he does not swerve for an obstacle, but goes straight at it. A few shakes fling off everything on his back, and the rider has but a second or two in which to make up his mind which overhanging branch he will cling to or if he will risk throwing himself off. A broken neck would be the certain consequence of remaining. As for stopping him, somebody has well said that you might as well try to stop a runaway locomotive by pulling with your walking stick on the funnel as to seek to check an elephant at such a moment with the goad.

By stroking an elephant's lip in a certain manner you can make it pur like a huge grimalkin till the earth shakes beneath your feet. When it is afraid or angry, it squeaks like an unoiled hinge. But when it suddenly jumps aside like a flea you imagine for a moment that the ultimate terrestrial cataclysm has gone off.

The Malays never wholly trust their elephants and were nervous at my familiarities with mine, a sweet tempered old female on which I rode hundreds of miles. During the midday halt I used to call her up, and she would come and stand with one foot on each side of my chest as I lay on my back and fed her with bananas. I was never angry with her but once, when she tried to kill the cook.

On one occasion a little elephant of our party, running behind its mother, teased her beyond endurance, and she turned and gave him a shove that landed him feet uppermost at the bottom of a deep brook. For two hours he screamed like a steam whistle while we were all engaged in getting him out.

Every night when we reached camp and the loads were taken off each driver would hobble his beast by tying its front legs together with rattan so that it could only hop with both together. Then a huge wooden bell was hung around its neck, and it was turned loose to wander in the jungle. All night long the faint dong, dong of these bells made a mournful noise around the camp. At daybreak each driver tracked his elephant by the sound, often going many miles for him. —Atlanta Constitution.

THE STORY OF A POULTICE.

After They Got It on the Boy Had Something to Say.

Family discipline is still maintained in some American families, as of course it ought to be in all. The Rehoboth Herald furnishes an instance. A small boy got a sliver in his foot, according to The Herald, and his mother expressed her intention of putting a poultice on the wound. The boy, with the natural foolishness which is bound up in the heart of a child, objected to the proposed remedy.

"I won't have any poultice," he declared.

"Yes, you will," said both mother and grandmother firmly. The majority was two to one against him, and at bedtime the poultice was ready.

The patient was not ready. On the contrary, he resisted so stoutly that a switch was brought into requisition. It was arranged that the grandmother should apply the poultice, while the mother, with uplifted stick, was to stand at the bedside. The boy was told that if he "opened his mouth" he would receive something that would keep him quiet.

The hot poultice touched his foot, and he opened his mouth.

"You"— he began.

"Keep still," said his mother, shaking her stick, while the grandmother applied the poultice.

Once more the little fellow opened his mouth.

"I"—

But the uplifted switch awed him into silence.

In a minute more the poultice was firmly in place, and the boy was tucked in bed.

"There, now," said his mother. "The old sliver will be drawn out, and Eddie's foot will be all well."

The mother and grandmother were moving triumphantly away when a shrill voice piped from under the bedclothes:

"You've got it on the wrong foot."

Stevenson's Pity For Beggars.

Stevenson's pity was a very marked quality, and it extended to beggars, which is, I think, to go too far. His optimism, however, suffered a rude shock in South Audley street one summer afternoon. We met a stalwart beggar, whom I refused to aid. Louis, however, wavered and finally handed him sixpence. The man pocketed the coin, forbore to thank his benefactor, but fixing his eye on me said in a loud voice, "And what is the other little gentleman going to give me?" "In future," said Louis as we strode coldly on, "I shall be the other 'little gentleman.'"—"Personal Memories of Stevenson," by Edmund Gosse, in Century.

Sir John Millais.

It is said of Sir John Millais, the artist, that, given a short brier wood pipe, a comfortable chair, and a pack of cards with which to play "patience," he is serenely satisfied with existence for the time being. Millais is one of the rare prodigies who attained distinction in later life. He won a medal for drawing when only 9, and at 11 he was a student of the Royal Academy of Arts. In the fullness of his fame he is a man of surprisingly simple tastes and habits.

In the year 1738 that master of theatrical art, Colley Cibber, wrote, "He that feels not himself the passion he would raise will talk to a sleeping audience."

In 764 the cold at Constantinople was so severe that the Black sea was frozen for 50 miles from shore.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good [illegible] prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a home at moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

ON A MURDER THEORY.

Line on Which Police Are Working on the Stewart Case.

A Remarkable Absence of Tangible Clews.

Inspector Surprised at Statements of Dead Girl's Sister.

BOSTON, July 29.—The police continued their search for evidence in the little Alberta Stewart case all day yesterday, but with very little success. In fact, the case is becoming remarkable for its blindness. There have been very few clews worth considering, and the police have had absolutely nothing to work upon.

Nobody seems to have seen the little girl, with the pink and white dress, cone-shaped hat with large brim, and short hair. Although her appearance was so marked as to attract the attention of little Mary Long, nobody else seems to have noticed her after she left the corner of Grove and Revere streets. The police have done everything possible to trace her whereabouts from that time.

The work is still being conducted along the murder theory line, and that none of those who frequent the Charlesbank saw Alberta Tuesday evening. One man was found who says he saw her down there several times before that day, and that she was always alone. She liked to go down there, but had nobody to go with her, and the same is true of her visits to Boston Common.

Miss Maggie Stewart's recent statement occasioned considerable talk. It varied somewhat from that said to have been made by her to the reporters and the police. It is admitted, however, that she has been laboring under great excitement since her little sister's death.

"When I interrogated Miss Stewart Tuesday afternoon," said Inspector Dugan yesterday, "she seemed to be laboring under great excitement, and at times I thought she

Was On the Verge of Collapse.

She said nothing to me about a strap, and I did not ask her about one. When I asked her if she had chastised the child, she said she had at about 8 o'clock Monday morning. She said she had spanked her, and I naturally inferred that she had used her hand.

"She made her statement without hesitation. Mrs. Beattie was also frank in her statements, telling all about the chastisement Bertie said she had received and her attempt at suicide without apparently trying to hold back anything or qualify her statements on account of Miss Stewart being present. Miss Stewart herself did not seem to be surprised at anything Mrs. Beattie said about the treatment the girl received, and when making her own statement would turn to Mrs. Beattie to refresh her memory.

In view of this, it is thought strange that

Miss Stewart Should Deny

that she chastised her sister severely, or that she knew anything of Alberta's attempt at suicide, unless the excitement attending the death of her sister has been too much for her nerves.

The police will continue to make inquiries with the view of finding somebody who saw the girl, but up to a late hour last evening they had nothing definite to work on.

The body will be taken to Westchester, N. S. The funeral took place this morning. Robert Stewart, the youngest brother, has the old homstead there, and since the death of his father has worked the farm with considerable success. He is the only one of the family now at home.

A Whack at Hoar.

BOSTON, July 29.—In a prelude to his sermon last evening, Rev. James B. Brady, D.D., pastor of People's Temple, paid his respects to Senator Hoar for the latter's alleged attacks on the A. P. A. Among other things, Dr. Brady said: "Senator Hoar said that this movement is not to be taken seriously, but he doesn't know anything about it. Senator Hoar has a presidential bee buzzing in his bonnet. Benjamin Harrison is in favor of patriotic societies, and William McKinley is also in favor of patriotic societies, so Senator Hoar thinks that it will not do for three of them to be in favor of patriotic societies, and he throws out a bait for the Catholic vote. Senator Hoar has owed the A. P. A. a 'whipping' ever since last year for sending an A. P. A. to the state convention instead of sending him."

Death of a Connecticut Legislator.

WILTON, Conn., July 29.—Nathan M. Belden was found dead yesterday from apoplexy. Mr. Belden had represented Wilton in the state legislature for many years, had served as railroad commissioner and held several important offices in his town. His opinions in land values were particularly noted. In politics he had always been a stanch Republican.

Stabbed In the Neck.

TURNER'S FALLS, Mass., July 29.—Early yesterday morning an altercation took place between David Barry and John Sullivan, each about 30 years of age, in which the former received a perhaps fatal stab wound in the neck, alleged to have been inflicted with a pocketknife in the hands of the latter. Both men are said to have been drinking.

Investigating Grade Crossing Accident.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 29.—The preliminary investigation of the Dugaway grade crossing accident of July 21, in which four men were killed, opened Saturday before the Vermont railroad commissioners. The evidence appeared to show that the victims were careless.

Six Knife Wounds.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 29.—John Rice was stabbed by Jesse Pitman six times with a knife during a quarrel on the Old Colony steamer Pilgrim yesterday, inflicting serious but not necessarily fatal wounds. Both men are colored saloon attaches on the steamer.

Wages Voluntarily Increased.

PROVIDENCE, July 29.—A notice of 12½ per cent increase in wages, to take effect Aug. 1, has been posted at the Brayton foundry at River Point. The increase will be a restorative of a cutdown a year ago, and is voluntary on the part of the management.

Knights May Withdraw.

BOSTON, July 29.—The members of district assembly 30, Knights of Labor, the once famous banner district of the order, are in open revolt against the general executive board. The recent suspension of the district by the general executive for reinstating Martin J. Padden, who, it is claimed by district assembly 30, was suspended by the latter body on account of preferring charges against M. J. Bishop, was referred to the local assemblies for action in the matter. At a meeting held yesterday, 20 out of 21 locals attached to the district endorsed the action of district assembly 30 in reinstating Padden and voted to stand by the reinstatement. The action and tone of the meeting are taken as evidence that the locals in this state will no longer recognize the general executive board.

Sunday Drowning Accidents.

PROVIDENCE, July 29.—Alexander J. Chisholm, while bathing at Crescent Park yesterday, was seized with cramps and was drowned. George Thompson went to his rescue, when the drowning man clutched hold of him and pulled him under. Thompson was rescued unconscious, and it was only after considerable working over his life was saved.

BOSTON, July 29.—Jeremiah Sheehan, aged 27 years, living at 328 Federal street, this city, was seized with cramps while bathing yesterday, and was drowned, at the Mt. Washington avenue bridge.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 29.—Manuel Matthew Deoliveiva, a 16-year-old Portuguese, was drowned in Taunton river yesterday while bathing.

Conducted In Secret.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 29.—Contrary to expectation, the investigation into the management of the city almshouse is being held in secret session. Eight witnesses were before the committee on Saturday, but what testimony was given cannot be learned.

Collision Case Settled.

PORTLAND, Me., July 29.—The collision case of schooner Valorous against the steamer Louisburg is finished. Judge Webb found that both the schooner and the steamer were at fault and were both liable for damages to the owners of the cargo.

No More Cutting In Prices of Fish.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 29.—The dealers in cut fish have informally agreed to establish prices each week. For five years dealers have cut prices on fish, so that, while having a monopoly of trade, Gloucester dealers have not made money.

Ground to Pieces.

BOSTON, July 29.—Freight handlers at the Boston and Albany freight sheds discovered the terribly mangled body of an unknown man in the rear of the train shed. No height or weight could be given, owing to his mangled condition.

Both Badly Bruised.

LYNN, Mass., July 29.—Patrick Clark and A. M. Thompson, while spurting on Glenmere track, came into collision. Clark received severe cuts on the head, requiring a number of stitches, and Thompson had his collar bone broken.

Injuries Resulted Fatally.

PORTLAND, Me., July 29.—Porter Heap died from blood poisoning after a sickness of a few days. In taking a flash-light photograph of a fancy dress ball at the Ottawa he burned his hand and blood poisoning ensued.

All Right, Elder!

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 29.—Elder Hiram Munger, one of the leading Second Adventists, in a sermon at the camp grounds yesterday, prophesied the end of the world will come in 1897, according to Scripture.

Apprentices Wanted.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 29.—The training ship Essex arrived here from New York yesterday. She will receive 60 apprentices here.

Charlie Crook of Middletown, Conn., aged 8, went bathing at Tarbox Hole, and slipped from the bank into a hole and was drowned.

Joseph Hamilton, another of the men scalded when the torpedo boat Ericsson wrecked her cylinder, is dead, making three victims.

The Manchester (N. H.) temporary loan of $100,000 in anticipation of taxes was awarded to Curtis & Motley of Boston at 8 per cent, $13.50 premium.

The body of a female infant was found floating in an old valise in the Merrimac river at Riverside Park, Mass. It had been in the water two or three days.

Mrs. Mary E. Lull of Manchester, N. H., had a disagreement with her husband, and subsequently swallowed corrosive sublimate. Her recovery is doubtful.

The decision of the Massachusetts state board of arbitration in the matter of prices at Stow, Bills & Hawley's shoe shop at Hudson, Mass., is satisfactory to the employes.

DEFENSE OF RED MEN.

Uprising Said to be Due to Persecution by Cattle Barons.

More Cheerful Report From Disturbed District.

Report of Massacre at Jackson's Hole Was Probably Unfounded.

KANSAS CITY, July 29.—L. A. Southern of Wardneck, Ida., is in the city. Speaking of the reports from Jackson's Hole, he pronounced them false, and charges that unreliable correspondents are responsible for them.

"The truth of the matter is, he said, "that cattle barons, with ranges in Wyoming and Idaho, are determined to secure the Bannock reservation for pasturage for their cattle. With this object in view, they have systematically and deliberately provoked the Indians for the past three years.

"If they can cause an uprising, they will strive to secure the Indians' removal to another district. Perhaps some settlers have been killed, but you will eventually learn that not one murder was done by the Lemhi or Bannock Indians. It is notorious among the people of Idaho and Wyoming that cattle barons in the Teton valley country have caused all the trouble in that section.

"These robberies are not entirely confined to stealing land and cattle from Indians. It is invariably the case that when a white man settles in that country under the homestead law, that in a few months the news will be sent around that he is a 'rustler' or cattle thief. The final outcome will be that his neighbors, all in the employ of the big cattle owners, will ride up and fill him full of lead. His claim is again opened for settlement and his small herd of cattle are lost in the countless herds of the cattle of the barons.

"You may think this is a wild story, but it is the story of hundreds of murdered settlers. My brother, Clarence L. Southern, was one of the recent victims. He was killed six weeks ago near Smith's Fork, about 25 miles from Fort Bridges. I am now on my was to Crary's Mills, N. Y., to break the news to his mother."

MORE PEACEFUL.

Reports From Disturbed District Are of Less Warlike Nature.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Dispatches received at army headquarters here yesterday from General Coppinger show that the force of cavalry ordered to Jackson's Hole, the scene of the Indian troubles, in Wyoming, is making its way there, and will probably reach the place by tomorrow night. In addition, other troops have been ordered to Market Lake from Fort Russell, so as to be in readiness for active work should their services be required. No mention is made of further trouble, and, with the known peaceable attitude of the Indians of Washakie and Duschesne reservations, the situation is regarded as very much simplified. General Coppinger's latest dispatch reads substantially as follows:

Major Chaffee's squadron of cavalry left Market Lake at 5 p. m., Saturday, and will probably reach Marysvale (near Jackson's Hole) on Little Grove Tree creek on Tuesday night. Constant communication between the two points (Marysvale and Market Lake) will be kept up by courier lines. Two Indians and the chiefs of the Shoshones and Bannocks from the Fort Hall reservation left Market Lake this (Saturday) morning to join Major Chaffee.

Another dispatch from General Coppinger states that the road to Marysvale, except 10 miles through Teton Pass, is reported as good. Five companies of the Eighth Infantry left Fort Russell Saturday afternoon, to be held at Market Lake as a reserve force.

The commanding officers of Fort Washakie, Wy., and Fort Duschesne, U. T., report that the Indians, on their respective reservations, are not involved in the hostile movement.

Agent Teter of the Fort Hall reservation is en route, with the department commander, to Marysvale. The companies of the Eighth Infantry will reach Market Lake today.

The statement that the Indians of the Washakie and Fort Duschesne reservations are not involved in the present movement is regarded by the officers of the army as very important. The Shoshones are under the direction of the agent of the former reservation, and the Utes under the latter, so that it is felt here that there will be no trouble experienced from them.

This condition of affairs, it is believed here, makes the situation much easier to handle, for with but one tribe of Indians to deal with, the uprising can be much more easily suppressed. There are now four troops of cavalry on their way to Marysvale, and five more will be at Market Lake today, which makes the available force all that it is hoped will be necessary to quell the disturbance.

Oscar Wilde Resigned.

LONDON, July 29.—Oscar Wilde is now confined in the Wormwood Scrubbs prison. The prisoner is enjoying good health and is working resignedly. He is not compelled to walk in the treadmill, but is employed in breaking stones and picking oakum.

Investigation Called For.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Fire in the establishment of Scharles Bros., dealers in toys, and Jacquin & Co., dealers in French millinery, caused damage in the neighborhood of $200,000. The origin of the fire is a mystery and an investigation will be made.

Military on Duty.

COLON, July 29.—The strike of wharf, ship and other laborers has again assumed a threatening aspect, and this has caused the local authorities to have military guards placed in various parts of the town.

CHARLES H. JOHNSON, - Auctioneer. Room 3 Adams Building.

Large Land Sale.

Eight Choice Building Lots, including Two Choice Sea Shore Lots.

Will be Sold at Auction

SATURDAY,

AUGUST 3, 1895, at 2 P. M.

THESE lots are a portion of the estate of the late Daniel Baxter, Quincy Point, now owned by Mrs. Ann W. Wood, consisting of 310,421 feet of land, situated between River street and Washington court and Washington street and Town River bay, according to plan drawn by H. T. Whitman, surveyor, September. 18 7. Particular attention is called to this sale. The two seashore lots are desirable, affording an opportunity to obtain a shore lot at a low price. The remaining ones are finely located near schools, churches and near line of electric cars. Seldom has the chance been offered of obtaining as desirable building lots as these at auction.

Remember time and place of sale near Point Hole, so called. Invest your money and

A GRAND SUCCESS.

Many Entries in The Open Race.

A Squall Makes It More Exciting.

The Old Wildfire Surprises Them All in the Sixth.

The year 1895 will go down as one of the most successful in the history of the Quincy yacht club. Their races thus far have all been crowned with success, their ladies' day was all that could be asked and their open race Saturday could not have been more successful than it was.

There were a large number of entries and by far the larger part of those that had entered were present to compete for the prizes.

Besides those who participated in the race hundreds of people gathered on the piazzas of the club house and on the shore, who watched the race with interest. Many of these spectators were ladies and those at the club house were entertained with a promenade concert during the entire afternoon.

Riding at anchor a little way from the float was the steam yacht Marie, upon which were Commodore Pettengill, a number of the judges, friends and members of the press.

For half an hour previous to the race the trim yachts that were to participate in the race were knocking about in front of the club house and a very pretty sight they made.

Promptly at 2.15 the boom of the preparatory gun was heard and then there was hustling among the first-class boats for the best positions, each striving to cross the line first. The fifteen minutes had soon elapsed and all eyes were centered on the eight boats to start. The wind was from the southwest and seemed to be freshening rapidly, and it was evident that there would be no lack of wind.

Boom went the gun and away went the first class, the Beatrice crossing first, with the Emma C., Ida J., Harbinger, White Fawn, Whisper, Mudjekeewis, and Heroine close at her heels. The Beatrice held the lead to the Weymouth shore but before rounding Channel Rock bouy had given way to the Harbinger, Emma C., and Ida J. The Harbinger continued to retain her lead, and on the run to Downer Landing the Beatrice overhauled the two latter boats and finished second.

The second class boats to start were the Moondyne, Swirl, Savitar, Rex, Adolph and Posy, and they crossed the line in the above order. It was during the first mile that the Swirl carried away her runners and rather than lose her stick, skipper Faxon withdrew The race really was then between the Rex and Savitor. The latter boat finished first but lost to the Rex on time allowance. The Adolph protested the Moondyne for not rounding the bouy off Sheep Island.

There were but three boats in the third class, the Eleanor, Satanic and Romance, and in the above order they crossed the line. It was a close race between these boats and they held their same relative positions throughout the race although the Romance lost two men overboard while shaking out a reef and stopped to pick them up.

These three classes sailed over a special course of ten miles and the remaining classes over the regular No. 1 course.

The next class to get away was the fourth which comprised the Kayoshk, Opechee, Rooster, Arab and Joker, and in that order they crossed the line. The wind had now freshened considerable and they went away double reefed. The Kayoshk held the lead the first time round and crossed the line for the second leg first, with the Arab second and Rooster third. During the second leg the Rooster got in some good work and crossed the line first at the finish and received a salute from the ladies at the club house, but when the corrected time was figured out she had to give way to the Arab which was one second behind the Kayoshk in crossing. The Opechee did some good work but made a mistake at the start by crossing the line wrong which obliged her to come about and start over again.

The fifth class was made up of the Evadne, Alpine, Fantasy, Nachita and Vision, and they crossed in that order. In crossing the line the first time round the Alpine was first with the Fantasy second, Nachita third and Vision fourth. During the second time around the Evadne and Nachita withdrew, leaving the Alpine, Fantasy and Vision to complete the race.

The race in the sixth class was an interesting one for City Clerk Keith had the Wildfire out to celebrate her 21st birthday. Kit Cleverly handled the stick and the only Jim was at the sheet. Pitted against her was the Sunbeam, Imp and Sphinx, Arthur Keith's new boat, and it was in the above order that they crossed the line at the sound of the gun. The first time round the Wildfire still had the lead and the Sphinx had overhauled the Imp and Sunbeam, and in that position they finished, although the Sunbeam gets third place on time allowance.

The seventh class was for knockabouts, and Nike, La Chica, Nabob, Bessie Lee and Spinster were the starters. Upon crossing the line for the second leg, the Nabob had pulled up into first place with the La Chica second, while the Nike had dropped into third place and the Bessie Lee and Spinster had changed positions, and in these same positions they finished.

The squall was at its height and the water was covered with white caps when the gun for the eighth and last class was sounded, and the three little ones, Princess, Cutty Sark and Tantrum, had a hard time of it and it looked at one time as though one or more of them must be capsized. The Princess finally got away and was soon followed by the Cutty Sark but the Tantrum was delayed some minutes. At the crossing of the line the first time around the Tantrum had made up her loss and had a lead of nearly two and one-half minutes over the Princess and over six minutes lead of the Cutty Sark.

The prizes were $15, $10 and $5 in the first class; $15, $10 and $5 in the second; $15 and $10 in the third; $12, $8 and $5 in the fourth; $10 and $5 in the fifth; $10, $8 and $5 in the sixth; $10 and $5 in the seventh; and $7 and $5 in the eighth. A Day's Outing.

The Scottish citizens and residents of Ward Three held their first annual summer reunion at Adams beach, Saturday afternoon. The weather being inviting, fully 200 availed themselves of the opportunity to spend a day at the sea shore, and sniff the cooling breezes of the briny deep

Mrs. Drummond, Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. Marshall were the managers and labored hard to make the day an enjoyable one. After dinner the rest of the afternoon was devoted to the children and they enjoyed themselves immensely. It was the wish of those present to have another before the season closes.

THE THIRD TIME.

The Trask House on West Street Now Badly Gutted.

The alarm from Box 49 at 11.25 Sunday night called the department for the third time this year to a fire in the old house situated on West street owned by E. V. Trask.

This fire like the two previous fires was of incendiary origin and the party or parties were successful in practically destroying the building.

The first attempt was made last spring when a fire was started by the free use of kerosene oil in the centre of one of the rooms in the unoccupied part. It was however discovered and extinguished before much damage had been done.

The second attempt was made on the night of July 18, by saturating a lot of old rags with oil and throwing them under a sink in the unoccupied part, and setting fire to them.

This fire was discovered by special officer George McKay, who was on his way home. He gave the alarm and the department succeeded in extinguishing the fire with a loss of not over $5.

Up to this time part of the house was occupied by Phillip Leahy, who however moved out last week.

Sunday night the fire was started in the centre of the building from the outside.

When the department arrived the fire had made good headway and the nearest hydrant was at Larry place over 1500 feet away and water had to be forced up hill, which presented in a measure the department doing its usual good work. By the time the fire was extinguished the building was badly gutted but as the building was an old one the loss will not be over $500, which is fully covered by insurance.

Deputy Fire Inspector Adams, to whom the matter has been reported will make an investigation.

TAKEN TO COURT.

The Sea Shore Home Have Difficulty With Tenants.

An action of ejectment was heard before Judge Humphrey this morning, the parties in the case being the Sea Shore Home and Tomas F., and Mary F. Meany.

The defendants occupy the premises of the Sea Shore Home at Quincy Neck, and according to the testimony owed something like $380 for rent. On March 23, 1895, the parties entered into an agreement of purchase the terms being that $200 should be paid by May 15, 1895. At that time but $100 was paid on the note. The balance not being paid a notice of ejectment was issued.

The defence answer was that the plaintiff had no legal right to hold property, and that no notice to quit had been received, and that the agreement was still in force and that by the payment of the balance of the note the defendants could demand a deed, which they proposed to do.

Dr. Francis H. Brown, treasurer of the Sea Shore Home, testified as to the above transaction.

Case continued until Tuesday for judgment.

Company K's Regiment.

In its comments on the 24 brigade at camp last week the Herald says: The 5th regiment held the right of the brigade line, and set a pace that showed for itself before the command had been in camp over night. Particular attention was paid to the policing of the ground, and the orders to keep baggage down to the lowest point added greatly to the appearance of quarters. In its work, the command was conscientious, and the results were marked. The compliments which the regiment received for its superb appearance on the streets of Boston on Saturday from citizens generally, coupled with added compliments for its work on the field, should make officers and men feel that they labored to good purpose.

—The Institutes of Weymouth defeated the Warrens of Dorchester on Saturday 8 to 4.

A Mother's Report

"Hood's Sarsaparilla, is an excellent medicine. I have taken it for catarrh and impure blood and it has given me a good appetite and strength. My husband has also taken it and he is now in good health. When he feels a little run down he gets a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before it is gone he is all right and is able to work all the time. I give it to my baby occasionally, and we have never had to have a doctor attend her." MRS. E. K. WARREN, Greenfield, N. H., Box 34.

STUART NOT WORRIED

Over Governor's Proclamation Forbidding Fighting In Texas.

AUSTIN, July 29.—Governor Culberson has issued a proclamation prohibitory of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight. He asserts that it is a flagrant defiance of law, and will bring disrepute upon, and foster a spirit of disobedience of, all law.

DAN A. STUART.
[President and treasurer of the Florida Athletic club.]

DALLAS, July 29.—A copy of the governor's proclamation was shown Dan A. Stuart of the Florida Athletic club. He smiled and said: "It is no more than I expected, and I do not care to discuss its 'whereases.' The glove contest will take place on Oct. 31, as originally announced and according to agreement. The attorney for the Florida Athletic club holds that after September, 1895, there will be no law on the statute books of Texas prohibiting glove contests."

HEBREWS' SUNDAY OFF.

Big Strike Inaugurated Because of a Disagreement With Contractors.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Hebrew clothing makers of this city yesterday, for the first time, observed the Christian Sunday. They were on strike. Trouble has been brewing between the tailors and the contractors for some time, and yesterday morning it culminated in a general strike of the workers.

It is claimed by the strikers that 13,000 workers have responded to the call of the United Brotherhood of Tailors, and that not only this city, but Brooklyn, Newark and Brownsville are affected. The number out in this city is set down at 9000.

The United Brotherhood of Tailors had hoped that a strike might be averted until September, when the agreement for the year between the workers and the contractors would expire and when work would naturally cease until a new agreement had been arrived at. The workers claim, however, that the contractors were not willing to wait, and that now when there is plenty of business they wished to force a strike. They say that the contractors broke through the agreement by refusing to pay their hands on the day specified, and that they—the better to ensure the success of their scheme to force a strike—locked out some hundreds of their employes.

The minimum wages demanded are: For operators, $15; basters, $13; pressers, $10; buslelers, $10; trimmers, $10; twisters, $9. They also insist that all members of the brotherhood out be reinstated and that representatives of the brotherhood have access to the shops to investigate grievances.

To Aid Insurgents.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—The Press says: By Tuesday or Wednesday of this week there will be in Cuban waters the largest expedition from this country that has yet left. It will be under the command of Colonel Enrique Collazo. Cuban sympathizers in this city play an important part in the expedition, as it was here that all the men enlisted for it, and all arms and ammunition were shipped. The ship is fitted out as a war vessel and able to cope or run away from any Spanish war vessel now cruising in Cuban waters. There is said to have been loaded from this city 3000 remington rifles and 50,000 pounds of ammunition. Everything was completed for sailing on Saturday night and the vessel is now believed to be on its way to Cuba.

A Great Deal.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The Carnegie wire nail mills at Beaver Falls, Pa., have been purchased by the Consolidated Steel and Wire company of this city. The purchase price is said to be in the neighborhood of $725,000. The present is said to be the first instance of the Carnegie company having sold a plant which bore its name.

Prompted by Jealousy.

CLEVELAND, July 29.—Emma Mitchell, a pretty mulatto girl, aged 16, was shot and fatally injured yesterday by James Lock, who at once turned the revolver upon himself and sent a bullet through his brain. Lock had been paying attention to the girl for some time. Jealousy prompted the crime.

Gallant Soldier Gone.

JAMAICA, L. I., July 29.—Colonel Alfred M. Wood, at one time mayor of Brooklyn and commander of the Fourteenth regiment when that regiment went to the front before the battle of Bull Run, died yesterday at his home in the village of Queens. He was born in Hempstead in 1826.

Long Overdue.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—The British bark Sokota left Liverpool for this port 170 days ago, and nothing has been heard of her for weeks. She was last spoken off the Horn by the Drumchiff vessel, which arrived in London several weeks ago. Much anxiety is felt for her safety.

The Macedonian War.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29.—The Macedonian insurgents, after a smart conflict with the Turkish troops, have captured the town of Menlik. The victors burned the telegraph station and the Turkish quarter.

Swift Vengeance.

MADERA, Cal., July 29.—Victor Adams, who shot and killed Justice Boker at O'Neil's last Thursday, was lynched by a mob of 60 men near the scene of the murder.

Insurgents Were Whipped.

HAVANA, July 29.—A force of Spaniards defeated insurgents at Mueve Villas. The insurgents' loss was 30 killed and wounded. The Spanish loss was one wounded.

The Quincy Churches.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Point church are contemplating a lawn social in the near future. The Junior society is flourishing, and increasing in numbers.

Rev. Preston Gurney of the Wollaston Baptist church preached from Math. 25:37, at the Baptist church Sunday morning. Mr. Gurney commences his vacation this week, and during his absence, the pulpit will be filled by ministers from Quincy and Boston.

Many compliments were heard at the Washington Street Congregational church, Sunday morning, on the tastily arranged flowers which adorned the altar and pulpit. The efficient flower committee is composed of Misses Thomas, Sampson and Newcomb. Mrs. Youtz presided at the organ in the absence of the organist, Mrs. Hood, who is taking her vacation.

At the Calvary Baptist church Rev. C. A. Parker preached from 1 Chronicles 29: 5. "And who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord." This text was in two parts. 1. Willing service. 2. The gracious reward. Our hearts belongs to Him who redeemed us on Calvary's cross. Our service then must be voluntary. God can only value our service by the love or motive that prompts it. And what a difference it makes to us if we are doing His will from a sense of duty or a spring of personal love. In the kingdoms of this world, subjects are forced into service, but in the service of God it must be free will offering. In material things it must be the same. "The poor widow gave her mite, all her living, and God knowing the heart blessed her far more than they who gave of their abundance for to be seen of men. Let us thank God for all the hard places in life so long as it strengthens our faith in Him who has said "So I am with you always even to the end."

INFORMATION WANTED.

A Veteran Who Is Anxious to Enter Public Service.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Will the LEDGER kindly oblige a veteran soldier of the late war, by giving information how to profit by an act of the Legislature which became a law of the State June 4, 1895, in regard to giving veteran soldiers employment in the public service. I am an honorably discharged soldier, having served six years in the United States Army, enlisting the first of March, 1862, and have shed blood in defence of this republic, this glorious republic.

I have made more than one application to the powers that be for work, but apparently to no avail. I believe I can prove beyond any and every doubt, that I am competent and capable to fill the position for which I ask, both physically, mentally and morally. I never have been convicted of any crime against the law, in this or any other State, in all my life. I am not an A. P. A., nor yet do I bow at any papal shrine. I am simply an American from away back, believe in American institutions, and am ready to defend the flag against all mob violence, or against the invasion of any foreign foe. I am not biased by any political party or religious creed, and am ready to take every man by the hand as brother should brother, providing, he is a law abiding citizen.

Will some kind reader of the LEDGER please to inform me how to approach those in authority that have the dealing out of the public patronage, so that I may procure employment and pay my just dues, and provide the necessities of life for my family, without going to the extreme of testing the new law.

TRUNKS.
To some people all Trunks look alike, but it's the using that tells their real worth. At this store you'll find the kind that are built for service, with heavy corners, strong hinges and locks, an extra band where need be, and good, serviceable waterproof coverings. The kind that worry the baggage smasher—neat in appearance, attractive, and what's better than all the rest is the price. Good Trunks, $3.50; others at any price; an assortment to win your favor.

Defeat For "Pacificator."

LONDON, July 29.—The Times has a dispatch from Havana which says: Accounts of the fight on the road between Manzanillo and Bayamo (in which General Santocildes was killed) which have been published hitherto were under censorship and are largely imaginary. The government admits that three officers and 70 men were killed. The general impression here is that De Campos met with a distinct reverse. All the mules and horses were killed by his order, so that he lost his baggage train. De Campos himself arrived at Bayamo on foot. The dead and wounded were left on the field. It is stated that De Campos went to Bayamo against the advice of the general commanding at Manzanillo.

A Japanese Horror.

KOBE, July 29.—An accident, in which over 100 soldiers perished, occurred on the railroad running from this place to Osaka. A train of 23 cars was conveying to this city 400 Japanese soldiers who were returning from China. As the train was running along the sea wall an immense sea leaped ouer the wall, separating the train and derailing the engine and 11 cars, which plunged off the wall into the bay. Most of the men in the derailed cars were drowned like rats in a trap.

Elder Himes Dead.

ELK POINT, S. D., July 29.—Elder Joshua V. Himes, the famous co-worker of William Miller, the founder of Adventism, is dead, at the age of 91. Mr. Himes was born in Rhode Island. The family were Episcopalians, but the boy became a member of the New England sect commonly called Christian Baptists, and for a number of years served as agent missionary. In 1879, however, Himes returned to the church of his youth, and has since remained with it.

About the Valkyrie.

LONDON, July 29.—Valkyrie III will be navigated by Captain Harrison of the Allan liner Corean, who was granted special leave for the purpose. Captain Cranfield and Captain Sycamore are both on board. Valkyrie III is provided with enough boats to accommodate 60 men. With the crew and 10 tons of stores on board, she did not show too much free board, but laid a very even keel, and looked every way seaworthy. It is expected that the voyage will occupy 20 days.

Three Lads Killed.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—John Gardner made a horrible find yesterday while walking on the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad near Riverdale Park. Lying in the ditch in one heap were the mangled bodies of three boys, ranging in age from 10 to 15. They had evidently been run down by a train. The bodies were identified as those of J. W. Blundon, Guy Brown and Charles Lynch. The bodies were mangled almost beyond recognition.

A Babe's Perilous Ride.

WATERVILLE, Me., July 29.—An engine on an express train struck Joseph Cary, aged 3 years, on the Front-street crossing, and the pilot carried him quite a distance. The child was uninjured.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Sunday Crowd Not as Large as a Week Ago.

There was another large crowd at Houghs Neck, Sunday, although not large as the previous Sunday. There were several large parties at Pierce's, and at Peck island there was a party of Boston liquor dealers and bar tenders, but everything was very quiet and orderly.

The weather and tide were just right for bathing and scores of men, women and children enjoyed a dip in the briny ocean, and their capers were watched with interest by those on shore, many of whom would doubtless have liked to change places with the bathers had they been given the opportunity.

Nearly every cottager kept open house and entertained relatives and friends, and everybody was happy and making the most of the beach weather which at best can last but a few weeks more, as the last week in August will see many of the cottagers, especially those who have children of school age, wending their way home.

CAPT. KENDALL'S SPREAD.

He Entertained His Bicycle Friends Royally on Saturday.

Of the many spreads which Dr. W. G. Kendall has tendered to his friends, that of Saturday last surpasses all. About 100 responded to his unique invitation and repaired to the beach for the dip and "clam picking." There was a clam chowder and all the fixings and an enjoyable afternoon was passed. In the evening an adjournment was made to the residence of Capt. Kendall on Atlantic street, and the festivities were continued with music, speaking and a general good time.

Dr. Kendall is captain of the Boston Bicycle club and is one of the oldest bicycle riders in this country, with a record of over 100,000 miles on the wheel. It is his custom annually to entertain the boys, and hey look forward with considerable pleasure to these outings, in which our friend Reod so ably assists.

PRETTY

AND ATTRACTIVE WOMEN.

Their Good Looks Not a Secret.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

No matter to what country she belongs, or whether she be black or white, as a woman she desires to look well.

Women know the influence of beauty on men; men rarely admire a beautiful invalid, but they do admire a woman in whom is blended good features and perfect health.

There is no secret about a woman's beauty; it all lies in the care she devotes to herself, to removing from her system all poisonous impurities, and keeping at bay those fearful female diseases.

The flashing eye, elastic step, and brilliant complexion are never companions of a womb trouble; only the distressed expression and aches, pains, blues, faintness, dizziness, bearing-down feeling, etc., keep it company.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removes female troubles promptly, and cleanses, invigorates, and consequently beautifies, the form of woman. Women, the world over, pay homage to it, and praise its discoverer. Your druggist sells more of it than all other female medicines.

Man and His Shoes.

How much a man is like his shoes!
For instance, both a sole may lose;
Both have been tanned; both are made tight
By cobblers; both get left and right;
Both need a mate to be complete,
And both are made to go on feet.
They both need heeling, oft are sold,
And both in time will turn to mold.
With shoes the last is first; with men
The first shall be the last. When
The shoes wear out, they're mended new;
When men wear out, they're men dead too.
They both are trod upon, and both
Will tread on others, nothing loath.
Both have their ties, and both incline,
When polished, in the world to shine,
And both peg out. Now, would you choose
To be a man or be his shoes?

Do not look for wrong and evil.
You will find them if you do.
As you measure for your neighbor,
He will measure back to you.
—Alice Cary.

SCARING A DOG.

An Experiment That Can Hardly Be Called a Howling Success.

Bill Jones of Happy Valley came into the office the other day and said he had found out a good way to scare a dog. He said he didn't see any sense in wanting to shoot a dog or be cruel to dumb brutes by poisoning 'em when there were ways enough to just scare 'em and in that keep 'em from biting you. He said, just to show his good faith before we printed the recipe in The News, we might go down street past Oldfeller's place and try his dog once. So we started out with him.

Jones took his umbrella, and as we walked along he showed us how the old thing worked. He asked us to walk just ahead, and he played we were in the position of the dog and wanted us to growl. When we made a noise, he rushed at us with the umbrella, opening and shutting it in rather a startling manner.

By and by we reached Oldfeller's place, but didn't see the dog. Then Jones growled like and shouted, "Sic 'em, Towser!" In about a second and a half Towser came flying around the fence corner, and Jones just had time to lower his umbrella when the charge was made. Towser made a rush like a trolley car half a block ahead of you. Jones parried and worked the slide on the umbrella handle. The next instant the dog had a mouthful of a $4 umbrella cover and two ribs out of the same. Jones expectorated a mouthful of tobacco juice in Towser's eye and then told him he could have the remainder of the water cover, his remarks all prefaced with adjectives never used in prayers.

We didn't return to the office together, and Jones said if we ever printed the recipe or made any mention of the experiment the A. O. U. W.'s would lose a couple of thousand on us and have a day off for a funeral.—Fairhaven News.

Caught In a Smashup.

LEWISTON, Me., July 29.—Miss Clara Michaud had her left shoulder badly injured and John Beals suffered from concussion of the brain as the result of a runaway and smashup here yesterday afternoon.

Dangerous Playground.

BOSTON, July 29.—Louis Goldman, 12 years old, of 26 Salem street, while flying a kite from the roof of his home, slipped and fell 40 feet, sustaining a fractured skull, from which he died soon afterward.

Speedy Tyler.

LYNN, Mass., July 29.—Tyler lowered the five-mile bicycle record on Glenmere grounds, in 11m. 29 4-5s., breaking the best previous record, made by Harry Wheeler of Brooklyn, of 12m. 13s.

DRAWING IN THE NET.

Pitzel Himself Is Also Thought to Have Been a Murderer.

Was Probably Implicated In Holmes' First Case.

Further Interesting Nubs of News From the Chicago End.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Inspector Fitzpatrick was yesterday put into possession of facts which weave closer the web of proof around H. H. Holmes, and adds another victim to the already long list. This information was furnished by Attorney George B. Chamberlain, general manager fo the Lafayette Mercantile agency.

This murder is shown to have been prior to or during 1891. B. F. Pitzel, who later fell a victim, was a participant in the murder of this man, and Attorney Chamberlain says is equally guilty with Holmes. The crime was committed in Chicago either in 1891 or early in 1892. Again the victim was traced to the Holmes building in Englewood. There it was, Mr. Chamberlain gives the impression, that the crime was committed.

The police do not think that his body has been found. The skeletons that were articulated were furnished a year or two years later. It is the belief that the body was dissected and cremated or buried deep in the quicklime in the bottom of the basement.

The name was kept from the public, the attorney says, to allow the police to work up further evidence. It is believed that this was the first victim of H. H. Holmes.

A Sensational Yarn.

A local paper yesterday announced the receipt of an anonymous letter, which says that Minnie Williams, Mrs. Connor, an unknown man and a little boy are living in Wabash avenue, somewhere between Forty-first and Fifty-second streets. The writer says he is a friend of Holmes, and that he knows Minnie Williams and Mrs. Connor well. He claims to have met them and been recognized by them last week. He says he would have given this information to the police, but he fears the treatment he would receive at their hands, and besides does not want newspaper notoriety. He also says Holmes will be able to produce Minnie Williams at the proper time.

Attorney Capps' Theory.

William Capps, the Fort Worth (Tex.) attorney who is here in behalf of the heirs of the Williams sisters, advances a rather startling theory, which, if found to be true, will add another victim to the long list of murders already credited to Holmes. According to Mr. Capps, Minnie R. Williams had a brother, named Horace A. Williams, in Denver. This young man either died suddenly or was killed in May or June, 1893, shortly before the supposed murder of the Williams sisters.

The manner of his death is not known to the attorney, but he says he has ascertained that the young man was insured for $2500, in favor of his sister Minnie. This fact Mr. Capps considers to be decidedly peculiar, as, he says, that it is not reasonable to suppose that Horace Williams would insure his life in favor of a sister who was already wealthy. He said that his investigation upon this point was incompleted, but from what he had learned, he was of the opinion that Holmes had first insured the young man and had then been instrumental in causing his death.

Time For a Halt.

LONDON, July 29.—The Vienna correspondent of the Chronicle says: According to the statement of the Roumanian minister at Constantinople, many of the insurgents arrested in Macedonia were found to be Russian officers. The porte intends to send the documents found in their possession to the powers as proof that the Macedonian uprising is due to Russian agents and money. The Chronicle has an editorial on the above information which regards affairs in the Balkans as menacing the peace of Europe. We see no way out of the trouble, the editorial says, except by summoning another congress, failing which we may expect atrocities in Macedonia and Alania.

Dr. Beecher Dead.

BROOKLYN, July 29.—Rev. Dr. Edward Beecher, brother of the late Henry Ward Beecher, died here yesterday morning. He was 92 years old, and spent the greater part of his life in the ministry. Dr. Beecher, who was older than his more famous brother, was born at Easthampton, L. I., on Aug. 27, 1803. Dr. Beecher leaves a widow and two sons, Rev. Frederick W. Beecher and Eugene F. Beecher, and an adopted daughter.

Steamer Reported Sunk.

MEMPHIS, July 29.—It is rumored here that the large steamer Belle Memphis, running between this city and St. Louis, sank last evening about 60 miles north of this city. Report has it further that 40 or more lives were lost. The rumor cannot be confirmed or denied, as every resource has been exhausted. There is no telegraph line along the river.

As Figured by Keep.

LONDON, July 29.—The Times prints, over the signature of Edward K. Keep, a long letter devoted to showing that the great majority of enlightened Americans are animated by feelings of friendliness and good will toward England, and that they oppose Irish home rule, and rejoice in the Unionists' victory.

Strike In Prospect.

CLEVELAND, July 29.—It is more than probable that the 1000 members of the Rolling Mill Workers' union, in this city, will strike for an increase of 12½ per cent in wages. The men have already made their demands, but it is believed that the manufacturers will refuse them.

Aged Sinner Lynched.

MERIDIAN, Miss., July 29.—Charles Burwell, aged 65, who, with his son, was implicated in the assault on Mr. and Mrs. Farmer, an aged couple, was lynched Saturday night. Burwell's son is in jail, and the mob will probably lynch him.

A Substantial Majority.

LONDON, July 29.—Only four returns are now required to complete the elections for the parliament of 1895. The government majority is 154, the largest any ministry has had for a century.

An Awful Record.

YOKOHAMA, July 29.—Since the outbreak of cholera in Japan, 9000 persons have been attacked with the disease, and over 5000 persons have died.

LIKE A RIDE ON AN EARTHQUAKE.

The Sensation Produced by an Elephant Running Away.

Nothing but a ride on an earthquake could be compared to the sensation of being run away with by an elephant. Nothing stops his wild rush, and he does not swerve for an obstacle, but goes straight at it. A few shakes fling off everything on his back, and the rider has but a second or two in which to make up his mind which overhanging branch he will cling to or if he will risk throwing himself off. A broken neck would be the certain consequence of remaining. As for stopping him, somebody has well said that you might as well try to stop a runaway locomotive by pulling with your walking stick on the funnel as to seek to check an elephant at such a moment with the goad.

By stroking an elephant's lip in a certain manner you can make it pur like a huge grimalkin till the earth shakes beneath your feet. When it is afraid or angry, it squeaks like an unoiled hinge. But when it suddenly jumps aside like a flea you imagine for a moment that the ultimate terrestrial cataclysm has gone off.

The Malays never wholly trust their elephants and were nervous at my familiarities with mine, a sweet tempered old female on which I rode hundreds of miles. During the midday halt I used to call her up, and she would come and stand with one foot on each side of my chest as I lay on my back and fed her with bananas. I was never angry with her but once, when she tried to kill the cook.

On one occasion a little elephant of our party, running behind its mother, teased her beyond endurance, and she turned and gave him a shove that landed him feet uppermost at the bottom of a deep brook. For two hours he screamed like a steam whistle while we were all engaged in getting him out.

Every night when we reached camp and the loads were taken off each driver would hobble his beast by tying its front legs together with rattan so that it could only hop with both together. Then a huge wooden bell was hung around its neck, and it was turned loose to wander in the jungle. All night long the faint dong, dong of these bells made a mournful noise around the camp. At daybreak each driver tracked his elephant by the sound, often going many miles for him. —Atlanta Constitution.

THE STORY OF A POULTICE.

After They Got It on the Boy Had Something to Say.

Family discipline is still maintained in some American families, as of course it ought to be in all. The Rehoboth Herald furnishes an instance. A small boy got a sliver in his foot, according to The Herald, and his mother expressed her intention of putting a poultice on the wound. The boy, with the natural foolishness which is bound up in the heart of a child, objected to the proposed remedy.

"I won't have any poultice," he declared.

"Yes, you will," said both mother and grandmother firmly. The majority was two to one against him, and at bedtime the poultice was ready.

The patient was not ready. On the contrary, he resisted so stoutly that a switch was brought into requisition. It was arranged that the grandmother should apply the poultice, while the mother, with uplifted stick, was to stand at the bedside. The boy was told that if he "opened his mouth" he would receive something that would keep him quiet.

The hot poultice touched his foot, and he opened his mouth.

"You"— he began.

"Keep still," said his mother, shaking her stick, while the grandmother applied the poultice.

Once more the little fellow opened his mouth.

"I"—

But the uplifted switch awed him into silence.

In a minute more the poultice was firmly in place, and the boy was tucked in bed.

"There, now," said his mother. "The old sliver will be drawn out, and Eddie's foot will be all well."

The mother and grandmother were moving triumphantly away when a shrill voice piped from under the bedclothes:

"You've got it on the wrong foot."

Stevenson's Pity For Beggars.

Stevenson's pity was a very marked quality, and it extended to beggars, which is, I think, to go too far. His optimism, however, suffered a rude shock in South Audley street one summer afternoon. We met a stalwart beggar, whom I refused to aid. Louis, however, wavered and finally handed him sixpence. The man pocketed the coin, forbore to thank his benefactor, but fixing his eye on me said in a loud voice, "And what is the other little gentleman going to give me?" "In future," said Louis as we strode coldly on, "I shall be the other 'little gentleman.'"—"Personal Memories of Stevenson," by Edmund Gosse, in Century.

Sir John Millais.

It is said of Sir John Millais, the artist, that, given a short brier wood pipe, a comfortable chair, and a pack of cards with which to play "patience," he is serenely satisfied with existence for the time being. Millais is one of the rare prodigies who attained distinction in later life. He won a medal for drawing when only 9, and at 11 he was a student of the Royal Academy of Arts. In the fullness of his fame he is a man of surprisingly simple tastes and habits.

In the year 1738 that master of theatrical art, Colley Cibber, wrote, "He that feels not himself the passion he would raise will talk to a sleeping audience."

In 764 the cold at Constantinople was so severe that the Black sea was frozen for 50 miles from shore.

SWITHIN BROS.,

Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

Little Things

if they are little wrongs, lead to a large wrongness. Backache is a little thing—not a very serious thing, in itself. It is often overlooked because it is so slight—it may come day after day and not be bad enough to cause any anxiety. The smallest kind of a Backache means coming illness—probably Kidney trouble.

HE MADE SKELETONS.

Victims of Holmes Were Disposed of on His Own Premises.

Mystery of Pitzel's Death Once More "Explained."

Arch Conspirator Gives a Detailed Story of the Occurrence.

CHICAGO, July 30.—The search of the Holmes building was prosecuted yesterday on the information given to the police by M. G. Chappell, who says that he articulated the skeletons of three of the supposed victims of H. H. Holmes. Chappell told the police that Holmes had two vats in the cellar. One, he said, was in the southeast corner, and the other in the southwest corner of the rear cellar. They had since been walled up, he said. One of the vats, according to Chappell's statement, was used as a vessel in which the flesh was eaten from the bones by the use of acids. The other was for the purpose of bleaching the bones.

Twelve laborers worked all day yesterday digging out the two corners designated by Chappell, and were about to give up the search as unsuccessful, when one of the men at work on the southeast corner struck his spade against something which gave forth a metallic sound. The metal object proved to be a huge tank in the shape of a boiler. It was located just outside of the cellar wall and its top was four feet from the ground's surface. Work for the night was stopped before the tank was fully uncovered, but apparently it is eight feet long and three feet in diameter.

A number of bones were found in the basement, some of which Dr. Robinson pronounced parts of a human frame. The mixture of human bones and butcher shop refuse is a peculiar feature of several of the finds that puzzles the police.

It is probable that all the secret passages and rooms in Holmes' house will soon be revealed, as a brick mason who claims to have done all the queer work about the place has offered to tell all he knows. He was taken care of by the police, and is expected to prove an important witness.

The police secured yesterday a skeleton they believe to be one of the alleged victims of Holmes. M. G. Chappell, who claimed to have articulated several skeletons for Holmes, took two detectives to the house of a West Side physician, where a complete skeleton was found. Chappell says that he got the bones from Holmes, and from the dates and other evidence the police believe the skeleton to be that of Miss Cigrand, the Indiana girl. It had been sold to the Hahnemann Medical college by Holmes, the police claim. This find makes two of the three skeletons which Chappell claims to have articulated for Holmes, and the police are in hopes of finding the third very shortly.

HOLMES' LATEST.

A Friend Peddles Out a Yarn Concerning the Death of Pitzel.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—The Bulletin prints the following: An entirely new statement has just been made by H. H. Holmes, the supposed murderer of the Pitzel children. In it the man of many crimes gives in detail his version of how Pitzel came by his death last September, and also states his (Holmes) connection with the tragedy. The statement was given to a close friend of Holmes in Philadelphia, who gave it to a Bulletin representative.

Holmes says that on the Saturday night preceding the death of Pitzel, the latter came to his house on North Eleventh street, where he was staying with "Mrs. Howard." Pitzel told Holmes a heart-rending story of his pecuniary difficulties and of the sickness of his daughter in St. Louis. "I must have money," he said, or words to that effect, "to send to my wife in St. Louis." Holmes remonstrated with Pitzel as to his spendthrift habits.

This conversation is said to have been carried on along Eleventh street. Pitzel exclaimed: "I am of no benefit to any one. I will soon get rid of my difficulties. Life has become a nuisance to me."

Holmes then avers he jokingly remarked to Pitzel: "Well, your body is as good as any other, but I wouldn't advise you to do anything rash." Holmes accounts for his remarks by saying that he and Pitzel had under consideration the defrauding of the Fidelity Mutual Insurance company.

Holmes says Pitzel then became angry, and again avowed that he would commit suicide. Holmes then explains that Pitzel left him with the intention of going home. Holmes says he gave Pitzel no money that night, but promised to meet him at the Callowhill street house the following morning.

It was about 10 o'clock the following day (Sunday), Holmes goes on to say, that he went to visit Pitzel at the Callowhill street house. When he reached the place no one apparently was about. Holmes sat in the kitchen for almost 20 minutes, waiting for Pitzel to appear.

Time wore on, and the conspirator says that he became anxious about his friend's whereabouts, and began to search the house for Pitzel. He came across a note from Benjamin Pitzel that advised him that his (Pitzel's) dead body could be found in the house. The letter pleaded that Holmes look after Pitzel's children, and suggested that there would be no difficulty in getting the insurance money from the Fidelity company now that the dead body of Pitzel could be produced in evidence.

Holmes then told his friend of the appearance of the corpse, and said that he sat in the room with the body for over an hour. He hardly knew what course to pursue. He finally made up his mind that since Pitzel had taken his life there would be no harm in destroying any evidence of suicide, so that he might be able to get the insurance.

Holmes has confessed that he thereupon dragged the dead body to the second floor, laid the corpse on the floor, pried open the mouth of the dead man with a pencil and poured in a quantity of explosive chemicals. He then, he says, placed a lighted match to the man's mouth, when the explosion, which so horribly disfigured the corpse, followed.

To give the more forcible impression that Pitzel came to his death by an accidental explosion, Holmes states that he got a pipe of Pitzel's, filled it with tobacco, lighted it, then blew out the flame after the tobacco had been partly consumed, and placed the pipe beside the dead man's body.

It was nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Holmes states, before he left the Callowhill street house. He put on a hat of Pitzel's to partially conceal his identity, and placed his own hat, which was of felt, under his coat. Holmes at once made preparations to leave the city. He and his wife, he alleges, left for Chicago that night.

It is understood that if the prosecution conclude to indict Holmes for the murder of Pitzel in Philadelphia, they will produce a witness who, it is said, heard the conversation between Holmes and Pitzel on that eventful evening, when the latter threatened to do away with his life.

A CLOSE CONTEST.

Phillies Braced Up In the Ninth and Defeated the Bostons.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—The Phillies celebrated their return from the west by beating Boston in a very interesting game. The score was 6 to 5 in Boston's favor, when Boyle opened the ninth inning with a little pop fly, which looked a sure thing for Nash, but the Boston captain made a muff of it. Errors by other members of the Boston team gave the game to the home club.

More Graveyard Insurance.

MOOREHEAD CITY, N. C., July 30.—The noted graveyard insurance conspiracy existing at Beaufort came up for legal investigation before a justice of the peace here today. A number of alleged conspirators are under arrest. It will require a week or more to take evidence of 50 or more witnesses to be examined. It appears that there has been a conspiracy for some years to swindle insurance companies, and the charge is that the local agents, examiners and others have been working together.

Reserve Well Protected.

NEW YORK, July 30.—It is announced that on Friday last the government bond syndicate deposited with the sub-treasury $2,000,000 in gold in exchange for legal tenders. This was done for the purpose of making good to the treasury the amount of gold withdrawn by various persons for shipments to Europe and other places during the month. This deposit brings the government gold balance up to the highest point reached since the syndicate has completed its payments on account of bonds.

Strong Anti-European Feeling In Madagascar.

TANANARIVO, Madagascar, July 30.—The government is secretly making overtures for peace; but, fearing a revolution, is massing troops outside the capital and declaring its intention of resisting the French to the death. The anti-European feeling is increasing. The British consul enjoins the British residents to go to the coast, as a native preacher has tried to incite the Hovas to massacre the British.

Preparing For a Fresh Attack.

HAVANA, July 30.—It is asserted here that Antonio Maceo, at the head of 6000 insurgents, is attacking the town of Jiguani, near Bayamo, in the province of Santiago de Cuba. General Lachambre, with 2000 troops, has gone to the relief of Jiguani. No further details are obtainable at present.

St. Louis Flooded.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—During a thunderstorm yesterday the rain fell in sheets, flooding the streets and sewers of the West End and doing considerable damage. A strong wind broke many trees, and two brick houses in course of erection were completely demolished.

Lived Long Enough.

BROOKLYN, July 30.—William J. Cornell, a well-known commission merchant of this city, killed himself yesterday afternoon by putting a couple of bullets into his head. Cornell's wife and daughter say they knew of no cause whatever for suicide.

STRIKE IS SPREADING.

Sixteen Thousand Garment Workers Idle In New York and Vicinity.

Clash of Union and Non-Union Men In Brooklyn.

Police Promptly Arrive and Many Rioters Are Now Nursing Wounds.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The strike of the Brotherhood of Tailors is now in full swing. Over 16,000 hands are out, and include operators, buttonhole makers, tailors, finishers, pressers, bushelers, basters, fillers and thread pullers. Of the total number on strike, 8000 were until yesterday employed in this city. The balance were employed in Brooklyn and other surrounding cities.

The strikers contend that 1000 workmen here were locked out by 80 contractors, and that the contractors failed to carry out an agreement entered into last fall, when piece work was abolished. Meyer Schoenfeld, the general organizer of the United Garment Workers, who led the Brotherhood of Tailors in their successful strike last fall, is directing the strikers' movement and is sanguine of success.

"The strike was forced upon us," said Mr. Schoenfeld, "but we will win, as we did last year. We then agreed to a week of 60 hours, with a minimum scale of wages, ranging from $9 to $15 a week. We now demand a 59-hour week, as all our members are Hebrews, and we require an hour on Friday night to do necessary shopping to prepare for the due observance of our Sabbath. Our men in Chicago, Baltimore and Boston will also strike and insist on the same hours as we do."

The strikers are most determined; the women, who number a third of those now unemployed, being as steadfast in their refusal to go back to task work as the men.

A mass meeting of the strikers was held yesterday afternoon at Walhalla hall. The proceedings were orderly.

Rioting, Attended With Bloodshed, occurred yesterday in the Hebrew colony on Siegel street, Brooklyn, caused by some of the striking tailors attempting to prevent non-union men from working.

One hundred and seventy-three tailors went out yesterday morning from the two establishments at 52 and 54 Siegel street, and when a few non-union men applied for work they were pushed away. A large crowd soon assembled. Some of the non-union men were beaten when they insisted on trying to enter the shop, and as they ran away, one or two of them bleeding, an alarming report spread that many persons were killed.

The police reserves of the sixth precinct were soon on hand, and they charged the crowd. Some of the strikers were hurt in the sharp skirmish, but were taken away by the retreating strikers. During the riot a number of shots were fired by the rioters, but no one was seriously hurt. This was about 10:45 o'clock, and the police went back to the station house, leaving everything quiet.

Fifteen minutes after the departure of the police, 30 strikers who went out yesterday from the shop of S. Challs at 91 Ewen street, aided by many other strikers, began an attack on Challs' shop and a few non-union workmen. They were wrecking the place when the police reserves ran to the scene and scattered the crowd.

A Mrs. Silverstein of 91 Ewen street, whose room was broken into by the strikers, had her scalp cut open with a pitcher. There were no other cases of serious injury. Dozens of the strikers and their friends were seen with hands and heads bound up, evidently from being clubbed.

A Knight of Labor began an argument with a number of the strikers in a saloon adjoining Walhalla hall. He was at once set on and badly beaten. A squad of police was quickly on the scene, but the mob disappeared before any arrests were made.

A small riot also occurred outside the tailor shop of Jacobs & Sons, Grand and Orchard streets, where several non-union men are employed. The strikers threatened to do up the "Boss" and the "Scabs." When their manifestations of violence became apparent, they were driven off by the police.

Student Pease's Observations.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—L. F. Pease, a member of the Princeton Geological expedition, which was a week ago reported as captured by the Bannock Indians, has arrived in this city. He says the first news of the Bannock troubles reached the expedition at Dubois, and caused them to change their route, and instead of going north over the Black Rock trail, which passed through Jackson's Hole, they set out for the park over an entirely new trail, thus avoiding the Indians.

Invitations Accepted.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The Chickamauga Park commission has received notice of the contemplated attendance of 20 governors of states, with their staffs, at the dedication. The state commissions of 26 states are also expected.

Pushing It Along.

COLON, July 30.—A director of the Panama canal announces that 6000 laborers are required for working the incompleted interoceanic waterway, and that the wages to be paid are $1.20 a day in Colombia currency.

Gloucester Boat Ashore.

HALIFAX, July 30. — The Gloucester (Mass.) schooner Mary Fernald, Captain Diggins, from banks, with 40,000 fish, went ashore last night near Whitehead, and will likely be a total loss. The crew were saved.

Steamship Ashore.

HALIFAX, July 30.—The iron steamer Masonic is ashore near St. Pierre. She lies in a dangerous position, but if it continues fine she may be floated.

WALKER STREET EXTENSION.

Another Cloud Dispelled and Work Progressing.

There were those at Atlantic, Monday, who expected to see a little fun on Walker street, but it did not take place. It seems that last week Mr. Larkins, some of whose land was to be taken by the city in extending Walker street, forbid the workmen going upon his property and in such a manner that it was thought there would be trouble if the workmen commenced operations there. It was, however, decided to commence work upon his land Monday morning, and when 7 o'clock struck Commissioner Eaton was on hand and he was backed up by Chief of Police Hayden and Inspector McKay and a score or more spectators. There was no trouble, however, and the officers of the law soon took their departure.

SING AT THE BEACH.

A Very Enjoyable Entertainment In Aid of Chapel.

A very pleasing musicale was given at Houghs Neck Monday evening at the Union Chapel on Bay View avenue, under the auspices of several well known ladies of the beach for the benefit of the chapel.

The attendance was quite large and the concert was an excellent one and well worthy of the applause which greeted each number.

Miss Taylor, Miss Tuckerman, Miss Sargent, and Miss Gray officiated as ushers and the front of the platform was banked with potted plants.

The concert opened with a selection by an orchestra which was followed by a solo by Miss Lillian Louise Lawton, and a piano duet by Miss Alice M. Packard and Miss Addie Morrell.

Miss Gertrude Dymond followed with the beautiful soprano solo, "Se Laran."

In the absence of Miss Elliot, who was to have given a reading, the orchestra gave another selection. Miss Dymond and Mrs. Hughes then gave a duet entitled, "O Salutaris."

A beautiful guitar solo entitled, "Angels Serenade," was given by Miss Mary E. Shepard.

Miss Marguerite Owen followed with a reading, entitled "A voice from the poorhouse," and Miss Grace M. Isaac gave one of her pleasing soprano solo with a violin obligato.

The next number was a piano duet, entitled "Minstrels Serenade," which was rendered by Miss H. W. Lawton and Miss Edna Cowling.

Miss Alice Maynard then gave a reading, Miss Dymond a Spanish Bolero song, and the entertainment closed with a selection by the orchestra.

The whole affair was a complete success and Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Tuckerman who had charge of the arrangements, deserve to be complimented upon their success, as quite a sum will be netted.

HOTEL GUEST INJURED.

Fell Backwards on Stone Steps and Rendered Unconscious.

Mrs. Dowd of New York, an elderly lady stopping at The Greenleaf, met with quite a serious accident Monday. In company with another lady and two children, they had been on the property of the Presidents' Hill Real Estate Trust on Presidents' hill and were returning to the hotel.

As Mrs. Dowd was coming down the steps leading from the property to Goffe street she fell and the back of her head came violently in contact with the steps rendering her unconscious.

Officer Ferguson who had been notified procured a carriage and removed her to the hotel where she was attended by Dr. Dion who happened to be passing.

It was quite late Monday night before she regained consciousness. This morning she was reported as being comfortable and will probably recover.

SERIOUS FALL.

Stage in Congregational Church Gives Way This Morning.

Charles Sullivan, one of the decorators at work at the Congregational church, received quite a serious fall this morning.

He was at work on the staging near the organ when one of the cross sticks of the staging broke and that part of it came down with a crash. Sullivan was unable to save himself and he fell about eighteen feet stricking on the brass rail that surrounds the choir, bending it almost double.

Fortunately no bones were broken but it is not known yet whether he sustained any internal injuries or not. A carriage was obtained and he was removed to his home.

Sullivan has been unfortunate, for a short time ago he received a bad fall at Johnson's lumber wharf from the effects of which he had hardly recovered.

TODAY'S COURT.

James H. Lewis of Quincy was arraigned for assault on Calvin Hersom and was fined $15. Appealed.

Lewis Shatzel was arraigned for keeping an unlicensed dog at Quincy and fined $15.

George Brinnon and Edward Haynes were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

A day of accidents.

Delightful weather for comfort.

Miss Edna Miller is visiting in Brockton.

J. C. Dorgan is on a two weeks' vacation.

John A. Duggan and family are at Cottage City.

Mrs. William Keyes of Wollaston is at South Harpswell, Me.

Bert Bennett of Newbury avenue has gone to Providence, R. I.

Gus. B. Bates and family have returned from a visit to Woods Holl.

Matthew Harding has moved from Roxbury to Squantum street.

Mrs. L. A. Bassett of Atlantic has gone to Cottage City for the summer.

The high wind today makes the dust fly in clouds. Will it cause more rain?

The moonlight excursions on the steamer City of Quincy begin tomorrow night.

Mrs. Abar of Faxon road has returned from a month's visit to New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sprague of Wollaston have returned from their trip to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Craig of Adams place leave today for a short visit in New York state.

Mrs. L. Livingston is to move from Neponset to her cottage on Squantum street.

Mrs. Gilbert S. Hallowell of Appleton street with her two sons have gone to Nova Scotia.

Mrs. William Briggs, Miss Beatrice Briggs and Miss Fannie Hazes of Atlantic are at Buzzards Bay.

The Quincy sewerage matter did not come up at the meeting of the Boston aldermen on Monday.

John Vogel of West Quincy has been appointed deputy high chief ranger of Quincy court of Foresters.

Saturday the Tigers defeated the Young Institutes 20 to 19, and on Monday they defeated the Quincy Reds 10 to 2.

Mr. John Phelan of School street is confined to the house by a painful wound in his foot caused by stepping on a rusty nail.

Hop at the Quincy Yacht Club house on Friday evening. The moon and high tide will add greatly to the picturesqueness of the scene.

Ex-Councilman Harry W. Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Coe of Atlantic were registered at the Glen Cove House, Onset bay, last week.

The closing of the stores may not be as general as usual on Grocers' day, as some of the ladies object because they are not invited to the outing.

George E. Roberts of Norfolk Downs arrested for robbing the mails in the Boston post office, was held for the United States grand jury in September in $1000 bonds.

The Atlantic Memorial church will hold a lawn party this evening on the corner of Billings street and Newbury avenue. The Atlantic band will be present and give a concert.

The reputation of the Columbus band has extended to Nantasket, and it has an engagement to play at the Surfside House on Sunday. You can get a good shore dinner at this hotel.

One by one Norfolk Downs is getting the improvements and conveniences. The latest is a barber who has had the courage to open shop in the new Miller block near the depot.

The officers who were appointed to look after unlicensed dogs have commenced to get in their work and the first victim was taken into court this morning and fined $15 for his neglect.

A party of young ladies from Holbrook are camping this week at Quincy Point, viz: Carrie Hodge, Mabel Townsend, Mabel Brown, Ina Hodge, Laila Staples and Minnie Leach.

The Sunday School and preaching service of the Norfolk Downs Union society have been discontinued for the summer, but praise services will be held each Sunday by the Christian Endeavor and Epworth League.

Atlantic fears that it has a fire-bug. Last Friday evening a barrel of old rags was discovered to be on fire in the cellar of John Donovan's house on Newbury street and two hours later the fence about his house was also discovered to be on fire.

The Quincy parish will hold its annual picnic at Lovell's grove on Wednesday, August 14. A meeting of the gentlemen of the parish was held Monday evening and the committees appointed. Prominent features this year will be a grand bicycle race and a base ball game for the supremacy of Quincy, for a purse of $50. Another meeting will be held at the same place on Thursday evening.

Xaviers, 8; West Quincys, 6.

The ninth innings seems to be the fatal one for the West Quincys, for on Saturday the Xaviers made three runs and won in the ninth by a score of 8 to 6. Drake and Poak were the battery for the home club and did some fine work. Score by innings:

Xaviers	2	0	0	0	0	2	1	0	3	—8
West Quincy	0	0	2	1	1	0	2	0	0	—6

MRS. CORBETT FREE.

Referee Grants Her an Absolute Divorce From "Gentleman" Jim.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Referee Jacobs has decided that Mrs. Ollie Corbett is entitled to an absolute divorce from her husband, James J. Corbett.

MRS. CORBETT.

With reference to the question of allmony, Referee Jacobs says that that was a matter which both sides have agreed to among themselves. He recommended that Corbett's agreement to pay his wife $100 a week be adopted.

No Startling News.

MOODEY CREEK, Ida., July 30.—Two men who left Jackson's Hole on Friday evening have reached the troops in camp here. They say the situation when they left was not alarming. Scouts sent out from Fort Cunningham, at the head of Jackson's Hole, where part of the settlers were encamped, experienced no difficulty in getting out of the Jackson's Hole country, and were not molested and did not see any Indians.

Defender Outsails the Vigilant.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., July 30.—The race yesterday off Glenn Cove was sailed by representative yachts of the New York Yacht club, for three cups offered by Commodore Brown, one for 90-footers, another for all other sloops racing together as one class, and another for all schooners as one class. Defender and Vigilant, by agreement, waived measurements. The latter crossed the starting line 2 seconds ahead, and was beaten by 1m. 42s. Wasp won the smaller sloop class cup, and Amorita the schooner cup.

Artful Russians.

VIENNA, July 30.—A telegram from Bucharest reports that the Russian Danube Navigation company's vessels are fully armed and equipped with disguised Russian soldiers and officers, who are landed on the Bulgarian shore near Lompalanka, en route to Macedonia, in just the same way that the conveyance of Russian volunteers to Bulgaria began in 1876. It is also said that a well-known Russo-Bulgarian millionaire deputy is assisting the Macedonian insurgents.

Balloon Expedition Assured.

LONDON, July 30.—M. Andree has secured the sanction of the Swedish scientific society to his balloon project, and has received a liberal donation to defray expenses from King Oscar of Sweden. Sufficient funds have, in fact, been obtained, and the attempt is assured, but M. Andree naturally desired the approval of so authoritative a body as the International Geographical congress.

Heat and Flood.

BERLIN, July 30.—Tropical heat of the past few days have been followed by thunderstorms and deluges of rain and hail. Much damage to crops has resulted. Houses were unroofed, and cattle and men were injured by lightning. The tropical heat has caused numerous sunstrokes in Austria and Italy.

Two Laborers Killed.

YONKERS, N. Y., July 30.—Just as a gang of men quit work last night on the Jackson-street sewer an embankment caved in, burying a number of them. Pierre Conatassio and Dominico Federico were killed. The other men escaped with slight injuries.

Pitman Appealed.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 30.—Jesse Pitman, who stabbed John F. Rice, was yesterday sentenced to the house of correction for one year. He appealed and was held in $1000. Rice wished to have leniency shown Pitman by acknowledging satisfaction.

Baltic Canal Boycotted.

BERLIN, July 30.—The Vossische Zeitung, commenting on the small number of English ships passing through the canal, asserts that British shipowners have formed a close ring to boycott the canal in order to force a reduction of the tolls.

His Conscience Relieved.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 30.—Charles Singo, stepfather of the two Findley children who were murdered March 18, confessed yesterday he was an eyewitness to his wife murdering the children, and says he could hold the secret no longer.

A Precious Pair.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. July 30.—Maud Ellsworth, aged 60, and her little granddaughter, both attired in men's garb, are under arrest. The former had several articles in her possession which were admitted to have been stolen.

Ample Warning.

LYNN, Mass., July 30.—Judge Berry has notified liquor dealers that the law prohibiting the sale of liquor to persons who have been convicted of intoxication within six months must be enforced.

Enjoyed Fine Weather.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 30.—President Cleveland, Secretary Lamont and E. C. Benedict spent the greater part of yesterday on the bay sailing. The weather was delightful.

Didn't Obey the Law.

NASHUA, N. H., July 30.—The first prosecutions under the new law were made yesterday, when four milk dealers paid $5 each for failing to register with the milk inspector.

A Tramp's Fate.

NORTH GROSVENORDALE, Conn., July 30.—The body of a man, supposedly a tramp, was found in a hole a mile north of here yesterday. It was a case of accidental drowning.

Slow Work.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—The work of securing a jury in the Durant case proceeds slowly. Of 30 examined yesterday, none were accepted.

A Government Victory.

PARIS, July 30.—The complete defeat of the Socialists in the council election is considered a victory for the government.

New Ministry For Chili.

SANTIAGO, July 30.—A new ministry has been formed under the presidency of Manuel Recabarren.

Chamber Furniture.

There's all the difference in the world in chamber fittings, and it requires a critical eye to select the furnishings that are not only attractive and serviceable, but those that will add to your happiness, so that the last glance at night and the first in the morning will be suggestive of the sunny side of life. The true sense of economy has never been so readily shown as in our Chamber Furnishings. From the most attractive white iron beds with a cool straw matting for the floor and light, airy lace draperies, to the more substantial oak chamber sets of newest designs, we have a line that is worthy the inspection of any who need these goods. Prices guaranteed to be unequalled for lowness by any other furniture house in the State.

SWITHIN BROS.,
Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

Quincy, June 11—tf

QUINCY GRANITE

Favored for Hancock Memorial But Not Selected.

The memorial to John Hancock, the first Governor of Massachusetts under the Constitution, it seems is not to be erected without a protest against the design selected says the Post.

The Legislature of '94 passed a resolve appropriating $3000 for a memorial to mark the grave of John Hancock in the Granary Burial Ground.

Representative Robert Teamoh introduced the resolve. It was passed in both houses and was among the first measures signed by Governor Greenhalge.

The matter was next referred to a committee of the Executive Council, and a committee was appointed, of which Lieutenant-Governor Wolcott was chairman.

Designs were called for and quite a number were selected, but to the surprise of the advocates of the memorial, the committee, instead of making a selection on its own account, called in Mr. Charles M. McKim of New York to decide which was the best design.

Mr. J. A. Schweinfurth's design was the one finally selected, and now it seems a protest is to made with the executive against its erection.

Objection is made to the design selected because it resembles much the original Attucks monument. Another objection is that it lacks artistic worth, and again others seem to believe that it would have been far more appropriate if, instead of selecting Tennessee marble for its construction, Quincy granite was chosen.

That the committee should have allowed Architect McKim to have made the selection is also a puzzler to some people, for that gentleman has not made himself at all popular hereabouts. The objection to the famous Public Library acrostics and later his management of the opening of that building have certainly not increased the number of Mr. McKim's friends in this city, and hence the wonder expressed that any committee should have turned over to him the work of selecting a design.

It is given out that there were a number of more tasteful designs submitted, and one of them, the work of McDonnell & Sons of Quincy. Mr. Thomas H. McDonnell, when seen by a Post reporter, declared that it seemed very strange to him that the committee could not have made a selection on its own account, particularly in view of the fact that Architect McKim had already been subjected by the people of Boston to more or less criticism.

Mr. McDonnell also declared that to his mind Quincy granite would have been much more preferable than Tennessee marble, since Hancock's birthplace was in Quincy.

"I suppose," said Mr. McDonnell, "that the Boston public had had quite enough of McKim, and when I submitted my design I thought the committee would judge of it and not Mr. McKim. Also I should have known better than to have gone to any trouble in preparing and submitting a suitable memorial."

Whether the Executive Council of this year will take any action in the matter or not it's hard to say, but at all events one prominent architect has come forward who says he is willing to furnish a bond of $500 to put up the design chosen for something less than $2000, which is more than a third less than it will cost when completed.

A protest will probably be entered with the Executive Council at its next meeting, whether it will avail anything or not.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

MASS CELEBRATED

On the Anniversary of the Death of Miss Teresa Fegan.

Saturday being the anniversary of the death of Miss Teresa Fegan, who was loved and respected by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, a solemn requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Mary's church, Newton Upper Falls, Monday morning. Rev. T. J. Danahy pastor, friend and spiritual director of the deceased, was celebrant, Rev. Fr. Flannigan of Stoneham, deacon; Rev. Fr. Fengan of Hopkinton, a brother of the deceased, sub-deacon; Rev. Fr. Reardon, assistant to the pastor, master of ceremonies. The mass was sung by friends of the deceased, assisted by the sisters from the convent at Wellesley.

After the mass Rev. Fr. Danahy delivered a touching and beautiful eulogy on the pure life of the departed, a life, said the reverend father, that even a religious person might copy. Her purity, gentleness, humility and simplicity were her crowning virtues, and was a shining example in the community where she lived and labored for the church and Sunday school, in whose service the best years of her life was spent. Her life, said Fr. Danahy, was short but a glorious one, and this occasion should not be a sorrowful one, but one of joy, for we feel that she is now enjoying the reward of a pure and holy life.

A delegation of friends from Quincy and Boston assisted at the mass. After the services Fr. Danahy, one of the most generous of hosts, entertained the visitors at the parochial residence. At 12 30 dinner was served which was very much enjoyed. The rest of the day was pleasantly spent. At 5 P. M., the party received the blessing of Frs. Danahy and Flannigan and departed for their respective homes.

New Magazines.

The first article in the New England Magazine for August is devoted to the planet Mars, which is at present the peculiar point of interest with the astronomers. The description of the new building of the Boston Public Library published in a recent number of the New England is followed in the present number by a thorough and interesting history of the library from its foundation, by Mr. Edmund J. Carpenter, and the article is enriched by many rare illustrations. An illustrated article upon "Machias in the Revolution and Afterward" is another of the charming articles upon historic old New England towns, which give to the New England Magazine so strong a local interest.

The August Table Talk opens with an article on the "Kitchen Garden—Its Origin and Growth," from the pen of Emily Huntington, the originator of Kitchen Gardens. "Ourselves as others see us," by Mrs. Burton Kingsland an able domestic writer; and the "Housekeepers Inquiry" Department, is filled to overflowing with recipes suited to the summer months.

Accident to Excursionist.

Miss Mabel Perry, of 46 Washington street, met with quite a serious accident Monday afternoon. She had been to Nantasket and returned home on the 5.30 boat. When the boat arrived at Quincy Point, the barge Clifford was tied to the wharf and the City of Quincy made fast to the barge and the passengers had to pass through the barge to the wharf. As Miss Perry was about to pass from the Clifford to the wharf she tripped over a rod, or something of the kind, and put out her right hand to save herself in her fall. The result was that she tore the ligements of the elbow making a very painful injury. She was taken to her home and Dr. Gilbert summoned who dressed the injury.

A Well Deserved Compliment.

Here's a compliment which the proprietor of the Phenix pharmacy received the other day, of which he may well feel proud, and which has the unusual merit of being well deserved.

A well known lady was overheard saying to a friend, "Yes, now I get all I need in the drug line at Mr. Pastor's pharmacy, because I know that I may place implicit confidence in his skill and capability, and then you know it is not everybody that is so willing to oblige as the owner of the Phenix."

This, we say, is a compliment to be really proud of.

ON THE MOUNTAIN.

A storm from the mountain is coming,
With lightning and thunder and rain;
The wind is sweeping and humming
In the butternut trees on the plain.

The cloud is ebon that follows,
The fore cloud is livid and pale,
There's the flash and the tossing of swallows
In the turn of the eddying gale.

And the rain is awake on the mountain;
'Tis lashing the forest afar
With fall of a shattering fountain
And the tramp and the tumult of war;

With the drums of the detoning thunder,
And the clang in the bugles of wind,
With the gonfalons tortured asunder
By the rush of the host from behind.

The plains are leaping with shadows,
The highlands go out like a blot,
And over the eddying meadows
The rain is hurtled like shot.

The darkness is glooming and brightening,
There is alternate chaos and form,
With the parry and thrust of the lightning
In the turbulent heart of the storm.

* * * * * * *

Now the storm is over,
And the greener plain
Seems to glow and hover
Through the thinning rain.

Now the wind is gusty
In the maple tops,
Striking out the lusty
Storms of gleaming drops.

Now the goldfinch whistles
In his spattered vest,
Balanced on the thistles,
Bolder than the best.

And the hermit thrushes,
On the sparkling hills,
Link the dripping hushes
With their silver thrills.

FRIENDLY.

Annabel had many friends among men. "What cant it is to say friendship between man and woman is impossible!" she would cry, with flashing eyes. "What degrading cant!" with a flushing cheek. She liked the society of men. They gave her a new outlook on life. She would enjoy it if they confided their love affairs to her. So she said. Somehow they had not as yet given her that enjoyment. She was 22, with a piquant face and figure and a man of the world style of conversation that half veiled an unfathomable innocence.

It was a hot evening early in June, and one of Annabel's friends had dropped in. They were sitting together in the miniature veranda, discussing a subject they had often discussed before.

"One comfort about my man to man style of friendship," said Annabel, "one great comfort, is that one needn't be eternally bothering about one's looks and that sort of thing, when one wants to have a rational conversation. I don't know anything more aggravating than to talk one's best talk to a man, as I did out at dinner the other day, and to find him obviously speculating as to whether one's hair's all one's own. Now, I don't think you or any other of my special chums would even notice if I wore a sack when you came to see me. That's so refreshing."

"It is," said the friend. "For instance, some girls would be dreadfully put out if their shoe had a little hole in it, just at the tip, when a man was there. But you"—

"Where?" and Annabel jumped off her lounge chair with one bound and passed her pretty feet under agonized inspection. For one with whom appearance was "no object" she was wonderfully shod.

"I'm so sorry," said her friend. "I didn't mean to imply that you had a hole in your shoe. Only that if you had it wouldn't trouble you in the least."

"But it would," said Annabel, with dignity. "I never said one would care to exhibit slovenliness to one's friends. And a hole would be slovenly."

They smoked in silence.

"How do you define a man's friendship for a woman?" he inquired, after the pause had lasted a long while.

Annabel took her time before answering.

"I think," she replied at last rather slowly, "it means having her interests at heart so much that they could never bore you—so that her pain or happiness would always be to you almost more than your own. You would never hear her lightly spoken of. You would save her all you could. You would let nothing of hers be injured. Where you could you would put velvet between her and the rough things of the world, as Carlyle said."

"Yes, but he spoke of his wife."

Annabel did not seem to hear the words. She was looking over the roofs, the appallingly uniform roofs of West Kensington, to where a golden haze hung in the sky and wonderful dream music was being played and then blown into the balcony on a little soft June breeze. The gold sky was the light of the great dusty exhibition, full of rowdy Whitsuntide revelers, and the music was blaring from a brass band. But distance and the summer and the quiet hour caught it all up and left nothing of it but what was beautiful. It made Annabel feel restless.

"I'm going in," she said suddenly, springing to her feet. "Here goes for lighting the lamp." And she whisked into her little drawing room with a movement anything but dreamy.

Her friend followed resignedly, though he had been very comfortable where he was. He was quite used to Annabel's frequent changes of mood, and by indulging in no such himself he was often able to tire her out and to get down to the forlorn little entity behind the many poses.

The lamp was a high concern on bamboo poles and quite beyond the reach of Annabel's 5 feet of height. She got a low chair and prepared to climb upon it.

"One moment," said her companion gravely. "We have decided that it is right to protect all that belongs to our friend. Now, this chair belongs to mine, and will be more or less injured by being stood upon, even by her. Therefore"—and he lifted her up.

After one furious and unavailing twitch Annabel settled to the situation with surprising ease. She lit the lamp and adjusted its red shade and said "Thank you" with great demureness when he set her down.

They got themselves into two armchairs, but she seemed to find conversation something of an effort.

"Friendship has many advantages over—the other thing," he said at last.

"Yes?"

"Yes. It has far less obligation about it. Now, one takes an interest in one's friend's work. How's it getting on, by the way?"

"Oh, much as usual!" said Annabel. "But one doesn't feel it weighing on one's mind that she should have to work at all. Now, with one's sweetheart how different! She should sit all day in silk attire and cross her little hands in her lap if she liked. The wind should not be allowed to blow too roughly on her. Ridiculous, wouldn't it be?"

"Degrading," said Annabel stoutly.

"Just so. Degrading. Then there's that absurd notion that women want taking care of. With one's friend the fiction doesn't have to be kept up. She goes alone to theaters and meets one at the door, and there's no nonsense about having to see her home. She takes her own bus and off she goes. Now, if she were—not one's friend, she shouldn't go one step by herself. There would always be a tedious male creature at her side elbowing off the passersby and taking every unnecessary care of her. Sounds oppressive, doesn't it?"

"Yes," said Annabel. A little wistfulness had crept into her voice and some of the sturdiness had faded.

"Then there's not that terrible demand for sympathy. One expects one's friend to fit in with one's own particular mood, just as one picks up a book that chimes in with it. If she doesn't happen to suit one day, off one goes. It isn't necessarily on one's mind that she may be in trouble of her own, or, if she is, she can say so. There's no need for the 'I will die ere she shall grieve' business."

He hummed the words with a ludicrous exaggeration. Annabel shrank a little. She ridiculed sentiment in public and cherished it as deeply in her heart as every other clever little feminine fool in the world.

"Now, with one's sweetheart," he said, watching her, "one can tell she is sad while she is still smiling her welcome. One knows every little trick of expression—almost every thought behind the curls. There's no going off then without comforting. Out it must all come, and she must be petted into happiness again. Doesn't it sound puerile?"

No answer from Annabel. The band at the exhibition was playing a particularly vulgar comic song. It came in at the window softened to a melody straight from paradise.

He thought he heard a little sigh. He came and leaned over the back of her chair.

"The mutual society, help and comfort the one ought to have of the other, both in prosperity and adversity," he said, speaking low. "How does that sound, Annabel?"

No answer.

He knelt down by her chair and got hold of both her hot, small hands.

"How does that sound—my dear?"

"It sounds sweet," she said in a voice that was only a breath. But he heard.

* * * * * * *

"Is it as sweet as it sounds?" he asked.

That was long after, however.—New Budget.

The Circular Saw.

A correspondent states that the circular saw was first invented in America by a combmaker named Hartshorn, who used a common handsaw to saw out the horn between the teeth, thus forming one of those old fashioned horn combs.

Finally, thinking it rather a slow process, he took what used to be called a "Bungtown copper," filed it down thinner, drilled a hole through its center, then squared the hole and cut the teeth around its outer edge, placed it upon a mandrel true and permanent, then put it into his lathe, and with the flat horn lying upon a wooden rest he sawed out his combs.

From the copper he shortly cut up his backsaw and converted it into circular saws. This man, Hartshorn, lived and died in Mansfield, Conn. He also invented the screw and lip auger, also the bits, such as are used in the brace. He was asked why he did not put in his claim for compensation long afterward, when we had a patent office.

His reply was that if he had done anything that was a benefit to his fellow men they were welcome to it.—Philadelphia Record.

All Doubt Removed.

Any doubt that may have hitherto existed as to the veracity of the Biblical account of the passage of the Jews dryshod across the Red sea have been set at rest by the report of Major General Tulloch, published in London, describing an incident which took place during his recent survey for the British government of that part of Egypt through which the route of the exodus is said to have lain. It seems that on one occasion last spring there sprung up a storm of wind so intense in its violence as not only to stop all survey work along the borders of Lake Menzahleh, but to carry within the space of a few hours the entire waters, the lake out of sight beyond the horizon, leaving all the sailing vessels resting on the sandy bed of the inland sea. This is manifestly what occurred in the days of Moses, and what has hitherto been in the eyes of the skeptical open to doubt as a miracle must henceforth be accepted as a definitely proved natural fact.—New York Tribune.

How She Knew.

"Mrs. Smith's got a dog that likes me," said little Emily, coming home from a visit to her aunt.

"How do you know he likes you?" her mother asked.

"Cause he tasted me and then wagged his tail," answered the little girl.—Pearson's Weekly.

Helpfulness.

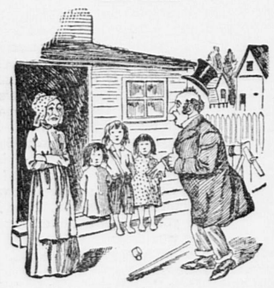

Who causes sunny smiles to grow
Where none were known before
Or makes one's cup of joy o'erflow
When sorrow's at his door;
Who kindles in another's breast
A bright and healthful glow—
That generous soul, by heaven blest,
Will rare enjoyment know.

Who meets along life's rugged road
A traveler wan and worn,
Bending beneath a heavy load,
Friendless, perchance forlorn,
And offers now a cheering word
And then a helping hand
Has in two hearts emotion stirred
That will heaven's praise command.

Who sees a brother in the path
That leads to sin and shame,
Indifferent to impending wrath
And careless of his name,
And guides him in the better way—
God's way of life and peace—
Will see the light of perfect day
Shine round him and increase.

SLEEP REFORM.

The Man Who Tried It and the Way His Scheme Worked.

Colonel Henry Watterson tells a story of an old compositor whose life had been given up to hard work and the following of eccentric ideas, one of which was that the human race slept too much. He had several theories to advance in support of his idea. One of them was to cut down the usual number of sleeping hours by gradation and finally arrive at a state where, by practice, one would be satisfied with a much smaller amount of sleep than one was getting.

To show his confidence in his theory he began to practice the new idea as follows: He usually slept nine hours. He explained that he would cut this down to 8½ hours for each week that passed until he had reduced his number of sleeping hours to two, which, he claimed, was all that was needed by any one.

The time went by, and the old fellow had kept to his rule laid down and finally reached the two hour time.

He went along for several weeks sleeping but two hours daily, devoting the time gained in reading and advocating his idea. While there was a noticeable decrease in his weight, he seemed to stand it very well.

Then he began to talk of further reducing the time, and when enthusiastic talked of the possibility of one doing without sleep entirely.

He set type and was an old hand on the paper. One morning about three weeks after he had reached his low sleeping mark the compositor at the case next to his noticed the old man had dropped his head upon his arms, that were folded over the case. It was near quitting time. All the forms were up, and the old chap was not disturbed. He had gone to sleep. The office was soon deserted, with the exception of the janitor and the sleeper. The janitor was instructed not to bother him.

The next day when the first men arrived he was still sleeping as they had left him and snoring so hard that he jarred the type in the case on which he rested.

Some one told his wife where he was, and she concluded to let him sleep.

He slept on in that position for 20 hours. Then they carried him to a bed at home, still sleeping. He slept for 32 hours, and when he woke up he had forgotten how to set type and had to learn to read again, although his memory was good in other respects.—Exchange.

The Order of the Crescent is a Turkish title of nobility; it was founded in 1801 to reward the survivors of a Turko-Prussian war.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Heavy Rain Has Done Much Good Throughout New England.

Hay Crop Is Somewhat Below the Average.

Second Crop of Grass Promises to Be Unusually Large.

BOSTON, July 30.—The New England weather bureau, in co-operation with the board of agriculture, issues the following bulletin for the week ending July 29:

Favorable weather for hay making has prevailed over most of New England during the past week, and the time has been well improved. A great part of the crop on uplands has been secured, but there yet remains a good many meadows to be cut. The quality in northern sections is very good, but in the south much has been damaged by rain. The quantity is reported below the average, except in some northern counties. Pastures are generally good, and there is a good prospect of a large second crop on grass. Late forage crops are being extensively sown. The hot, humid weather has developed the growth of fungi to a considerable extent. The rain on the 27th was heaviest over central New England from southwest to northeast, and lightest in the extreme northwest and southeast. Less than one-fourth inch came in the latter sections, while almost two inches fell in central counties. Much good has resulted, and nothing is seriously needing water. Most field and garden crops are making fine growth.

Rain Changed Everything.

It was getting very dry in Maine until the rain of the 27th, and in places crops were being affected by want of water. Fields and pastures were getting brown in Oxford county, and a shrinkage in milk resulted. The rain did a great deal of good, and changed the appearance of everything. Corn is very fine, except on some clay land. In Lincoln county early potatoes are reported light, and in Washington county it is thought the early drought will reduce the size of potatoes generally. This crop appears to be doing very well in most places, with no reports of rust or blight. The apple crop is remarkably light in Kennebec county. Beans are rusting some. The week has been very favorable for haying, and a large part of the crop is secured in fine condition. One correspondent in Androscoggin county reports one of the largest crops for years. In Penobscot county it is better than the average, but a good many correspondents report it considerably below the usual amount. Grain is very good.

Better Hay Crop Than Expected.

Very good hay weather has prevailed in New Hampshire, and it has been improved by all. Most upland is now cut, and turning out a better crop than was expected; meadows are generally very good. Grain has lodged considerably and much has been or is being cut green for fodder. The crop is heavy, and is rusting some in places. Corn is making a great growth and is very promising. One correspondent in Merrimac county reports it the heaviest growth of corn and potatoes known for many years. Early potatoes are turning out well where dug, but they are rusting in Strafford county. Pastures are very good. Blackberries are ripening and promise a fair crop.

Garden Truck Doing Finely.

Most correspondents report a rank growth of most field and garden crops in Vermont this season. Beans are extra large and bushy, with plenty of pods. Tomatoes are growing fast; vines are giving promising outlook. Rye, barley and oats are very fine, the last-named crop ripening with well-filled heads. Corn is heavy, but it was feared last week that the dry weather would cause a light crop in northern sections, as it was just ready to set and the ground was extremely dry. The rain of Saturday night will undoubtedly prevent any damage by dry weather, though it may not fill up the low springs and streams to any extent. Potatoes show some rust in Addison county; early potatoes are good. Haying is progressing fast, though there has been more cloudy weather than in the previous week.

Heavy Fungus Growth.

The weather has been most favorable for the rapid growth of all crops in Massachusetts during the week, but the past humid weather has fostered fungus growths to a marked extent. Potatoes are rusting slightly; smut is attacking early sweet corn to some extent in western Worcester county, and grapes are rotting badly in Hampshire county. Late sown turnips and grass seed germinate very quickly. A great deal of plowing is being done for reseeding to grass; late forage crops are being considerably sown. Corn is very heavy and is earing well. Cranberries are set and the outlook is for a fair crop; many bogs are light and others almost a failure. Early tobacco is mostly topped and is looking well. Early apples are ripening. Pears are very good and yielding well. Pastures hold out in good shape, and second crop in fields is starting fast; a good second crop of hay is assured. Most hay is in, except on meadow lands, with better weather for curing than in previous weeks. Much hay has been damaged by rain. Corn and grain were blown down extensively in Worcester county during the thunder showers of the 27th.

Crops Generally Doing Well.

Only light local showers have prevailed in Rhode Island this week, and with the good weather most of the hay crop has been secured. The prospect for a second crop is very good. Crops are generally progressing very well. Spring seeding looks well, except on very dry ground.

Critical Point Passed.

Most crops were in need of rain in Connecticut before the 27th, but although coming in only small quantities in southeastern sections, the showers have done a great deal of good, and will serve to help corn over the critical period in its growth. This crop has a good stand, and with showers to fill the ears will be a large crop. Potatoes are rusting slightly in many fields. The early crop is being dug for market and the tubers are reported of fair size in Hartford county, but of small size and few in the hills in parts of Litchfield county. In Fairfield county an unusually good yield is being dug, while in New London the early crop is light. Oats that were not cut for fodder are ripening, and many pieces are ready to cut; they promise a good yield. Peaches, pears and grapes will be a good crop. The crop conditions for tobacco are very favorable. A large crop of chestnuts is in prospect.

A YOUTHFUL FIREBUG

Confesses That He Is Responsible For Several Costly Fires.

BOSTON, July 30.—Henry G. Clark of Chelsea, a boy of 17 years, confessed to Fire Marshal Whitcomb yesterday that he was directly responsible for the Strahan fire, on the evening of March 21; for the fire in an unoccupied dwelling house at 71 Central avenue, which occurred March 18, and for the burning of the Strathmore at Crescent beach.

The boy is of slight build and sallow complexion. At the age of 9 he was sent to Westboro Reform school for setting fire to freight cars. At the age of 14 Officer Shannon, who arrested him yesterday, arrested him for breaking into the First Baptist church on Central avenue, Chelsea, where he robbed the contribution box. Again he was sent to Westboro. About a year ago he was released.

After the confession young Clark told the officers that he was only sorry for his parents. The testimony of young Dickson, who, it turns out, was with Clark when the Baptist church was entered, corroborates that given by the offender himself.

Young Clark will be arraigned in the Chelsea municipal court to answer to the charge of breaking and entering. The fire marshal will prefer the other charges for setting fire to the buildings named.

The loss occasioned by the fires to which the boy has confessed amounted to almost $50,000.

Treasurer Steps Out.

BOSTON, July 30.—Frederick N. Cheney, treasurer of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, handed in his resignation to the board of directors yesterday, and it was accepted. Some sensational stories concerning an alleged shortage have been in circulation during the last few days, but whether Mr. Cheney's resignation at this time had anything to do with these is not known. President Robinson of the chamber does not even furnish definite information, for the very good reason, as he says, that he has no definite information himself.

Their First Convention.

BOSTON, July 30.—The first national convention of the Colored Woman's League of America opened here yesterday. Representatives from clubs in nearly every section of the country were present. A public address gives the purposes of the convention as follows: "We are keenly alive to the great necessity for a closer union as a counter-irritant for the atrocious misrepresentations commonly promulgated by ignorant, prejudiced minds, with power to affect public opinion unfavorably toward us."

Three Unfortunates.

BOSTON, July 30.—James O. Patterson, John Jallazo and Francis Aggestino, all laborers, sustained serious injury through being run over by trains while track walking near the Forest Hill station, last night. Two passenger trains going in opposite directions caught the men, and they were whirled about and flung under the wheels. Patterson and Jallazo will probably die, but Aggestino may recover.

To Be Further Considered.

BOSTON, July 30.—The joint board of railroad and harbor commissioners yesterday heard arguments for the Massachusetts Ship Canal company on its petition for the board's approval of $15,000,000 stocks and bonds, the issue of which was conditionally authorized by the last legislature. It was finally decided to consider the matter in executive session.

Brothers Drowned Together.

PROVIDENCE, July 30.—Two brothers, Jensen and Henry Prais, 14 and 10 years old, respectively, were playing in the water at Long Farm yesterday afternoon when Jensen went beyond his depth, and his brother, in attempting to rescue him, was pulled under. When the dead bodies were recovered they were locked in each other's arms.

New Road Assured.

BANGOR, Me., July 30.—The vote of Washington county on the question of building the Shore Line railroad was overwhelming in favor of the project. The leading 25 towns gave: Yes, 4039; no, 382. This means that Washington county will take $500,000 worth of stock in the road. Capitalists are all ready to advance the balance.

Not Yet Ended.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 30.—The hearing by the aldermanic committee on investigation of the almshouse was continued yesterday afternoon, and it is stated much damaging evidence was obtained. The hearing was continued until Friday.

Old Pilot Dead.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 30.—Captain Benjamin Phillips, second pilot on the Fall River line steamer Priscilla, died suddenly of heart disease while on the steamer yesterday. He was 60 years old, and had been in the company's service 25 years.

Two Mills Want Increase.

PROVIDENCE, July 30.—The officers of the Textile union here have issued a call for a meeting of union men to be held to develop a plan whereby the increase of wages can be extended to the Manton and Weybosset operatives.

Held For Manslaughter.

BOSTON, July 30.—James H. O'Brien was yesterday held in $10,000 on a charge of manslaughter, in killing Thomas Rotchford at the West End on the night of July 21.

Brakeman Cut In Two.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 30.—Owen Walsh, a brakeman, fell from a switch engine last night and was cut in two by the wheels.

New England Briefs.

Lucretia M. Perry, widow of Nathaniel H. Perry of the United States navy, died at New London, Conn.

Pierce post 190, Grand Army, of New Bedford, Mass., mustered in 35 recruits with appropriate exercises.

John Sullivan of Turner's Falls, Mass., who cut David Barry so severely, has been arrested. Barry is in a critical condition.

William L. Slade, one of the wealthiest residents of Swansea, Mass., and a large owner of Fall River mill property, is dead, aged 70 years.

Joseph Russell, arrested in Manchester, N. H., on suspicion, proves to be the party who broke into the residence of John M. Hill at Concord.

Royce Coffron of Bar Harbor, Me., who shot Mrs. Lydia Hadley, July 22, and was released without a hearing, was rearrested on the charge of murder.

Patrick Galvin, aged 70, was found wandering about the streets of East Boston in a demented condition, and was taken in charge by the police.

AN IMPORTANT CLEW.

Alberta Stuart Was Seen Drinking Soda With an Unknown Man.

Police Start to Work With Renewed Energy.

Medical Examiner Positively Asserts That the Girl Was Murdered.

BOSTON, July 31.—Medical Examiner Harris, who held an autopsy on the body of Alberta Stuart, the girl who was found in the Charles river, made his official report yesterday. The medical examiner believes that the girl was murdered.

The police made a big advancement in the case yesterday. Inspector Dugan said that he had found the most important clew yet. When asked for the nature of the clew he said:

"We have found out that Alberta Stuart, with a strange man, was in a store on Green street at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon. He bought her a glass of soda water. The girl in the store knew Alberta, for she went to the same school with her. She did not know the man. She described him as 5 feet 6 inches tall, dark complexion, and described his dress. She said she noticed him particularly on account of her knowing Alberta.

"The two were not in the store more than three minutes. They were there long enough to purchase and drink the soda water. They came from the direction of Charles street, and Returned In That Direction.

"We do not know this man. We would very much like to see him. He may not know anything of Alberta after taking her to that store, for she certainly went back to her sister's house on Myrtle street after that. It was 4:30 when she was given the letter to mail by her sister, and it was later when the little Fennelly girl saw her run down Revere street toward Charles. The question is, Did she meet that man again? This is what the police will strive now to discover."

With such an important clew as this to work upon, the police have started in with renewed energy to unravel the mystery. Nothing was known by Inspector Dugan previous to this about Alberta's having been away from home that day for any length of time.

Alberta's sister was very positive in stating that Alberta had no male friends with whom she went anywhere. But the Green-street story is undoubtedly true, which shows that Alberta's sister did not know all about her.

Maggie Stuart, when she was seen by Inspector Dugan after the body of Alberta was found, gave in her house. She said there were two male lodgers, Maurice Cummings, a grocer, and J. E. Dodge, a gasfitter. There were some women lodgers besides. Yesterday the police discovered that a third man lodged in the house. He was a roommate of Dodge.

The police, while they attach very little importance to this omission, think it is odd that the third man's name was not given. The police last night stated that they did not know the name of this man. Maggie Stuart has gone to Nova Scotia with the body of Alberta, and will not return until tomorrow.

Another Italian Tragedy.

BOSTON, July 31.—What in all probability will prove a murder occurred here last night, when Crecienzo Pagano was shot in the head, in the right thigh and in the left groin with bullets from two revolvers wielded by Leopoldo Santoniello and his cousin, Gaetano Torino. All of the combatants are bakers. Torino and Pagano, with others, were playing cards, when Pagano took offense and struck Torino in the face. Torino went out crying, and meeting his cousin, Santoniello, started to return to the bakeshop. Just as they reached the corner of Lafayette and Prince streets they met Pagano, who pulled his revolver and fired a shot. The two cousins immediately pulled their guns, and each fired four shots. A crowd of hundreds of excited foreigners swarmed to the spot. Three officers arrested the two men and kept the crowd, who in their excitement threatened to lynch the prisoner, at bay until a detail of 12 policemen, after a hard struggle, managed to make a cordon until the patrol wagon arrived. Pagano's death is momentarily expected.

The Wrecked Venetian.

BOSTON, July 31.—The board of harbor and land commissioners have awarded the contract for removing the British steamer Venetian, which was wrecked on State ledge, to George W. Townsend. Townsend will receive 99 per cent of the amount realized from the sale of the material of the wreck, and the commonwealth will receive the remaining 1 per cent. Townsend guarantees that the steamer will be entirely removed before Nov. 30, 1896.

Victory For Vigilant.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 31.—Vigilant beat Defender yesterday in a run of 64 miles, from Eaton Point on the Long Island shore, four miles from Huntington harbor, to this port, the cup defender giving up the race when not far from this port, owing to her steering gear having become deranged. Friends of the Defender are feeling gloomy over the result, as the Defender was looked upon as a sure winner.

In Miss Barberi's Behalf.

BOSTON, July 31.—Over 500 American citizens of Italian birth assembled in Faneuil hall last night and sent a memorial to Governor Morton in behalf of Maria Barberi, who is condemned to death for the murder of her alleged betrayer. On the platform were scores of influential members of the Italian colony. The speeches were in Italian.

From $15,000,000 to $50 0,000.

BOSTON, July 31.—As an outcome of the hearing on the petition of the Massachusetts Ship Canal company for permission to issue $15,000,000 of stock and bonds for the purpose of building the canal across the Cape, the joint board of railroad and harbor and land commissioners have approved of an issue of only $500,000 of stock.

The Templars.

BOSTON, July 31.—Every mail received at the headquarters of the triennial committee of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templars adds another chapter to the Templar enthusiasm that is sweeping over the country. In every section the Sir Knights are preparing to attend the grand encampment conclave, and the fact that it is to be held in Boston furnishes an additional incentive for a large attendance. Many of the pilgrimages are on a most extensive scale, and include visits to some of the grandest scenery on the American continent.

At Work Again.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., July 31.—Work was resumed yesterday on the construction of the Standard Oil company's new plant, all difficulties and law suits having been amicably settled. Six storage tanks, with a capacity of 1,860,000 gallons, will be erected, as well as large warehouses, barns and other buildings.

Case Dismissed.

BOSTON, July 31.—In the case of Mrs. Edgar Tobin of Brockton, who was brought here yesterday to appear in a case to settle the legality of her alleged detention by the officers to prevent certain testimony in the Albee murder case, the court found no occasion for a hearing, and the case was dismissed.

Acres of Trees Stripped.

WOBURN, Mass., July 31.—The gypsy moth has committed fearful devastations in the woods on the outskirts of Woburn. Several acres of woodland have been entirely stripped by the pest, and stand out as bare as in midwinter. The infested territory comprises a part of Woburn.

Plea For Colored Boys.

BOSTON, July 31.—At the colored women's convention yesterday Miss C. E. Hunter of Washington delivered an address, in which she advocated the establishment of a national school for colored boys in which they could be taught trades as thoroughly as white boys.

Heavy Claim Presented.

BOSTON, July 31.—R. G. Chase of Boston and C. E. Legg of Chelsea have brought an action against the Thomson-Houston Electric company to recover $44,500 worth of bonds which they claim the defendants obtained from them through misrepresentation.

Alone In the Woods.

BANGOR, Me., July 31.—Seth Rowe, the Oldtown man who so mysteriously disappeared while out blueberrying, has been found by a searching party in a lumber camp a long distance from the place where he left. No reason is given for the disappearance.

Losing No Time.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 31.—The board of metropolitan water commissioners went over the proposed basin in Clinton, West Boylston and Boylston yesterday and made preparations for the work, which is to begin immediately.

Face Torn Away.

PROVIDENCE, July 31.—J. Gathier, an employe at Tierney's machine shop, Pawtucket, was attending to an emery wheel, when it burst, striking Gathier and tearing his face away. No hopes are entertained for his recovery.

A Little One.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—A trial shot was made at the Tiverton testing station yesterday with an 8-inch baby Howell torpedo. A line shot was made at 400 yards, the projectile developing a speed of 32 knots.

Charged With Incendiarism.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 31.—J. C. Manning was arrested yesterday, as a result of an inquest investigating the cause of a fire which occurred in rooms occupied by him. He is charging with having set the fire.

Had a Big Stock.

BOSTON, July 31.—William Whalen and Mortimer Sullivan were arrested last night for unlawfully selling intoxicating liquor at 109 Ward street. More than 900 gallons of ale, porter and lager beer were confiscated.

Bolt Struck a Church.

NEW HAVEN, July 31.—The Episcopal church at Centerville was struck by lightning during a heavy thunder storm yesterday, and partly burned. Loss, $5000.

Struck by Lightning.

RICHMOND, Me., July 31.—During a severe thunder storm here yesterday the barn and contents of Alexander Bates, a Bowdoinham farmer, were destroyed by lightning.

ACCOUNT BOOK FOUND.

Entries Which May Prove of Value In Convicting Holmes.

Proof of Murder of the Williams Sisters

Said to Have Been Obtained by Counsel For the Heirs.

CHICAGO, July 31.—A private account book kept by Holmes has been discovered in a grate at the Sixty-third street house. The book was found with a bundle of letters addressed by various women to Holmes, which had been evidently placed there for burning.

The accounts, which date back to May 1, 1885, show dealings with various people, and an entry regarding insurance shows the existence of insurance deals as early as 1886. A mysterious "Dora" is mentioned as the recipient of numerous small sums which are carefully recorded, and the minutes of the Englewood company are also given, with the election of directors and transaction of other business.

Peter Cigrand, father of Eiline Cigrand, who is said to have been murdered by Holmes, arrived in Chicago yesterday with Philomena Cigrand, sister of the missing girl. With Dr. B. J. Cigrand, a relative, they went to police headquarters, where a secret conference was held with Chief Badenoch and Inspector Fitzpatrick.

In the course of the further excavation in Holmes' Sixty-third street building, the police unearthed parts of two thigh bones, a piece of skull and four smaller pieces of bone.

Lawyer Capps' Statement.

Lawyer Capps, the Fort Worth (Tex.) attorney, who is here at the instance of the heirs of Minnie Williams, states that he is prepared to prove the murder of Minnie and Annie Williams.

He insists that it was done by Holmes, Quinlan and another man whose identity he refuses to reveal. This man has been located by a detective whom the heirs of the Williams girls put upon the case eight month ago. "He is ready to confess," says Mr. Capps, "on one condition. That is, that the police guarantee him immunity from punishment. My detective says the man knows that the Williams sisters were killed in the Sixty-third street house, and that he knows when they were buried."

The search for the acid vats in the basement of the "Castle" was continued yesterday. The tank which was uncovered on Monday was forced open, but nothing was found but a few inches of petroleum in the bottom of the vat. Chappell's story that the tanks were used for dissolving human bodies was largely disproved by yesterday's investigation. Search for the other vats was continued, as it was believed that Chappell might have been mistaken as to their location.

Boy Mysteriously Disappeared.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 31.—Herman W. Mudgett, alias Holmes, went to Moores in 1883 in company with another man and canvassed the town, selling nursery stock. While there he was engaged by the school trustees at Mooers Forks and taught a term at their school. At the close he went east and soon returned with a little boy, who remained but a short time and disappeared. A little later he settled down at Mooers Forks in practice as a physician and conducted the practice about a year. He was a very enthusiastic fellow, and during the presidential campaign of 1884 bet heavily on the result, all that he had in ready cash and all he could borrow being staked on a Republican victory. Shortly after this his true nature commenced to develop and the people commenced to question his honesty. He left for Chicago, owing some bills, but a year later he returned for a week's visit and settled some of them up. He spoke very glowingly of his business at Chicago.

Michigan Swamps Ablaze.

GLADSTONE, Mich., July 31. — The swamps in this vicinity are burning fiercely. The timber now on fire is of little value. The smoke in the streets is almost blinding. Heavy fires are reported between Sault Ste Marie and Trout Lake. Unless the wind changes soon, it will be almost a miracle if fires do not start in the city, as everything is dry as tinder.

Figures Nearly All In.

LONDON, July 31.—With the exception of Orkney and Shetland, the new parliament is now complete. The division of parties is as follows: Conservatives, 341; Liberal-Unionists, 70. Government total, 411. Liberals, 174; McCarthyites, 70; Parnellites, 13; Labor, 2. Totals of opposition, 259. Government majority, 152; Conservative majority over all, 12.

Old Chicagoan Gone.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Judge John D. Caton, ex-justice of the Illinois supreme court, died yesterday, aged 84. He had been long sick, having suffered several strokes of paralysis. Judge Caton came to Chicago in the '30s, before it was a city. He established the first telegraph line in the state.

Gloucester Schooner Wrecked.

HALIFAX, July 31.—The crew of the Gloucester (Mass.) fishing schooner Mary Fernald arrived at Canso yesterday from White Head. They report their vessel ashore on the south side of the Three Top Island, and is a total wreck. The crew lost nearly all their effects.

Open Regatta of Monatiquot Club to be Sailed Saturday.

Open races are coming in thick about this time, that of the Monatiquot on Saturday next following close upon the Hull and Quincy ones.

There will be four classes, as follows; the prizes being $10, $5 and $2 in each class:

First class—Yachts 25 feet and less than 29 feet sailing length, crew 7 men; no restriction on sails.

Second class—Yachts 21 and less than 25 feet, crew 6 men; no restrictions on sails.

Third class—Yachts 18 and less than 21 feet, crew 5 men; restricted to working sails.

Fourth class—Yachts 15 feet and less than 18 feet, crew 4 men; restricted to working sails.

Yachts already entered with the Secretary of the Congress of Regatta Committees will be considered as entered, and may use their congress numbers, but must notify the judges before 1.30 P. M. of the day of the race of their intention to sail in the race. The preparatory gun will be fired at 2 P. M., and the start will be flying, yachts crossing line between judges' boat and Jackknife Ledge buoy.

The first class will start at 2.10 or ten minutes after the signal, and the other classes will follow at five minute intervals.

The course of the first and second classes will be: Across the line between Judges' boat and Jack-knife Ledge buoy to Channel Rock buoy, leaving it on the starboard, to Pig Rocks beacon, leaving Raccoon Island and Pig Rocks on port, to Wreck buoy, off west end of Peddock's island, leaving it on starboard, thence leaving Prince's Head on port, Pig Rocks, Sheep island and Red buoy No. 2 off Hull, on starboard, thence, leaving Sheep Island on port, to finish between judges' boat and Jack-knife Ledge buoy, distance nine miles; time limit three hours.

Third and fourth classes—Across the line between judges' boat and Jack-knife Ledge buoy, to Bass Rock Buoy (red), leaving it on starboard, to Pig Rocks Beacon, leaving Raccoon island and Pig Rocks on port, to Wreck buoy, off west end of Peddock's island, leaving it on starboard, thence leaving Prince's Head on port; Pig Rocks, Sheep island and Bumpkin Ledge buoy on starboard, thence leav-Sheep island on port, to finish between judges' boat and Jack-knife Ledge Buoy, distance seven miles; time limit, three hours.

Brockton's View of It.

The Brockton Enterprise wants its "Voter, Dear Voter, to Come Home." It says: "The Houghs Neck Improvement association wants its summer residents to go down prior to May 1 and secure a residence there in order that cerain improvements may be secured. It is to be doubted whether a man would gain much in personal advantage by surrendering his citizenship in a city where he spends at least nine months a year, even to secure a clamshell road in front of his summer home."

Fatally Injured.

O. M. Whittemore, a brakeman on the night freight, was seriously if not fatally injured at an early hour this morning by being knocked off the cars by an overhead bridge, just west of the North Weymouth depot. Both arms of the unfortunate man were broken, his skull fractured, and he was also injured internally. He was removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Children at Nantasket.

On Monday 250 children of Brockton, all under twelve years of age, enjoyed an outing at Nantasket in care of the Women's Educational Union. A subscription for the purpose was started by the Brockton Enterprise, and the Times of that city added $10. A total of $133.25 was raised.

TODAY'S COURT.

George M. Frye of Holbrook, was fined $50 for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell.

Roger J. Dennie of Milton, was fined $5 for drunkenness, and $7 for disturbing the peace at Milton.

The liquor seized from Frank Woodman of Randolph was forfeited to the Commonwealth.

ANOTHER HITCH.

Q. & B. Street Railway and Milton Selectmen at Loggerheads.

Shall we have electric cars or shall we have no electric cars? is the question that is disturbing the usual quietness of the little village of East Milton. Whether it is better for the town to move that 300 feet of fence and have electric cars, or whether it is better to say the street railway shall move that fence, which means no electric cars, is the question that is troubling the peaceful minds of the three gentlemen who compose the board of selectmen of Milton.

This is the whole trouble in a nut shell about the opening of this extension of the Quincy & Boston. There seems to be a misunderstanding, and pending its settlement all work at the Milton end of the line has been suspended.

Whether work shall be resumed and the line completed, or whether the railway people tear up the rails it has laid in East Milton, depends altogether upon what action the Selectmen of Milton take at its meeting today.

The point at issue is this. When the location was granted, it was with the understanding that the street railway should be built in a reserved space, sixteen feet from the westerly side of the street and that a curbing at least eight inches high should be placed on the easterly side of the said reserved space.

Upon these conditions the location was accepted, and work commenced, and is all but completed. But Mr. Whitney of the board now says the railroad must stand the expense of moving that piece of fence. The fence in question is a strip about 300 feet in length abuting on the reserved space.

Selectman Whitney claims that it was part of the agreement that the railroad should move the fence. That railroad people say nay. That they are fulfilling their contract to a letter, and that rather than establish a precedent by moving that fence they will pull up the rails that have been laid and run their cars to the Milton line only.

That is the way the matter stands today and the people of East Milton do not know whether they will be able to take the cars at Adams street or whether it will be a case of walk to Mechanic street.

While the railroad people are unanimous against moving that fence, the Selectmen of Milton are not unanimous to compel them to do so.

The board is made up of Messrs. J. Albert Simpson, Joseph C. Whitney and George W. Nickerson. Tuesday morning it was reported that Messrs. Whitney and Nickerson were against the railroad and Mr. Simpson in favor. Mr. Nickerson is now said, however, to have changed his mind and the board stands two to one for the railroad.

There will probably be a special meeting of the board of selectmen sometime today when the matter will be fixed up, but how, is what the people of East Milton desire to know.

If the railroad is permitted to go ahead and complete the line President Graham says the cars will commence making regular trips Saturday.

☞ The largest room in the world is the room for improvement. We can see no room for improvement in Taylor's Anti-Headache Powders, for they beat any other powder now before the public. They are guaranteed absolutely harmless and will cure any headache in a few minutes. And being a purely vegetable compound, they can be taken as often as desired. At L. J. Pastor, Ph. G., 27 School street, Quincy. tf

The striker for the bell on the house of hose 3, which has been ordered, has not arrived as yet.

Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Nickerson and family of Wollaston leave on Friday for South Dennis.

There is a marked improvement in certain sections of the Brook street, Wollaston, sidewalk.

Mrs. John H. Roberts of Wollaston has returned from Somerville. Mrs. Roberts is still in poor health.

John Drake is reported to have sold the trotting mare Lucy Wilkes to George H. Bicknell of Weymouth.

Mr. William A. Jordan and family of Wollaston have returned from a month's outing at Readfield, Me.

The chiefs of the Red Men at Wollaston will be raised up by Great Prophet A. C. Calder on Thursday evening.

The Junior yacht club held a race Friday. The Sunshine won by a minute and 10 seconds; Racer second.

There is some talk of closing the stores in Quincy, August 27, on the day of the Knight Templar's parade in Boston.

The receipts of the Quincy depot are said to be second to those of Brockton, yet many small towns have better stations.

Miss Grace Turner and her young brothers go to Augusta, Me., today, for the remainder of the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Faunce and Mr. and Mrs. George Weston and family of Wollaston will spend the month of August at Duxbury.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon is harvesting his peach crop and a fine crop it is too as the ladies of this office can testify. Thanks Mr. Faxon.

N. G. Nickerson, real estate agent, reports the sale of his house at the corner of Central avenue and Fayette street to T. J. Renwick of Boston.

Mr. Charles E. Morse, the stage manager of the Della Fox Co., is passing a few days with his sister, Mrs. William A. Jordan of Wollaston.

Dr. J. R. Grimes, a successful veterinary of Worcester is to locate in Quincy, and will occupy a part of City Auditor Hall's house on Hancock street.

The auction sale of Mrs. Woods' real estate at the Point near the Ward Two playground will demonstrate whether the city paid too much for the playground.

Don't overlook that auction of real estate on Adams street tomorrow. Auctioneer Crane will sell the Charlotte Carr estate at 4 P. M. Furniture sale at 1.30 o'clock.

Mr. Frank Pollock was one of a Boston fishing party on Monday down the harbor, and succeeded in catching more cod fish than he could bring home. It was a great day for fish.

The explosion of an oil stove caused a slight fire Tuesday afternoon at the residence of John Watson on Rawson road Norfolk Downs. Box 57 was pulled at 3.28, but was unnecessary.

On the Duck's Nest alleys last week H. W. Battison won first prize on duck pins, 115, a score which has never been eclipsed on those alleys. V. J. Emery was high man on candle pins, score 112.

Agent Furnald of the cruelty to Animal Society took a horse owned by Calvin Gardner of South Hingham from Allison Cobb's express on Hancock street, Tuesday, and shot him. The animal was very lame and was being led into Boston behind the express team.

The Quincy & Boston street railway demonstrated its ability, Tuesday evening, to supply an unlimited amount of power. Early in the evening the power of the Weymouth & Braintree and Braintree & Holbrook roads gave out. The power from the Quincy station was turned on and this company easily ran the three roads,

Mrs. W. W. Osborne, Mrs. H. E. Ricker, Mrs. Melcher of Bigelow street, and their children, are enjoying the day at the Point of Pines.

There may be liquor sold in Quincy but if there is a man has got to be unusually well posted to get it. One of the best detectives in the state spent a week in the city trying to purchase liquor but did not succeed.

The Park and Downs Union society will hold a public service every Sunday in August, in the Quincy mansion house, Wollaston Park, as it has for the last three months. During August the Wollaston Young People's Union will have charge of the meetings. Next Sunday the service will be at 3.30 instead of 3 o'clock.

HOUGHS NECK BLUFF.

"Manet" Replies to an Article in the Ledger.

The LEDGER is pleased to give all sides of a controversy, and therefore prints the following communication in full, and promises some comments tomorrow:

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Your "editorial communication," printed in Saturday's LEDGER has some truth in it, which makes it all the more to be regretted that there is so much of evident mistatement and misrepresentation of the facts, and as a summer resident of Houghs Neck and a member of the Improvement association I cannot allow it to pass unnoticed.

Because a few decent law-abiding summer residents of this section have formed an association with the expressed purpose of bettering their own condition and that of the place they have chosen for a summer home, is there any good reason why they should be subjected to editorial abuse from the local press, which might be better employed in advancing all reforms which tend to enhance the value of property and improve the condition of the people?

Allow me to reply briefly to some of your questions.

(1). Have we stopped to compute how many years it will take to pay for our water supply? No, for we have paid for it several times over already in the taxes we have paid in excess of what we have received in return. Moreover, we have the best of authority (the word of the Water Commissioners) that the extension of the water supply will be self-supporting inside of a year, paying the interest on the indebtedness, and something more toward the deficit elsewhere.

(2). You say, "It is the old cry of unjust taxation," and what nobler cry, may I ask, could we raise. It is the principle for which our forefathers fought, when the citizens of Quincy were foremost in raising the cry, and it is the principle for which every American citizen will always fight so long as unjust taxation exists. And there are several hundred American citizens at Houghs Neck.

(3). "What does Houghs Neck expect?" Nothing but justice. We do not ask you to spend the whole $8000 on us. Give us one half or one third and we will allow you to use the rest where you need it most. Is that unreasonable?

(4). "What does the Improvement Society want" The LEDGER cannot learn that it has petitioned the City Council for improvements." Is it necessary to petition your honorable council for a street safe for travel, for some protection against fire, or for a few street lights,—such necessities as are granted every other section of the city but this? We had thought not, and have waited patiently, but if the LEDGER will kindly wait, they will "learn that the Council has been petitioned."

The city government is not asked to "reduce the railroad fares." We know where to go for that.

"The movement to increase the voting strength" is neither "against the present Mayor, nor a big bluff." It is an honest effort to secure by the exercise of our one weapon, the franchise those rights which are denied to us without it. Further we have no grievance against "the present Mayor," who has treated our representatives with uniform courtesy and consideration, and assured us of his sympathy with our work, regretting only his inability to do more for us with the appropriations at his command, and the same may be said of all the officials and heads of departments whom we have had occasion to interview.

Your personal allusion to Mr. Cavanagh who already pays a large tax in Quincy, and has always been active in every public work, is hardly fair, and allow me to say decidedly bad form and uncalled for.

Summer residents expect to "rough it," and they certainly have to at Houghs Neck with roads which are a disgrace to the city, not a street light on the beach and no police officer within three miles, but you say, "they desire a cheap outing, and this they cannot have with all the improvements, for improvements increase valuation and taxes." Precisely. You hit it right that time, but the trouble is we get the "increased valuation and taxes" without the improvements. Four hundred and sixty thousand dollars, in round numbers, was the assessors' valuation of property at Houghs Neck last year, and four hundred and sixty dollars will cover all that that property cost the city of Quincy, last year, leaving about seven thousand, five hundred dollars clear profit to the city. Verily will it pay the city of Quincy to kill the goose that lays this golden egg? The subject is worth thinking about.

The fling at "real estate men" missed its mark this time. The Houghs Neck Improvement Association is composed of men in all the walks of life, and they are working for the interests of the place, regardless of individuals. But how about that "tax-payer" quoted so freely? Isn't the boot rather on the other leg?

We hope, as you say, that "the wants of Houghs Neck will always receive due consideration." That's all we ask, and we do not care to enter into a newspaper controversy to attain our end, but we ask fair play from the local press, and not abuse or misrepresentation; and we mean business. If the LEDGER still thinks this is all "bluff" we refer it to next years' registration lists in Ward One. It is just barely possible before we get through that "the tail may wag the dog."

Very truly yours,
MANET.

The ground has only been lightly covered with snow at Mobile, Ala., five times during the last 75 years.

The Ejectment Case.

Judge Humphrey rendered his verdict Tuesday in the case of the Sea Shore Home against Thomas F. and Mary F. Meaney, for the defendants. This case was an action brought by the Sea Shore Home people to eject the Meaney's who occupy the property at Quincy Neck. At the hearing on the case Monday, counsel for defence claimed that the $100 having been paid and accepted, the contract was still in force, and upon the payment of another $100 the defendants could demand a deed of the property. Judge Humphrey's ruling substantiates this claim.

In Quincy Today.

Harry J. Mooney of Brockton is on his way to make shoes for the executives of the various States of the country and shout aloud the fame of Brockton and her shoemakers.

He started Tuesday, making his first stop at Whitman, where he spoke and sang last night on the green. Mooney will visit Weymouth and Quincy today and tomorrow expects to present to Governor Greenhalge a pair of shoes which he is making.

CONTRACTORS YIELDING.

Many Have Complied With the Demands of Striking Garment Workers.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The tailors' strike is still on, although upward of 1500 employes have returned to work, having secured what they asked for from the contractors. All day yesterday the settlement committee of the brotherhood was busy at their Grand-street headquarters with the contractors, talking over and signing the new agreement, which displaces the piece-work system and in its place creates a weekly scale of wages. More than 100 contractors had signed the new agreement up to midnight, when the strikers' headquarters was closed for the night. The settlement committee will continue to hold sessions daily until all the contractors have had ample opportunity to sign the new agreement.

The striking tailors gathered in a great mass meeting in Cooper Union hall last night and, after listening to speeches by their leaders, adopted resolutions endorsing the strike.

Deluge Strikes Kansas.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., July 31.—An unprecedented precipitation of rain in the southeast corner of Kansas yesterday again flooded the streams and wreaked destruction to life and property. The entire lower portion of the town is inundated. Two fatalities have so far resulted from the sudden rise. The Missouri Pacific railroad shops are surrounded, and the train service has been partially abandoned. Many families have been driven from their homes by the rushing river, and another storm is threatening. The Marmation river, Mill creek and Buck run have become one stream, spreading over sections of land which have not for years been submerged. The damage to property will be immense.

Killed His Sweetheart.

MONTREAL, July 31.—Isaie Gauthier, 23 years of age, emptied five chambers of a revolver into a beautiful young girl, Celina Consigny, also 23 years of age, yesterday, instantly killing her. The tragedy was committed in a house at 19 Bonsecours street, a rendezvous which the girl and her lover were in the habit of attending regularly. Gauthier admitted that he bought the revolver yesterday for the express purpose of killing his sweetheart. He also, he said, intended to take his own life, had he not used all the bullets in the revolver in killing the girl. Gauthier is locked up. He is dying of consumption. He and Miss Consigny were to have been married in a week.

A Peaceful Report.

MARKET LAKE, Ida., July 31.—The battalion of the Eighth infantry, composed of five companies from Fort Russell, in charge of Major Bisbee, left here yesterday morning for Marysvale. They had 30 days' supplies for the entire command, which includes a squad of cavalry now on its way to Marysvale. The infantry can, under forced march, reach Marysvale in six days. In view of the peaceful character of the reports from the scene of trouble, such hurry will not, however, in the opinion of the officials here, be necessary.

Hedging Around.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The Advertiser says that more trouble is in store for the new board of police magistrates. Tomorrow the old board of police justices will apply for a writ of injunction to prevent Comptroller Fitch from paying the new board their salaries. The grouud upon which the application will be urged is that the money appropriated for the payment of the former police justices cannot be legally applied to the persons who had no legal existence at the time the appropriation was made.

Banker Wormser Dead.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Simon Wormser, of the banking firm of I. & S. Wormser, was apparently in good health yesterday, and he spent last evening playing cards at his home. At 9 o'clock he started for a walk. At 9:45 his dead body was discovered on the stoop of the residence of Dr. Gordon on Sixty-sixth street. Death was due to apoplexy.

A Lawless Nation.

SAN SALVADOR, July 31.—The republic of Salvador is on the verge of anarchy, there no longer being any protection to life or property. Murders are committed with impunity, and recently the police assassinated a reputable citizen of this city.

Lillie Low Killed Herself.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The coroner's jury in the Lillie Low inquest case returned a verdict to the effect that the young woman came to her death by her own hands. The three prisoners were discharged.

Was Slightly Daft.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., July 31.—D. K. Barrett, who accused himself of the Emanuel church murders, was released from jail yesterday, having recovered from his hallucinations.

Gladstone Will Be Heard.

LONDON, July 31.—The Standard asserts that Mr. Gladstone has accepted the Duke of Westminster's invitation to address a public meeting at Chester on the subject of Armenia.

Released by Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The Washington club has released Jack Glasscock, shortstop, and Dan Mahoney, one of the catchers.

THE IDEAL PLACE FOR YOUR VACATION.

Longfellow didn't begin to tell the beauties of Evangeline's land—he couldn't. In its climate, scenery, and romantic history—in its boating, bathing, fishing and cycling—in its healthfulness and restfulness it is—well, it's perfect. And then the hotel rates—just half our New England prices. And the sail from Boston,

17 HOURS AT SEA.

What a delightful taste of salt that gives you! You leave Boston at 12 o'clock, noon, on the staunch steel Steamer "Boston" or "Yarmouth" the finest and fastest steamers that leave Boston—and you reach Yarmouth early next morning in time for all Railroad connections. These boats sail Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. The round trip is but $9.00—but to be sure of staterooms book ahead.

Emma Eames'
PARTING LETTER

I FEEL that I owe to the Genuine JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT, in a great measure, the fact that, at the end of a very hard season, I am in better voice and general health than at the beginning. I have constantly used the Johann Hoff's Malt Extract with my meals and kindly ask you to send one case, in care of the Steamer City of New York, on Tuesday, as I leave on Wednesday, and would not like to be without it.

Yours Sincerely
Emma Eames Story

Shakespeare.

Others abide our question. Thou art free.
We ask and ask. Thou smilest and art still,
Outtopping knowledge. For the loftiest hill
Who to the stars uncrowns his majesty,
Planting his steadfast footsteps in the sea,
Making the heaven of heavens his dwelling place,
Spares but the cloudy border of his base
To the foiled searching of mortality;
And thou, who didst the stars and sunbeams know,
Self schooled, self scanned, self honored, self secure,
Didst tread on earth unguessed at. Better so!
All pains the immortal spirit must endure,
All weakness which impairs, all griefs which bow
Find their sole speech in that victorious brow.

PLANET COLLISIONS.

Should Stars Knock Together the Fire Would Be Indescribable.

Professor Ledger of London, whose series of Gresham astronomy lectures on "Knocks In Their Relation to Astronomy" has been completed, in his last discourse pointed out that the universe, instead of being fixed, is alive with motion, each star with its attendant planets hurrying through space. If star were to knock against star the intense heat and fierce fire generated by the enormous velocity and vast momentum of the two masses would be such as to pass human conception.

It may be that the sun was formed by the collision of two stars. The effect of two such bodies attracting each other and meeting would be to reduce them to a violently agitated gaseous mass, which would oscillate, first inward, producing inconceivable heat, and then outward again, ultimately assuming the condition of the sun. The general result would be that the two bodies would revolve around their common center of gravity—that is to say, around each other—creating a double star. Lord Kelvin has calculated that if 29,000,000 solid globes, each of the mass of the moon, should be scattered over a spherical surface 100 times the radius of the earth's orbit, they would come together and be raised to a temperature of 100,000 degrees. They would oscillate outward and inward, reaching to a less distance each time, and ultimately settling down into a sphere.

The nebulæ we see around us may, Professor Ledger suggests, have been produced by the knocking together of two great bodies rather than by the aggregation of many smaller ones. The collision of two huge suns would thus lead to rejuvenescence and the formation of new systems. Phenomena indicating that something very much in the nature of a collision had occurred are the outbursts of temporary stars such as those observed by Tycho Brahe in 1572, by Kepler in 1604 and those of 1848, 1866, 1876, 1885 and 1892, the last being the new star Auriga, which declined through ten magnitudes, or became 100,000 times less bright in two months. The great increase in the light of a comet as it approaches the sun may be due to a tidal disturbance in the bodies forming it, causing them to knock against each other, and thus generate heat and light.

In the same way the twinkling of the stars may be caused by the knocks of the molecules of the atmosphere on the ether, whose undulations carry their light to us. The excessively great and the exceedingly small are all interdependent, and the past, present and probable future of nebulous bodies all hinge on the relations they bear to the knocks of the molecules of their gases, while the knocks of immense bodies depend ultimately on the knocks of their constituent atoms.

BULLETS FLEW LIVELY.

Alabama Miners Engage In a Deadly Race Conflict.

Deputy Sheriffs Shot Down by Negro Leader.

Trouble Has Been Brewing Some Time and the End Is Not Yet.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 31.—A race riot occurred at Brookside yesterday, resulting in the death of two deputy sheriffs and a number of negroes. The fight was between a band of white miners, headed by Deputy Sheriffs Wood and Baxter, who were trying to arrest Jim Biggers, a negro, and a crowd of the latter's friends. Over 150 shots were fired.

Mine Boss Culverhouse of the Sloss Iron and Steel company discharged Biggers for a violation of mine rules. Biggers remained about the place, making threats. He refused to leave the company's premises and a warrant was sworn out for his arrest for trespassing. Deputy Sheriff Wood and Special Deputy Joel Baxter went to arrest Biggers. As they approached, Biggers fired upon them with a winchester rifle. A bullet passed through Wood's head and another through his heart, killing him instantly.

Baxter was mortally wounded, but was able to get back to the camp and give the alarm. The white miners organized and went to arrest Biggers. The latter, in the meantime, had called in a number of his negro friends, and when the two parties met, a pitched battle resulted, the negroes fleeing to the woods. It is now said that half a dozen or more several of whom were killed outright and the others were badly wounded. Whether any of the whites were wounded or not cannot be learned. The names of the killed and wounded negroes could not be had.

Were Shot Down,

The town of Brookside is in a state of great excitement, every man in town being armed. Shooting was kept up at intervals for two hours or more.

Word has reached here from the telegraph operator at Brookside, who is locked in his office, that an attack by the negroes is feared.

When the first news of the fight reached here last evening, Sheriff Morrow and Chief of Police McDonald summoned all the available officers, and a carload of them started for the scene of the riot.

Deputy Wood, who was killed, was exsheriff of Talladega county. It is hoped that the arrival of the force of officers from this city will restore quiet, and that no further demonstration will be made by the negroes.

Trouble between the white and black miners employed at the Sloss company's mines at Brookside has been brewing for some time. There has always been ill feeling between the two races, and it needed but the first shot of last night's riot to bring on a fight.

Up to Date.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 31.—In the house of representatives yesterday the colonial treasurer stated that the government had decided to subsidize a line of steamships to run between this island and Vancouver, B. C. A bill has been introduced which proposed legislation looking toward co-operation with the Dominion of Canada in the matter of the construction of a Pacific submarine cable.

Tempest in a Teapot.

TOPEKA, July 31.—It is now thought there will be no trouble of a serious nature with the Pottawatomie and Kickapoo Indians. Sheriff Naylor of Holton has not carried out his threat to call upon the governor for troops to aid him in arresting the accused Indians. The trouble grew out of a lease of certain hay land on the reservation to the whites.

Detectives' Great Find.

BUFFALO, July 31.—Secret service detectives have found a satchel containing $28,000 worth of bogus stamps which belonged to Mrs. McMillan of Hamilton, Ont., who is now in jail awaiting trial for participation in a stamp-counterfeiting scheme. The search for this satchel has taken two months.

More Shakes.

FLORENCE, July 31.—Slight shocks of earthquake occurred here yesterday which caused much alarm, in view of the city's recent terrifying experience with earthquake. No serious damage, however, was done. In the districts outside the city the shocks were more severe, and caused more damage.

Evading Justice.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—There is some reason to fear that a couple of absconders from the United States have discovered a hole in the meshes of the law which will make it impossible in many cases to secure the extradition of criminals fleeing into Mexico from the United States, no matter how grave the charge laid against them. A short time ago the state department, upon application of the governor of Iowa, sought to secure the extradition of Chester and Richard Rowe, the former being treasurer of Poweshiek county, Ia., and an embezzler of about $40,000, and the latter, his brother, charged with complicity in the crime. The men went boldly to the City of Mexico under the name of Rose, and when it was sought to serve the extradition papers they set up the claim that they could not be extradited. They had accomplished this change in their nationallty by the simple process of purchasing some real estate and electing to become Mexican citizens.

An Interesting Case.

ALBANY, July 31.—The right of insurance companies to exhume the bodies of policy holders is to be determined by the court of appeals on the appeal just filed in the case of Charles Wehle against the United States Accident association to recover $10,000 on a policy on the life of Henry Wehle, who was found drowned. When the case came to trial it was dismissed on proof that a demand of the insurance company to make an examination of the body after the burial had been denied by the representatives of Mr. Wehle. The court says that the company should have applied for the examination before burial instead of afterward. From this the company appeals.

Alleged Conspirators on Trial.

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C., July 31.—The Beaufort life insurance conspiracy trial began here yesterday. There are 25 cases of alleged fraud, with as many individual defendants. The first case called was that involving the policy issued on the life of Charles Arthur, a street beggar, now deceased. In his application, he was stated to be a man of sound health, while the evidence went to show that he was afflicted with an iucurable disease. He died within a few months afrer the issuance of his policy, which amounted to $9000. It was claimed that his signatures were forgeries.

Keystone National Closed.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., July 31.—The Keystone National bank closed its doors yesterday. It was considered one of the strongest banks in the city. This makes three banks that have closed within the last 60 days.

SWITHIN BROS.,
Real Estate

Having opened a Real Estate office in Durgin & Merrill's Block, we are prepared to show plans and give prices on some of the finest house lots offered for sale in this city in recent years. These lots are embraced in the following tracts of land:

PRESIDENTS' HILL.

This land was formerly the country residence of C. F. Adams. It overlooks the ocean, and the view both seaward and inland is unsurpassed in this vicinity. The grounds are covered with rare and costly shade trees, a very desirable feature of a lot, and the farthest portion of the property is within four minutes' walk of both electric and steam cars. Persons wishing a fine lot in a first-class locality would do well to inspect this property before purchasing.

CRANCH HILL.

Probably better known as Adams' Field. This property embraces the present links of the Quincy Golf Club, and is situated in the heart of the city. The land is high and dry, and the streets through the property are wide and straight. The lots are good size, the prices moderate and terms very reasonable. No better lots for a man of moderate means have ever been offered in this city.

WEST QUINCY.

Land formerly known as the Dell estate on Willard street, borders on Blue Hills reservation; is handy to works, and is less than five minutes' walk to electric cars, West Quincy depot and schools. This property comprises about 80 lots.

HILLSIDE TERRACE.

On Grove street, near quarries and sheds; good lots, low prices; small amount down and small monthly payments. This property comprises about 70 lots.

Also a few lots off Bates avenue.

WOLLASTON.

A few desirable lots in Wollaston on Hancock street, opposite entrance to Merry Mount Park.

☞ Will be on land at Presidents' Hill every afternoon from 2 to 4. Parties desiring lots or any information on the above properties, please call at Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.
